NORTH SHORE BREEZE

MANCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1910.

• Society Notes •

"Eaglehead," the McMillan summer home at Manchester, has been opened the past week. Mrs. McMillan is still abroad. She will sail probably on the 20th of this month and will come to the North Shore immediately on landing. Her son, Frank McMillan, and family will be on from New York sometime during the month for a stay at "Eaglehead."

—x—

Mrs. H. C. Frick, Miss Helen Frick and Childs Frick arrived in New York on the Mauretania the latter part of last week and came at once to "Eagle Rock," their Pride's Crossing summer home, where Mr. Frick and household had preceded them.

—x—

Quincy A. Shaw, jr., and family arrived at their Pride's Crossing summer home on Wednesday.

—x—

Judge W. H. Moore's summer home at Pride's Crossing was opened this week. Judge and Mrs. Moore are in England for the International Horse show.

—x—

"Sharksmouth," the summer home of Mrs. Greeley S. Curtis and family at Manchester Cove was opened two weeks ago for the season, and the Misses Margaret, Harriot and Isabella Curtis are here. Mrs. Curtis has been in New York, where her son, James, has been confined at a hospital. He is improving very rapidly, so that he will be able to come to the North Shore very soon to recuperate.

—x—

Commodore S. Parker Bremer of the Manchester Yacht club is having the Velthra, his speedy steam yacht, put in commission for this season's use. He has not used the yacht for several seasons.

—x—

R. T. Paine, jr., and family opened their cottage at Pride's Crossing this week.

—x—

Mrs. James Proctor planned to open her Beverly Cove cottage yesterday for the season;

:: At the Hotels ::

A small army of employees are rushing the final work on putting the big Oceanside hotel at Magnolia in readiness to open for the season next Friday, June 10. The hotel will be open for the reception of guests at luncheon. As previously stated, the advance bookings for June are greater in number than ever before. A number have already arrived and are being taken care of as well as possible. Among them are the Hon. and Mrs. E. M. House of Texas. They arrived the first of the week and are quartered at Sea Vista. Their daughter, Miss Janet House, who stopped over at Chestnut Hill for a short visit with her sister, Mrs. Randolph Tucker, joined her parents yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Gibson and daughter are also stopping at the hotel. Mr. Gibson is the organist for the H. C. Fricks. They may possibly take a small cottage on the shore later.

Among those who are expected for the opening day, or shortly after, are Mrs. John M. Gilkinson of St. Louis, who came East several days ago and is stopping at the Somerset, Boston; Percy L. Atherton, Frederick Atherton and their mother, Mrs. Atherton of 144 Commonwealth ave., Boston; C. G. Croll, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bonney, New York; the Misses Brewster of the Charlesgate, Boston; Admiral Farmer and family and M. L. Wendell, jr., Boston; William P. Palmer, president of the American Steel Wire Co., St. Louis; Mrs. Thomas P. Proctor, Boston; Mrs. E. B. Culbert and family, New York; Mrs. S. E. Tucker and Miss Tucker, New York; Mrs. C. R. Tucker and Mrs. Catherwood, Philadelphia; Mrs. Hobart Miss Charlotte Lane, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Guild, Boston; and Mrs. David Loring, Boston.

Miss Helen Hooper's estate at West Manchester is being prepared for the return of its owner from Europe. The servants arrived this week. Miss Hooper will return within a week or two.

• Society Notes •

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hancock and family of Texas, who occupied the A. B. Claffin house at Beverly Cove last summer, will return to the North Shore this year. They have leased the Alexander Cochrane place at Hamilton which they had two seasons ago. Miss Dorothy Hancock, who was a debutante of the past season, figured conspicuously in social affairs in New York and elsewhere the past winter.

—x—

The Mexican ambassador and part of his suite have engaged apartments at the Oceanside hotel for the season, and will arrive July 1.

—x—

Mrs. L. Z. Leiter, who planned to visit the North Shore Tuesday to note the progress being made on her new summer home at Beverly Farms prior to sailing for Europe, made a sudden change in her plans. She has hired the Endicott house on Neptune street, Beverly Cove, and will spend the summer there, instead of going to Europe. She will thus be in close touch with the work at her estate at Beverly Farms.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Norman have returned from their trip around the world and are at their summer estate at Beverly Cove.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lancashire of Alma, Mich., are comfortably settled at the Hood cottage on Norton's point, Manchester, for the season—the same cottage they had last year. They came on east last week to attend the graduation exercises at the Spence school, New York, where their daughter, Miss Helen Lancashire, was one of the graduates. Miss Hilda Rice of Ipswich was also a member of this class. There are other well known North Shore girls who attend this school. Miss Helen Frick was one of those graduated last year. Miss Lancashire joined her parents and the other members of the family at Manchester, Wednesday of this week. The son Ammi, who will return to Yale next fall as a senior, will be home from college within a few weeks.

THE ATLANTIC SEASHORE DEVELOPMENT

Article VI.—Long Island—The South Shore.

"The Bowery"—one has but to speak the crass and ribald phrase and all the "old timers" of New York wake up, and every mind reverts to but one place, for there never was but one "Bowery." And the same may be said of Coney Island, the Bowery of the Atlantic seashore.

No place has been an illustration of a "horrible example" of summer dissipation more than this noted resort on Long Island's shore. And yet no place has been such a blessing for the tired poor and their wan-faced children as a recreation spot. And today, although it has lost little of its free and easy lures, a change is wrought in its newer aspect as the city's seashore park and playground. Every one has visited Coney Island, some in dread of moral defilement, but today none need dread it more than the erstwhile primitive mining camp of the West. Coney Island, like the Bowery, is becoming civilized, almost respectable, when a half million dollars is paid for a narrow strip of sand that sold a few years ago for eight thousand dollars. It has thus evolved from the garish into the golden.

Just beyond are the famous Manhattan and Oriental hotels, always luxurious, the resorts of noted men and women and fine orchestras and caravansaries soon to be eclipsed by modern structures of granite, marble and cement, filled with every imaginable device for the gratification of the swells of the world's capitals that resort hither. Here are to be seen the wonderful Pain's fireworks, duplicating in most realistic manner on a vast open-air stage the the war scenes of history, ancient and modern. Here also a noted race track, once the resort of grafters and gamblers, evolves into a pretty bungalow colony by the sea.

Beyond are the Rockaways, now among the world's well known resorts and many other seashore towns, like dissolving pictures, are blossoming into pretty suburban centers combining all the pleasures of the Atlantic with the comforts of a permanent home.

A conservative estimate of ten million population for New York City in fifteen years is steadily gathering along this coast line as the line of least resistance and the greatest attraction creating here unique suburbs as far as Montauk Point. If only half the projects of railroad, city, state, and nation, aside from scores of big corporate schemes, are carried out, farms along the South Shore will disappear, as did the squatters and the goats on the rocks of upper Manhattan before the advancing tide of population.

Long Beach, founded on the pretentious lines of Atlantic City, in a few years must exceed that great resort on account of its location; also its inception has taken advantage of all the best things in the slow growth of other places. The extent and artistic planning of great hotels and elaborate homes and avenues and esplanade now well advanced warrant this forecast. And no more magnificent stretches of hard, white sands, with their long gradual slope into the Atlantic, can be found anywhere.

Babylon, a fashionable town and summer resort, is composed largely of wealthy financiers and prosperous merchants of the metropolis, a center of magnificent homes, and with a reputation at home and abroad for its Westminster Kennel Club.

Just beyond, at Bayshore, a Venetian colony, one of several others, is growing rapidly along the seashore and its pretty inland canals, and gives promise of a future artistic center undreamed of in home building a few years ago.

Oakdale, further on, the seat of William K. Vanderbilt, an estate of royal proportions, and Great River and Sayville, form a territory of many other elaborate estates comprised of hundreds of acres, each with their abundant game preserves gathered round the world, and with their clubs and aristocratic exclusiveness indicate posterior holdings that has already taken square miles of choice lands from the market practically for all time to come.

Near the home of these American aristocrats is the home of the aristocratic bivalve, the Blue Point oyster, a neighbor in keeping, famed for its delightful quality and flavor.

Patchogue is worthy of note as the fastest growing town on Long Island and is in close touch with the city by through express trains and it has a promising future.

All along the shores of the great South Bay there is a continuous panorama of interesting old towns, hotels, boat clubs, summer colonies and estates, the waters here being a mecca for aquatic sports, fishing, and duck and water fowl shooting in the migrating season. These events give place to winter pastimes upon the ice until "dull seasons" on the South Shore are no more.

Protecting these great bays by natural breakwaters are the immense sand keys stretching far out through the Atlantic connected with the mainland by steamers that ply between the shores and the reefs where are located the lighthouse, lifesaving and wireless stations of the U. S. government, and where ocean beach colonies are also growing, composed of those that love at once both the safety of land-locked waters and the thrilling pleasures found in the pounding surf.

The most remarkable reef is Fire Island, where Fire Island Light, with twenty-three million candle-power beams, the most powerful light along the Atlantic, is a constant source of interest to boating parties. Here New York is developing a state park that shall be the finest public seashore park in the world.

So, whether it be boisterous Coney Island, the luxurious Manhattan, the noted Rockaways, the ambitious Long Beach, the exclusive Oakdale, or the vast sand keys dividing the Atlantic, there is a charm here so varied as to be irresistible to all.

The mainland almost touches these sand keys at Smith's Point. The Tangiers Company have bought nine thousand acres here, the holdings of the Smith family for generations, comprising miles of ocean, bay and river frontage, where a summer Venice-by-the-sea is planned that shall carry out dreams of development never attempted before, where every imaginable summer and fall and winter recreation can be found by the possessor of the talisman of gold. Here is one corporate holding of almost sixteen square miles of seashore territory absorbed in one lump.

From here on to the beautiful and famous "Hamptons" it is simply a repetition of the coast to Smith's Point, hitherto the only gap in the shoreline development.

Westhampton and its companion colony at Quogue are rapidly increasing in favor and in beautiful summer homes and estates, the former famed as the home of Gen. John A. Dix, the author of the patriotic slogan,—“If any man attempt to haul down the American flag shoot him on the spot,” the latter famed as the favorite bathing and fishing ground of Daniel Webster.

Perhaps the marvel of all are the bleak Shinnecock Hills, separated from Long Island by the old Shinnecock Canal, originally cut through from Peconic Bay to Shinnecock Bay by the Indians, now kept in commission by the state. What charm can there be in these bare hills devoid of trees, unless it is that nature designed them especially for the golf course now recognized by all golfers as among the few perfect courses can tell, but as one stands on the anywhere. But it is not that. No one crest of one of these wind-swept knolls and looks north over the blue ripples of the deep Peconic Bay and south over the Shinnecock Bay to the rolling Atlantic, a vow is registered to possess a villa site here, until now the price of five thousand dollars for an acre plot has put it beyond the reach of the average seashore enthusiast. The skill and genius of the architect and landscape artist is at work transforming these hills into an ever-unfolding region of peculiar charm.

Century old homesteads, shaded by elms and buttonball trees, with all their quaint interiors, hidden along old country roads, have been sought out and bought up and carefully remodelled to preserve the tone of quaint old age, but modernized with all present-day devices of comfort and luxury, while still the ghost of a forgotten age looks out wonderingly under the eaves at the flash of an automobile along a highway un-

Mrs. George D. Howe arrived at her summer home on Smith's Point, Manchester, yesterday. “The Cliffs” is one of the oldest summer cottages on Smith's Point, being built in 1879. It was in its day one of the finest houses on the shore. The magnificent view of the ocean both up and down the shore is unsurpassed from this house.

When the project of the Jamaica Bay and South Shore waterways, toward which the U. S. government stands pledged to give one-third, is carried out, inland waterway to Boston via Cape Cod Canal, now building, will be established along both the north and south shores of Long Island, the significance of which is beyond all calculation, both in point of profit and interest which, of course, are naturally inseparable.

SEAWANHAKA CUP DEFENDER LAUNCHED AT MANCHESTER

BREMER AND HER FATHER
COMM SPREITER
CHRISTENING
THE MASSACHUSETTS

TRYING HER OUT

THE BOLT ON THE WAYS

The Manchester Yacht club's Seawanhaka Cup defender was launched last Saturday afternoon at the yard of the David Fenton Co. As the yacht started down the ways Miss Edith Bremer, the ten-year-old daughter of Commodore S. Parker Bremer, smashed a bottle of champagne over its bow, and christened it Massachusetts.

A number of prominent yachtsmen were at the launching, and several ladies were also there, and the wharf and grounds were lined with townspeople. As the yacht struck the water the whistle of the dredger working nearby gave the salute.

As soon as overboard the sails were unfurled and the Massachusetts was taken out for a short spin.

Aboard were E. A. Boardman, who designed her, his brother, R. DeB. Boardman, and John Saltonstall, who, with L. A. Wardsworth, will compose the crew in the racing, with E. A. Boardman at the tiller. She was taken out for another spin Sunday, and on both occasions showed up splendidly. She is expected to show her best speed at a heel of 18 degrees, when she will sail on about a 35-foot water line.

Among those invited to the launching of the Massachusetts, which is owned by the Manchester Yacht club syndicate, were G. E. Tripp, H. H. Walker, J. C. Fairchild, F. B. Crowningshield, G. H. Dowse, F. S. Pratt, C. E. Hodges, K. Winsor, G. D. Wells, C. C. Rumrill, S. H. Hooper, J. L. Saltonstall, R. DeB. Boardman, E. A. Boardman, Edgar Crocker, R. Boardman, S. P. Bremer, W. B. Jackson, H. A. Green, J. A. Burnham, jr., C. W. Foss, C. H. McDuffie, T. B. Gannett, jr., R. W. Emmons 2d, R. H. Stevenson 2d, J. L. Bremer, N. Rantoul, Gordon Means, C. F. Lyman, Matthew Bartlett, W. H. Joyce, C. P. Curtis and Joe Frothingham.

The trophy for which this boat is built as defender is one of the best known in American yachting. It was first offered in 1895 by the Seawanhaka Corinthian yacht club as an international challenge cup for small racing yachts.

In 1896 the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht club sent a successful challenger to the races in Long Island sound. Until 1905 the cup was held by the Canadian club against all challengers, but that year the Manchester, representing the Manchester Yacht club, brought back the cup to the states.

This year's challenge from the Royal St. Lawrence Y. C. is the first that has been received by the Manchester Y. C. since it won the trophy. The Royal St. Lawrence Y. C. is building a challenger, which it is expected will be launched soon. This boat is to be tried out against two of the older boats, and afterwards the challenger and one of the two boats are to be shipped to Marblehead for trials before the match, which will be begun off House island, Manchester, July 25.

The first matches for this trophy were sailed with half-raters or 15-footers. From 1897 to 1900 the boats were built to 17 feet water line or 20-foot rating. Since 1900 they have been built to 25-foot rating, with 500 square feet of sail, which is increased this year to 625 feet.

The Massachusetts has every appearance of being an enlarged Manchester, which was also designed by Mr. Boardman. She gives every indication of speed, and is well able to withstand any strain that may be put upon her.

She is 42 feet over all, 25 feet on the waterline, of 8 feet 6 inches beam and 5 feet draught. Her sail area of 625 square feet has 500 square feet in the mainsail. The mast is about 32 feet in length, the boom 25 feet and the gaff 17 feet 7 inches. All the rigging is of plow steel wire.

She carries two bilge boards of steel plate, which when down will draw about four feet, and also has two bronze rudders. She is planked with half-inch cedar, and the deck planking is set diagonally and covered with canvas. This deck planking saves some trussing and also weight, and with the ribs of oak spaced at six inches this boat is one of the strongest scows ever built.

In Yachting Circles

Roger Putnam will have one of the speediest motor boats on the shore this summer. The "Hermes" is now at David Fenton's waiting the arrival of a 40-horse-power engine, which ought to develop a speed of 20 knots.

David Fenton of Manchester recently shipped a power tender to Louis R. Alberger of New York. The tender is equipped with a five horse-power, two cycle engine.

o/o

James Mitchell of Manchester put his motor boat overboard last Monday afternoon employing the unique method of carrying it through the street from his shop on Bennett street to the town landing on wheels and launching it by pushing it overboard, wheels and all. The boat was built by Mr. Mitchell and his brother from beginning to end, from designs which they obtained. A 20-horse-power engine has been installed and it is expected the boat will develop quite a speed and will give Manchester local motor boat enthusiasts a rub.

Francis J. Cotting and sister, Miss Alice Cotting opened their summer home at Pride's Crossing last week.

Society Notes

The announcement was made last Saturday by Mrs. John C. Phillips of North Beverly of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Martha R. Phillips, to Congressman Andrew J. Peters of Jamaica Plain. Miss Phillips is the sister of Mrs. R. C. Bollings of New York, of William Phillips, secretary of the U. S. embassy at London, of Dr. John C. Phillips of Wenham and George Phillips of New York. Congressman Andrew Peters was at Moraine Farm, the Phillips estate on the North Shore, over the last week-end. The wedding will probably take place in the autumn.

The marriage of Miss Joan C. Bird and Louis Agassiz Shaw will be solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner of East Walpole, on Tuesday, June 14. The ceremony, which will be performed at 4.30 o'clock, will be witnessed only by relatives and a few intimate friends. A reception will follow at 5 o'clock which will be largely attended. Miss Bird's only attendant will be her only sister, Miss Edith Bird. John Cutler of Brookline, whose engagement to Miss Rosalind Fish has recently been announced, will be best man. After a short wedding trip, Mr. Shaw and his bride will make their home at Beverly Farms, where Mr. Shaw has a large estate near that of his brother, Q. A. Shaw, 2d.

F. I. Amory and family arrived at Beverly Cove Wednesday.

William M. Wood and family who came to Pride's Crossing several weeks ago so as to be here for the Patton-Ayer wedding last week, have returned to their country estate at Andover to remain two or three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Spaulding came in on the Mauretania the latter part of last week after a winter's sojourn abroad. They have gone to Chicago for a visit with Mrs. Spaulding's relatives before coming to Pride's Crossing.

Among the recent arrivals at Magnolia are the H. H. Stevens, the C. P. Sampsons, James Tent and family and the J. W. Tewksburys.

Eugene G. Foster and family of New York have come on to the North Shore for the summer. They are very pleasantly located at the Southerland cottage at Coolidge's Point.

BASS ROCKS

Rev. James S. Williamson of Haverhill and Bass Rocks, who has been pastor of the North Congregational church of Haverhill the past eleven years, has resigned to accept a call from the Plymouth church of Lansing, Mich., and assumes his new duties Sept. 1. Rev. and Mrs. Williamson during their summer residence here for many years invested in real estate at Bass Rocks, Grapevine Cove and at Eastern Point, where they have valuable holdings, and their concrete villa at Eastern Point has been in recent years the summer headquarters of the Siamese embassy. Their other two cottages are both rented for the season. His departure for new fields of labor not only will remove a popular summer resident, but a notable figure in Essex county church circles.

This week several families settled in their cottages for the season, including Mr. Burnham of Brookline, Smith cottage, near the Thorwald; D. Chauncey Brewer, esq., of Boston; Thursday, Mrs. Hart of Cincinnati and Gelston Whittemore, Boston.

Jerome Remick of Detroit and W. G. Ressor of Brooklyn arrived at their cottages on the 28th. Mr. Remick has a lease of the Stacy Colonial cottage on Atlantic avenue, and Mr. Ressor, who was a former resident of Cincinnati, and who was for three seasons a guest at The Thorwald, has Prof. Louis C. Elson's cottage on Beach avenue.

Mr. Beals and family of Lawrence, are arriving at their attractive new summer home on Beach avenue about the last of June when school closes.

Dr. Greene and family of Orange, N. J., will arrive at their Beach avenue cottage about July 1.

E. B. Chandler and family of Texas will arrive at their cottage June 15.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Cooper and younger children of Mt. Vernon, O., are arriving at their estate, which has undergone extensive improvements, the last of June. The two eldest daughters, who are students at Bradford academy, were here Memorial Day as the guests of the Misses Mendell of Brookline, who have been at their summer home on Atlantic avenue since March.

THE CAPE ANN RESORTS

Clyde C. Bathurst, protégé of Charles Grafly, the distinguished Philadelphia sculptor, now at his Lanesville cottage for the season, was one of the winners of the William Emlen Cresson traveling scholarships of $500 given students at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts for summer study abroad. Mr. Bathurst has been at Lanesville in past seasons as the guest of Mr. Grafly and family.

Edward H. Clarkson of Newburyport, a summer resident of Rockport, has recently purchased four and one-half acres of land on South street, Rockport.

Bass Rocks.

E. B. Currier and family of New York are returning to the Worcester cottage on Beach avenue again this season, and Mrs. Pierce of Cincinnati will return to the Conant cottage, Beach avenue.

The Cutlers of Springfield, Mass., will not occupy their cottage this season, having secured a tenant for it.

C. J. R. Humphreys of Lawrence, who have been summer residents of Bass Rocks for a number of years, are to depart from that annual custom and have placed their Atlantic avenue property on sale.

A social event of much interest here this season will be the wedding of Miss Rotan of Waco, Texas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rotan of the Grapevine Cove colony, and Winthrop Sargent, jr., of Haverford, Pa., and Bass Rocks, which is to be solemnized in the same environment where the young people's romance began and where they are prominent summer residents of long standing.

The Thorwald will open June 20 on the completion of interior repairs and improvements.

Melvin A. Blanchard, the contractor, has sold his Haskell street residence to Mrs. Sally F., wife of Alexander C. Nelson of Buxton, Maryland. The Nelson family have summered at The Moorland in past seasons.

Make known your wants in the classified adv. columns of The Breeze.

EAST GLOUCESTER

The Siamese ambassador, Siamese and English secretaries and household servants, arrived at Eastern Point, Tuesday, at the Williamson villa. Mrs. Edward Loftus, wife of the secretary, will sail for England in July to make a visit to her home.

Mrs. Weeks and daughters of Dorchester have arrived at their picturesque cottage on East Main street. They had as their guest during part of last season, Countess Moltke, wife of the Danish ambassador (nee Thayer of Boston).

Mrs. Edward A. Foggo and sister, Miss Rand of Philadelphia, have arrived in the Patch cottage, next to the Mailman house. Mrs. Foggo is the widow of the late rector of the famous Christ church, Philadelphia, where Washington worshipped.

Prof. Albert Carpenter of Boston is at his cottage preparing it for the season as an annex to the Mailman house.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Jay Little have rented their new cottage, which was built since last season, at Eastern Point.

The household servants of Gen. and Mrs. Anson Mills of Washington, are at the new concrete mansion of Gen. and Mrs. Mills, getting it in readiness for occupancy. The General, his wife and niece, Mrs. Overton of Washington, are at the Delphine in the interim. This imposing new house, occupying a slightly position on the heights above the Eastern Point golf links, has a grand outlook over the hills and ocean. It is a notable addition to the fine array of summer homes being yearly erected in this popular section of East Gloucester.

The family of Walter L. Dean, the noted Boston marine artist, were due Wednesday at the Alfred Spurr, jr., residence on Gerring street, which had been improved prior to their occupancy. Mr. Dean, who is on a whaling voyage for pleasure and for material for marine paintings, will probably not arrive until August.

Mr. Webb of Boston, who is to have "The Moorings" studio in the Little apartments, has settled there for the season with his mother.

"The Anchorage" is occupied this season as a branch of the Palace of Sweets, Gloucester.

* Society Notes *

Mrs. R. D. Evans arrived at her summer home on Burgess Point, Beverly, this week.

The Neal W. Rices opened their summer home at Beverly Cove a few days ago.

Mrs. Samuel T. Morse is among this week's arrivals at Beverly Farms.

Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, and family who were to spend the month of June at one of the Oceanside cottages, Magnolia, going abroad for the balance of the summer, have made a change in their plans. They have taken a cottage at Beverly Farms for the season.

Rev. and Mrs. Roland Cotton Smith of Washington and Ipswich sail for Europe June 15 for an extended stay.

Blanche Dillaye, a Philadelphia artist of note, who summers in Ipswich, had her studio wrecked in the big studio building fire which occurred in the Quaker City recently.

Mrs. Lida Bacon of Cincinnati is abroad until July, so that her summer home on Clarendon street will not be reopened until then.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hooper, who have been abroad nearly two years, are sailing for home next Tuesday. They will come immediately to their West Manchester estate.

At the Philadelphia horse show, Memorial Day, Boston was represented both as a guest and contestant by Miss Eleanora Sears, who drove Charles K. Bispham's Lady of Fashion and captured first prize in that class, a cup. Miss Sears and Miss Marion Fenno were in Philadelphia for the tennis tournament—the Pennsylvania championship—and contested Memorial Day at the Merion Cricket club courts. On the same day, they were guests of honor at the Radnor Hunt club at a dinner given by their hostess, Mrs. W. J. Clothier.

The Misses Mary and Fannie Bartlett sailed from New York last Saturday on the Hamburg-American line for Hamburg. They plan to spend the summer touring Europe. They will visit Sweden and Norway to see the midnight sun, and they will also go to England, France, Germany and Italy, returning to Boston in November. Their house at Manchester will not be occupied this summer.

* Society Notes *

East Gloucester.

A party of fifteen Wellesley college girls were down on Monday. They brought their lunches and secured a big sail boat from The Rockaway float and had a sailing party with Capt. Frank Foster at the wheel.

Other guests at The Rockaway included Mr. and Mrs. G. Barnard, W. J. Riordan, Worcester; Frank J. Perkins, Alice S. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Wood, Malden, besides several others from greater Boston.

Mrs. Katherine G. Stewart of Indianapolis and her friend, Miss Evans, have secured Capt. Frank Foster's large cottage on Rocky Neck avenue, and are settled for the season. They made the trip in the Stewart auto, a run of eight days. Mrs. Stewart has summered here before at The Delphine.

Ex-Vice-Commodore of the Gloucester Yacht club, Lawyer Webster of Worcester, was at Rocky Neck Memorial Day with Mrs. Webster. They have a summer home at Hali-butt Point, Lanesville, near Pigeon Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stockton and family are closing their Manchester house next week for part of the summer, and plan to leave Wednesday for Lake Champlain, where Mrs. Stockton's late father had a beautiful country estate at Westport.

E. C. Fitch's schooner Chantecler starts for the coast of Labrador Saturday. It will connect with its owner in Quebec, and it will go from there to Labrador where it will remain for a month or six weeks.

Mrs. Westervelt of New York was a recent guest of her sister, Mrs. W. S. Kuhn, Manchester.

Death has removed another of Manchester's oldest and best known summer residents. Mrs. John H. Sturgis passed away at her Boston home the latter part of May. Mrs. Sturgis and family were among the most devoted of Manchester's summer residents for a great many years. Their summer home "Rockwood," is located in the Manchester Cove section of the town.

Chantecler Inn Opened at Montserrat.

There has just been opened at Montserrat a new tea room and inn, which will be known as the Chantecler Inn, in the new building on Essex street, not far from the station, owned by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, who, by the way, is very much interested in its success. The place is being conducted by Mrs. M. L. Murray, who had a very successful tea house at Hyannis, on the South Shore, last season. A specialty will be made of afternoon teas and of catering to luncheon parties, broiled live lobster or chicken being the leading dish.

The place was opened yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Henry W. Peabody gave a luncheon party for six. The room is furnished in Dutch style with round tables seating four or five, and there is also a little Dutch room for private parties. Mrs. Murray has arranged to have a line of old china for sale, a private collection never before placed on sale.

Chantecler dishes will be used in serving, and the hangings are of French Chantecler pattern. Home cooking will be a feature of the Inn. The Mary Elizabeth and Kingston candies are for sale.

The Inn is a very attractive place, and should be well patronized this summer by North Shore people.

Is the Tree in the Highway? That is a question that has not infrequently puzzled the tree wardens. The trouble has arisen from the difficulty of determining the exact boundaries of the highway. Often there is no fence or wall; and again, where such structures do exist it is not certain that they represent the property line. These problems arise chiefly on back country roads, though they have been known to arise on some of our North Shore roads.

It will interest property holders generally to learn that this year the law has been so amended (Chap. 321, Acts of 1910) that city and town officers having charge of public shade trees should have no further difficulties in this particular. If the right of the city or town to exercise jurisdiction over any given roadside tree is disputed by the abutting property owner, on the ground that it is not within the highway limits, although it may appear to be so, the new law requires the property owner to prove in court that the tree is not within the highway. Until he does so the law states that the tree shall be taken to be within the limits of the highway. The city or town is not obliged to prove anything.

How to Keep Cool! This is advice which many will seek during the coming months, and which few will follow. However, it may not be amiss to be told that the health officer of the city of Washington, where many great thoughts are supposed to originate, has issued some ideas on the subject. He says, avoid getting excited on a hot day, keep the nerves tranquil, get plenty of sleep, and, of course, wear as few clothes as possible. Above all, says the doctor, do not drink iced water or other very cool beverages, soda water, or stimulating drinks. Finally, the doctor might have added, if you can go where it is cool—to the beaches or to the mountains or some place cooler than Washington or the place you happen to abide in. Until Dr. Wiley issues a bulletin on how to keep cool, this will be about all on the subject.

Our Weekly Letter From Washington

Washington, June 3.—One of the questions which has been forced into prominence during this Congress is the parcels post. There seems to be a great diversity of opinion on this question, and many persons who discuss it evidently have but an imperfect knowledge of the principles underlying it. Not to discuss these here, there has been presented to Congress recently a summary of the replies made to queries by the hardware salesmen. These replies were sent to S. R. Miles, at Mason City, Ia., and it appears from them that the 849 carriers heard from carried 837 parcels on their rural routes in one month. The total weight of these packages amounted to 7,560 pounds. It seems that most of the carriers do not make any charge for carrying parcels, not considering the business worth cultivating, and the fact that they do not charge a fee doubtless contributes to the general disinclination to ask them to perform such a service. The answers to various questions put are summarized as follows:

With his present equipment can a carrier handle 50 to 500 pounds of merchandise daily? Answer: 187 no, 23 yes—50 to 200 pounds.

Is your postoffice equipped to handle 50 to 100 per cent. greater volume of business, figuring, as we must, that merchandise would rapidly multiply the weight and bulk of mail to be handled? Answer: 182 no; 35 yes, with additional help.

With 10 to 25 merchandise parcels to be delivered daily, necessitating the carrier getting out of his wagon, would it be possible to deliver the mail on time? Answer: 198, no; 13, yes.

Are the farmers in your vicinity discussing or demanding Parcels Post? Answer: 202, no; 16, yes.

Do they really understand the question? Answer: 202, no; 16, yes.

Would a Parcels Post confined to delivery from the office from which the carrier starts be of any advantage and satisfy people? Answer: 173, no; 35, yes.

How many of your carriers make any charge for delivering unmailable packages, as they are now permitted to do, and what is the fee charged? Answer: 130, no charges made; 72, charge 5 to 25 cents—average not over 10 cents.

How many newspapers have you and are they for or against Parcels Post? Answer: 32 for Parcels Post; 139 have not expressed any opinion; 192 outspoken against.

Washington has joined the ranks of those cities which have established permanent funds and organizations for the securing of conventions. Cities now realize that hap-hazard work is not the best kind to win results. They indulge in various forms of enterprise to secure population and trade, and one of these is the formation of associations to secure conventions. While it may be argued that the hotels are the chief beneficiaries in such cases, the hotels are obliged to spend most of the money they take in for wages, provisions, rents, and supplies of different kinds. In the end, practically every person in a city benefits in some degree from the holding of a large convention, for even householders who are not in business will find that their property grows in value, and the working people will learn that the increased prosperity due to the expenditures of strangers, even for the few days they are in the city, will make it easier for them to get and keep employment. There is good logic, therefore, in working to secure conventions, and Washington is one of the most desirable cities in which to hold them.

One of the most forceful speakers in Congress is Senator Owen of Oklahoma. In his speech upon the election of senators by direct vote of the people, he said recently that the people want things which are denied them. He said:

"The people want the control of monopoly and the reduction of the high prices of monopoly. Why don't they get it? Moody's Manual for 1907, page 2330, give over 1,000 companies absorbed or merged by or into other companies for 1907, and these conditions grow more each year. Organized monopoly controls the meat market; controls the selling price of beef, mutton, pork, fowls, and every variety of meat.

"Organized monopoly controls the prices of all bakery products and candies and preserves; of all canned goods and tropical fruits; sugar and salt and spices. Monopolies control everything that goes on the table, the price of everything that enters the house, the price of everything worn upon the back of man, the price of all materials of which buildings are constructed paper and stationery goods, iron, copper, and steel and metals and goods made of these materials, dairy products, railway and steamship lines, telegraph, telephone, and express companies. They control everything needed by man, from the cradle which received the baby, and the toys with which a child plays, to the casket and the ceremonies of the grave.

"The people demand a fair price for their crude products, for their cattle and hogs and sheep and the corn and hay and grass fed into these domestic animals and marketed.

"Why is there no control of over-capitalization of the over-issue of stocks and bonds of corporations?

"Why is there no effective control of railroad, passenger, and freight rates after twenty years of agitation?

"Why is there no adequate control of the discrimination of railways against individuals or discriminations in favor of one community against another?

"The people are opposed to these discriminations, but their representatives who are in power do not adequately represent the reasonable desires of the people.

"Why is there no physical valuation of railways as a basis of honest freight and passenger rates?"

The speech as a whole was a strong appeal for direct rule by the people.

An instructive bulletin just issued by the Department of Agriculture tells how farmers may construct their own fence posts out of concrete. The bulletin says:

"If manufactured as usual and cured for three months, concrete posts are as good as the best wooden posts of same size. After three years' service wooden posts possess only from one-third to one-half of their original strength, whereas, concrete grows stronger with age and needs no repairs, for neither weather nor fire injures it. Under ordinary circumstances good concrete posts will last forever; and even if a few, in the course of years, should be broken by unusual strains, it is cheaper to replace these than to replace an entire fence of decayed wooden posts with posts of material with the same lack of durability.

"Concrete posts are attractive in appearance because of their uniformity of size and color and, because of their durability, they effect a saving in giving greater life to the fencing material used, so that the permanent value of the property is increased."

Full instructions for making concrete posts are given and the bulletin can be had from the Department for the asking.

If persons who are opposed to prize-fighting can have their way there will be no meeting between Jeffries and Johnson at San Francisco on July 4, or any other time. One of the latest moves made by the opponents of prize-fighting was the distribution in Washington by a reform association which maintains a lobbyist here, of a circular letter threatening that unless the California Congressmen would oppose the holding of the prize fight, the reform association would oppose the granting of Congressional recognition to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, which is to be held in San Francisco in 1915 to celebrate the opening of the Panama Canal. New Orleans hopes to hold an exposition also, and it is possible that both cities will have expositions running at the same time. Anyway, San Francisco seems determined to have an exposition, whether Congress will lend its aid or not.

It is announced by the Geological Survey that in accordance with the appropriation made by Congress for the continuation of the investigation of Alaskan mineral resources by the United States Geological Survey twelve parties have been organized for work in Alaska during the season of 1910. Three of these parties are now at work and most of the others are on the way to the field, as in previous years, the work will consist of explorations, reconnaissance and detailed surveys, study of the geology and mineral resources, and, in the placer districts, stream gaging. The parties were organized and started for the field at the earliest date possible, so that they might be able to utilize fully the brief period in which surveys can be made.

Alfred H. Brooks will continue the supervision of Alaskan surveys and investigations.

A Grand Army Man's Home.

Gleaming in its fresh coat of paint, surrounded by shrubbery and beautiful flowers, the home of one Grand Army man, Mr. D. O'Sullivan, on Lincoln street, Manchester, was a most pleasing sight on Memorial Day. Each plant and flower showed the untiring care and love of nature of Mrs. O'Sullivan. Yet intermingled with nature is that touch of patriotism dear to the heart of the old veteran, who, after years of hard service, can sit in the shade of those beautiful trees, and see again the battles where comrades fell, and receive those who, like himself, lived to return again, and tell the story we all love to hear. While the parade marched through Arabella street one veteran was fortunate enough to catch a beautiful bouquet thrown from the lawn by Mrs. O'Sullivan, in honor of the day.

Japanese Tea Room and Gift Shop.

The Japanese Tea Room and Gift Shop in the Congregational Chapel last evening, under the auspices of Harmony Guild, proved a delightfully entertaining affair, and was productive of raising a good sum of money. The young ladies of the Guild have recently undertaken to print the calendar for the Congregational church each week, and the affair last night was to raise money for this fund. A committee, of which Miss Annie L. Lane was chairman, worked hard to make the affair a success. Posters of very novel and decidedly Japanese designs were made by the young women, and attracted lots of attention about town.

A string of Japanese lanterns extending through Chapel lane to the Chapel drew the attention of the people last night as they approached. Within the Chapel everything was Japanese. The decorations were beautiful. The booths were decorated with true Japanese taste.

The members of the executive committee had charge of the various features and included: Gift shop, Miss Ethel Hooper; tea room, Miss Eleanor Morgan; sherbet room, Miss Grace Allen; green dragon grab bag, Mrs. Cheever (and it was interesting to note that the dragon had his lair in the furnace, which was uniquely decorated to look more like a mammoth animal of some kind, than the heat producing plant of the Chapel); candy, Mrs. Josephs; flowers, Miss Grace Macgregor; tickets, Miss Florence Kauffman and Miss Grace Prest; music, Miss Ethel McDiarmid, Miss Beth Jewett and Mrs. Williams; entertainment, Miss Mary Dodge.

All the young ladies taking part in the affair were dressed in kimono and other Japanese togger. The entertainment included a Japanese comedy in verse (one act) called "A Flower of Yeddo," in which the characters were: Kami, Mary E. Dodge; Musme, Mary Rust; Tai-phoon, Alice Sargent; Sainara, Mrs. Maud Carter. The play was prettily given. It had a decided Japanese setting. It was given the first of the evening, but owing to the crowded condition of the Chapel, all did not hear it, and in the latter part of the evening it was repeated.

The young ladies are to be congratulated on their success for this novel entertainment.

Winnepurket Tribe of Lynn will work three degrees at their wigwam next Thursday evening, and a large delegation of Manchester Red Men are planning to attend the affair. Conomo tribe was to have worked the adoption degree on one candidate Wednesday evening, but owing to the scare about the Town hall being unsafe, the degree work was not carried out. The candidate will be taken to Lynn next Thursday evening, and will have the adoption degree, and also the Hunters and Warriors.

The State building inspectors were to come to Manchester today to make a thorough examination of the Town hall building. The floors and walls have been ripped open this week preparatory for the work. Our information of last week relative to the inspector being called in was slightly exaggerated, as the person who prompted the investigation did not make a complaint to the State inspector direct. She had spoken to a member of the Selectmen relative to the vote of the Town at the last March meeting, pertaining to an inspection of the Town hall building, saying that there was to be a large crowd at Odd Fellow's hall on Thursday of last week, and the selectmen immediately called in the inspector with the result that the Odd Fellow's hall was ordered closed. The person who spoke to the selectmen about the matter, we are convinced, acted very wisely, as the matter ought to have been attended to weeks ago. We were entirely wrong last week in saying that she had gone over the selectmen's heads and had made complaint to the State inspector direct. This was not so.

Manchester, May 31, 1910.

Editor North Shore Breeze,
Dear Sir: I note in your issue of May 27 that you use the name Public Library Building in the notice relative to leaving flowers for Memorial Day at G. A. R. hall.

I think it time that somebody should reprimand those who so designate that building.

When it was named, I strongly favored the simple name "Memorial Building," stating my reasons to be that the word Memorial would be dropped in time, and the rest of the name—"Public Library"—would be the only name it would be known by; and it would seem that it is fast approaching that time if the local papers so designate it.

Shall we lose the name of Memorial Building?

Yours truly,
E. P. Stanley.

UNION MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Rev. L. H. Ruge Preached on "The Boundaries of Blood" last Sunday.

The beautiful weather of last Sunday brought out a large number of people for the Union Memorial service at the Congregational church, Manchester. The special singing under the direction of Professor Wonsom, which included a solo by Mrs. R. C. Allen, was very much enjoyed. The sermon was by the pastor, Rev. L. H. Ruge. The Grand Army, Sons of Veterans and W. R. C. occupied seats in the front centre of the church.

The subject of Mr. Ruge's sermon was "Ephes-dammin—The Boundaries of Blood." His text was I Sam. 17, 10-45: "The Philistine said, I defy the armies of Israel this day. . . . Then David said to the Philistine, thou comest to me with a sword and with a spear and with a shield; but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied."

Memorial Day at Manchester.

The Memorial Day program at Manchester was carried out in accordance with the schedule printed in last week's Breeze. The inclement tendencies of the weather marred somewhat the day's pleasure, but it did not interfere with the Memorial Day duties of the Grand Army and its auxiliary societies. The parade was held in the afternoon, and the graves at the various cemeteries were decorated. This was followed by exercises at the town wharf by the Relief Corps and school children in honor of the sailor dead.

Between 4 and 5 o'clock the band gave a concert on the Common, there being several hundred people on hand. The program of eight numbers included: 1. March, Easy Street; 2. American Fantasie; 3. Popular Airs; 4. Silver Threads Among the Gold, cornet solo; 5. Patrol, Blue and Grey; 6. Popular Airs; 7. In Camp; 8. March, Tropic to Tropic. The band then adjourned to G. A. R. hall where supper was served by the Relief corps, after which they played several selections in front of the hall before marching to the depot, where they took the 6 o'clock train for Gloucester.

At the Town hall in the evening patriotic exercises were held. This included an address by the Rev. W. H. Rider of Gloucester, selections

THE CLIFF DWELLERS—A FORGOTTEN PEOPLE AND THEIR RUINS

Homes of a Pre-historic People—A Vanished Race, that Once Lived on the Rio Grande

[By M. J. Brown, Editor Little Valley (N. Y.) Hub.]

It was with the keenest and bitterest disappointment of my life that I turned back from the Cliff Dwellers' ruins and bought a ticket for the east.

To me there is nothing in this wonderland of the southwest that has so great a fascination as the abandoned homes of this people we know not of—this people of the far dim days of the past—our ancestors, who lived in caves, lived much like beasts, wore only the skins of animals; lived for thousands of years, for all we know, came from where we do not know, and departed whence we do not know.

But I am ahead of my story. I have left my disappointment with—by the Shubert male quartet. The quartet sang in perfect harmony, the selections including the following: Hark the Trumpet; The Magnolia of Tennessee; Remember Now Thy Creator; Call the Roll (especially arranged for this quartet); Nellie Gray; Old Glory, and Sunset.

Dr. Rider's address was eloquent and overflowing with patriotic fervor. He said that Memorial Day includes all our country's founders and defenders. The 30th of May is the Republic's In Memoriam to American patriotism. We need ask the pardon of no theorist for Memorial Day, the few occasions that tell of brave men and their brave deeds. The highest march of life is the giving of one's life. If there is any fear, it is the fear lest we forget; the 19th of April, the 30th of May, the 17th of June and our national Fourth of July degenerate into mere pleasure.

Nowhere in all our broad land should the day be more hallowed than in this historic locality that has given more than its share of consecrated lives. But why enumerate or single out any section. This day is our country's. It belongs to the Grand Army of the Republic.

The speaker went on to say that there was too much of the rebuking, conspicuous selfishness in public service today, indifference to the common weal. More and more it appears inevitable that our public men must conform their conduct to the higher code of morals. Efficiency is not acceptable as a substitute for character. A man's ability to do great things does not exempt from the moral obligations imposed upon others.

Not that men are unpatriotic. That is saying too much. Our public men are not degenerate. Many of them equal in concentrated service, in unselfish contribution to the common good, the servants of the church, and do as sacred work. It is to hold and to keep such loyalty that we regard the G. A. R. and its high examples.

If high and educated people hold themselves superior to the service of the government, then the Republic will become a government of the rabble, for the rabble, and by the rabble.

The greatest enemy to political reform is your respectable man who abandons his part and lets the gorilla of the ward surprise him with his spoil. If you wish to reform your public men, reform yourselves. The needy public servant is an easy mark for the baser man who tempts. Reform your business methods and you will reform your officials. There may be officials open to bribes. Your care and mine is to see that the bribe does not come from us.

This is no easy task. It may mean breaking of parting lines, exposure of friends, the ridicule of social relations. Be it so; better a man without a party than without a country. Merit first, politics afterward is the only permanent basis on which efficient public service can be established.

Democracy can only be retained as each and every one of the people does his part. If representative government has become a game, take a hand in it, and remind ambitious men that we are still the people.

Previous to the address by Dr. Rider, Clarence Menkin recited Lincoln's address at Gettysburg, and Adjutant Rivers of the Post read the general orders. Prayer was offered by Rev. T. L. Frost, and at the close of the exercises, benediction was pronounced by Rev. L. H. Ruge.

out any reason offered for same, and gone cliff hunting.

I saved the Cliff Dwellers and community houses for the finish of my trip, well knowing I could find little to interest me after I had seen these ruins—ruins older than fire.

And I saved them too long. I saw them, some of them, but under circumstances that cannot do half justice.

I suppose I should have informed myself that what little winter New Mexico has comes the latter part of February and the first of March, and had I done so, I would have gone first to these ruins, and then to Old Mexico. But I didn't take the pains, and I lost out.

But I saw the Cliff ruins, despite the deep snow and howling mountain blizzards. I saw them and climbed up into them, inspected parlor, bedroom and conservatory, sat there on the floor in the dust of ages, sat cross-legged as some cliff dweller had sat in same place thousands of years ago—sat there and looked across the gorge from the doorway of this pre-historic home, and into my eyes came a picture—

But into my toes came the frost, and into my ears came the hail of the driver below—and that picture of a Forgotten Past faded, before I could catch the colors.

What of the Cliff Dwellers? You tell. We Americans know little of them, and the more I learn of them the less I know.

Through Arizona and New Mexico are hundreds of their ruins. We know people, human beings, once lived in them, and that is about all we do know. Anybody here can tell you who they were, where they came from and where they went to, but no one will tell you anything that has even a speaking distance connection with what the other fellow explained, so I read what little I can find about them, hear a whole lot of what everybody can tell—and then guess.

Under favorable conditions couldn't a man write his head off with these surroundings? Sitting in the homes of these mysterious people, in the crumbling ruins of what were once the only human habitations of this great country of ours, sitting in the dust of ages and thinking of the first Americans who lived, loved and labored here—where wouldn't this pencil run to, if it were only spring time, if the frost would let up on my great toe, and if the driver would stop wrecking my trains of thought by his yelling that we must hurry back.

I had planned miles and miles and days and days among these ruins, and only had three hours.

The place where I visited was where our unknown ancestors had built their homes many feet up the side of the cliff—dug them back into the lava rock. It is said that in the early days when these homes were dug out, that certain stratas were soft, and that pieces of glass-like lava formation in the hands of these prehistoric men, served as chisels to scoop out homes, and that the making was easy. They were independent of lumber trusts furnishing combinations. When a young Cliff Dweller wanted a home he hunted a soft strata up the side of a Cliff. He burned off a cedar tree, and used it for a ladder to climb up, and then he scooped out a residence. As time wore on, and doubtless several little Cliffs showed up, then he dug out a kitchen at the back—or rather dug on an extension.

But most of the houses are one room, built from a shelf of the Cliff, many feet from the bottom. They run along like streets, following the soft strata, and they are parallel streaks of what was once, no doubt hard and soft stratas, the hard tsarta forming the roof of the dweller underneath and the floor of the flat above.

The rooms are small, something like ten feet square, and from five to eight feet high. In many of them one cannot stand erect, and in the one I occupied I had to stoop when standing. Very few have loop holes for windows, and the doors are very low and just wide enough to squeeze in. It is very evident that doors served as chimneys also; and I wonder how Miss Cliff ever squeezed through without getting her shirt-waist sooty.

These homes were certainly built for protection. They were built high so that owners could pull up by their rope ladders and pull them after them, and the small doors and absence of windows plainly indicate that these were strenuous days and the Dweller who lived long was he who had his ladder up and his bow strung.

Where and how they got water is to me the one weak joint in their armor, and it seems to me all the enemy would have to do would be to lay siege to the stream at the foot of the Cliffs, and kill off the Dwellers when they came down to fill their pottery.

My driver had planned a trip for me to some of the ruins where he Height-McGregor.

At the home of the groom's brother, Edward C. Height, on Desmond avenue, Alden Height and Christine McGregor were united in marriage by the Rev. Theodore Lyman Frost, Wednesday evening. said probably not a dozen white men's feet had ever entered, and where I could dig for hours with none to stop me. He said that he knew of homes that he did not believe had ever been explored, and where one could find no end of pottery, relics and the bones of these our unknown ancestors.

Do you wonder at my disappointment? I looked out of the door from the Cliff house, looked up through the blinding snow at where there should be a sun, and if ever a man hoped for a rift in the clouds, it was the man pushing this pencil. But there was no hope. The trip must be abandoned, and in despair I dug into the dust in the floor of the house, dug into the accumulations of centuries of solitude, looking for some little relic of the day when these mysterious people were alive, and looked from this Cliff house as I now looked.

But I am going back to these ruins, going back to live days and nights in these houses, going back to raise blisters on my hands in digging for relics. And I am going at a time when there are no snowstorms—in the early days of fall, to chase out the rock squirrels, and find out more of these forgotten people.

Then I am going further west, into Arizona, and visit the buried cities there, and the mummy caves. You don't know anything of them, do you? I did not until I got into this wonderland, and found that just ahead of me, no matter how far I went, were more strange and wonderful ruins and sights.

✱ Manchester ✱

A noted improvement has been made on the corner of Sea and Masconomo streets, Manchester, where the high fence and shrubbery of the estate of the Misses Bartlett came to the edge of the roadway, thus making travel at this sharp corner rather hazardous. The fence has been moved back and the high shrubbery removed, thus opening the corner at this point and making danger from collision less probable.

Frank Morse was home from Somerville over the holiday.

The American Express Co. office at Magnolia is open for the season. Harry Mailman is in charge of the office this summer. Lyman Butler, who has been at Manchester all winter, is one of the drivers here.

Bott Bros., one of Gloucester's oldest established firms, will open a branch harness shop in the Hunt block this summer.

Samsetta, the tailor, who has had quarters over the American Express office for several seasons, has taken one of the new stores in the Hunt block for this year.

Among the noted improvements this summer is that at the Davis stables. This well known establishment has kept the largest number of horses and vehicles of any place along the North Shore in years past. With the advent of the automobile, their business has dropped to a minimum. The firm, however, is on the alert and they have changed over the greater part of their large stable to automobile purposes. The large floor space on the Magnolia avenue side, formerly devoted to horses and carriages, is now made over into a storage room for automobiles. The stalls have been removed and a concrete floor has been set, making room for 17 to 20 cars. The horses have been put in the lower part of the building. The Davis Garage now has a capacity of more than 50 automobiles, including the annex on Raymond street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Moulton have opened their cottage on Raymond street. Mr. Moulton has opened his stable and garage for business.

Archie Linnekin, the night man at the Magnolia station, has removed his family from Gloucester, and will occupy the cottage on Magnolia avenue owned by Mrs. Julia Knight.

Mrs. William Harvey of Methuen is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Butler this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Douglas and family of Lynn were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Douglas, the first of the week.

The many friends of Miss Virginia Selfridge will be pleased to learn that she has left for Washington, where she will take a position in the Census Bureau.

The Men's club opened for the season last Monday evening with a very pleasant dance. The assistant manager, Fred R. Dunbar, will be in charge until the arrival of the manager, Mr. Martin. Ten rooms have been engaged for the season, fifteen rooms remain to be let. The price is $60 for the season of four months, or, if taken by the week, $7 per week. The restaurant has begun business and anticipates a successful season. The bowling alleys have been put in perfect condition, and the pool tables have been recovered. The club is indebted to Mrs. Charles W. Jones for the gift of an excellent grand piano, and Joseph Sargent, jr., has presented the club with a handsome set of dishes and with some fencing masks and foils. The tennis courts have been rolled and put into condition for the season and are already being used. A large refrigerator has been added to the equipment of the restaurant and several other minor improvements made. The outlook is bright for a very successful season.

The Women's club also opened on Monday and reports a growing membership. Five rooms remain to be let. A very handsome settee has been donated to this club by Mrs. James S. Lee, which adds greatly to the comfort and attractiveness of the reception room.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Foster and family of Wakefield were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Hunt over the holiday.

MEMORIAL DAY AT BEVERLY FARMS.

The splendid weather last Sunday was all that could be desired to make Memorial Sunday one of pleasure for the veterans. Post 188, G. A. R., had much to be thankful for when they gathered Sunday morning at their headquarters to think that their ranks had not been thinned by a single death during the year. Escorted by the local fire department, the Post marched to the Baptist church. Engineer J. M. Publicover was in charge of the firemen, assisted by Capt. Duncan Smith. Commander Day and Adjutant Benjamin Osborne were in charge of the Post, and Mrs. Alice Preston, president of the Relief Corps, led Preston W. R. C.

The church was appropriately decorated. Potted plants and flowers from the greenhouses of James B. Dow added a touch of color to the occasion. An interesting and impressive feature of the service was the reading of the roll of honor. The names were printed on the weekly calendar of the church. When the list had been read reverently the army call "taps" was heard from the church gallery. Rev. Clarence Strong Pond preached the sermon, which was a plea for international and industrial peace. His text was from Isaiah 2-4: "And He shall judge among the nations and shall rebuke many people and they shall beat their swords into plough shares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nations shall not lift up sword against nation neither shall they learn war any more."

Miss Annie K. Holmes was in charge of the music. The anthems were well rendered and added much to the service.

The Exercises on Memorial Day.

The Memorial Day exercises Monday afternoon were carried out in accordance with the program printed in last week's Breeze. The Post assembled at the headquarters, Central square, and formed with platoon of police, Co. G band of Gloucester, Beverly Farms Fire department, guests of the day (Mayor Trowt, Alderman Loring, Councilman Woodberry and Rev. C. S. Pond), Beverly Farms Boys' Fife and Drum Corps, Post 188, G. A. R., school children with bouquets and the W. R. C. The line proceeded to the cemetery where the graves were decorated and the usual exercises were held at the monument. At West Beach, the services in memory of the sailor dead were very impressive.

In the evening the fife and drum corps headed the veterans and fire department in the march to the church. An organ voluntary by Miss Annie K. Holmes was followed by the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers" by the congregation. Prayer was offered by Rev. C. S. Pond. The choir rendered patriotic anthems, after which Commander Day made a short address of welcome. Rev. C. S. Pond read Lincoln's address at Gettysburg.

The address of the day was by Rev. C. W. Chamberlain, pastor of the First Baptist church of Beverly. His address was most eloquent and impressive. His subject was "The "Old Patriotism and the New." His opening dealt with the patriotism manifested by the men of '61-'65, paying them a glowing tribute.

The new patriotism will be the same in spirit but manifested along different lines. It will work for civic righteousness, the protection of the weak, the eradication of intemperance, the establishment of equality of opportunity in business and industry and the inauguration of industrial and international peace.

The speaker recognized that these changes would come slowly but he believed in the ultimate triumph of righteousness and brotherhood, because it is in accord with the spirit of the American people and in harmony with the will of God.

A merry party of ladies, members of the gymnasium class, met in Neighbors' hall, Tuesday evening, for a quilting party. After their work was finished, they had a royal good time, playing whist, dancing, etc. Refreshments were also served. In the contest, the nature of which is not made public, there was much interest. Mrs. R. E. Hodgkins won first prize; Mrs. Louisa Wyatt, second; Mrs. E. L. Knowlton, third, Mrs. W. S. Pike, fourth.

There was plenty of baseball at the Farms last Monday, the games being played on the new Vine street playgrounds. The first game was between the married and single men, which was a close contest until the last inning when the single men won five runs by bunching some hits, together with aid from errors, the resulting score being 10 to 5. The field was then given over to a picked nine from the Farms who played a close and exciting game with a uniformed team from Dorchester, the latter winning by a score of 5 to 4. In the afternoon, the Dorchester team again played a picked nine and won by a score of 12 to 5. Later in the afternoon, there was another game between the "Has-beens" and the "Youngsters."

Nature Provides As Needs Become Apparent

With the disappearing of the Walnut, how the Cherry and the Sycamore came to fill its place. As these woods were gradually used up, how the Curly Birch and the Maple were developed that we might make use of them. Now that these woods are getting scarcer, comes a wood that supplants these, and as each in turn have seemed the prettier, so 'tis true of this new wood.

It is treated without discoloring, just in its nativity is it deemed most beautiful. Its grainings and cloudings are exceedingly interesting, its color a soft hue that pleases in decorating.

STERLING SILVER CHATELAINES.

The romance and poetry of long past ages seem revived in the newest fashion in silver—the chatelaine. In those days of the troubadour and minstrel, when the lady of the chateau—the chatelaine—was mistress of her many-sided household, she carried at her girdle, besides an imposing bunch of keys, a set of useful articles in gold or silver cases and settings. The old time chatelaine consisted usually of a needle case, penknife, pair of scissors, mirror, comb and, perhaps, a little ink horn or later a tiny pencil. But this year the chatelaine—a silver chatelaine designed to suit the taste of the woman of today—has reappeared, although instead of being worn at the belt it is dependent from the finger. We give the prices of the complete chatelaines, also of separate articles. Illustrations are one-half scale.

Miss Sears won the cup last year. In the championship round last Saturday as a concluding feature of the week's tournament at the Merion Cricket club, she started out like a winner, taking the first set 6 to 1. Miss Hammond, however, improved in her play and took the next two sets 6-4 and 7-5. Miss Hammond and Miss Wilde defeated Miss Sears and Miss Fenno for the championship in doubles, 4-6, 7-6, 6-2.

Lowell Blake will be best man. Unless it is necessary to appoint substitutes, because business affairs or distance makes it impossible for all who have accepted invitations to serve as ushers to arrive here in time for the wedding, the list will include Crawford Blagden of New York city, Edward Bowditch, jr., of Albany, Arthur H. Morse of Kansas City, Francis L. Higginson, jr., of London, brother of the bride-elect, and William G. Wendell, brother of the bridegroom-elect.

❖ Society Notes ❖

* Society Notes *

Charles W. Ward and family of Brookline have arrived at their cottage on Sea street, Manchester.

Dr. Franklin Dexter of the Pride's colony has recently been appointed director of scholarships in the Harvard Medical and Dental schools.

John L. Saltonstall of Beverly Cove is at Restigouché camp, Mata-pedia, Que., for a week or so of fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Cochrane of the North Shore, who have taken a castle in Scotland for the summer, will have with them a part of the season, their daughter, Mrs. Howard G. Cushing, and family, who sailed on the Cedric last week for Europe.

Judge and Mrs. William C. Loring arrived at their summer home, Pine Hill, Pride's Crossing, the latter part of last week.

President Taft's brother, Charles P. Taft, his wife and daughter, were among those that sailed from New York last Saturday for Europe. Mr. Taft and family will therefore not visit the North Shore this summer, as they did last year during the President's stay. They will be in Europe until October and will spend much of the time motoring on the continent, mostly in Spain.

Fern-Croft Inn at Middleton continues to be a popular eating place for North Shore people. Scores of parties from all along the North Shore may be seen motoring there during the week, and not infrequently large gatherings of fashionable North shore people have big dinner parties there. Among those who have been at the Inn recently were the members of the association of Theatrical Managers of Boston, who met there Thursday of last week for their fourth annual dinner. There were 28 in the party. John B. Schoeffel, who is president, gave notice that it was his intention to start early this fall on a trip around the world, to be gone one year and a half, and that it would be impossible for him to serve as its president after that time. Mrs. James M. Mor-ris-in of Boston has arranged to have a party of 34 ladies and gentlemen at the Inn next Tuesday, June 14, for the annual banquet of a ladies' club. It was at this banquet last year that Mayor Fitzgerald made the opening speech of his campaign, though it is not generally known.

HANDICRAFT SHOP FOR THE BLIND

Begins Third Season at Manches-ter-by-the-Sea. A New Location.

The little Handicraft Shop for the Blind, the summer salesroom of the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind and the Perkins Institution, begins its third season at 9 Central street, Manchester, on Monday, June 13. New quarters had to be found this year, owing to the tearing down of the little shop on the Village Green, in which the work for the blind had been carried on for two seasons. The two Manchester young women, one with partial sight and one wholly without sight, will be employed at the salesroom as in the two preceding years. Miss Knowl-ton will work as weaver on hand loom and Miss McClintock as gen-eral helper to Miss Cummings. Miss L. S. Rand will again have charge of the shop.

The shop will, as in former sea-sons, be filled with a large variety of both useful and beautiful articles, showing what may be accomplished by those without sight, such as artis-tic hand-woven materials—bags (opera, sewing), bedspreads, etc., belts, card cases, covers (book, couch, pillow, table, etc.), curtains, dress patterns, luncheon sets, por-tieres, purses, rugs (all kinds), scarfs (table and bureau); netted, knitted and crocheted articles—bean-bags, baby blankets, bath mats, bed shoes and socks, gloves, ham-mocks, helmets, baby jackets, kin-dergarten balls, mittens (all kinds), reins, shawls, sweaters, tights; Use-ful household supplies—aprons (all kinds), bags (ice, laundry, jelly, money, etc.), brooms, cases (gown and traveling), cloths (dish, glass, cleaning, silver, etc.), covers (brooms and ironing boards), dusters, face cloths, holders, mops, protection sleeves, towels (crash, dish, glass, linen and roller). Also baskets and rush-seat stools, wirework (plant-stands, coat-hangers, etc.).

Rev. William N. McVickar, Epis-copal bishop of Rhode Island, and his sister, Miss E. C. McVickar, ar-rived at Pride's Crossing this week for the season. They have again taken the Alhambra cottage at Min-go beach.

The ushers at the marriage of Miss Joan Child Bird and Louis Agassiz Shaw, which is to be solemnized next Tuesday, June 14, at 4.30 o'clock at Endean, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, the bride-elect's parents, in East Walpole, will be George West of Chestnut Hill, Quincy A. Shaw, 2d, Beverly Farms, brother of the bridegroom-elect, Charles S. Bird, jr., of East Walpole, brother of the bride-elect, and Fran-cis W. Bird of New York. John Cutler of Brookline will be best man. Miss Edith Harlen Bird, a sister, will be the bride's only attendant. Many from the North Shore will attend the wedding.

Mrs. William F. Draper and Miss Margaret Preston Draper, her daughter, are expected at Manches-ter tomorrow. They have hired the Bradbury cottage on Smith's point for the season, and the maids have been here for several days getting it ready for occupancy. This is the same cottage the late Gen. Draper and family occupied two seasons ago. Since that time it has been greatly improved and enlarged by its owner, Mrs. F. T. Bradbury.

E. M. Wheelwright and family of Boston are occupying Mrs. Samuel Foster's cottage at Beverly Farms for the season. Mr. Wheelwright is of the firm of Wheelwright & Haven, architects.

Americans were heavy losers at England's classic turf event, The Derby, June 1, and it was a most decorous throng, out of respect to the late King Edward's death. The grandstand was decorated with a mass of black. Among the North Shore residents who were present were Judge and Mrs. Moore of Pride's Crossing, who coached down from London, and H. M. Sears of Pride's.

Preston Gibson and Capt. A. W. Butt of the North Shore ushered, June 4, at the wedding of Granville R. Fortesque and Miss Grace Bell in Washington. The bride is president of the Working Boys' Home at the Capital and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bell of Washington.

North Shore summer residents present at the luncheon at Bryn Mawr College Pennsylvania, June 2, in honor of President Taft, given by Miss M. Mr. Pugh recently contributed $1,000 to the college fund to aid in securing the $250,000 gift offered by the General Education Board.

Wednesday evening of this week, President and Mrs. Taft gave a dinner party in honor of Prince Hiro-yasa Fushimi, a cousin of the Mikado, and Princess Fushimi, who are visiting this country.

A wedding in New York June 4 of much interest to Boston and New York society was that of Miss Charlotte I. Grinnel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Morgan Grinnell of 36 East 50th street, and Alexander Forbes of Boston, a grandson of Ralph Waldo Emerson and a brother of Cameron Forbes, governor of the Philippines.

Gen. and Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards of Washington, who are annual guests at The Oceanside, Magnolia, sail June 28 from San Francisco for the Philippine Islands, where Gen. Edwards has been sent on a

The North Shore Grill club opened last Saturday for the season under the management of Emil Beauregard, who has had connections in the past with some of the best known hotels in Paris, London and New York. On Monday, Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge had a small party of friends at the club for tea. Many other well known people from along the North Shore have been noticed on the piazzas during the week, and several engagements have been made for the coming week. The club has been fortunate this year in securing as chef, Frank Pelegrin, who was at the Grill several seasons ago, and who is one of the best known chefs in the country. He has had long experience in the hotels and clubs of Europe and America coming here from the University club of Boston. He caters especially to French, Italian and Russian dishes, and during his service at the Grill club previously, he prepared very pleasing dishes for the diplomats, who patronized the place very frequently. Through the courtesy of M. Steinert, Sons & Co., the club is to have a victrola for use the early part of this season. It is the newest invention in the line of phonographs and is most like the human voice of any machine yet made. There will be a supply of the newest records including the Scotch ballads and other selections sung during the last operatic season by Farrar and Homer, as well as other stars. The instrument will be used Saturday, June 11, for the first time.

Nineteen out of twenty of the jurors of the salon voted to give Mr. Barnard a gold medal despite that tradition.

North Shore Babies' Hospital Opens June 22.

The North Shore Babies' hospital will open for the season at its new home on the Ropes' estate at the foot of Dearborn street, Salem, on Wednesday, June 22. This is the date of the formal opening for the reception of the little patients. Previous to the opening for the public there will be a day of inspection for the doctors, June 14, and a reception to the general public on June 15. It is hoped that the public at large will accept the general invitation to visit the new hospital. The institution has been in existence some five years. It was formerly known as the Babies' Summer hospital. Later it was changed to the North Shore Babies' hospital. It began its existence during the summer months at Baker's Island. From the start it was a success from a humanitarian view.

Many North Shore people have contributed liberally to this charity, and many will doubtless give support to the work this summer, as we understand contributions are being sought at the present time.

THE CAPE ANN RESORTS

Thomas Todd and family of Concord have arrived at their cottage on Point avenue, Pigeon Cove, for the season.

E. M. Hayden of Santa Barbara, Cal., and family are domiciled in their Annisquam cottage, Cambridge avenue for the summer.

The death of Mrs. J. M. Whittemore, Newton, last winter, will cause the absence of a popular family from Annisquam's cottage colony this season and especially in yachting circles, where Mr. Whittemore was an ardent yachtsman and won many trophies in the annual races. They will rent their summer home there this season.

Major L. S. Bent has rented one of his twin cottages at Annisquam to Paul Tappan and wife of Brookline, but their early occupancy is being delayed owing to the severe illness of Mr. Tappan's father in Brookline.

Wm. M. Jelly and family of Salem were planning to settle permanently in their summer home on Norward Heights, Annisquam, today. Mr. Jelly is well known in Salem's banking circles, recently retiring from active banking work as teller of the Salem Five Cents Savings Bank.

R. H. Orne and family of West Somerville are occupying the Baker cottage on Marmion Way, Rockport, again this season.

Charles Alexander, who died in New York city, May 28, was a former resident of Somerville, and a summer resident of Rockport for a number of years.

bridge; Charlotte Simmons and Izette Tabor, Philadelphia; Elizabeth Tenny, Chicago.

Tuesday, July 5, Mrs. Henry Souther will entertain the bridal party at Ferncroft Inn, Danvers.

The future home of Mr. Sargent and his bride-elect will be in Artmore, Pa., where a charming home is awaiting them, and to which they will go after the wedding. The bride-elect is a Bryn Mawr girl and Mr. Sargent a Harvard man, class 1910. Both have been prominently associated with the social life of Bass Rocks for many seasons, and it was here their romance began. Miss Rotan is a well-set up brunette and has all the charms of the Southern type of womanhood. She is accomplished, cultured and a fine horsewoman.

EAST GLOUCESTER

Hawthorne Inn has inaugurated its season and among the first guests to arrive were Mrs. Francis Wayland and Miss Cicily Wayland of Philadelphia, annual guests of long standing, who will occupy the small cottage on the Isaac Patch homestead property and dine at the Inn, a custom they have been following in recent years since the death of the late Judge Wayland.

Dr. Squibb and family of Brookline, who three seasons ago were tenants of Rockmere Cottage, Paradise Point, on the Clarence Wonson estate, are at the Inn for June.

The Misses Morrill of Boston have returned to Tea House building connected with the Inn and are preparing their studio of Applied Arts for the season in one of the ground floor stores.

Jeffries Wyman of Wellesley Hills has domiciled his family in their attractive cottage on Paradise Point, near the Inn property. They are dining at the Mailman House this month.

Miss Caroline Ticknor of Jamaica Plain, well known in Boston's literary circles, and Miss Clara C. Perkins of the same coterie, have recently been registered at the Mailman House, as also have been Mrs. E. A. Perkins and Miss Katherine Perkins of Boston. Miss Harriet Ruddock of Boston, who was a classmate at a fashionable boarding school with the Countess Castellane (nee Anna Gould) is at the Mailman House for June, and goes to Hawthorne Inn for the remainder of the summer.

J. Murray Kay of Brookline, director and treasurer of the publishing house of Houghton & Mifflin, Boston, settled with his family at their Eastern Point cottage this week for the season.

Judge Charles W. Parker of Jersey City, a justice of the supreme bench, has secured Commodore Benjamin H. Colby's finely situated cottage on Rocky Neck for this season, and is due about June 15.

Mrs. Alice Morgan and daughter, Alice M. Morgan, of Cambridge, who for the past 14 seasons have summered at Hawthorne Inn, are in mourning this summer, and have taken Proprietor Stacy's cottage on Wiley street, Rocky Neck, and have settled there.

In Yachting Circles

A circular is being prepared for the schedule of races at the Manchester Yacht club this summer, but it will not be ready to send to members until next week. It has been definitely decided, however, that the first race for the one design class will be held on Friday, June 17. The regatta committee of the club met Wednesday and organized with Norton Wigglesworth as chairman and secretary. A special committee of the club in charge of the Seawanhaka races has decided on George W. Mansfield of Salem as special judge. C. E. Hodges is chairman of the House Committee this year. More or less repairing has had to be done this spring as a result of last winter's severe storms. Part of the wall had to be rebuilt and an iron railing has been put on this.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse spent a few days at the Belmont, New York, before coming on to Boston Wednesday. It is understood they will not have their house at Manchester opened this summer. They will spend most of the season cruising on their yacht. Master Meredyth Whitehouse has almost fully recovered from the serious accident he met with while coasting in Switzerland early last winter.

Among the many interesting luncheon and afternoon tea parties at the North Shore Grill club this week were Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gibson who motored over to Magnolia and had tea in the Corridor Garden. Wednesday afternoon. L. M. Cuthbert, who has the Dewart cottage at Manchester Cove, had a party of friends for tea in the garden Thursday afternoon. Mr and Mrs. E. M. House and daughter, Janet, and Mr. Anchincloss of New York were at Grill for dinner Thursday evening. Charles Hathaway of New York motored down from Boston Thursday and had dinner at the Grill with a party of friends.

Charles B. Streeker and family of Brookline have opened their summer home on Tregony Bow, Land's End, Rockport, for the summer.

W. J. Hobbs, vice-president of the B. M. R. R., who has been sojourning in the White Mountains, is back to his Rockport home.

At the Hotels

The Oceanside Hotel at Magnolia opened this noon for the season with 40 to 50 guests on hand, and this number will be augmented Saturday by 40 or 50 more. The last fortnight a small army of servants have been putting the large hotel and its 16 cottages in condition to open and everything was in spick and span order. As previously stated in The Breeze, the advance booking for this month and for the whole season is the best in the history of the hotel. All the cottages have been booked and a number of them will be occupied until well into the fall.

Mrs. Reginald Gray of Essex road, Chestnut Hill, has engaged Center cottage for August and September. Mrs. Gray is a sister of Mrs. S. H. Fessenden of Coolidge's point, and she is also a sister-in-law of ex-President Roosevelt. She was in Magnolia this week for a brief visit.

Lanier Winslow of New York paid a short visit to the E. M. Houses at the Oceanside this week. Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. House had a few friends in for dinner, including besides Mr. Winslow, Mrs. William A. Tucker and Miss Marion Tucker, and Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Tucker. On the 28th of this month, Mr. and Mrs. House and Miss Janet House plan to sail for Europe. They will return to the North Shore, and will spend the month of September here.

Make known your wants in the classified adv. columns of The Breeze.

COMMITTEE ON MOTH WORK MAKES REPORT.

The committee of summer resi-dents having active charge of the work of raising funds to carry on the war against the moths, and to preserve the North Shore woods, make a supplementary report to the residents of the North Shore in the following circular letter issued this week, by Col. William D. Sohier, for the committee:

To the residents on the North Shore:

The work of preserving the forests on the North Shore is now in active progress. Something over 2500 acres have been cleared, the nests cre-ated, and the trees are now being sprayed. We have ten large power spraying machines with about 1000 feet of hose each, requiring a gang of nine men.

We are attempting to preserve the woods near the shore, to pro-tect the shore estates and also to preserve the trees on the roadsides.

Work is being done this year at Magnolia, from Fresh Water Cove to Magnolia Point. This work is being paid for by subscriptions made by the summer residents of that local-ity, an appropriation from the City of Gloucester, and one from the State.

The United States Government has co-operated by clearing up some of the roadsides for one hundred feet on each side.

Persons using the wood roads must realize that they are likely to meet spraying machines and may also meet a few automobiles and mo-tor cycles during the spraying sea-son, as it is impossible for the super-intendents and inspectors to cover the work except in some kind of a motor vehicle. It is essential that the work should be inspected and the machines kept working, as each hour's delay on each machine costs from $10 to $15.

The committee hopes that every one on the North Shore will observe the woods that have been cleaned up, also the work that is being done with the spraying machines. Please contrast the conditions where the work has been done with the various places in the back woods where no work could be done because no money was available.

Please realize that there must be some defoliation because the brown tail caterpillars begin to eat before it is possible to spray, there being no leaves large enough to spray, and that we cannot cover the whole 2500 acres at once; so some of the trees will be eaten before we are able to reach them.

We are sending this circular to those who have subscribed, so that they may see what is being done with their money, and to all others on the North Shore who have not subscribed in case they may be wil-ling to do their share toward this work and the maintenance of our 28 miles of private wood roads, in which case they will kindly send checks to Wm. D. Sohier, 15 Ash-burton place, Boston.

The first $37,500 is being contri-buted one-third by Beverly and Man-chester, one-third by the State, and one-third from the subscriptions made to our committee. All the work is being done by the State Forester's department, under the di-rection of Mr. L. H. Worthley, Su-perintendent in charge of Gypsy Moth work.

WORK CALLED FOR AND DELIVERED AT SHORT NOTICE

The summer colonists are rejoicing over the passing of the bill at the State House for a new causeway and breakwater from Marblehead to Marblehead Neck. The appropriation asked was $50,000, the commonwealth to assume 64 per cent. of the expense, Essex County 25 per cent. and Marblehead 10 per cent. The erection of such safeguards for Marblehead have been long necessary for the preservation of her beautiful and famous harbor.

Society Notes

Marblehead.

The New Fountain Inn opened weeks ago and has entertained large numbers of transients, mostly Wellesley College girls, some 70 in number, who made two sojourns in March and in April, beside many others from Greater Boston. The guests for the season and for summer sojourns are due on the 15th, and Prop. Unverhan reports a fine booking for the season, and many of his annual patrons are returning. Miss L. S. Goodkin of Boston has settled at the Inn for the season, and this week's arrivals included: W. E. Wood, Arlington; Elmer S. Shephard and Wife, Cambridge; Misses Louise and Ellen A. Gilman, Newton; C. W. Whiting, Boston.

Walter Nash of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, has a new concrete house at Clifton being erected for his occupancy. It is near "Seven Gables," the summer home of Chas. L. Eaton, president of the S. S. Pierce Co., Boston. Other new summer homes building in Clifton is an Italian villa for Chas. M. Boyd of Newton and one of the Spanish mission type for Aubrey T. Dunbar of Boston.

The Rockmere inaugurated its eleventh season, May 14, and fine bookings and an early season are promised. Improvements have been made including new rooms and bathrooms.

Swampscott.

Mrs. John F. Tarbell of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, is settled in her Little Point's cottage, and the widow of Charles H. Bond of Boston, who has been a frequent visitor to her estate at Whales Beach this spring, will not be here this summer, having rented it.

Edward C. Bradley, esq., is another member of Boston's legal circles who summers at Swampscott, and his Elmwood road estate is open for the season.

The coming week will bring many cottage arrivals. The Prescott, Puritan Inn and the Oakland, the small hotels, are open, but the Lincoln House does not inaugurate its season until the 18th, and the big, fashionable hostelry, the New Ocean house, extends its notable hospitality for another season, June 24.

Society Notes

Marblehead.

The new Cliff club at Marblehead being conducted by A. L. Rowell as managing director is proving quite a popular resort. Mr. Rowell is well known along the North Shore, especially among Harvard men, as he was for a number of years connected with one of Harvard's eating houses. He was at the Grill club at Magnolia one season. The Cliff club has this season been moved into a new and commodious home, at the house formerly known as the Devereux Mansion on Beach street. It is just off Atlantic avenue on the road to Marblehead Neck and is within two minutes' walk of Devereux depot. The grounds consist of 25 acres, a beautiful combination of seashore and country. The mansion has been entirely remodeled to meet the demands of this rapidly growing club, and no expense has been spared to make it a thoroughly comfortable, convenient and up-to-date country club at the terminus of a most interesting automobile drive along the North Shore, either from the direction of Nahant and Swampscott or from the Manchester or Beverly shore. A special feature is being made of the veranda dining-room where meals are served a la carte daily. Sea foods, especially lobster, in various forms is being served in the manner that has made this club famous. Last Saturday evening, W. M. Bacon of Boston was host for a party of 19. One of the nicest dinners which Mr. Rowell could get up was prepared: tables were beautifully decorated with flowers, and the favors were very attractive. After the dinner the rugs were taken from the floor and dancing was enjoyed. Tuesday of this week, Mr. Hewitt of Boston gave a dinner for 12. Today the members of the Lynn Dental association will hold their banquet here. Last Sunday afternoon the piazzas were thronged with people.

The following well known summer residents, from Boston, have opened their commodious estates on the neck for the season: Charles W. Parker of Commonwealth avenue, president of Macullar Parker Co.; Kirkland H. Gibson, Chestnut Hill, member of the Ivers & Pond Piano Co.; Charles Eaton; the David C. and Lawrence Percivals, Herman Parker and family, Ross Parker and family, Ross Parker and family, John M. Ward and family; H. D. Yerxa and family. Thomas B. Ticknor of the publishing company of Houghton and Mifflin, has domiciled his family in their Ocean avenue estate, and Rev. C. L. Wells, dean of Christ Episcopal Cathedral, New Orleans, and family are settled in their Ocean avenue cottage.

Gen. and Mrs. Elbert Wheeler have enlarged the Boston cottage contingent and have opened their summer residence on Foster street, and the John M. Wards of Boston and Irving S. Palmer of Winchester are other members of the colony who have arrived at Marblehead Neck.

Benjamin Owen of Brookline, prominent in shoe manufacturing circles, is at his summer home, and Henry B. Stowell, the Boston stock broker, has returned to the North cottage.

Wm. H. Joyce and family of Baltimore, prominent in yachting circles here, are again summer residents of the Neck. Mr. Joyce and family were former summer guests at Hawthorne Inn, East Gloucester, and Mr. Joyce took an active part there in yachting events also.

The W. R. Rothwells of the Empire Hotel, Commonwealth avenue, Boston, are again on Harbor street on the Neck, and the Charles P. Jaynes of Boston and the Andrew Raeburns of Brookline are likewise in permanent occupancy of their summer homes.

F. W. Coughlin of Brookline has secured the cottage of Adams D. Clafin of Newton.

Edwin A. Shuman of Boston has secured the Cutter cottage again for the season.

The Corinthian Yacht club opened for the season May 28, and an improvement for this season is the new steel pier. The club's band concerts will be held Monday evenings.

The Eastern Yacht club opened also May 28, and the regular band concerts on Thursday evenings during July and August will be features of the club's social season.

Newell Tucker, of the Shawmut Bank, Boston, is at his Devereux cottage, as is also Miss Harriet Perkins of Salem, who is settled in her summer residence at Devereux Rocks.

R. G. Brown, proprietor of Hotel Nanepashemet, Marblehead Neck, arrived early in May to prepare the hotel for its opening this month.

Society Notes

Swampscott.

This beautiful section of the North Shore is assuming an appearance of activity for the summer, especially in the cottage colonies. The favorable change in the weather this week renewed the interest in out-door pleasures, and the numerous owners of automobiles were seen flitting about the boulevards and the lovers of tennis have been getting in trim for more strenuous work on the courts later in the season.

Ex-Governor Curtis Guild and family of Boston are among the permanent arrivals to settle in the cottage they have taken for the season, and Hon. Thomas N. Hart, Ex-Mayor of Boston, and his son-in-law, Carl W. Ernst, the Boston author, are other prominent members of the Galloupe's Point colony domiciled with their families.

The financial circles of Boston contribute as summer residents: Geo. C. Brooks, the State street banker, I. A. Ratschesky, treasurer of the U. S. Trust Co., who have settled their families in their cottages for the season. Other prominent business men of Boston, who have taken permanent summer occupancy of their cottages are Allen Arnold, the Devonshire street broker; Benjamin H. and Charles P. Shelton, the Milk street business men; Frank F. Stanley, the machinery manufacturer of which F. F. Stanley is president; William Parker, lawyer; James P. Parker, the insurance dealer; Henry Harrison Procter, president Ellison Co., merchants and leather manufacturers, and Charles A. Procter, vice-president; William A. Jeffries, real estate dealer; Eugene W. Ong, esq.; Timothy Remick, Charles H. Remick, E. D. Remick; Charles P. Curtis, esq.; Simon Vorenberg, president Vorenberg Clothing Co.; Arthur Little of Little & Brown, architects; John Mason Little; Fred C. Smith; Donald H. Smith, secretary Beggs and Cobb Leather Co.

Mrs. G. R. H. Thorn of New York is settled in her Puritan Road cottage and Col. and Mrs. William M. Bunting and Mr. and Mrs. James M. Rothwell are joint tenants of the Bunting cottage at Phillip's Beach.

Eugene H. Clapp, treasurer of the E. H. Clapp Rubber Co., Boston, is a member of the Galloupe's Point colony. He has arrived with his family.

STATEMENTS have been published recently in some of the daily papers to the effect that the expenses of Essex County are in excess of any other county in the Commonwealth, except Suffolk, and the statements have naturally greatly exercised not only the county commissioners, but all those who have a hand in the affairs of the county. Figures quoted are claimed to disclose extravagance in Essex County, yet inquiry shows that in view of needed improvements made during the past three years, the taxpayers secured good returns for their money. It is the county commissioners of a decade or more ago, and not those of today, that must be blamed for any extensive expenditures at the present time. Owing to a misguided policy on the part of the commissioners in years gone by, the county buildings, bridges, etc., were grossly neglected, and when the time came for repairs, a large amount of money had to be expended. Essex County at present has splendid courthouses, in Salem, Newburyport and Lawrence. The penal institutions are in good condition and well furnished, while the bridges of the county were never in better repair. Essex County is subjected to heavy expenses annually, keeping bridges over tidal streams in order. This expense is not experienced to so large an extent in any other county in the state, except Suffolk. Unless some disaster occurs, the county will not be obliged to spend much money for county buildings or penal institutions during the coming 20 years, and, as a result the tax burden will be wholly dependent on the amount of money needed for maintenance of buildings, bridges, highways, etc.

Essex County is extremely fortunate in having towns like Manchester, Beverly, Nahant, Swampscott and Marblehead that have large tax payers and heavy valuation. The burden of the county tax necessarily falls on the wealthy residents who come here to spend the summer.

THE June number of "New Boston" quotes at length some editorial utterances of Surveying and the Civil Engineer, published in London, concerning housing conditions in Boston, as brought out in the report of the 1915 Housing Committee. "The results of this investigation," remarks the English editor, "are of a startling character; to none more so, perhaps, than to English sanitarians who have been accustomed to identify such conditions, at least in part, with the greater age of their country as compared with the relative juvenility of American cities, to say nothing of the supposed boundless area of the Western continent." The editorial goes on to comment with surprise upon the recent opinion of the Massachusetts Supreme Court on expropriating land for a new street, regarding this in the light of "limitations on municipal action in slum destruction imposed by American 'constitutional' restriction." It congratulates its readers upon a freer opportunity with them, in these words: "To English people, long accustomed to public expenditures on such objects, this should come as a healthy reminder of the advantages of an elastic constitution, capable of modification with changing eras and conditions, and dependent only upon the clearly affirmed will of the people." The conclusion of the editorial is as follows: "It is satisfactory to note, as some relief from the gloom of this report, that the mayor of Boston is pushing all he is worth for the establishment of a municipal zoo and aquarium. In a recent speech he said that there was no reason why Boston with its population of 640,000 should not have institutions of that kind to equal any in the country. The housing of the animals might serve as a salutary object-lesson to the corporation."

HERE are a few figures of special interest to the boy who is thinking of leaving school to go to work—the boy who can continue his studies if he wants to, but who has an idea that such a course will not pay him in dollars and cents. The figures are prepared by the Massachusetts State Board of Education, and are based upon a careful investigation. It appears that the boys who left school at the age of fourteen went to work for pay averaging four dollars a week, and at the end of their twenty-fifth year they were earning an average of twelve dollars and seventy-five cents a week. The boys who remained to graduate from the high school—at an average age of eighteen—went to work for ten dollars a week, and at the age of twenty-five were earning an average of thirty-one dollars. The total earnings of the elementary schoolboy for the twelve years were five thousand seven hundred and twenty-two dollars, and of the high-school boy in the eight years seven thousand three hundred and seventy-seven dollars. And these figures represent but one, and that perhaps not the most significant, of the gains secured by the high-school boy.

BOSTON—1915 has signally aided the passage in the Massachusetts legislature of an excellent law restricting the use of dangerous explosives, and is in charge, through an efficient executive committee, of the arrangements for Boston's "safer and saner Fourth." One of the most striking features will be a parade of 4,000 children, illustrating "Independence and its Fruits," by means of floats and marching detachments. President Taft has promised to review this parade, in connection with his visit to Boston on that date. The presence of forty to fifty thousand teachers in the city, attending the sessions of the National Education association, will add much interest to the occasion.

And what Boston gains in this connection we all gain. It will be a "safer and saner Fourth" all along the line.

CONSIDERABLE talk is being heard about town at the present time as to the feasibility of a special committee being appointed to look into the matter of a new Town hall for Manchester. The question has been agitated in a greater or less degree for the last ten years, but no definite action has been taken in town meetings. There is no question but what a town of Manchester's standing ought to have a better Town hall building. At the present time, the upper portion of the building is closed by order of the state inspector of buildings and it is estimated that it will cost from $500 to $1,000 to put it in repair. It is a question of only a few years when Manchester will have a new Town hall building anyway, and it seems too bad that the town should be taxed at the present time to spend $500 or $1,000 for repairs, and in a few years have the building destroyed. The rental for the upper hall in the building amounts to only $300 a year.

There is a grand opportunity for one of Manchester's many philanthropic citizens to present the town with a new building, one that would be an honor and lasting monument to the giver, as well as a most useful gift to the town.

Sentiment is divided as to the best location for such a building. Some suggest removing a number of buildings on Union street, opposite the public library and placing the new structure there. Others suggest the Town hill; to our minds, however, there can be no better location for the new Town hall than the site of the present building. It could, perhaps, be placed a little nearer the water, but at all events have the building on one side of the town common. It is only a matter of time when a greater part of the inner harbor between the Town hall and the railroad track will be filled in and very valuable new town property made thereby.

Who of our wealthy summer residents wants to present the Town of Manchester with a new Town Hall building at a cost of $150,000 to $200,000?

COMMUNICATION.

Mr. Coolidge Wants Building to Be Known as "Public Library."

Boston, Mass., June 7, 1910.
Editor North Shore Breeze.

Dear Sir: Will you allow me, in answer to Mr. Stanley's criticism of May 31st, to say that I gave the building to the Town of Manchester.

I should have had great pleasure in founding a Memorial Building or a G. A. R. Hall, but that was not my

PRE-EXISTENCE?

Have I lived before, or no?
Did the universe get on without me
A hundred years ago?
A never-dying soul have I about me
In the stream of Being yet to flow?
I and you would like to know.

If mortal my initiate
Can I be sure of an immortal state?
If I came from nothing,
Shall my end be so?

You and I would like to know!
If I have lived before in eons vast,
Lived and wrought and suffered and died,
I have no memory of the Past,
No scars in hands or feet or side
To show in what worlds my life was cast.
Came I from nothing? And shall I end—
A breath from the Spirit that fills all space?
How many lives shall I yet spend—
Living or dying by whose grace?

Whence do I come, or whither go?
Patience, poor Heart! We soon shall know.

intention. I meant to present my fellow citizens with a Public Library Building.

It was solely with that purpose in view that I put up the building, and I should much regret if any other name but that of Public Library was given to it.

Very truly yours,
T. Jefferson Coolidge.

ODDS AND ENDS FROM A NEWSPAPER MAN'S NOTEBOOK

Little Incidents of Weeks of Travel in the Southwest—Little Stories out of the Ordinary.

[By M. J. Brown, Editor Little Valley (N. Y.) Hub.]

In closing this series of southwest stories I find a variety of notes in my book, of matters and incidents overlooked or sidetracked in the stories, and most too good to omit. Here they are:

In a curio shop in San Antonio, Texas, I saw a remarkable example of Mexican patience and handicraft, a flea—just an ordinary, tiny sand insect—dressed in a full suit of clothes, pants, sweater and hat, and so delicate and small that I had to see it through a magnifying glass to appreciate it. This is literally and honestly a fact, and without any exaggeration. The patience and skill of some of the Mexicans is more than wonderful. Give one of them a silver coin and he will make of it some rare curio, will spend hours on it and then sell it to you for a few cents. From horse hair and human hair they will plait watch chains and neck chains of exquisite workmanship and beauty. Time has no value—and a Mexican has more patience than anything else in the world.

At a ranch in west Texas I witnessed some cowboys at play—big, husky sons of the range having their sport. A cow would be turned loose from a corral, and the fellows would wage their skill and money seeing which could rope, throw and tie the cow in the shortest time. One of the cowboys did the trick in 38 seconds. The record time I believe is 29.1-2 seconds. The cow is chased around the corral until she is thoroughly frightened, and when released she hits the fastest gait she has. The cowboy, on his horse outside the pen, starts when the cow starts, runs her down, throws the rope, throws the cow, dismounts and ties her legs and throws up his hand for time. Think of all this being done in little more than a half minute, and you picture a pretty speedy cow puncher. But half the credit is given to the cow pony. The minute the throw is made and the cowboy sees it is good for the horns, he dismounts, and the instant the rope settles over the horns, the well-trained pony rears back, throwing the cow, and as soon as she falls the cowboy is on her, tying her feet. These men will wager a month's pay on these half minute contests.

The gambling spirit is the leading spirit in the mining towns—barring, possibly, the bartender's spirits. These men will gamble on anything and everything that offers a chance, and when chances run out, they make them. I saw as much as $500 bet one night, in a mining town, ten to six on Nelson, and I saw a dozen men take bets on both ends of a two to one shot that the next morning's fast train from California to New Mexico, on the Santa Fe, would be on time.

In front of a curio store in Santa Fe, crumbling to ruin, I saw a Mexican cart of the old Spanish days, a cart of the time of Christ, and I could not but think that were this relic any where else in the world but in this corner so rich with curios, it would be almost priceless. A friend told me I could buy it for $25. I went out and counted my money, and when I came back the shop was closed. That night I left town. The wheels were solid, and at the hubs fully a foot thick. There was not an ounce of iron or metal on the cart—not a nail even. Every bit of the material and parts of construction were wood, and the crude wooden spikes told of the almost toolless days when it was made.

I saw a girl at Silver City who earned a thousand dollars in a few minutes by riding across a canyon in an ore bucket, suspended on a wire. The bucket went from peak to peak of a mountain, and was 1000 to 12,000 feet from the ground. No person had at that time made the trip across, altho' they say it is often made now. I asked her where she got courage enough to make the trip and she replied: "I sat down in the bucket, kept looking at the bottom of it, and just naturally went across." A Denver newspaper gave the thousand, and the girl has now a reputation which has won for her the position as head (and only) waiter in a mining town boarding house. She was pretty enough to make a man a steady boarder, but I was married.

In a wager a miner took a full pint of what the mountaineers call "snake whiskey," put the neck far down his throat and never closed the faucet until every dram of the spirits had run out. He pocketed the money, sat down in a chair a few minutes and then pitched forward on his face into the sawdust.

Mexicans have hotel waiters skinned all ways in pan-handling for tips. They will press their services on you, for accommodations, and then openly hold out their hands for change. Give it to them and you are a "tourista," and they will follow and obey like dogs; refuse, and you are a "gringo," and they would stick a knife in you if they dared.

In the mountains of New Mexico I saw a little animal called a Kangaroo rat, having short fore feet and long hind legs like a Kangaroo, and running with that peculiar jump of the big animals. I have never heard of these little animals, and they were of much interest to me.

One of the most curious sights in the mountain localities of the southwest is the burros—and the little donkeys—and the wonderful burdens they carry. I have seen these little horses come down from the mountains with loads of cedar wood, cut in stove lengths, and tied on to them until only in front could I tell what made the wood move. The Mexicans will load them until only their heads and tails are visible, the loads hanging down on the sides until they touch the ground. And these hardy, sure-footed little beasts will scale ledges, carrying these loads, where a white man would not dare crawl on his hands and knees.

There are scattered throughout the low places in New Mexico mud wells (I forgot the proper name) that are places of danger to riders. These wells are from six to ten feet across, covered over by a dry shell that looks as hard as concrete, but underneath this thin, sun-baked surface is a very deep well of liquid quicksand and mud—too wet to dry up and too thick to flow. It is very easy for one not familiar with the covering of glazed mud to think the spot one where the grass did not grow, and to walk over it, and if he did, his relatives would never know how he died, for these wells will suck one in and leave no trace. The horses and cattle shun them as they would rattlesnakes. From the fact that they are found where everything around is thoroughly dried up. I wonder at their source. I have taken a pole twelve or fifteen feet long and pushed it down entirely beneath the surface in one of these wells.

The freight train crews in New Mexico do a rushing box-car passenger business, the cash fares being pooled, and divided monthly. A brakeman told me that his "Greaser scale" each month was more than half his regular pay. The whole crew plays the game, and the Mexicans are taken up or down the road for whatever the railroad boys think they will stand for. There is a usual rate of about half price, but the crew will take less if the Greaser is short of dinero. The companies are now covering the depots with spotters and endeavoring to break up the system.

On a train I met two young fellows, mining prospectors, who had been driven out by the severe cold and snow, and who had been for three years gold hunting back in the hills, without results. One of the men was a graduate from a mining school, and an educated and brainy man. He said they were going down to work on an irrigating job to get money to grub-stake them for another season, when they would go back to the hills. He said there were streams where one could make fair wages washing out the sand, but that it could not be done in cold weather, and as they were out of money and provisions there was nothing doing but a job with the gang. This is but one of countless instances I found where men had spent years of time gold hunting, and most peculiar of the fascination is that one never becomes discouraged; that hope springs eternal, and year after year these men will live in this barren, desolate lava country, ever believing that tomorrow will bring them luck. And you will listen to their stories of hardship and privation for hours, and even then feel that desire to get an outfit and go with them—to hike up in the hills and live as our pre-historic ancestors lived before Columbus went hunting.

I rode on a train with the real big political boss of the territory, the Joe Cannon of New Mexico, and when I laughingly made the comparison, he said the difference was that Joe won out by driving men to vote as he wanted and that when he was short he voted his flock of sheep. This man said there was one man who stood between New Mexico and statehood at this session and that was Senator Beveridge of Indiana.

At Espanola a man showed me a petrified corn cob, wizened and shrunken, but plainly a corn cob, and he told me he dug it out of the dust on the floor of a Cliff Dweller's ruin, where no doubt it had lain for for thousands of years.

I saw a half dozen men piled up in a drunken sleep on the ground by the depot one day, and a bystander pointed out one of them as having an income of a thousand dollars a day from a leased mine—his part of the gold. The man had had the income about four months and he was trying to be a "Coal Oil Johnny." Every saloon man in that part of the country took an active interest in him, an interest in keeping him alive.

In conclusion to this series I would state that I shall return to this wonderland of the southwest next November, when I shall live in these prehistoric ruins and wear out a pick in search of relics of a forgotten civilization. I shall also go to the buried cities and mummy caves of Arizona, and if my money holds out, to the petrified forests, Death Valley, the Grand Canyon, and other wonderful places that we know so little of.

Plans for July 4 at Manchester.

Manchester is to have a splendid Fourth of July celebration this year with tendencies along the line of a "safer and saner Fourth." The committee has not yet made final arrangements as to how the $500 appropriated by the town will be spent.

In a general way, however, the day's program will be carried out as follows: In the early morning between 5 and 7 o'clock, horrible parade. This ought to prove a very attractive feature, as Manchester has not had a horrible parade for seven or eight years. The aim is to have it "horrible" in the true sense of the word, as well as historical and floral. A number of the societies in town have already determined to take part in this feature. One of the ladies' societies has decided to have a float in the parade. The Manchester club has practically decided to have three floats. The W. R. C., we understand, are also to take part and several other societies will probably be represented. The Boys' Brigade drum corps will head the parade. This promises to be a very important and successful feature of the day. Everybody is invited to take hold. Automobiles are urged to show their interest in one way or another. Good prizes will be given. Details may be obtained from Frank G. Cheever of the committee.

After the parade, the rest of the morning will be given over to sports, but the place and details have not yet been arranged. In the afternoon, Singing beach will be the center of attraction. The Salem Cadet Band has been engaged to give a concert that afternoon and on the arrival of the band on the 1.30 train, line will be formed at the station and the procession will start for the beach. Everybody is expected to join in the procession. The concert will be from 2 to 4 o'clock. There will be a list of sports, including such features as swimming, fancy diving, running, jumping and the like. A big feature will be an exhibition by a life-saving crew from one of the life-saving stations along the coast. Swings will be erected for the children. It is intended that this will be a general outing for the people of the town. Everybody is invited to attend.

In the evening the inner harbor (inside the drawbridge) will be illuminated. The committee will arrange to take charge of one of the illuminating, but property owners are urged to take charge of some of the illuminating part of the harbor circled by their property. Motor boat owners, both local and visitors, will be invited to come into the inner harbor that night and anchor, and illuminate their boats. At a given signal, red fire will be burned around the entire harbor, and the illumination will start. The Salem Cadet Band will give a concert on the common at the water edge from 6.45 to 9.45. The common, we understand, will not be illuminated as in the last two or three years, but there will be a number of arc lights about the grounds and the public buildings will be illuminated.

Our Weekly Letter From Washington

There are many persons who are always curious about nautical matters, and more especially regarding things coming within the province of the Hydrographic Office. A bulletin issued by this office contains responses to many queries which have been answered by it. Among these the question asked oftenest seems to be regarding the length of the nautical mile. Expressed in meters, a nautical mile is equivalent to 1,853,248 meters. The deepest known place in the ocean it is learned from this bulletin is near the island of Guam, about 75 miles ESE of that island, and the depth as obtained, Nov. 14, 1899, by U. S. S. Nero when running a line of soundings to locate the Honolulu-Midway-Guam-Manila cable, is 5,269 fathoms, or 31,614 feet. In this connection it is interesting to learn that the mean depth of the entire ocean is about 2,100 fathoms, and that the average depth of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans is about 3,000 fathoms. There is no obstacle in obtaining the greatest depths with the most approved sounding apparatus, but there is a tendency for the vessel to drift while soundings are being taken. This is overcome by using the engines. The temperature of the sea falls rapidly from the surface to 600 fathoms, then slowly to 2,500 fathoms, where the minimum of 35 degrees F. is obtained, and then it increases slowly until at the maximum depth a temperature of 36 degrees is obtained. Another question answered was the itinerary of the torpedo flotilla from Hampton Roads to San Francisco, with distances from port to port. The effect of the tide through Cape Cod canal, the depth of water in various harbors, the international date line, differences in tide gauge records, and the amount of water in the great lakes, are some of the other subjects discussed in this publication.

The Department of Agriculture seems to be of the opinion that not enough hemp is raised in the United States, at least of the finer qualities. Russia is the chief producer of hemp for export. In the Philippines it is considered a profitable crop. The bluegrass region of Kentucky grows every year between 15,000 and 20,000 acres of it, and it is the biggest producer of any section in this country. The territory around Lincoln, Neb., and in the lower Sacramento Valley, Cal., each have about 600 acres devoted to hemp. At Kouts and North Liberty, Ind., and at Hanover, Pa., hemp has been grown successfully during the past two years, and it has been shown to do well in Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, and Arkansas. It is harvested with self-rake reapers made especially for this crop and there is nothing difficult about its culture or treatment. The yield is from 500 to 2,000 pounds to the acre and there is a constant market for it, the importations being on the increase. Not less than 200 acres should be grown in adjacent tracts to warrant the introduction of special machinery for drilling, harvesting, breaking and baling. The average price in Kentucky for twenty years has been five cents a pound, which seems to be satisfactory to the farmers.

✱ Manchester ✱

The auto fire truck ordered for the Manchester fire department several months ago will not be ready for shipment until the latter part of next month, we understand.

The police were out last Sunday keeping an eye on the autoists. They were stationed at a measured course at the Cove. The chauffeur for a Beverly Farms resident was summoned into court Tuesday.

The Board of Health has ordered that all the watering troughs about town be shut off for the present, owing to a case of glanders. The horse affected with the disease having drank from one of the fountains.

The town of Manchester yesterday hired from the Old Colony Trust Co. the sum of $40,000 as authorized by the town, in anticipation of taxes. The Old Colony Trust Co. was the lowest bidder, their figure being 3.97.

At their meeting last evening, the selectmen were petitioned to allow the erection of the telephone poles on Lincoln street, between Vine and Norwood avenue extension. A hearing will be given on this matter next Tuesday at 4 p. m. at the Selectmen's office.

The fire apparatus was used last Monday evening for its first tryout of the summer. The chemical and hook and ladder was taken to Elm street and the steamer to Brook street. Everything was working in first-class order. A splendid stream was thrown as the result of the high pressure which Manchester now has.

The Selectmen at their meeting last evening as a result of an order from the state inspector of buildings, notified Magnolia lodge of Odd Fellows that the upper portion of the Town hall building, occupied by them as a lodge-room, and sub-let to the other lodges of the town, would be closed from that date. The order was issued by the state inspector as a result of a thorough investigation of the upper portion of the Town hall building. Inasmuch as considerable expense would be incurred in repairing the hall as instructed by the state inspector, the Selectmen have determined to call a special meeting of the town to report their findings. The special meeting will be held on Monday evening, June 20, at 8 o'clock and the warrant will be posted within a day or two.

EDUCATIONAL SUNDAY.

To the Editor of The Breeze:

The National Education Association which is to hold its annual meeting in Boston, July 2-8, appeals for the observance of an Educational Sunday on July 3, by the presentation from the pulpits of the subject of education in some of its many aspects. The appeal certainly deserves general consideration and should meet with a hearty response. The intimate relation between freedom and intelligence is too generally admitted to need argument. But it is one of those truths which are so universally acknowledged that they are in danger, as Coleridge says, of "lying bed-ridden in the dormitory of the soul side by side with the most exploded and despised errors." It is well that this truth, self-evident as it may seem, should be emphasized at the present time among us. It is one to which we are specially called upon in these days of great material development and expansion to give heed. The general treatment of this subject, in aid of which the association furnishes a list of suggestive topics, would be itself an education of no small value, especially at so opportune a season as the anniversary of our national independence.

H. BAKER

Has opened his tailor shop in the Kimball Block, opp. the Postoffice, Manchester. The best work guaranteed.

With the tendencies among our home-born population and the problems forced upon us by immigration, it is not pessimistic to say that we are confronting a grave crisis; we have to choose between the bloom and the blight; and "never shows the choice momentous till the judgment has passed by."

D. F. Lamson.

First Band Concert, June 22.

The first of the series of six band concerts to be given this summer at Manchester by the Salem Cadet band, will be given on Wednesday evening, June 22. These concerts always attract a large number of people, and many are looking forward to the concerts this season.

It has been definitely settled that the combined fair of the Grand Army, W. R. C. and S. of V. will be held on the week of August 29.

A chimney fire was extinguished at the residence of Thomas Baker on Friend street last Sunday afternoon before any damage was done.

Montserrat and Prospect Hill Syndicate

POINTS OF INTEREST

The development of land in the Prospect Hill and Montserrat districts has now reached a point where the Trustees will find it easy to handle and the Edward T. Harrington Company, having completed the pioneer work, has withdrawn. More than a hundred lots have been sold on Walker Field Park and Peabody Field, number of attractive houses have been built and others are in process of erection. All the remaining lots on Peabody Field have risen $50 in price. One lot sold a year ago, has recently changed hands at an increase of $200—50 per cent. gain on the price paid. The value of this sort of investment is appealing to level headed young business men who will own their own homes and watch them grow in value as this most inviting part of the city continues to develop. In addition to the cheaper land near the Montserrat Station, the beautiful wooded tract, Montserrat Highlands, directly opposite the Station, is now plotted and offers charming sites for summer homes and residence the year round. Maps and information may be obtained at the Real Estate Office. The terms of sale on all the land are easy; the lower priced land selling at $25 down, $5 or $10 payments monthly, a splendid way for a young man or woman to save. Seventy-five new lots are just opened on Peabody Field, at the foot of Prospect Hill, at $300 each, $50 down and $10 monthly. Eight have been sold this week, on which several artistic bungalows and cottages are to be immediately started.

Some charming cottages are now in readiness for sale or rent.

The quaint Chantecler Inn, recently opened, is one of the attractions of Montserrat.

We would advise buyers to come now, as values are likely to increase rapidly in this section.

FILED BILL IN EQUITY.

Manchester Fruit Dealer Charges Rival With Violation of Agreement.

A bill in equity was filed at the office of the clerk of courts at Salem yesterday from the office of Clifford B. Terry in behalf of Peter T. Votterus, proprietor of the Manchester Fruit Store, Postoffice Block, Manchester, vs. Michael G. Revalas of Manchester, the bill alleging that Revalas in October, 1908, sold out his fruit business in Manchester to plaintiff, making an agreement not to again engage in the business in Manchester for 10 years, but that since the 31st of May last, he has engaged in the business, either for himself or others, wherefore the plaintiff asks the court to issue an injunction to restrain him from so doing, and to order a specific performance of his agreement. An order of notice has been issued, returnable at Salem, June 8.

On Wednesday the case was called in court at Salem and the petition of said Votterus was sustained, and Judge King issued an injunction against said Revalas from doing business in Manchester as stated above.

The case, we understand, has not yet come to a final settlement.

John B. Schoeffel has announced his intention to start this fall on a trip around the world, to be gone a year and a half.

Motorists along the West Manchester road have been attracted by the large field of rye on the southern corner of Mrs. R. C. Winthrop's property. The rye has grown to a height in some cases of seven feet at present. The scene must be a familiar one to Westerners who summer on the shore, for the swaying of the tall rye has very much of a western air. The Winthrop estate, by the way, is now in the bloom of condition, and is ready for the arrival of Mrs. Winthrop the coming week. The peas are in full bloom and the new potatoes, beans and other garden vegetables are well in advance of most gardens along the North Shore. The place is always kept in splendid condition by James Kinsella, caretaker.

Keith's Theatre.

There has been nobody on the stage in recent years who has attracted more attention and caused more widespread comment than Madam Chung, the little Chinese actress who is appearing at Keith's in Loie Fuller's remarkable production, "The Dragons of Wrath." It is extraordinary to see a theatre crowded to the doors at every performance at this season of the year, but that is what is happening at Keith's, and the hit that this little Chinese actress has made, and the popularity she has won in a strange land, is shown by the applause that greets her at every appearance. Madam Chung has certainly a remarkable personality. She is petite, typically Chinese, and with all the dignity of a princess, the part which she takes in this big spectacle. Of course it is something intended entirely for Americans, and for this reason Madam Chung has not had as much opportunity as she would in a Chinese play. But she has several dramatic scenes that show she is a born actress and if she remains in this country and decides to go into strictly dramatic work, will undoubtedly create an immense sensation. "The Dragons of Wrath" is the most pretentious feature ever offered in vaudeville and has no less than 18 different features.

The Boston Sunday Journal Passes 100,000 Circulation Mark.

The new Sunday Boston Journal at one cent a copy is past the experimental stage. From its first issue on May 8th emphatic success has followed its path, and in less than a month's time, a circulation of over 100,000 has been established. People who have never read The Boston Journal before are receiving the new Sunday issue with great enthusiasm, and hundreds of letters of commendation are being received at The Journal office daily.

The new Sunday edition does not print comic supplements or colored comics or other masses of so-called "feature sections," but brings to its readers a clean, concise, easily handled, well written Sunday paper of ordinary size filled with news of interest to man and woman in every walk in life.

Each coming week shows larger sales than before and never in the history of journalism has a new venture met with such enthusiasm and such unusual success as this new Sunday paper which is all a newspaper.

North Shore people desiring the very finest laundry work would do well to look up the Magnolia French Hand Laundry which is located in the rear of what was formerly conducted as a tea house by Mrs. Selfridge. Madame Hetue, the proprietor, was Miss Catherine Dietrick of Utica, N. Y., who was at East Gloucester two seasons ago, and was with Miss Nina Selfridge at Magnolia last season. Madame Hetue has the reputation of doing very high class work. She makes a specialty of shirts, collars, cuffs, lingerie dresses, linen suits, shirtwaists and percale skirts, and those who have had work done by her in the past have nothing but praise for her.

Children's Sunday will be observed at the Village church next Sunday. This will be held in the evening, the children themselves participating with songs and recitations. Parents who wish their children baptized may bring them to this service. The children's story, "The King of the Golden River," which has been continued three Sundays, will be concluded next Sunday morning. This part of the service will then be discontinued until next fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Hetue and Mrs. Joseph Hetue of Southbridge were at Magnolia over Sunday, visiting Madam Hetue, whose husband, A. E. Hetue is connected with the N. E. T. & T. Co.

There will be a dance at the Men's club on Wednesday evening of next week from 8.30 to 11.30 o'clock. Music will be furnished by Blythe's orchestra of Gloucester. Admission 25 cents. "Ladies' night" will be held Wednesday and Saturday evenings, as last season. Bowling on the newly surfaced alleys is popular.

We desire to say that Grabow & Co. will have no connection with anything at Magnolia this season. We say this in contradiction of a short item which appeared in a recent issue of The Breeze—an item which we copied at that time from another paper. The concern has absolutely no connection with any of the hotels or clubs.

Mrs. Clarence Allen of Greenbush, Mass., was the guest of Mrs. John B. Knowlton last week.

Mrs. James Essen and son were the guests of the Misses Williams over the week-end.

Circus at Gloucester June 16.

Announcement is made of the appearance in Gloucester on Thursday June 16, of the 101 Ranch Wild West, and many residents hereabouts will doubtless make the trip to witness the exhibition. The show is the big, fresh, clean, vigorous tented amusement organization from the Oklahoma prairie, owned jointly by Edward Arlington, long a conspicuous circus figure, and the three Miller brothers, the most famous ranchmen of the Southwest. Performances will be given in the afternoon and at night, and a typically western street parade will gladden the eyes and the hearts of young and old in the early forenoon.

The 101 Ranch Wild West is the most sensational newcomer in the history of canvas entertainments. Professionally organized only three years ago, it has already toured the length and breadth of this country, Canada and Mexico, and established a popular reputation which other earlier traveling enterprises have required decades to acquire.

Its home and its origin are the Oklahoma rangelands. Every person and feature is real, vital and characteristic. The performers are not professionals, but men, women and children on a "lark" from the 101 Ranch. Every name is known on the ranches of the Southwest for skill and daring avocations of the range. Every champion of the lariat, sharpshooter, cowgirl, cowboy, trick rider and other participant is permanently on the pay-roll of the 101 Ranch. Herds of gaunt, long-horned western steers and pure-blooded buffaloes are fantastic features. There are more than one hundred Indians, most of them fresh from the wigwams of the tribes who have their homes on the 101 Ranch land.

The 101 Ranch show is today the only big, exclusively "Wild West" show in the world, and perpetuates a picturesque, romantic period of American history surviving remotely, and most notably on the sweeps of prairie where the amusement institution had its inception. The morning street parade is a moving, living narrative of the early West, and Miller Bros. & Arlington contend it has never had a like or equal.

Forepaugh and Sells Bros. Circus at Gloucester, June 29.

The Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' big united shows will on Wednesday, June 29, give two performances in Gloucester.

Not since the beginning of time has an amusement enterprise so tremendous in size been organized as this one. Its magnitude is almost beyond belief. It comes this year, after an absence of several seasons, with a complete new equipment from start to finish. It cost the management $3,200,000. Every corner of the earth has been searched by the foreign agents of the show for novelties. The result is a performance brim full of sensational acts, the largest and only complete zoo in America and a three-mile parade. This parade is a veritable world's fair and a panoramic history of the earth from the days before the flood up to the last tick of the clock.

This great circus is 50 years old. It has always stood at the top among all the amusement enterprises of the world. This year it returns bigger, better and more attractive than ever. On its list of performers are 350 names. These great stars have been gathered from European arenas.

The greatest trained animal act in all history is presented by 61 horses. They appear at one time in one ring. There are also the 15 best educated elephants on earth. They perform in company with three companies of trained dogs.

In the menagerie there are 780 wild animals. The organization now numbers 1000 employees and has 600 horses. It travels on a train over a mile in length. This train is divided into several sections. When under canvas the show covers 10 acres of ground. Its many tents and the grounds are lighted with 4000 incandescent lamps and arc lights. The circus carries its own lighting plant.

The greatest holiday of a lifetime is near at hand. Without a doubt many from along the North Shore will see the newly organized Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' shows.

Boston's New "Airdome" to Open Monday.

Boston is to have one of the biggest outdoor vaudeville and hippodrome entertainments in the country beginning Monday evening, June 13, when the American League Baseball grounds, Huntington avenue—the home of the famous "Red Sox" team—will be converted into the "Airdome."

The plan is to offer the highest priced program that can be gotten together at the very lowest cost to the public and still profit through the immense seating capacity of the grounds. There will be 10,000 seats at 10c, 3000 at 15c, 2000 at 25c, in addition to hundreds of box seats, and it is promised that the entertainment will include "Everything new under the moon" and "The best of everything under the sun."

For the opening week of the "Airdome" the management promises a bill of sensational interest. The program will be marked by variety and "class" and will include acts of daring and acts that will amuse; graceful acts and grotesque acts, in fact, the 15 big numbers in the ring and on the open air stage will run the entire gamut of clean, bright outdoor entertainment.

Teel's famous band will contribute the musical part of the entertainment every week day evening and Saturday matinee, while a special concert by this organization will be given on Sunday evenings, together with the very latest of moving pictures.

There will be a special matinee June 17, Bunker Hill Day.

"Saner Fourth" Measure Signed by the Governor.

The toy pistol, the blank cartridge and the dynamite firecracker are now things of the past in the celebration of the Fourth of July in Massachusetts.

Governor Draper signed the bill to that effect the latter part of last week.

The measure had been in his hands for several days, but his signature was withheld until he was sure that it provided for a safe and sane Fourth. A study of its provisions convinced him that there are no loopholes.

There are a number of highly dangerous explosives enumerated by name, but the nub of the measure comes in the few simple words confining the kind of explosives that may figure in the small boy's program to "anything of a higher explosive power than ordinary black gunpowder."

The blank cartridge, toy pistol, dynamite, nitro-glycerine and the picric acid crackers are eliminated specifically, but it is further stipulated that no fire cracker can be sold, even when its explosive power is light, if it is longer than two inches or more than five-eighths of an inch in diameter.

The law goes into effect immediately and will probably affect a number of dealers who have ordered their fireworks for the Fourth.

Attractive June Wedding at Farms.

The important social event of the week at Beverly Farms, as far as local people were concerned, was the wedding on Wednesday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore A. Holmes on High street, of their daughter, Miss Annie Kemp Holmes and Arthur Joseph Harlow. Both young people have made their homes in Beverly Farms practically all their lives and are very popular here. The bride's father has been prominently identified with city affairs. He is, at present, a member of the Board of Assessors.

The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Clarence S. Pond, the abridged Episcopal ring service being used. Only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony, but the reception which followed at 8 o'clock brought scores of friends and neighbors, many coming from out of town.

The bride wore a white dress of Spanish lace over messaline with train. The veil was caught up with a chain cluster of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses. As the couple entered the room, Lohengren's wedding march was played by Miss Marion Cooper, accompanied by Miss Ottella Cooper on the violin. In front of a bank of palms the bridal party stood.

The home was very tastily decorated with potted plants and white flowering English daisies and other June flowers. The bride and groom were unattended. They were assisted in receiving at the reception by their respective parents.

Herman Macdonald, Thomas Chapman, Howard Williams and Ralph Holmes were the ushers. Misses Alice Woodberry, Annie Woodberry, Ruth Hardy, Lyda Pierce, Catherine Williams and Florence Blanchard served. The wedding cake table was presided over by Miss Theodora

Thisell. After a wedding trip to the White Mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Harlow will live in the upper suite of the cottage on Hart street owned by the father of the groom.

Inquiry at the Farms has begun as to whether or not the usual July 4th celebration is to be held this year. In the past the celebration here has been the best given anywhere, and enjoyed not only by the Farms people, but many from out of town have made it a point to spend the day here. Some of the old committees, which was composed of business men and representative citizens, feel that the Farms should still continue to celebrate, but that after eight or nine years of service and hard work, they have earned the privilege of passing the duties over to some new workers, who have more time and possibly new ideas. A public meeting called to get the expression of opinion and new volunteers has been suggested.

Many Farms boys, 12 to 14 years, find this a busy season with the coming of the summer residents. They secure jobs, which consist in part of carrying the mail, doing chores, etc., for which they receive good pay. During the season this amounts to quite a tidy sum. It serves not only in having the work done for the employer, but it teaches the boy the good lesson that he should do something besides play.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. James, who live in the vicinity of Windsor, Vt., have spent the past week at the Farms visiting friends.

The dance and social given in Neighbors' hall last evening under the management of a party of Farms young men was well attended. A cool evening and good music helped to make the affair an enjoyable one.

Mrs. Katherine Wyatt and daughter, Miss Fannie Wyatt, moved from East Wenham, where they have made their home for practically all their lives, to Natick, last Saturday, to join their son and brother, respectively, Harry Wyatt, who went in the ice business early in the spring. They are to give the new location a trial and if they like will make it their permanent home. Mrs. Wyatt recently sold her estate here to Gordon Means of the summer colony.

Beverly Farms was well represented at the circus in Salem Tuesday. The sounding of the "no school" signal in the morning made it particularly pleasant for the scholars at the Farms school. Many of them were joyous over the fact that they, too, could see the big show.

At last Monday evening's meeting of the Farms firemen, the Hook and Ladder Co. sent a challenge to Engine 3 company for a match game of ball to be played soon, the teams to be made up strictly from the firemen and to be played "for fun or marbles." The Steamer company at once accepted the challenge and now both teams are making preparations for the event, which will probably be played on the Vine street playgrounds, June 17.

F. W. Varney, the Central square druggist, has added to his force another prescription clerk, John A. Cowan of New Bedford.

Rev. Clarence S. Pond was again called to Pocasset, Wednesday evening, on account of the illness of Mrs. Pond's mother, Mrs. Barlow.

A committee of ladies from St. Margaret's Court of Foresters are to conduct a dance and social in Neighbors' hall, Thursday evening, June 23, for the benefit of St. Margaret's church. Long's orchestra will furnish the music.

Mrs. W. A. Norton of Woburn has been the guest of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Babkirk, at their home on Hart street, during the last week.

Charles Ober, formerly of Beverly Farms, aged 65 years, 1 month, 18 days, died in Stoneham the latter part of last week. Funeral services were conducted from the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles F. Preston, 807 Hale street. Burial was in the Farms cemetery. He was well known to the older Farms residents and was a brother of the late Isaac and Edward H. Ober. He was a carpenter, and later a florist, with place of business on Valley street.

Frank Gove has accepted a position at the Greenwood Farm on Greenwood avenue. His new work is more or less in the clerical line.

John L. Chapman and family have moved from the Swift estate where they have been caretakers since last fall to their summer apartments on Haskell street.

The walking population of the Farms no doubt fully appreciate the reconstructed sidewalk on West street, built of crushed stone, which has just been finished by Foreman William Elliott. This stretch of walk is probably the most used in the Farms, and has been pretty muddy in wet weather. The Farms people are hoping for more sidewalk improvements and the tar surface is the kind wanted.

MANCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1910.

• Society Notes •

Mrs. Charles A. Munn and two daughters, Carrie Louise and Gladys M., returned this week from a winter spent abroad. They arrived in New York Tuesday on one of the German line boats, and they are now settled at their cottage on Beach street, Manchester, for the summer. They had a delightful tour the last winter, being members of a small party making the trip up the Nile. They had the pleasure of meeting Col. Roosevelt in the Soudan when he was on his return trip from African wilds. They also visited Mrs. Munn's son, Charles A., and family, who, by the way, are to come over from Europe shortly. The two boys, Gurnee and Hector, are still in school, the former at Harvard. Hector is preparing to enter Harvard next fall.

D. Herbert Hostetter and family of Pittsburg arrived at their summer estate in North Beverly this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gibson, who are very pleasantly located at the Seabury cottage, Beverly Farms, for the summer, plan to go over to New York within a day or two in time to meet Mrs. Gibson's grandmother, Mrs. James McMillan, on her return from England, where she has been for several months visiting her daughter, Lady Harrington. They will spend a few days in New York and Washington before returning to the North Shore.

Francis R. Allen and family of Boston, who had a cottage at Beverly Farms last season, are to join the colony at West Manchester this year. They have leased the Roberts house, corner of Harbor and Bridge streets, West Manchester.

Mrs. L. S. Ayres and family of Indianapolis have moved to their summer cottage on Lexington avenue, Magnolia, this week.

Albert Ivins Croll and family are among the week's arrivals at Manchester. They are occupying their summer estate at Smith's point.

• Society Notes •

Mr. and Mrs. Stoughton Bell have arrived at the Smith farm, Proctor street, Manchester, for the season. Mrs. Bell's mother, Mrs. W. H. Lewis' other daughter, Mrs. Carey, summer with her as usual. Mrs. Lewis' other daughter, Mrs. Carey and family of New York city have one of the J. Warren Merrill cottages on Smith's point, for the summer.

The Misses Amy and Clara Curtis have arrived at their summer home, "Crow Island," Manchester Cove. They spent the winter traveling abroad as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Spaulding reached Pride's, Tuesday night, after a visit of several weeks with Mrs. Spaulding's family at Kenilworth, Ill., where they went on their return from Europe.

H. M. Sears and daughters were expected to arrive at their Pride's Crossing home yesterday after an extended trip to Europe. The house was opened several weeks ago. The grounds are in splendid condition. The tennis courts on this estate are among the finest on the shore, and are the scene of many merry hours during the summer, as the Misses Sears are members of one of the private classes which are conducted along the shore.

Miss Helen Taft is to do much of the social honors for her mother on the North Shore this season, since she was social hostess for her at the dinner given by President Taft for the Japanese prince, June 9, an open declaration that without formalities she is to assume her position as the foremost young lady in the land, although her school days are not over. Mrs. Taft is still unequal to the fatigue of formal entertaining.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Taylor and daughter, Miss Taylor, arrived at their summer home, "The Craigs," Smith's point, Manchester, yesterday.

• Society Notes •

The Brazilian charge d'affaires, Lima e Silva, is to spend the summer at Manchester. His departure from Washington is being delayed by the serious illness of his beautiful young bride, whose mother, Senora Covarrubias, hastened to Washington from London to see her last week. Mr. Silva has been at Manchester for the last two seasons, coming as secretary to the late ambassador Nabuco. The second secretary of the legation, Gustavo de Vianna-Kelsch, is to spend the summer at the Essex County club. Several members of the French Embassy will also live at the club this summer.

Ellis L. Dresel will spend the summer at the King cottage, Mingo Beach.

Mrs. Hall McAllister and family, who spent last season at the small Higginson cottage, West Manchester, have taken a cottage at Nahant. Mrs. McAllister plans to give another series of musicales along the shore this summer.

Mrs. William A. Russell plans to spend part of the present month with her sister, Mrs. Philip Stockton and family at their late father's country estate at Lake Champlain. On her return, she will occupy the Burnham cottage at Beverly Farms for the remainder of the season, instead of the "House-in-the-Woods," one of the Arthur Little cottages.

Mrs. R. C. Winthrop and Miss Clara Winthrop arrived at their summer home in West Manchester this week.

J. Babson Thomas and family arrived at their cottage at West Manchester, Tuesday, for the summer.

Mrs. George Grey Barnard, wife of the distinguished sculptor and sister-in-law of Mrs. Eric Pape of Manchester, is one of the passengers on the steamship Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. She will probably visit Mrs. Pape in Manchester.

The Sun Dial and Its Place in the Garden.

By MARY H. NORTHEND.

There is probably nothing that lends a more subtle charm to a well arranged flower garden than that time-honored accessory, the sun-dial. To this simple ornament above all others seems to belong a certain elusive and mysterious fascination, which one instinctively feels, but cannot describe. It is perhaps to this very fact that the sun-dial owes its centuries of popularity, dating back hundreds of years before Christ.

The earliest dials in use were extremely crude affairs, arranged to tell time with more or less accuracy, but fashioned without the slightest regard for beauty. Often they consisted simply of poles stuck in the ground with little heaps of stones laid out to mark the passing hours. Sometimes, if the pole were placed near a dwelling, rough notches cut in the doorway or on the window ledge took the place of stones, but for some time little attempt was made at ornamentation.

Gradually, however, scientists succeeded in plotting out very accurate dials on wood and also on bronze and other metals. Each dial had to be made for some particular city, for in order that it should tell the time accurately the style, or gnomon, which cast the shadow on the face of the dial, had to meet it so as to form an angle of the same number of degrees as the latitude of the place in which the dial was to be used. The hour spaces, too, varied according to the locality, and it was therefore necessary that they be carefully computed and marked by expert workmen. Occasionally very elaborate sun-dials were constructed which could be used in a number of different places, but these were almost without exception folding pocket dials to be carried by travelers, just as watches are now worn by them.

Of the more common stationary dials there were two varieties, the perpendicular and the horizontal. Those of the former class were designed for use on buildings and were affixed to the walls of churches and other public edifices, much as clocks are now sometimes inserted. In New York city one of these old perpendicular dials may still be seen on the Dutch Reformed church. It was the horizontal dial, however, which was adapted for garden purposes and it is this style that is best known in this country at the present day.

In England and Scotland the horizontal sun-dial became extremely popular and no garden of any pretensions was considered complete without at least one of these ornamental time-keepers. The high favor in which the "simple altar-like structure" with its "silent heart language" was held in England was well expressed by Charles Lamb, who said of the sun-dial, "It stood as the garden god of Christian gardens."

But by the time the American colonists had leisure to devote to laying out beautiful gardens, the day of the sun-dial was drawing to a close. The introduction of clocks had done away with the necessity of depending upon such fair-weather time-pieces, and, furthermore, they were no longer the height of fashion across the seas. So it happened that despite its charm and value as an ornament the sun-dial was not widely adopted in this country.

Of late years, however, in the general revival of old-fashioned customs, this interesting feature of old-time gardens, has attracted many garden owners by its quaint simplicity and usefulness. The sun-dial has again come into favor and adds a delightful touch of sentiment while contributing to the picturesqueness of modern gardens, be they of the rambling description filled with graceful vines and shrubbery in striking contrast with the riot of gorgeous blossoms, or of the more dignified, formal variety with its fountains, pools and marble fragments.

The questions which are now puzzling would-be dial owners are "How shall we get them?" and "Where shall we put them?" The dials themselves, which are usually of bronze, copper, brass, or of stone, can, of course, be made at home, if one has sufficient patience and some practical knowledge of the subject. There are books which give formulae for the marking of the faces, but since the accuracy of the dial depends entirely upon the correct hour spacing and the proper angle of the gnomon, it is usually wise for the amateur to leave that part of the work to a skilled dial-maker.

The erection of the dial may be safely accomplished without the aid of an expert. Practically the only essential points in this are to see that the dial has a firm and absolutely level base upon which to rest, and to be sure that the gnomon points directly toward the north star. A stone pedestal, neither too low nor too high, is the best foundation for a garden sun-dial, but where a less expensive material must be chosen wood does very well, provided it has a level block of stone or concrete at its base to prevent it from sagging.

As for the design of the pedestal, that depends largely upon the owner's taste, but, as a rule, the simple shafts are the most effective. Occasionally one sees a beautiful, carved pedestal, perhaps imported from Italy, but these are seldom found outside of stately, formal gardens. For the less pretentious garden, there is nothing more appropriate or more in harmony with its simple beauty than a graceful, but inelaborate pedestal, substantial enough to North Shore Summer Home of Roland C. Lincoln.

Original part was built nearly 220 years ago.

To a remote period in the past belongs the quaint old house now used as a summer residence by Roland C. Lincoln at Manchester. The original part was built nearly 220 years ago, when the now fashionable North Shore was the haunt of fisher folks and farmers.

In those days the house stood near the road, in the shadow of an older dwelling that crowned the brow of a neighboring hill. The same forest land formed a protective background, but the great apple orchard which grew blooms and fruit at one side shows now but a remnant of its former growth. "Little Orchard," the house is still called, the name being given it because of this

At one side, beneath the overhanging eaves, snuggles another porch, framed in ivy, while farther on, toward the rear of the dwelling, a broad veranda nestles within the shadow of a gnarled apple tree.

Passing up the central path to the entrance door with its old-time brass knocker, one enters the hallway, typically colonial in design, and characterized by an alcoved recess. Here the finish is whitewood, and the low-stud walls are hung with paper in tones of blue and white. Slightly to the right of the center is a handsome staircase that sweeps by low treads and broad landing to the second floor apartments. The hand-curved balustrades are topped with staircase landing. It was while traveling in foreign lands that Mrs. Lincoln conceived the idea of having this panel made. She consulted a workman, told him the story of the house, why it was called "Little Orchard," and upon receiving the finished panel was agreeably surprised to note that each corner was adorned with tiny apples.

Leading from the staircase hall is the dining-room, a well lighted apartment, low in stud with beamed ceiling. The finish, like the hallway, is whitewood, and the walls show a covering of paper in tones of pink and blue. At one end of the room stands a recessed sideboard, the upper part showing a china cupboard, flanked on each side by the bookcase section. Below the sideboard proper are shelves and closets. The furnishings include Chippendale chairs, and a beautiful Sheraton sideboard.

Beyond the dining-room is the living-room, a large, square room, with oddly beamed ceiling. At one end extends a built-in bookcase, on the top of which repose some rare old Delft ware and English china. The walls are adorned with many exquisite pictures, one of which—"Tired of work"—is by the late William H. Hunt. A cozy inglenook, equipped with a built-in seat, is an interesting feature of this apartment. This seat is fitted with plush-covered cushions, and the woodwork beneath is studded with brass nails, the name "Little Orchard" being wrought into the design.

From the living-room one enters the tea-room, a sunny apartment of ample proportions. Here, as in all parts of the house, the treatment is entirely colonial. At one end of the room is a fireplace of wondrous beauty, topped with a mantel exquisitely carved in garland effects. This fireplace is from an old and gone home in Prince street, Boston, that once vouched hospitality to Lafayette. Apartments on the second floor are as attractive in finish as those on the first floor. They are characterized by the same low stud and beamed ceilings, but the windows are of the quaint dormer-kind, so conspicuous a feature of the second-story of old-time colonial dwellings. The furnishings for the most part are colonial, although a few modern pieces have been introduced. —Boston Sunday Globe.

orchard. And it clung to the old abode through all the passing years. Originally the dwelling had only four rooms, each 13 1-2 feet square, but since Mr. Lincoln's purchase it has been considerably enlarged.

The first step in remodeling was to remove the house to its present location. Then the grounds surrounding it were laid down to grass land, flowers and shrubbery. The house itself was thoroughly renovated, and at one side a wing was added. Later, as additional room was needed, a second and similar wing was built on the opposite side of the main part.

The low, rambling dwelling, buff with white trim, that now confronts the gaze of the visitor, is most artistic. The handsome entrance porch is an exact replica of the one that graces the Pingree house in Salem, wherein was committed the atrocious White murder that involved so many men prominent in the social affairs of the old Witch city.

mahogany rails, while the newel posts show exquisite decoration. Halfway up this staircase, just at the landing, is shown a most interesting innovation in house decoration. Here between two high beams a broad space has been opened for the display of bric-a-brac, while beneath is inscribed the motto: "In God's hands stands this house. May good luck come to it, and bad luck go out of it."

Opposite the entrance stands a fine old cabinet filled with rare specimens of Lowestoft, including a complete tea set, which the mistress of this charming home was fortunate enough to secure some few years ago from the descendants of an old sea captain, who in the days of the town's commercial prosperity brought it home from over the seas.

A most interesting feature of the hallway is the quaint panel bearing in burnt-in letters the name of the house. It graces the arch above the

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munn and infant son are expected to arrive in New York on the 29th of this month. They will come to Manchester to spend the summer, having leased Mrs. Gordon Prince's estate at West Manchester. Mrs. Munn was Miss Mary Astor Paul of Philadelphia. The young people went abroad shortly after their marriage and have been living in Scotland and France since then.

Miss Rose L. Dexter moved into the McVickar house, corner of Prince and Hale streets, Beverly Cove, this week. Bishop McVickar and sister are occupying the Gardner cottage at Mingo Beach this summer.

Mrs. Henry C. Frick and Miss Frick went over to New York Tuesday for a short visit. Mr. Frick has as his guest at "Eagle Rock" for a few days, J. C. Tappin of New York city.

President Taft has appointed Secretary Meyer and Captain Butt to meet Col. Roosevelt tomorrow when he lands in New York on his arrival from his European and African trip.

In these days of automobiles, one is almost apt to think that fine horses and hitch-outs along the North Shore roads are something of the past. This is far from being so, however, as many of the North Shore cottagers continue to keep large stables of horses and fine equipages. We were interested to note a few days ago, Walter D. Denegre holding the reins over a splendid unicorn of bays. The leader was purchased by Mr. Denegre this spring and he is showing up splendidly and is a perfect match to a pair which Mr. Denegre has had for several years. Though Mr. Denegre has a garage full of automobiles, he still keeps a warm spot in his heart for good horses. His trio of bays attached to a brake has attracted no end of attention along the Manchester roads the last few weeks.

C. Howard Clark, jr., and family, who have been spending the spring at their country estate at St. David's, Pa., plan to reach the North Shore the coming week. They have again taken the cottage on Boardman hill, West Manchester, known as the Lothrop house.

Miss S. Fisher Corlies and Miss M. L. Corlies of Philadelphia, who annually summer at Magnolia, are touring the continent this season, and will not return to Philadelphia until New Year's. They are now in Geneva, Switzerland.

Miss Helen Taft is at Princeton college this week for commencement as the guest of her college classmate at Bryn Mawr, Miss Elizabeth Hibben, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. John Hibben.

East Gloucester.

A feature of the season here will be the new roof garden tea room in the upper floor of Hawthorne Inn's new casino. Orchestral concerts will be given every afternoon and evening by Sewall's orchestra, which will have as special members, Carl Webster, the Boston 'cellist, and Arthur S. Wonson, cornetist of the Boston Festival orchestra.

John Greenough and household of New York have arrived at their Eastern point estate.

Capt. and Mrs. Robert Miller have opened their cottage at Lighthouse point, as a tea room this season, and it is called "Mother Ann Teahouse" because of its close proximity to this famous freak of nature.

Miss McNamara, the hair-dresser, has returned to Manchester for the summer, and is again located at the Kilham house on Desmond avenue. Telephone 164.

It will require only pleasant weather to make the marriage of Miss Barbara Higginson and Barrett Wendell, jr., a gala day for the North Shore. The event is to be solemnized, Saturday afternoon in St. John's Episcopal church at Beverly Farms. This will make the second marriage of the season in this church, Miss Ayer's wedding several weeks ago being the first. If the weather permits, the reception at the summer estate of F. L. Higginson, the bride-elect's father, at Pride's Crossing, will be an al fresco affair. A band will furnish music and small tables will be placed about the grounds, upon which refreshments will be served. The hour of the wedding is set for 3.25, shortly after the arrival of the train from Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis G. Shaw of Boston, who were at Kendall Green last summer, have taken the Dame cottage on Proctor street, Manchester, for the season.

Miss Elizabeth Perkins came to her place at Beverly Farms the latter part of last week for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Amory and their family of Boston are occupying the Ellis L. Dresel cottage at Beverly Cove for the season. The Amorys were at Hamilton last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Frothingham are new cottagers at Beverly Farms this summer. They have leased the George Lee small cottage, and moved down several weeks ago. They were at Marion last year.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Agassiz, who came on to Boston several weeks ago have moved into the Tibbetts cottage at West Manchester. The Agassizs have a magnificent estate at Santa Barbara, Cal.

Mrs. George von L. Meyer and two daughters, Alice and Julia, arrived at their summer estate, Rock Maple Farm, Hamilton, the latter part of last week. See'y Meyer will come on from Washington as soon as his official duties permit. During the winter, there have been a number of improvements made at the farm, particularly to the Italian villa.

The Bernard C. Welds of Marlboro street, Boston, have leased a cottage on Hale street, Beverly Farms. The Welds summered at York Harbor last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Grew and child are on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria which is due in New York early tomorrow morning. They will come to Manchester for a visit with Mr. Grew's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Grew, at "Glass Head." Mr. Grew is second secretary of the American Embassy at Berlin. They will spend part of the summer on the North Shore and a portion of it with Mrs. Grew's parents, the Perrys, at Hancock, N. H. They are coming in on the same boat as Col. Roosevelt and family.

Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge entertained a large company of his fellow members of the Club of Odd Volumes at his summer estate at Coolidge's Point, last Saturday. The club is the leading organization of book collectors in Boston. The members assembled in the North Station and at 12.20 took a special train provided by President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine, who is a member of the club. After a quick run to Magnolia, the party went to Mr. Coolidge's house where lunch was served and the afternoon spent in inspecting the books and prints of Mr. Coolidge's collection. The party returned to Boston in the late afternoon by a special train.

Marblehead.

The roadside inn of ye olden time has as its modern sister the wayside tea and lunch room, or the big and fashionable wayside clubs, with old-time and modern names to greet the wayfarers, who are glad to stop and partake of their hospitality so attractively is it offered. Setting by the roadside on Beach street, Devereux, is the Brown Owl Tea Room with its rustic architecture, broad veranda for tea parties, and fascinating gift shop and tea room inside, which is a popular rendezvous for summer residents of Marblehead and visitors from all sections of the North Shore, who wish to have select luncheons or parties in a delightful environment. In conjunction with the tea and luncheon service, there is a circulating library, while in the gift shop can be found Brittany china, Sheffield plate, hand-made and hand-dyed Bellefonte baskets and numerous other odd conceits in imported or handiercraft gifts. The Brown Owl is the scene daily of much activity and is this season, as in past seasons, a popular acquisition to the enjoyment of the social features of the North Shore. The Brown Owl is convenient to reach, being but a short walk from the Devereux railroad station or from the trolley line.

The Cliff Club on Beach street, developed from the Devereux mansion, is welcoming numerous parties daily and auto parties are constantly driving in the stately elm-bordered avenues to partake of Proprietor Rowell's hospitality, which is extended with the most assiduous care for his ever-growing membership, now reaching the 500 mark. Hundreds appreciate the privileges of this imposing colonial club-house, its grand scenic environment and its convenient location. Among the members of the club who gave parties this week were S. P. Moses of Somerville, who brought down in his auto his daughter, Miss Mildred Moses, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Tuffy of Houston Texas; Miss Helen Faulds, Amsterdam, N. Y. James L. Little, the Boston architect, is another member who entertains frequently at the club and who had as recent guests, Bancroft C. Davis of Weston, David Mason Little, Salem; J. Lovell Little, jr., Brookline. S. Fred Smith of Salem, another member, introduced a luncheon party recently composed of F. Grafton Smith, Mrs. S. Fred Smith, Misses Irene Cook, Bertha Pettigrew and H. S. Handy, jr., of Springfield. Harry Rutherford Wright of Springfield is a member of the club also.

The holiday today, weather permitting, promises to give much zest to the spirit of entertaining in this section.

Dr. Park W. Hewins of Wellesley is a frequent visitor to the Rockmere with auto parties and W. J. Norcross and family of Brookline are season guests of the Rockmere. Mr. Norcross is connected with the firm of Houghton & Dutton.

From Chicago arrived this week, Mrs. R. M. Fletcher and Miss Ludlow Fletcher, and from Philadelphia came Miss Sara Yirgoyn and Miss M. A. Blair.

Springfield and western Massachusetts people of prominence have registered generously at the Rockmere and include Mr. and Mrs. S. T. White, G. F. Adams, W. D. Kinsman, Miss Alice Kinsman, Mr. and Mrs. A. Graves, H. H. Bowman and wife, G. C. Baldwin and wife, Springfield; G. H. England and wife, Holyoke; J. F. Hudson, Westfield; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rider, Holyoke; Mrs. Ellen H. Grant, K. A. Grant and wife, Orange; Hon. D. E. Farley, Boston.

Wellesley collegians have special regard for Marblehead. At the New Fountain Inn five 1913 girls were visitors over the last week-end. They were Beth Berkebile, Toledo, O.; Marion Hunt, Robbinstown, Me.; Mary H. Burdett, Leominster; Margaret Van Vechten, Esperance, N. Y.; Caroline A. Fenno, Genesee, N. Y. Other guests at the hotel have included Romney Spring, Boston; Misses Caroline W. Blodgett and Mildred Frink, Chicago; Miss Winifred Finley, Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. S. A. Heiser, Miss Irene Heiser, Albany.

W. N. Hartshorn, president of the Modern Priscilla Co. of Boston and Clifton, was host on June 10 for 85 delegates from England who were attending the world's Sunday school convention in Washington, D. C. "Dike Rock," Mr. and Mrs. Hartshorn's Gun Rock point cottage at Clifton, was opened most hospitably, while the 25 autos, which brought the English folk to Clifton conveyed them over to Marblehead under his guidance. The autos had English and American flags for decoration. Mr. Hartshorn was chairman of the Boston reception committee appointed to entertain them.

Saturday, June 18, the season at the Eastern Point golf club will be inaugurated. The links are in fine condition for lovers of the sport, having been rearranged and lengthened 200 yards. Provision has been made again this season for the serving of afternoon tea and luncheons, which are such an annual feature on the club-house veranda and in the grove adjoining. The club-house grounds are one riot of color, and flowers of vivid hue add much to the picturesque surroundings. Ernest Dean, the English supervisor of the club and links, is a popular and capable chargé d'affaires, having been associated since early youth with the English turf and farm lands. His father was a pensioner of the late Queen Victoria, having served her at Windsor. Mrs. Dean and her daughter Lillian, make ideal hostesses at the club-house and their English teas and lunches are justly famed. They are again settled there for the summer, after several months' sojourn in England and Scotland.

Recent arrivals at the Beachcroft include Mrs. Lybrand, Washington; Miss Marks, Boston; Mrs. A. Wendell of Roxbury.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Doe of New York, who are on an auto trip in this vicinity, stopped at the Beachcroft.

The Fair View has a number of guests registered for the season. The guests include Mrs. G. J. Kenderline, Mrs. C. R. Bolles, E. C. Bolles, 2d, Sarah C. Sower, Mrs. C. W. Duane, Miss Duane, Philadelphia; from Baltimore, Misses Caroline D. Norris, Una M. Devries; from Chicago, Mrs. W. V. Mac Gill; Mr. and Mrs. John H. McKiel, New York; Miss C. I. Ireland, Cambridge; Miss E. L. Chaloner, Boston.

Cape Ann Resorts.

The Land's End colony is to have another fine summer residence, that of Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett of Baltimore, mother of John W. Garrett, secretary of the American Embassy at Rome. It will be near the summer homes of James E. Cotter, of Hyde Park and Arthur Hale of Winchester. The view from the locality of the cottage is most commanding, with Thatcher's and Milk Islands in the foreground and Boston Bay in the distance.

Charles A. Nelson of Newton has an attractive new summer cottage of wood and stone under erection on the Headlands, which will command an excellent view of the outer harbor, as does also the fine summer home of Treasurer Blunt of the Boston Journal corporation, which is nearing completion. Beside a commodious dwelling, this estate includes finely graded grounds and terraces, tennis courts, artistic and cobblestone walls.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Fauley, western artists of prominence from Columbus, Ohio, after a season's absence in Europe, have again settled in Rockport for the summer, and have taken a building on the water front for a studio.

Alexander Nelson and family of Baltimore were due this week at the cottage they recently purchased on Haskell street.

I. D. Weston of Dayton, O., has recently acquired land here, on Windermere road, from the Souther estate.

Cape Ann Resorts.

Congressman Ernest W. Roberts of Washington and Land's End, Rockport, is urging Rockport as the headquarters for the U. S. Atlantic fleet of warships. Rockport has been added to the itinerary of the fleet by Sec. Meyer, and it is likely the town will have them this summer.

Prof. John Marshall of Boston, who is prominent in the Hub's musical circles, both public and educational, is soon due with his family at his Knowlton's point cottage, Rockport. Prof. Marshall recently succeeded Arthur Foote as organist at one of the leading Boston churches. He is a composer of note also.

The Atlantic Seashore Development

Article VIII. Long Island—East End.

Long Island reaches its climax at the east end.

We paused on the hills of Shinnecock in rapt pleasure two weeks ago beggared of descriptive powers for the time being to do the situation justice.

It is here that Long Island separates into the north and south flukes, divided by the deep and broad Peconic Bays. From the high hills of the south fluke a varied panorama spreads out around these waters that look like the great lakes of Maine that they resemble.

To the north where the Motor Parkway finally ends at the blending of river and bays lies Riverhead, showing itself above the hills and trees in its beautiful water tower. Here is located the largest banking institution in the state outside of the metropolis.

Several fine towns skirt the shores on the north fluke from Riverhead, some of them founded early in the 17th century of which Southold is now famed as having passed its third century celebration.

Greenport is the terminus of this division of the Penn.-L. I. R.R. and is situated at a splendid port of entry. Connected here by ferry is Shelter Island, a noted resort with great hotels, cottages, golf course and yacht clubs, lying secure in the deep land-locked waters of Peconic and Gardiners bays. Shelter Island derives its name from the fact that here Lawrence and Cassandra Southwick, whipped and banished from Boston, sought a refuge, to whom Prof. Hosford of Harvard, summering here, erected a monument.

All along the shores of bays and sound land values are increasing because of the favorable situation for summer homes and it being in such close touch with New England cities and resorts.

But it is along the south fluke from Shinnecock Hills to Montauk Point that we find the Promised Land, not only literally in the village by that name, but figuratively in the unlimited prospects before it.

Of the aristocratic "Hamptons," Southampton possesses the air of exclusiveness and refinement of other select resorts and which none can surpass, and it is fitly termed the "Newport of Long Island." It is one of the old towns dating its history from 1640. Its wide streets and avenues are kept in an ideal condition and afford unexcelled pleasure in driving, bordering as they do directly on the ocean front and lined with palatial homes and estates. Southampton has library, art museum, fine churches, and will now add a $200,000 fireproof town hall.

Similar things may be said of Watermill, Easthampton and Amagansett and other growing communities as far as Montauk.

Here nestle pretty lakes of various sizes like sapphire gems set in their forest-crowned heights, nature everywhere lending itself to a variety of charming scenery.

Quaint windmills built on the lines of old Holland and other bits of ancient architecture mark the landscape, challenging the genius of the artists that come from everywhere in an endeavor to transfer these mellow scenes to canvas.

Traditions cling to it that at Easthampton adventurers landed and formed a settlement before the landing at Plymouth Rock. Here are found avenues of magnificent elms and the house in which was born John Howard Payne, the author of "Home, Sweet Home."

For some time European aristocracy has been drawn to Long Island and now Amagansett boasts of the coming of royalty in the Princess Christine, J. A. Dushanich of Rashka Sandjag of Mori Baszaar Vilaget of Kosow, Ottoman Empire, who has purchased a valuable oceanfront plot and will build a summer estate.

Here people of means from everywhere are seeking out beautiful sites and are continually adding the glory of modern homes and gardens to the quaint charm of ye olden days.

Wealthy capitalists from Cincinnati, with proverbial push, are planting a notable colony at Devon on the hills north of Amagansett and bordering on Gardiner's Bay. Here engineers are at work on an enterprise costing millions. Summer homes are restricted to $40,000 and some being erected will be veritable palaces. Piers, bathhouses, club grounds, roadways, electric plants, waterworks and all the essentials of a high class modern colony by the sea are being pushed to perfection.

Further on Montauk Point reaches far out into the sea, a famous fishing and gunning region, a veteran angler's and sportsman's paradise.

And there is something strangely fascinating in the seclusion of the cliffs that rise to a hundred and fifty feet above the heaving Atlantic, where a solitary lighthouse keeps guard at Land's End. But one can foresee the end of this seclusion when the Penn.-L. I. R.R. carries out its project for a port of entry at Fort Pond Bay for the most rapid trip to Europe ever dreamed of.

To the north of this coastline from Southampton to Amagansett the country rises tier on tier in magnificent undulating hills to almost three hundred feet in height in places, from which to the south one can see the shores from Pon Quogue light, in the illuminating lamp of which six persons can stand, to the light at Montauk. Beyond lies the illimitable Atlantic. And to the north the views stretch out to the Connecticut shores, New London and beyond.

Sag Harbor, quaint old whaling town of past glories, nestles among the hills on the waters of bays beyond compare and may well be classed with old Nantucket and Portsmouth in fame of former days. Today it is modern and metropolitan since its discovery by people of artistic tastes as a superb section for estates, and since Mrs. Russell Sage has become its lady bountiful in bestowing upon it a high school, a memorial library, and a city park with lakes and boulevard all of which would grace any city in America.

Sag Harbor is linked to New England via New London by steamboats and is the key to a swift flight between Southampton's and Newport's exclusive sets. Steamers also connect Sag Harbor, New York city, Greenport and Block Island.

At North Haven just across the bridge beautiful homes are building, representing the professional class generally who are also building chateaus and bungalows on the hills fronting the bays.

Perhaps the choicest situation and scenery on Long Island is in the rolling hills north of the "Hamptons" and along the famous Noyac road. It beggars description and is without question unsurpassed on the Atlantic coast.

A visitor skimming the Noyac road west of Sag Harbor, as the writer has, either in carriage or automobile, looks upon an ever-changing vista of hilltops, forests, lakes, sparkling bays with white-winged fleets of yachts, motor boats, steamboats and the boats of the U. S. navy, for here are bays deep and wide enough for the commerce and navies of the world to maneuver in comfort as they eventually will.

On a quiet evening the waters, glinting from amethyst to emerald, give back the wooded hills and the tinted cloud promontories in the sky, leaving the idler, in a drifting boat, in doubt as to whether one is drifting on the sea or floating in the air.

Beyond from the heights are seen white cliffs, towns and Long Island Sound, the whole picture set in America's famed hills to the north.

And it comes as a surprise that there is still left the opportunity to secure some of these rare hills, Eden spots now resplendent in summer foliage and of surpassing beauty. Acreage here has, however, passed into strong hands and in large parcels.

Hilltops are essential for the most artistic bungalow effects, as this type of house lends itself more readily to the heights than the lowlands and as these hilltops are of limited area they are insured of a great future. The demand for hilltops with water views on Long Island is doubling every decade and they will soon be at a big premium.

The movement in bungalow development is absorbing land more rapidly than the ordinary cottage by three times, as being low-lying and spreading it requires more space.

Apparently all unnoticed the Boston and New York papers are constantly recording the transfer of acreage on Long Island in figures beyond belief and are passing to great conservative interests in these cities, notably the Drapers of Boston, for instance, and this may be said of all the other big cities of the country.

This steady activity has prevailed all during the last few years and is now culminating in such eager and feverish buying that the next ten years will be known in real estate annals as the Long Island decade.

Long Island's population never stops growing, its realty values never stop increasing. It is the suburb of a city with more residents than there are farmers in the United States, of a city with an assessed valuation greater than all the territory west of the Mississippi.

A stream of population is flowing over to this island and is stopped only by the shores of great seas.

Every nation on earth has interests in this colossal metropolitan center and is working along lines to increase population and values and this results in an increase in both twice as fast as the rest of the country combined.

This season as every season surpasses the former one. Every unfolding of this topographical evolution warrants the prophecies that here the palaced extravaganzas of forgotten empires will be eclipsed, making a garden spot that will make ancient Babylon with its famous gardens and modern England with its ancestral estates fade in history beside this paradise being realized on earth.

Pearls from Palestine

The Sower.

MATT. XIII:3-23.

This is the story the Lord Christ told
In the days of old:
Behold!
A Sower went forth to sow;
And lo!
O'er all the plain
He scattered the golden grain.
Some seed by the wayside fell,
And sooth to tell,
The fowls of the air in an hour
Did the seeds devour,
So that no more they could be found.

Some fell on stony ground,
And, having no depth of earth,
Quickly they sprang into birth;
But because the soil was dry,
When the sun was hot and high,
The were scorched in the noontide ray
And withered away.

Some seed did fall
Where thorns grew thick and tall.
Thin were the blades and few,
And, choked by the thorns, they grew,
But bore no fruit at all.

Some fell on goodly soil
And rewarded the Sower's toil,
Covering the fertile plain
With a wealth of waving grain,
Thirty, sixty, a hundred fold.

Thus did the Lord unfold
The truth of the tale He told:
The seed is the Word,
Which, when our ears have heard,
Cometh Satan with subtle art,
And from the heart—
Like to a thieveth bird—
Taketh the Word,
Lest we the truth receive
And so believe.

They on the rock are they
Who hear the word with gladness, but straightway
Having no root,
Can bear no fruit,
And, through temptation, fall away.

And these are they that sprung
The thorns among;
Hindered by life's affairs,
And choked by earthly cares,
No fruit unto perfection can they bring.
And these are they who in good soil do spring:
Who into honest hearts
Receive what God imparts,
And bring forth fruit more precious far than gold,
Some thirty, sixty, some an hundred fold.

To sow good seed, that is the Sower's part.
 What if I make no room within my heart?
 Yea, Lord, indeed
 Thou sowest goodly seed!
 What if I take no heed?
 Or what if, when the tender blade appear,
 I fail to persevere?
 Where were the sheaves to fill the harvest wain—
 The sheaves of golden grain?
 Lord, be it then my part,
 So to prepare my heart
 Thy truth to hold,
 That it may bring forth fruit a hundred fold!

CANADIAN authorities and the large land corporations of the Northwest territories are making strenuous efforts to attract settlers. An active campaign is now being carried on in New England. Hundreds of thousands of our citizens have left this country, taking millions of dollars with them. In some states the exodus has assumed such proportions as to occasion alarm and the authorities have instituted remedial measures to stay the flood of emigration. In a few of the states Land Boards are conducting real estate exchanges and are making a laudable effort to acquaint homeseekers with the advantages and opportunities of their own agricultural districts.

The lure of the West, however, is still strong and compelling, and the wonderful industrial and agricultural development which is now going on in arid and semi-arid regions is attracting ambitious and adventurous young Americans. Our own government is endeavoring, by opening to entry new farming regions, and by the dissemination of literature concerning the opportunities in the far West, to hold within our own borders the constantly increasing stream of homeseekers whose eyes are turned toward the setting sun.

Out in the Great American Desert stupendous engineering works are being erected involving the expenditure of millions of dollars. Massive masonry dams now block abysmal canyons and hold back the enormous flood flow of torrential streams. Thousands of miles of canals, many of which carry whole rivers, now water millions of acres of desert. The transformation which water has wrought in this rainless land is marvelous and the annual harvests are valued at more than a quarter of a billion dollars.

On many of the great irrigation works of the Government there are hundreds of farms on which water is ready for the coming of the homemaker. With a modest capital of $1,000 or more a man can establish a comfortable home on one of these farms, and secure an income for himself and family and enjoy a degree of independence and freedom from worry unknown in the cities. The Statistician of the Reclamation Service at Washington, D. C., reports that hundreds of homeseekers are leaving the cities and towns where the increased cost of living has made difficult the problem of making both ends meet. These people include all professions and trades, from college professors to mine workers and factory hands, and in a majority of the cases investigated, success has followed their ventures into the newly opened farm land of the West.

The requirements are not so much a knowledge of farming as sufficient capital to get started and plenty of pluck and energy. The first few years on an irrigated farm in a new country call for hard work and plenty of it, but the assured rewards of industry are greater than in the humid region. Many of the new farmers are securing annual returns greater than their original capital, and this, too, in the third year on the land.

"Back to the farm" in the arid West does not mean isolation and loneliness, nor the absence of the comforts and luxuries which are customary in the East. The irrigated farms are small, communities are compact, the telephone, rural delivery, rail, and even trolley transportation, are all enjoyed. Churches, schools, and social organizations are quickly established. In all these factors which go to make farm life agreeable the reclaimed districts are not far behind the older settled parts of the country. While we have such advantages to offer our good American citizens there is no excuse for the expatriation of our people who are flocking to Canada.

Our Weekly Letter From Washington

BY F. J. DYER.

(Special to The North Shore Breeze.)

Washington, June 15.—Among the meanest frauds that can be perpetrated on the public is the substitution of some other article for the food-stuff which it believes that it is buying, the adulteration of food-stuffs, and the misbranding and underweighing of articles offered to the public.

The same criticism applies to drugs, in even greater degree. Many a life has been sacrificed, doubtless, to the greed, carelessness or ignorance of persons who have substituted some other article in a prescription for the article the doctor intended the patient should have.

The fraud upon the public in a monetary way is perhaps the least serious aspect of the case, but in these days of high living cost that is a consideration which must be reckoned with. The Department is trying to compel dealers in foods and drugs to give the public what it asks for and what it pays for. In this effort the public should uphold the Department, which has a big fight on its hands, for it is doing a great and a good work. What the Department is accomplishing in this line is indicated by a number of food and drug decisions which have just been made public.

The Department of Agriculture has issued a comprehensive study upon irrigation experiments and investigations in Western Oregon, by A. P. Stover, who was in charge of the work.

In the introduction to the report

Mr. Stover says that climatic conditions in that region for the greater part of the year are typically humid, but that from June to September there is practically no rainfall. This condition is almost ideal for the production of grain, but continued cropping has reduced the yield from 50 and 60 bushels of wheat per acre to 10 or 12 bushels, which is not profitable. As a consequence, diversified farming is becoming popular, and for this much moisture is necessary during the summer. Investigations were begun by the Department of Agriculture in 1907 for the purpose of finding a solution of this problem, and were continued through 1908 and 1909.

It was found that all of the soil in the region under discussion was fertile and there was only needed a proper application of water. Conditions were said to be similar to those in the Po Valley in Italy, where irrigation has been resorted to for centuries to bring about the fullest agricultural production.

An interesting account is given of experiment tried with irrigation in the Willamette Valley. In one case, 5,647 pounds of green fodder per acre were secured without irrigation, and 9,666 pounds, an increase of 71 per cent. were obtained with two irrigations. Potatoes, unirrigated, yielded 2,604 pounds per acre; with one irrigation, 6,760 pounds, and with two irrigations, 7,500 pounds, an increase in the latter of 180 per cent. The unirrigated potatoes yielded 89.2 per cent. of marketable tubers. The potatoes which were irrigated yielded 93.2 per cent. of marketable tubers. Beets yielded 2,745 pounds per acre without irrigation, and 4,309 pounds with one irrigation. The yield of clover increased 27.4 per cent. with irrigation.

The report says:

"As the result of a widespread campaign of education and advertisement, western Oregon is experiencing today one of the greatest eras of growth and development it has ever known. From all over the Union men are coming to this region to locate their capital. Along commercial and industrial lines the development is very great indeed. Along agricultural lines there is much investment and speculation, but on the whole, little real development is taking place outside a few of a very few especially favored localities. This backwardness in the actual development of the agricultural industry constitutes one of the most serious economic problems confronting western Oregon."

MANCHESTER SUNDAY SCHOOL OBSERVES ITS CENTENNIAL.

First Sunday School Movement in This Country was in Manchester.

The Congregational Sunday School at Manchester will celebrate its Centennial the coming Sunday, June 19. The nucleus of the school was formed in June, 1810, by four women—Martha Lee, Abigail Hooper, Mary Bingham and Eliza Tuck, who, imbued with missionary zeal at the time of the Judson and Mills movement to establish the Foreign Missionary Society, gathered the children for Sunday teaching in a room of the house which stood on the ground fronting the G. A. Priest school, then known as the Vestry house. As the experiment grew in size and favor, it removed to the church galleries and organized. Its first superintendent was Mr. John Knight. He served twenty years and was followed by Andrew Lee, Deacon John Price, N. B. Sargent, Oliver T. Roberts, A. L. Saben, Albert Cunningham and Charles C. Dodge, the present incumbent. The exact date of organization is not known, but it is certain that it was the first Sunday school movement in the country, although the school in Beverly organized in August of the same year and claims the precedence. Miss Fannie Woodbury, the chief instigator in the work was a friend of and co-worker with the Manchester women.

Masconomo House to Be Sold at Auction.

Much interest is centering in the sale of the beautiful Masconomo estate at Manchester a week from next Monday, June 27. The place will be sold at public auction to settle the estate of the late Agnes Booth Schoeffel. The hotel was the most famous along the New England coast in the earlier days of the North Shore as a summer resort. It was here that many of the best known people of the land came to spend their summers. Many of its old-time guests have since established summer homes along the coast. In later years, however, the hotel has "run down" and has not met with much success. It was built by the husband of the late Mrs. Schoeffel. The estate consists of 12 acres of land magnificently situated along Singing Beach, and commanding an unsurpassed view of the ocean. The hotel has some 100 rooms and there are also three cottages.

A Pig Tale.

The southern negro who is not possessed of a pig considers himself poor indeed. This is well known to the white people, so that when an ancient "farky" approached a white neighbor with the request that he "gib him er half er dollar ter help buy er pig, 'case dat yuther pig Ah had is done daid," the desired amount was promptly forthcoming.

A few days later the white man met the old negro and inquired:

"Did you get another pig, uncle?"

"Deed Ah did, sah, an' hit am a fine shoat, an' Ah sholy am much obleeged to you fer helpin' me, Mars Tom."

"Well, take better care of this one," Mars Tom suggested. "By the way," he added idly, "what did the other pig die of—cholera?"

The old man pulled his forelock and smiled depreciatingly.

"Now, Mars Tom, what for yo' all want er ax dat?" he said. "Foh a matter er fac', dat yuther pig died 'case Ah hit him on de haud wid er ax, he bein' fat an' de wedder jest right, an' me bein' hongry for fresh meat!"—New York Times.

A Creepy Experience.

The Rev. Clarence Godfrey on retiring one night determined that he would try to "telepath" a phantasm of himself to a lady living in another part of the city, tells H. Addington Bruce in Success Magazine. For about ten minutes he endeavored in thought to appear to her. At the end of that time he fell asleep.

About four hours later the lady on whom he had been "exerting his will" awoke with an impression that she had heard a curious sound. She felt nervous and uneasy and thought that if she went downstairs and took a drink of soda water it might have a quieting effect.

Coming back, she was astounded to see the form of Mr. Godfrey standing on the staircase. He remained standing there for three or four seconds, while she stared at him in horrified amazement. Then as she approached the staircase he disappeared.

Right or Wrong!

Professed politicians who have reduced officeholding to an exact science find the independent voter a sad stumbling block, a fact which is amusingly disclosed by a story found in the life of the late George Monro Grant, the eminent Canadian educator and clergyman.

Toward the end of Sir John Macdonald's life he and Principal Grant, then the head of Queen's college, met at dinner at the house of the premier's brother-in-law, Professor Williamson.

"How I wish," the premier said to the principal, "that you would be a steady friend of mine."

"My dear Sir John," the principal replied, "I have always supported you when you were right."

The premier's eyes twinkled, and he laid his hand upon the shoulder of the principal.

"My dear man," said he, "I have no use for that species of friendship."

Spoiled the Trick.

A New York official who had gone through a political campaign, speaking of trickiness, said: "The tricky man usually winds up by being too tricky, like Brown."

"Brown, who lives in Fifth avenue, suspected his English butler of drinking his wine. So one night he drugged a couple of bottles of four or five dollar Chateau Yquem and left them in the dining room."

"Unfortunately that night Brown's wife returned late from the opera. She saw the rare wine and had it put down in the wine cellar along with the twelve dozen other bottles of Chateau Yquem that Brown had laid in."

"Brown is wondering to this day which two bottles are the drugged ones. He has stopped drinking Chateau Yquem. In fact, I understand his whole stock of it is for sale at a reasonable price."—Exchange.

Truth and Fiction.

At the Lambs club one night were a number of literary men as dinner guests, when some one gave utterance to the bromidiom:

"After all, gentlemen, truth is stranger than fiction."

"Perhaps it is," said Wilton Lackaye, with a sly glance at an Indiana novelist, "but not so successful. One never hears of its going into the tenth edition in six months."—New York Tribune.

An Advance.

Clerk (to head of firm)—I wish to ask you, sir, if you can kindly see your way to giving me an advance of wages? Head of Firm—Certainly, Mr. Phipps, with pleasure. Mr. Blunt (turning to the cashier), let Mr. Phipps have a sovereign on account of his salary and deduct it when you pay him on Saturday.—London Fun.

Sure Sign.

Nellie—Do you think Paul cares for Mamie? Emma—Did you ever hear a young man refer to a red haired girl as having auburn tresses unless he loved her?—Exchange.

An Anxious Inquiry.

When little three-year-old Ada was told the story of Lot's wife being turned into a pillar of salt she asked her mother anxiously, "Is all salt made of ladies?"

Different.

Larry—My wife went away yesterday morning. Harry—Is that what makes you look so glum? Larry—No. She came back last night.—Exchange.

GREAT PREPARATION FOR MANCHESTER'S "SANER FOURTH."

All nature will favor Manchester this year for her celebration of Independence Day, July 4. During the afternoon the tide will bare the sands at Singing Beach to the lowest point for athletic sports to be held there, and in the evening the basin within the drawbridge will be filled to overflowing, therefore completing nature's handiwork for the water carnival and illumination. The moon will also hide its face, preferring to shine in the evening—perhaps on the other side of the globe, where the inhabitants are not so greatly interested in the Fourth of July. If the weather man is as kind as usual and provides his best quality of weather, the town should have an ideal Saner Fourth celebration.

Unbounded enthusiasm has already been awakened in all events, especially in the parade of the morning; nearly every lodge and club in town having signified their intention to enter features in the floral or industrial divisions.

The automobile contingent has also signified a desire to participate in the floral division and doubtless there will be many handsomely decorated motors in the line.

The evening will be given up to the inner harbor illumination and band concert. Residents along the line of the inner harbor will decorate their entire water line and the committee has arranged to cover the tracks of the B. & M. R.R., and also other parts of the shore line where there might be an absence of decorations, thereby making a complete circle of illumination on the inner basin. The Salem Cadet Band will give a three-hour concert from 6.45 to 9.45. Every motor boat owner in town has been invited to participate in this event by joining the flotilla that will anchor or moor near the town wharf under full illumination. Strict orders have been issued that motors shall be made quiet during the concert, thereby enabling every one to enjoy the selections without the "chuck-chuck" accompaniment.

The morning sports will be held upon the common and will be almost entirely for the pleasure of the boys under 16 years of age. A number of rolling, rollicking events have been arranged, such as obstacle race, pie-eating contest, snake race, basketball relay, and the usual potato, and foot races, including a sack race.

The outing at Singing Beach will very likely prove to be the most unique and enjoyable ever held in Manchester. The Park Commissioners have done all in their power to enable every one to enjoy the beauties of Manchester's pride, her singing sands, to the fullest extent. On the hard sands races will be held, and will comprise, hundred yard dash, half-mile run (the length of the beach), high jump, broad jump, pole vault, relay race, and it is hoped that a race for ponies can be arranged. A life-saving exhibition will be given if proper authority can be obtained from the government officials at Washington. A general basket picnic seems to be in order after the sports. We already having heard of a number of large parties having been made up for luncheons.

This year marks an anniversary of the first coming to Manchester of the famous Cadet Band, and Bandmaster Missud was overjoyed at coming to Manchester and stated: "My band-men and myself always enjoy playing for the people of Manchester and the North Shore, and, as this is a sort of reunion for us all, I shall prepare an especially interesting program for both concerts."

In order that proper assignment be made for location in the parade of the morning, entries should be made as soon as possible to the chairman of the committee, F. G. Cheever, or any member of the committee.

If the citizens contribute in as patriotic a manner, as it seems they will, to the parade of the morning, and other events of the day, Manchester will have a celebration for the first "Saner Fourth of July" unequalled anywhere in the country.

The hearty co-operation of the summer colony in making the floral division of the morning parade, and

POINTS OF INTEREST

The development of land in the Prospect Hill and Montserrat districts has now reached a point where the Trustees will find it easy to handle and the Edward T. Harrington Company, having completed the pioneer work, has withdrawn. More than a hundred lots have been sold on Walker Field Park and Peabody Field, number of attractive houses have been built and others are in process of erection. All the remaining lots on Peabody Field have risen $50 in price. One lot sold a year ago, has recently changed hands at an increase of $200—50 per cent. gain on the price paid. The value of this sort of investment is appealing to level headed young business men who will own their own homes and watch them grow in value as this most inviting part of the city continues to develop. In addition to the cheaper land near the Montserrat Station, the beautiful wooded tract, Montserrat Highlands, directly opposite the Station, is now plotted and offers charming sites for summer homes and residence the year round. Maps and information may be obtained at the Real Estate Office. The terms of sale on all the land are easy; the lower priced land selling at $25 down, $5 or $10 payments monthly, a splendid way for a young man or woman to save. Seventy-five new lots are just opened on Peabody Field, at the foot of Prospect Hill, at $300 each, $50 down and $10 monthly. Eight have been sold this week, on which several artistic bungalows and cottages are to be immediately started.

Some charming cottages are now in readiness for sale or rent.

The quaint Chantecler Inn, recently opened, is one of the attractions of Montserrat.

We would advise buyers to come now, as values are likely to increase rapidly in this section.

Thousands to See Circus.

The North Shore towns will be well represented at Gloucester on Wednesday, June 29, when the Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' Big United Shows exhibit there. A great many from this section have made up their minds to go. The railroads are offering special inducements in the way of cheap fares.

A glance at the list of artists and the wonderful curiosities to be seen this season with this big show leads one to believe that the limit of tremendous size as well as novelty has at last been reached. Great interest also attaches to the show because it comes this year, after an absence of several seasons, with the most costly outfit ever built by any amusement enterprise in the world. Ten acres of ground will be under canvas. There will be a menagerie such as was never seen in this country in the past. The parade cost the circus kings over $1,000,000. What more can be said?

The wonderful sixty-one horse act is in itself a great enough attraction to bring the people from a radius of 100 miles to see it. The aerial spectacle offered by the Ty-Bell sisters is even more wonderful. The acrobats, the riders, the aerialists, the gymnasts and the equilibrists are the pick of the best European talent. There are fifty clowns. They came from the comic opera theatres of Europe and the courts of Asiatic potentates. Every man among them is an artist, funny enough to make a mule laugh.

Robert Culbert.

Robert Culbert, one of Manchester's oldest and best known citizens and for many years a prominent business man of the town, died at his home on Brook street, Monday night, after a long and serious illness. He was 70 years old and a native of St. John, N. B. He came to Manchester 28 years ago and since that time up to within a few months, he conducted a harness maker's business, most of that time on Bridge street. He attended to his business until his failing health made it necessary for him to retire.

Mr. Culbert was a man of quiet disposition, faithful and honest, and always square in his dealings. He was a member of the Congregational church and a devoted worker for its interest.

He is survived by a wife, one son, James Culbert, of Beverly Farms, and six daughters, two of whom are married, one living in Salem and one in Beverly Farms. Funeral services were held from his late residence on Brook street, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

✱ Manchester ✱

Mrs. Albert Gardner and Mrs. Elmer Jackson have been recent guests of Levi Harvie and family, Washington street.

Albert Cunningham is having a three weeks' vacation from his duties at the New England Trust Co. in Boston. He is spending part of his vacation in New York city.

The special town meeting called to hear the report of the selectmen relative to the condition of the Town hall building will be held next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. We understand there is a movement on foot to have a committee appointed to look into the feasibility of having a new Town hall building.

The town of Manchester will be obliged to pay a state tax this year of $21,615 as compared with the $17,280 assessed upon the town by the state last year. This great increase is brought about by the increased expenditures authorized by the legislature as a result of which the total State tax this year is to be $5,500,000, an even million more than last year.

The Red Men are holding their annual picnic at Tuck's point today. At their meeting in Lee's hall, Wednesday evening, the Chief's degree was worked on one candidate.

Bass River lodge, I. O. O. F., of Beverly is to work the first degree on one candidate for Magnolia lodge, Saturday evening. A large delegation from here plan to go to Beverly for the occasion, as Bass River lodge has the name of having an excellent degree staff.

Flag Day was very appropriately observed Tuesday. The Stars and Stripes were displayed from tops of flag-poles about town and on public grounds. In the evening, an entertainment was given in the Town hall under the auspices of W. R. C. The program included: Words of Welcome by Patriotic Instructor, Mrs. J. C. Reed; exercise. Reception to Our Flag, Helen Cheever as flag bearer and sixteen girls; remarks by A. S. Jewett, Patriotic Instructor of the Post; recitation, Old Glory, Grace Salter; singing by pupils of the fourth and fifth grades; address by Rev. T. L. Frost on the Flag, its origin and history; Flag Drill; exercise, Hail to the Flag. The exercises of the evening were brought to a close by the entire audience rising and singing America.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Nils Martin Olsen, Norwood avenue, Manchester, was the scene of a pretty home wedding on Wednesday afternoon, when their daughter Minnie became the wife of Robert J. Allen. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. H. Ruge of the Congregational church at 4 o'clock, in the presence of about 50 relatives and friends. The bride wore a princess gown of white silk with veil caught up with daisies. She carried white roses. She was attended by Miss Ethel Frances Standley, who wore pale yellow and carried roses. Little Ruth Olsen, a sister, acted as ring bearer. The bridal party stood under an arch of daisies. After the ceremony, an informal reception was held, after which the bride and groom left, mid a shower of rice and confetti, for a short wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Allen were the recipients of many beautiful gifts, including cut glass, silver, china, linen, etc. For the present they will live at the former home of the bride on Norwood avenue.

Mr. Allen has a position as chauffeur for the W. L. Putnams of Smith's point and Boston. His home is in Leominster, but he has lived in Manchester several years.

Grand Organ Recital.

At the First Baptist church, Manchester, Wednesday, July 13, at 8 o'clock, a grand organ recital will be given on the new Estey pipe organ. The artists will be Claude E. Saunier, concert organist; Mrs. Blanche Heimburch Kilduff, soprano; and another high-class artist to be announced.

Mr. Saunier is a concert and Masonic organist, also organist of the First Universalist church, Cambridge. Mrs. Kilduff is the well-known soprano of the Harvard Congregational church in Brookline. Those who heard Mr. Saunier and Mrs. Kilduff last April will not want to miss hearing them again, and those who have never heard them cannot afford to miss this chance. A rare musical treat is promised.

There will be but 400 tickets issued for this concert, and each ticket entitles the bearer to a reserved seat. Price of tickets is 50, 60 and 75 cents, according to location. Tickets on sale at Decker's drug store, Manchester, on and after Monday, June 20.

Sermon by L. H. Ruge, June 12,
10.45 A. M.

Text: "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea."—Isaiah 11:9.

All devout scholars acknowledge the inspired nature of this book. No student of world movements, no matter how profound his mind or his study, could foretell coming events as did Isaiah, unless he was somehow divinely illuminated mentally to foresee and forecast the future.

He had great hopes and Tennyson said—"mighty hopes makes us men" and it made Isaiah a prophet. His hope of Israel's ultimate redemption was such as gives inspiration and power to world progress.

God help the nation that scorns or loses its prophets. Moses saw the glory of Israel in Canaan from the bleak heights of a desert mountain. Isaiah saw the dawn of Christ through the dark days of Assyrian dominion. We see the glory of the "golden age" still through the smoke of conflict.

Isaiah's prophecy is in the figure of a truncated tree, its fruit a universal knowledge of the Lord. Israel was being hewn down and soon nothing would be left but the stump of its past history. But life is in the truncal roots.

There is no desolation to the land of the oak, a tree that ever throws out new roots. We are wisely concerned about our forest destructions, but leave this land alone for a century or more and it will stand forth in all its ancient glory. This is because America is the land of the oak.

Assyria represents the fir that when cut down dies. Cut down the empire perished. Judah represents the oak that when cut down grew more abundantly than ever, and let us never forget, when it is a question of succoring the persecuted Jew, that all our boasted Christian civilization has grown out of the old stump of Judaism. The life this world enjoys today is under this new tree, but the sap and strength of which is in the stem of Jesse, Jesus Christ, a Jew.

It is the vision of consummate knowledge Isaiah sees, the contest between superstition and reason, between ignorance and knowledge, between scepticism and faith, to finally result in victory for Christ, the incarnate Truth. All the aggregation of facts whether of miracle, prophecy, phenomena, intuition, discoveries, experience, skill, genius, philosophy, laws, truths—all this is as mere material that must fuse into a knowledge of the Lord of all creation, as gold and gems fuse into a crown.

There never will be a "golden age" until "the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord."

Of inferior knowledge there is a vast store, but ask men, "Know ye the Lord?"—and you strike them speechless.

Knowledge of baseball, football and golf; knowledge of the breed of horses and dogs and hogs; knowledge of stocks and real estate and all sorts of speculative values; knowledge of automobiles; and soon the world will be full of a knowledge of aeroplanes; of this knowledge there is no lack, but of the soaring soul men know little.

Some scorning the lower realms of knowledge probe deep into scientific lore and boast themselves of wondrous wisdom, but of the highest knowledge, a "knowledge of the Lord" they are ignorant.

Study the Lord through science? Absurd! Study science through the Lord. Knowledge without God, science without a first cause is a seed without its life principle.

Encyclopedias of dead facts and pamphlets of living truth. What stupidity! Reverse the order. Minimize your material philosophy and magnify your spiritual philosophy. Publish your sciences in duodecimos and your Christology in great quarto volumes.

To understand life, be it world progress or the habits of an ant, find back of it all first the governing providence of the Lord of creation, for "the foolishness of God is greater than the wisdom of men" with the Lord left out.

Are you tired of your doubts and fears, your ignorance and blindness? Come to the encyclopedic mind of Christ, the fountain-head of a knowledge of God, for through Him this stupid old world has learned more about God than all the philosophic ages combined.

I ask the wizard workers of nature for a sign. I see dull soil transformed into fragrant flowers. I see bare roots changed into stately trees. I see charcoal changed into great gems for which kingdoms are bartered. I see clay changed into ruby, topaz, amethyst, sapphire, emerald, just as the wizard of nature wills.

Ah, ye disputers of miracles, it is all but a dull material world full of the knowledge of the Lord of creation, and shall not the mind of man be full of the knowledge of the Lord?

One day you left the stifling heat of the city, her narrow dust-choked confines and fled into the open and as you drank in the first pure breath of the mountains or sea what a relief, what a re-vitalization of forces. Or you have been strangled in some vile, thick, poisonous odor until the brain reeled and the heart pounded to bursting. What a gift of God a breath of pure air! Escape your materialism in a knowledge of the Lord, for he is like pure air to a sin and self-strangled soul.

We are charmed with a birds-eye view of a great exposition under the magic of electrical illumination—of white buildings outlined in gold, of trees bearing scintillating silver fruit, of statuary transformed into visions of lustral beauty, of gardens set like emeralds in a crown of light, of fountains sparkling in rainbow splendor—the whole a scene of entrancing fairyland and paradise. If men can so transform the ragged, reeking suburbs of a city, what can not the knowledge of the Lord do?

The knowledge of the Lord comes to the cannibal Hawaiians and transforms them into rational men in a generation. It comes to Micronesia and behold the isle break into life and beauty, as when a cold earth breaks into glory under the direct rays of the sun.

It comes to Africa. Ask Stanley what he found there forty years ago, and then ask Roosevelt what he found there last year. The transformation was through Christian enlightenment alone.

Bushnell says, "a national literature consummates and crowns the greatness of a people." Yes, and a knowledge of the Lord consummates and crowns the human race.

Reason is forever uncrowned without Christ, and not until this prophecy of Isaiah is fulfilled will human knowledge and wisdom reach its climax.

Theodore Martin plans to reach Magnolia next Saturday to take charge of the Men's Club-house for the summer. This will make his third year in this connection. Mr. Martin attends Hamilton College at Clinton, N. Y.

Miss Cahill has opened her dress-making parlors for the summer.

Tuesday evening marked the opening of the Women's club-house for the season. Through the courtesy of the matron, Mrs. Harry C. Foster, all were cordially invited. Refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed. The music was furnished by Chane's orchestra. The first gentlemen's night will be held on Tuesday, June 28, when there will be a dance for members only, with their gentlemen friends. Four rooms at $50 each for the season remain to be let.

The evening services at the Village church will begin at 8.15 o'clock for the summer season commencing tonight. Prof. H. J. Krumpeln, the blind organist, has been engaged, through the kindness of the donor of the organ for another season and will begin his duties July 1. Prof. Krumpeln, after leaving Magnolia last summer, was shipwrecked off Newfoundland, losing all his possessions, including the music which he had laboriously transcribed for reading with his fingers. He will return with a repertoire of over seventy new selections, and promises to give better satisfaction than ever.

On Sunday, June 26, the Village church will hold a union service with the Summer Chapel at the chapel. Rev. F. J. Libby, pastor of the village church, will preach the sermon. This pleasant custom of opening the Summer Chapel with a union service is one well worthy of continuance.

Edgar P. Story was winner of the cup offered for the highest score in bowling at the Men's club last week with a record of 102. A similar cup will reward the victor of this week's highest score. The usual dances with the piano for music will be held on Saturday and Wednesday evenings from 8.15 to 10.15 o'clock.

A very pleasant dance was held at the Men's club on Wednesday evening. Music was furnished by Long's orchestra of four pieces. A number were present from Manchester.

AUTO LAW HAS MANY CHANGES.

By the New Regulations the Freak Horns are Prohibited. Protest Against Traps.

The owners of automobiles in this state are interested in the new state laws and amendments to the same.

As a result of the changes in the law, chauffeurs will not hereafter be compelled to wear the badges indicative of their calling that the legislature of a year ago demanded so decisively as to call for a fine if the auto driver appeared on the road without one. Another change that was strongly demanded by automobilists is that by which it will no longer be necessary to blow a horn at every intersecting way.

So far as the cities and all thickly settled communities throughout the state are concerned, the law will remain practically as it was enacted by the legislature of 1909. In those places great care will be necessary, and the driver of a car will be obliged to signal with his horn, exactly as during the last year.

The autoists, however, did not complain of blowing a horn in those places, but they did object strenuously to being compelled to do so at the openings to country lanes. Their objections were doubly energetic because of the fact that some enterprising police departments had established traps at the lanes and made extensive winnings at the expense of the autoists. One of these that has attained statewide fame is in Hingham, and, at the hearings, it was stated that very few chauffeurs or autoists who traversed the South shore escaped enmeshment in the net spread by the town authorities.

A third feature of the amended law is the adoption of a plan of reciprocity by which automobilists from other states may drive their cars in Massachusetts for a period of 10 days, providing their states accord the same privilege to Massachusetts owners.

It is a departure in legislation for Massachusetts and is in the result of work done by Representative Willetts of Fall River, house chairman of the committee on roads and bridges, from which the bill came last year and from which the signed amendments emanated. Despite the fact that the plan is entirely new it has met the commendation of motorists who live in towns bordering along the Rhode Island line and is expected to gain for Massachusetts car owners many favors over the various state borders.

The new law also prohibits the freak horns in cities and towns, and hereafter when the residents of urban communities hear a whistle like a blast from an ocean liner's siren they may have the satisfaction of knowing that the person behind the bulb is liable to arrest and penalizing if any one desires to complain.

There is, in addition to the changes in the law signed by the governor, another change of some moment, although it was contained in another bill and was signed several weeks ago. Under it, 20 per cent. of the registration fees and fines received from automobiles is to go to the repair and up-keep of country roads in the small towns. That was a boon secured by Representative Haigis of Montague, who secured the consent of the state highway commission to such disposition of the funds.

The Sun Dial and Its Place

suggest dignity and strength, yet with no hint of clumsiness. To soften the lines of too severely simple column, ivy or clinging vines may be planted about the base with good effect.

The location of the sun-dial is a matter which calls for some thought, since a part of its charm depends upon a harmonious setting. In choosing a site the first requisite, of course, is that it be exposed to the sun all day and far enough from any trees or buildings to preclude the possibility of its being shaded.

Since the sun-dial is to be one of the most important ornaments in the garden it should not be placed in some remote corner to be discovered merely by chance by the visitor. On the other hand, it must not be so conspicuous as to distract one's attention from the rest of the garden. Perhaps the surest way to hit upon a happy medium is to erect the dial where it seems to fit most naturally.

Although no invariable rules can be laid down, because of the great difference in gardens, one is usually safe in placing a sun-dial at the intersection of two paths, near a vine-covered pergola, or within sight of a little summer-house or garden seat. Formal gardens are frequently arranged with a dial as the central figure, while in cases where a pool or fountain occupies that position, the sun-dial is to be found at the end of some alluring path flanked on either side by beautiful masses of bloom.

One feature often found in sun-dials, which has not been mentioned, is well illustrated by the dial on the Paine estate at Phillips Beach, Mass. This characteristic is the inscription, which runs across the base of the pedestal, "Tyme Wanes Awaye as Flowres Decaye." In olden times the majority of sun-dials bore mottoes of this sort either on their faces or pedestals and most the newer dials possess the same mark of individuality. Among the most inspiring mottoes adapted for that purpose was the following selection by Richard Le Gallienne:

"Shadow and Sun
Thus too our lives are made,
Yet think how great the sun
How small the shade."

One of the most popular mottoes for sun-dials was this cheery couplet: "Let others tell of storms and showers, I'll only count your sunny hours," while its Latin equivalent, "Horas non numero nisi serenas," was also often used. In those days, as now, a person's fondness for a joke sometimes got the better of his reverence for the mysterious dial, with the result that this grave pun was seen now and then:

"Life's but a shadowe Man's but dust
This dyall says
Dy all we must."

In the formal gardens at "Swift-moor," the beautiful estate at Pride's Crossing, owned by Mrs. E. C. Swift, stands a sun-dial very similar in design to that in the Paine garden. The pedestal is in the form of a child garlanded with leaves and bearing on its head the stone slab upon which the dial itself rests. There is, however, no motto carved upon the stone base on which the little figure stands.

A most attractive sun-dial is the central feature of H. P. Benson's delightful old-fashioned garden at Salem. The graceful, urn-shaped pedestal resting upon its large, circular slab or granite is a most desirable garden accessory and adds greatly to the charm of the spot.

Still another type of pedestal may be seen on the estate of T. Jefferson Coolidge at Manchester. Here an ancient fluted column, once a part of some stately structure in far away Rome, has been transformed into a sun-dial and now stands on a little circular grass plot marking the exact center of the beautifully arranged formal garden. Marred and worn by the ravages of time, this old marble shaft seems a most fitting support for a sun-dial, as it marks the passing hour.

The more ornate class of sun-dials may be well represented by an interesting one owned by Thomas W. Lawson and used as an ornament in his private garden of three acres at "Dreamwold," Egypt, Mass. The pedestal, which is composed of dull terra cotta, is rather elaborately decorated in high relief and an appropriate motto is inscribed around the edge of the trefoil-shaped top. The setting for this dial is an ideal one, for the rich greens of lawn and shrubbery harmonize well with the soft tone of the pedestal, bringing out its beauty and demonstrating how attractive an addition a sun-dial may be to any garden.

Some of the bathhouses at West Beach which were taken off their foundations and set at all kinds of angles by last winter's severe storms, have recently been reset and repaired. There are many, however, that need attention before the beach will look as of old.

Arthur Smith of Manchester, England, was a passenger on the Saxonia which arrived in Boston yesterday. He is a brother of Mrs. Alex Carr and Robert Smith of the Farms. He will visit them and will possibly make this vicinity his future home.

Mr. Gibson and family moved into the D. W. Hardy cottage, corner Hale and Valley streets this week. Mr. Gibson is the organist at "Eagle Rock," Mr. Frick's summer home at Pride's Crossing.

A. F. Whittridge of Boston, who is well known at the Farms, having spent many summers here as clerk in the local provisions stores, is reported seriously ill at his sister's home at Bangor, Me.

Mrs. Adelbert M. Marshall entered the Beverly Hospital for treatment last Tuesday. Previous to this, Mrs. Marshall had been ill at her home on Hart street for the past ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester W. Brackett of Albany, N. Y., have arrived at the Farms for the summer. Mr. Brackett is a chauffeur for a summer resident at Pride's.

John West Colony, Pilgrim Fathers, will hold its semi-monthly meeting in Marshall's hall tonight. The colony has recently received some applications for new membership.

Something new for Beverly Farms and that which the people here will, no doubt, take much interest in is the coming show of the Horticultural society, which takes place June 29 and 30. A tent, 140 feet long will be erected on the new playgrounds on Vine street, in which flowers, plants, fruits and vegetables will be exhibited. John L. Chapman, Supt. of "Swiftmoor" and Alexander Shaw, Supt. of "Rockmarge" are members of the committee of arrangements.

Mrs. Churchill, the Misses Culbert and James A. Culbert of the Farms have the sympathy of their hosts of friends here over the loss of their father, Robert Culbert, who passed away at Manchester the early part of this week.

The Beverly Farms Brass Band now has 33 members and are holding rehearsals twice a week. It is understood they are to make application for the job at the Farms for July 4th should a celebration be held here.

Mrs. John E. Connors and two children of New York are among those to arrive at the Farms this week for the summer. They will be joined by Mr. Connors in a week's time.

Thomas Larson has been acting as chauffeur for the Hon. Geo. H. Lyman. Their regular chauffeur has been operated upon for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Morgan entertained a party of friends at their camp cottage "Home Crest," Brier Neck, over the last week-end.

Miss Margaret Foley, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Charles Hilyard on West street, has gone to visit relatives in Nova Scotia.

Edwin L. Pride and family of Winter Hill, have arrived at their Farms cottage on Hale street for the summer.

A meeting of the old July 4 celebration committee will be held next week to talk over the matter of whether or not they desire to take up the work again this year of providing the Farms with its usual celebration. The members are being met from all sides with the inquiry which carries with it the hope that the Farms will again provide its people with the enjoyment that has in the past, especially to the children, been looked forward to with the greatest of pleasure. As the money has to come from popular subscription, this part alone entails a vast amount of work.

Capt. J. Frank Blaney was chef for a party of fourteen Farms men last Monday evening. He served one of his famous lobster stews.

Flag Day was observed at the Farms school last Tuesday. Benj. Hinton of the School Committee was present and gave an address on "The Flag."

We will submit for your inspection or selection samples of awning material best suited to resist the action of sun, wind and salt air—awnings that will give long and satisfactory service; to suggest colors, sizes and styles that will give a neat and tasteful effect.

Our personal attention to every exacting requirement will relieve you of all bother and loss of time. We have men constantly visiting all points along the North Shore and our facilities, together with our accessibility, enable us to complete your order most promptly.

NORTH SHORE BREEZE

MANCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JUNE 24, 1910.

• Society Notes •

Clay Arthur Pierce arrived from St. Louis in a private car "Zamora," and is now recuperating at his summer home at Pride's Crossing, after an attack of typhoid fever. Mr. Pierce was taken ill in Mexico some weeks ago, after Mrs. Pierce and children had come on from St. Louis for the summer. Mrs. Pierce went back to St. Louis several weeks ago and has been with her husband since.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Schoonmaker of New York have been visiting the H. C. Frieks at Eagle Rock, Pride's Crossing, the last week.

Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw arrived at her summer home at Pride's Crossing this week.

—x—

Miss Clara Winthrop is having her class of boys at St. Paul's down from Boston for an outing and picnic at Tuck's Point. This is an annual event, something which the boys look forward to eagerly each year.

—x—

The Winslow cottage at Magnolia has been leased for the season to Eugene R. Cuenet and family of St. Louis, through the agency of Jonathan May.

—x—

Mrs. H. G. Curry's yacht arrived at Magnolia last Saturday.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Forbes and two little sons are coming on from Dover to spend July with Mrs. Forbes' mother, Mrs. R. C. Winthrop at West Manchester.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Noble Burnham have returned to Magnolia for the season. They have taken the entire top floor of the Library building this summer and will conduct not merely a gift shop, but an exhibition studio. They will use the main room for the exhibition of paintings and some articles of antique furniture, in connection with smaller articles. Mr. Closson's paintings and the photographs of Miss Helen Murdock in direct color and black and white will be among the exclusive line to be found here. The studio will be fitted very attractively.

:: At the Hotels ::

The Hesperus hotel and cottages at Magnolia open for the season tomorrow under the continued management of Mrs. C. G. Francis of the Abbotsford, Boston, who conducted the hotel last season with pronounced success. Mrs. Francis has a very good advanced booking for the months of July and August, and a number of guests will be on hand tomorrow for the opening. In fact, a number of old time guests at the Hesperus have already arrived.

Reginald Bolles and his mother, Mrs. M. S. Bolles, arrived Wednesday and are at "Sea Reaches" a very attractive cottage secured this season by Mrs. Francis in connection with the Hesperus.

The Fascinations of the Fountain

By MARY H. NORTHEND

From time immemorial, mankind has loved a garden; and in that garden, there has been a fountain. From the tombs of Ancient Egypt comes a picture of the garden once owned by a King of Thebes. In it was a pergola, covered with grapevines, and bordered with palm-trees. This garden contained four pools of water, each bordered by a grass plot, where geese were kept, and the sacred flower of the lotus spread its pure and fragrant petals upon the surface of the lagoon.

The author of the Odyssey, writing nearly a thousand years before the Christian Era, speaks of "all manner of garden beds, carefully planted, perpetually fresh, and in the midst, two fountains of water, whereof one scatters his streams all about the garden; the other issues by the lofty house, and thence did the townsfolk draw water. Such were the splendid gifts of the gods in the palace of Alcinoüs."

King Cyrus of Persia took such delight in his gardens that he planted and measured off with his own hand. The gardens of Epicurus, with fountains and streams, were famous in Athens. Indeed, the charm of spouting water, which appeals alike to eye and ear, has always been appreciated by those who loved a garden. It is quite safe to suppose that fountains have been in existence since the history of the world began. Some have been elaborate achievements in architecture, such as those beautiful examples of the Italian Renaissance, which may still be seen in ancient Italian villas, or the more modern, but no less ornate, structures built by La Notre in the gardens of Louis Quatorze, at Versailles.

Credit for introducing gardening into England has sometimes been given to King William, and to that Sir William Temple, who ordered that his dead heart be buried under the sun-dial in his garden. That this credit is undeserved is proved by the fact that it would place the event at the close of the seventeenth century; whereas Paul Hentzner, a Nuremberg scholar and traveler, as early as 1612, fully describes his visits to the gardens of Lord Burleigh, at Theobalds; or to those at Whitehall and Nonesuch, the latter a royal retreat selected by that much-maligned monarch, King Henry VIII.

In each of these places, Hentzner speaks of a singular type of fountain common at this time, and partaking of the nature of a boistrous practical joke. As it was called the jet d'eau, it seems probable that the idea came across the channel, from France. Be that as it may, the contrivance was often connected with a sun-dial, and consisted of concealed water-pipes, worked by a gardener at a distance, who, by turning a little wheel, flung copious streams of water upon the luckless wight who drew near to consult the sun-dial. So far as I know, this style of fountain was never copied in America, which certainly speaks well for Colonial good taste. It seems little less than criminal to turn into a joke that which should be the garden's crowning loveliness, its very highest embodiment of beauty—for such the fountain has always been regarded.

Certain English gardens and those of the Colonial type, modeled upon the sweet seventeenth century gardens of Temple and Walpole, may, if not too large, use the sun-dial as their central feature; but in almost every case, our sense of the eternal fitness calls for a fountain, and will accept no substitute.

The earliest form of fountain used in this country was doubtless that still seen in certain fine old gardens in the South. It consists of a single water jet, falling into a handsome basin of marble or some other stone. Nothing could be finer in its simplicity. Near it stands the "green gallery," with its burden of vines, a structure which would be desecrated by the name of pergola. Close at hand, a climbing Baltimore Belle or a sweet, white, Mary Washington rose wreathes itself about a "garden lyre." A "rose bower" leads to the house. It terminates in handsome gates, of wrought iron, such as King William introduced into England. Beehives stand under a cherry-tree. The air is sweet with the scent of jasmine and wild white honeysuckle. Who would call for anything additional?—save the musical fall of the single jet into the beautiful stone basin; the wavering of the column, to and fro, as the light breeze blows the spray aside; the sparkle of a thousand tiny rainbows, now in sunshine, now in shadow, as the fountain plays in that old-fashioned Virginia garden.

There is no part of garden architecture that offers freer scope for the play of imagination than does this matter of designing fountains. It is a pity that the designer should ever lose sight of the fact that the really interesting motive is the water itself, fresh, changeful, instinct with life as a bird or a flower. No wonder that the phantasy of Undine could grow up in a gifted brain! If we held our peace, there in the rosebower, the fountain in that old garden would almost sing us a similar story.

Now this is just why statuary must be used with the greatest care, or we shall find our lovely and pellucid shower, our fairy cloud of spray, our rainbow vision, playing a subordinate part to a serpent-wreathed Laocoon, or a Dying Gladiator! Comparatively few gardens are on a scale of grandeur sufficient to excuse the presence of statuary in the fountains. When we see groups in public parks, their iron ugliness smites us like a blow; and the beauty of the water is forgotten, in the actual pain of its hideous surroundings.

The single jet is beautiful and effective in a small garden. By increasing the size of the jet and the size and elaborate decoration of the basin, the single jet may be adapted to any situation, never jarring upon our sensibilities, never out of harmony with its surroundings, always effective, and always pleasing—especially so, if care has been taken that it shall enjoy a vantage-ground of mingled shade and sunshine.

How well they understood the beauty of the fountain in those old Italian villas! Note the use of the single jet in the Villa Medicea, and the divided jet in the Villa Torlonia, with its mossy marble railing about the basin, and its border of delicate vines, that clamber up the stone, or trail into the water. In the distance, beyond the fountain, lies a shadowy vista, an alluring woodland path, that charms and beckons.

In the Villa Borghese, we find four separate jets, besides the central fountain. Here the effect is so perfect that we would not voluntarily alter the slightest detail. We admire the curb, set level with the ground, with the water but an inch or two lower. We would not change one line in the carvings upon the fountain, or make the stream higher or broader by the smallest fraction. Just where they stand, the trees should be, and of just such a height; while the hard, white road disap-

The first hop of the season at the Oceanside will take place tomorrow evening in the casino. There are so many young people at Magnolia thus early in the season that arrangements could be made for a party. Mrs. E. M. House has been actively interested in making the arrangements for the hop. She is leaving next week in company with Mr. House and Miss Janet House for Europe. Many of the young folk from along the North Shore will go over to Magnolia tomorrow night for the dance.

The Oceanside is having a very busy season. There were 175 guests at the hotel at noon today. By the first of July—one week from today—fully 350 people will be registered at the hotel and its cottages. There have been from 45 to 50 guests more than last year since the opening of the hotel, despite the unfavorable weather the first week the hotel was opened.

Mrs. Edward Wise and family of New York arrived at the Oceanside this week. They have apartments at the Overlook for the season. Mr. Wise will join his family later.

Prominent among the young women horseback riders at the Magnolia this summer, we note the Misses Aimee and Mary F. Gilbert, young daughters of Mrs. R. M. Gilbert of New York. Miss Mary Margaret Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harrington Walker is also taking lessons this season.

Wednesday's arrivals brought Mrs. Thomas B. Proctor of Boston at the Oceanside. She is a season guest.

CAPE ANN RESORTS

A new summer residence at Land's End, Rockport, now being occupied is that of George F. Babbitt. It is a fine addition to the colony in the vicinity of the fashionable Turk's Head Inn.

John Graham Moseley, the shipping merchant of Boston, and a pioneer summer resident of Marmion Way, Rockport, has domiciled his family in his attractive cottage.

The Rockport summer residents have arrived in force the past week and all along the Headlands, on Marmion Way and to Land's End there are signs of summer activity. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones of Cambridge and Washington, D. C., are at their Headlands cottage. The J. L. Robinsons of Cambridge are also here for a temporary visit. In the same section are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur MacLean, who recently returned from Bermuda.

Charles H. Dillaway, jr., of Melrose, treasurer of the Lincoln-Dillaway Co., Boston, has opened his Marmion Way cottage. George W. Harvey of Forest Hills has also arrived.

W. H. Gallison, the artist, and wife are at the Lane boarding house. Mr. Gallison has recovered sufficiently from his severe illness to enable him to be here again, after a year's absence.

Miss L. C. Thatcher of Roxbury has opened her cottage at Land's End.

Gen. Wm. A. Pew, jr., and family of Salem opened their cottage the 10th, and another Salem family to settle here is that of E. J. Fabens. They are located at the Shoreview cottage, Marmion Way.

The Paradise Cliff colony has been enlarged by Mrs. Fannie Law of Cincinnati.

Bostonians who have recently settled in their Annisquam cottages are F. P. White and Francis Strater of Brookline; Mrs. O. W. Spencer, Boston; Wm. Stone Booth, Cambridge, who has the Lord cottage.

He has spent much of his time abroad with his family and maintains a spacious studio on his New Jersey estate. Mr. Waugh has secured the Oakes cottage on Rocky Neck and the Oakes studio on Rocky Neck avenue. Mr. Waugh's household includes his wife, little son and daughter, Mrs. Waugh's mother, Mrs. Bonne, and the latter's daughter, Mrs. Vandyke of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Sarah Rogers and family of New York have settled at the Wallace estate on Rocky Neck avenue and the Wallace family have removed to their small cottage. The same method is employed by the John Mehlman family whose tenant of last year, Mr. Blake of St. Louis is the occupant of their large residence.

A heavy hower was the only thing to mar the plans for the wedding last Saturday afternoon of Miss Barbara Higginson and Barrett Wendell, jr., at St. John's Episcopal church, Beverly Farms. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Alexander Mann, rector of Trinity Church, Boston. John A. L. Blake was Mr. Wendell's best man, and Miss Juliet Higginson, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bride's dress was of white satin with a court train. Her veil of tulle worn well back on the head was caught with spray of orange blossoms. Miss Juliet Higginson wore a costume of fine white linen with lace insertion; her sash had streamers of mauve satin, and a bow of the same material and coloring adorned her white lace picture hat. The ushers were Francis Lee Higginson, jr., of London, a brother of the bride; William G. Wendell, Harvard '09, a brother of the bridegroom; Crawford Blagdon, New York; Norman Cabot, Brookline; Arthur H. Morse, Kansas City, and Edward Bowditch, jr., who is a member of Governor Forbes' staff at Manila. A reception was held at the bride's home at Pride's Crossing after the ceremony. The plans for an al fresco affair had to be altered because of the rain. About 200 people were present, including many of the North Shore cottagers, as well as friends from out of town. Mrs. Barrett Wendell and Mrs. Francis L. Higginson assisted the bride and bridegroom in receiving. After a honeymoon in Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell will return to Boston and will spend a portion of the late fall at Pride's Crossing.

Judge and Mrs. William H. Moore have sailed from England and are expected shortly at their summer estate, "Rockmarge," at Pride's Crossing, after attending the International Horse Show at London. The accounts of the show this year would indicate that it has not been so pronounced a success as last year, due largely to the death of the late King, probably. Last year the show was the centre of much fashion. This year it lacked much of the royal support because of the late King's death and consequently fizzled out as a social meeting place. Judge Moore's horses made a fine showing and the Judge is bringing home a number of blue ribbons.

Mrs. C. Howland Shaw arrived at her summer estate "Witchwood," at Pride's Crossing, Thursday.

George Higginson came on from his country estate at Lenox last Saturday to attend the wedding of his niece, Miss Barbara Higginson and Mr. Wendell at Beverly Farms. He has been spending a part of the last week with his brother, Major Henry L. Higginson at West Manchester.

Mrs. Edgar J. Bliss and son will leave Beverly Farms Monday to spend the summer abroad. Their cottage "The Home on the Rock," has been rented for the season.

Several North Shore people went on to New York Monday for the wedding of Miss Eleanor Alexander and Theodore Roosevelt, jr. It is of interest to note that all of the bride's household linen had been ordered by Mrs. Alexander from the Grande Maison de Blanc of Fifth avenue, New York, which concern has a branch in the Colonnade, Magnolia, and for the last two or three months, expert needle women have been employed in embroidering it.

There are dozens and dozens of everything, table and tea cloths, luncheon cloths and doilies, to use on the polished mahogany. Some hand-embroidered cloths with inserts of French cluny and filet lace cost about $150 each; less elaborate ones $75, and rich damask cloths for breakfast and simple dinners figured up about $30 apiece without the embroidery, which, of course, is very elaborate and beautiful and correspondingly costly. Some of the simpler damasks are in striped designs, and have napkins to match, while many are like bits of gorgeous satin brocade, showing elaborate floral patterns.

The bed linen is quite as beautiful as that procured by Mrs. Alexander for her daughter's table. There are piles of snowy sheets of sheerest linen, woven and embroidered in France, to which the bride's monogram was added here. Some of the sheets have a scalloped edge, with a sort of embroidered beading about two inches below, while others show a sort of vine edge, with a foliated border underneath.

The pillow slips match, and like the napkins and tablecloths, are all embroidered with the bride's monogram, a curious cipher, composed of her three initials, E. B. A., set in a circle. This circle is divided into three sections, one for each letter, which, in a clever sort of a way, squares the circle, perhaps not mathematically, but that is about the only way the design can be even vaguely described. The round medallion containing the bride's cipher is small for the napkins, and is wrought in the center of these, while for the tablecloths it is much larger and for the sheets still larger, and placed on the latter in the center of the turnover on top. The pillow slips are embroidered a bit above the hems.

The fleecy white blankets which have not a trace of color on them, are heavily embroidered with the same device in white silk, and the white silk down-filled coverlets are also embroidered in a similar way.

Hill's son) of Augusta, Me., and her brother, Robert Raymond and Mrs. Raymond of Readville. Sunday evening, Mrs. Merrill had a few friends in for dinner, covers being laid for twelve.

Garden Pottery

By MARY H. NORTHEND

There is little doubt but that the present popularity of garden pottery is due in a large degree to the widespread introduction of formal gardens in this country. The Italian and English types, which are so frequently found in the magnificent estates of our modern millionaires, depend for their success quite as much upon the proper selection and location of the conventional garden accessories as upon the shrubs and flowers with which they are laid out. Quite naturally, therefore, pottery has come to be looked upon as a valuable, as well as fashionable, adjunct to the garden.

On the ground of usefulness alone, most articles of garden pottery could be heartily recommended. But it is in their simple grace and dignity that their greatest charm lies. Carefully chosen with an eye to their surroundings, and placed to the best advantage, such accessories can scarcely fail to add not a little to the picturesqueness of a garden, particularly if it be the formal or semi-formal type.

The range of possibilities for the use of pottery in laying out a garden is a wide one. The variety of styles in which the different accessories are offered is still greater, and it is not always an easy matter to make a wise selection, even after a careful study of the garden which the articles are intended to grace.

Materials, too, differ widely, for by no means all the so-called garden "pottery" is pottery, in the literal sense of the word. Limestone, terra cotta, granite and sometimes marble are used for fashioning garden ornaments, while during late years cement has been found to be admirably adapted for such purposes.

Now and then a bit of genuine pottery, modeled from coarse clay and showing the potter's skillful touch, finds its way into a garden. Some of the most beautiful pieces are finished in soft, dull tones of green or weather-beaten grey, which blend harmoniously with the more vivid colorings of the garden. Others are given a charming tone and irregularity of surface by mixing finely crumbled brick with the clay from which they are formed. But all pottery of this description possesses an air of individuality and dignified simplicity which makes it most attractive for garden purposes.

Of all the various articles of pottery, the one which is most commonly used is the ornamental vase or urn. In formal gardens, where ornaments of some sort are absolutely essential, nothing lends itself more readily to the landscape gardener's purposes than the vase. One of the chief uses to which it is put is to emphasize the angles of the design in which a garden is laid out. To accomplish this end, a vase is placed at each corner of the various squares and rectangles, either on the stone curbing or, in case the flower-beds are surrounded by grass borders, on low pedestals designed for that purpose.

A splendid setting for garden vases is offered by the broad stone steps which lead from one terrace to another. Here they may be seen to the best advantage, while at the same time they serve to relieve any semblance of severity which might otherwise be apparent in the structure of the stairway. The question of filling such ornamental jars with growing plants, depends entirely upon owner's personal tastes. No hard and fast rule can be laid down in regard to this matter. As a general rule, however, planting is done only in jars of simple design, since the more elaborate urns are considered sufficiently decorative in themselves.

In Italian gardens nothing is more suitable for carrying out the ideas already suggested than the quaint old oil jars which once did service in the olive groves of sunny Italy. Dignity and grace are combined in these simple, well proportioned vases, and their ready adaptability to a variety of uses has made them widely popular as garden ornaments. So great has been the demand for such jars in this country that several of the most artistic shapes have been reproduced in various materials. These have been used with quite as satisfactory results, from an artistic point of view as the antique and costly originals.

Still another opportunity for the effective use of jars, or more elaborate urns, is afforded by the low balustrades, which constitute so conspicuous a feature of the terraced garden. However ornamental a wall or railing may be, it usually requires some finishing touches to properly emphasize it, and herein lies the mission of the vase. Filled with bright flowers and trailing vines, and placed at intervals along the top of the balustrade, a series of jars provides just the additional touch that is necessary.

The success of such an arrangement is conditional in one respect, however. According to the rules laid down by expert landscape gardeners there must be some visible reason for every piece of pottery occupying the particular spot which it does. In other words, in order to be entirely effective, a vase must always be placed above a corner post or pillar which will suggest the idea of additional strength to support the burden placed upon it.

Occasionally a garden is found where the usual jars are replaced by low cement boxes, either square or rectangular in shape. These are usually decorated with designs in relief and make attractive ornaments for gateways and steps, as well as for terrace balustrades. Tubs, both round and square, are similarly made and are used extensively in many strictly formal gardens for holding bay trees and other small shrubs.

Novelties in the line of garden pottery are few, but of those which are in existence perhaps the most interesting are the miniature baths and fountains designed to meet the needs of the garden owner's little feathered friends. Sometimes these diminutive pools are built into a garden wall; again they are hollowed out of huge stones or made of cement; but they must always be easy of access and kept constantly filled with fresh, clean water. That they are appreciated by the little guests for whom they are provided, there can be no doubt. Without a basin of this sort no bird lover's garden can be called truly complete.

News Notes About the...Stores...*And other Business Enterprises

The Chantecler Inn at Montserrat is proving a delightful spot for many North Shore people who drop in while motoring or driving, for afternoon tea or luncheon parties. The proprietor, Mrs. Murray, has recently received some beautiful old china and mahogany furniture (private collection) and she also has some exquisite pottery on sale. She is now well prepared to receive anybody that might call, as the Inn is now completely established for the season. Among the parties stopping at the Inn this week, were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Phipps, who gave a luncheon there last Saturday for nineteen. The party motored down from Brookline.

The Indian store of 180 Boylston street, Boston, opens its Magnolia branch, Saturday, the 25th. It will occupy the same store on Lexington avenue which has been its home for seven seasons. The famous Curacao hats from South America, none breakable, light, comfortable, and toys of many kinds, brass and copper, abalone jewelry and mocassins, turkish slippers and lots of other things are at the Indian store in greater variety this year than ever before.

Society Notes

Bass Rocks

The Thornwald opened for the season Monday of this week and several families were due to settle for the season.

The Bass Rocks Guest House, Page street, which is undergoing exterior improvements, is catering to many transient and permanent guests daily, and is a great acquisition in the way of a private boarding house for Bass Rocks, being but a short walk from the beach and located beside the golf links.

The handsome new golf club-house, which was opened last season on July 10, will again be a social mecca for its members and the popular afternoon tea parties and bridge parties will be again on the social calendar. The club-house, which is spacious and of the bungalow style, has a big living-room having open beams and rafters, wooden walls, all stained in a rich brown. There is an open brick fireplace and high mantle. Handsome rugs and mission furniture adorn the room and the walls are covered with colored prints of sporting, hunting, coaching and golfing scenes, while imported fancy plates with German inscriptions make a frieze about the walls, and give color and dash to the ensemble. The draperies are of effective madras. There is a dainty tea-room and kitchenette on the main floor, also the ladies' lockers. On the lower floor are the men's lockers and shower baths. There is a spacious veranda and the grounds this season, are in excellent condition and a covered colonnade walk to the links is another addition to the club-house this season. Work on extending the links to 18 holes is being pushed to completion, and it is hoped to have the new course ready by August. The Souther estate is making this extension of an estimated outlay of $50,000, and the links will be among the finest on the shore. July will see the inauguration of the tournaments and many handsome trophies will be offered during the season.

All the Page street cottagers are settled; the more recent arrivals being John L. Dearborn and family of Boston; Mr. Warner, the actor from New York, and Mrs. Warner who have their auto and chauffeur with them. Mr. Warner also brings a valet. He is resting after his theatrical successes of the winter and is especially well known as a former member of Mrs. Eleanor Robson-Belmont company. Mrs. Belmont, when Miss Robson, spent two seasons at Bass Rocks at the Moorland hotel.

The Winthrop Sargents of Haverford, Pa., have arrived at their summer home, which has undergone exterior and interior improvements. It will be the scene of much entertaining in the near future, incident to the Sargent-Rotan wedding, July 6.

Edward B. Sargent and family of Cincinnati have opened their handsome summer home on Harbor road.

The spacious stone villa of Ralph Wurtz Dundas of New York, on Souther road, is open and the Fred A. Floods of Boston are in the Scott cottage on the same road.

Fred H. Eaton and family of Lawrence are again in cottage B on Atlantic avenue, and C. G. Way and family of Brookline are in their cottage on Bass Rocks point.

Dr. Octavius Thorndike Howe issued invitations to several members of the colony here to a Thursday evening assembly at his cottage on Souther road, when he displayed, by the aid of the stereopticon, a number of pictures of old craft which he had taken with his camera. A social hour followed.

Rev. J. McGaw Foster, rector of the Church of the Messiah, and family of Boston, are settled in their cottage on Atlantic avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Mills of New Rochelle, N. Y., have with them for the summer the latter's mother and sister, Mrs. F. B. Dodge and Miss Georgianna W. Dodge of Toledo, O. Mr. Mills has not been well of late. The family occupies "Under the Cliff" cottage on Atlantic avenue, and are very popular and loyal summer residents of Bass Rocks, and always arrive May 1.

The Norman Days of Baltimore are back and have the Moorland cottage.

Transient guests at the Moorland include Miss Wendell, Misses Mary and Jean Wendell, Boston; Miss Imogen Gaither, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Phelps, Detroit; R. B. McEwan, R. B. McEwan, jr., New York; B. A. Glanding, Memphis, Tenn., and W. E. and S. W. Chase, Malden.

A Cleveland, O., motor party in this section for four or five days, and who stopped at the Moorland was composed of R. M. Cobb and wife, the Misses Alice M. and H. B. Cobb, Helen and Margaret Murray, Cleveland; Dorothy Moore, Brooklyn; Eloise Hunter, Memphis, Tenn. Another auto party at the hotel included Misses M. Morton, T. Perry, J. MacCarron, Cohasset.

Mrs. H. W. Bailey, G. Ashforth Bailey, F. Trowbridge and maid of Baltimore have secured one of the Moorland cottages, and another family from the same city to return this season, and who has a cottage, is Mrs. Henry B. Keyser and household, who stopped over in New York on the 18th to witness the big parade in honor of Col. Roosevelt.

Cape Ann Resorts

At Lands End have arrived the family of Charles A. Brown of Salem, and the Rev. P. M. Rhinelander of Cambridge will have the Folsom cottage at Land's End.

W. H. Colby and family of Natick are among arrivals in the Paradise Cliff colony, also James A. Whitman and family of Boston and Chestnut Hill.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. De Benneville K. Ludwig and family of Philadelphia have arrived at their Pigeon Cove cottage. Rev. Dr. Ludwig is treasurer of the Presbyterian Historical Society of Philadelphia.

Edwin Southworth and family of Somerville are at their summer home in Pigeon Cove.

Surrounded by his children and their families to the number of 24, William Choate Rust, one of Manchester's highly respected citizens, celebrated his 82d birthday at his home on Bridge street, Tuesday, June 21. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Rust there were at the family gathering in the evening, his children, eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. A most enjoyable time was spent, first, around the festive board, and later a very pleasant musical time was spent singing and piano playing.

Special Town Meeting.

At the special town meeting held in Manchester last Monday evening, to hear the report of the Board of Selectmen, relative to the condition of the Town hall building, it was voted unanimously to appropriate $400 to put in repair the upper portion of the building as recommended by the state inspector. No motion was made for a new Town hall building. The meeting was in session fifteen minutes.

Fourth of July Plans.

Manchester folk are showing much interest in the Fourth of July celebration as the day draws near. One of the men's clubs will enter five features in the morning parade. Nearly every organization in town will be represented in the line. There have been a number of entries by private citizens, so it seems that the renewed feature of past years will be a brilliant success. "Young America" will be represented by the boy's brigade, who will have a large drum corps.

Chairman Fred K. Swett of the Board of Selectmen has accepted the invitation to act as marshal and will receive all entries, and prepare and have entire charge of the event. The column will be formed on Beach street, south of the B. & M. R.R. crossing, with divisions on Tappan, Proctor and Masconomo streets. The prizes will be for the antique feature of the parade, $10, $5 and $3; floral and artistic, $20, $10 and $5; industrial, $10 and $5. An announcement of the complete program will be given in our next issue. Everybody should take hold and make Manchester's Fourth of July celebration this year a grand success.

Flower Show Next Week.

The annual Rose Show of the North Shore Horticultural society will be held on Vine street, Beverly Farms, near the railroad station on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. An exceptionally fine exhibition will be made and the large society tent will be filled with a fine display in all classes, and will be well worth the patronage of the people of the North Shore.

The society is making a departure in holding its show this year at Beverly Farms. The shows have always been held at Manchester, and for the last two or three seasons, the large tent used for the exhibition has been pitched on the lawn near the Essex County club-house. As many of the members of the society, as well as exhibitors are from the Beverly Farms and Beverly section of the North Shore, it seems fair to all concerned that the exhibition should be held in this new location at least once this year.

The show will open to the public at 2 p. m. on Wednesday and will remain open continuously until 9.30 p. m. Thursday. Admission 25 cents, after 5 p. m., 10 cents.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION.

Founding of the Congregational Sunday School at Manchester Observed Last Sunday.

The services at the Congregational Church, Manchester, Sunday, both morning and evening, were in recognition of the founding of the Sunday School one hundred years ago. Special music was rendered at the morning service and the sermon was preached by Rev. Charles H. Williams of Gloucester. Two former pastors were also present and took part in the services. They were Rev. E. P. Tenney and Rev. Geo. E. Freeman. Mr. Tenney compared the reading of the Scriptures to the reading of the daily papers at the present time and lamented the fact that the Bible was not more widely read. He held up the pages of the Boston Transcript, illustrating the volume of the reading in the Scriptures, showing how three times the size of the paper which he held in his hand represented the entire old testament. He thought the Sunday school ought to do more in having the Bible more widely read. He was afraid the Bible was read by little "snips" at a time, while it ought to be read more profusely.

Rev. Mr. Freeman's remarks were of all the more interest from the fact that he preached at Manchester 50 years ago and took an active part in the exercises held at that time in connection with the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Sunday School. One of the effects of the Sunday School, he was afraid, was the taking of the family altar from the home. This work was now left to the Sunday School. In his youth, religious instruction was part of the family life. The Sunday School he thought was responsible with doing away with this.

Rev. Mr. Williams gave some interesting statistics relative to the position of the Sunday School in life today. He showed that of number of members uniting with churches, the greatest number came through the Sabbath School. The Sabbath School should lay the foundation in our religious life, he thought. There is need of making a more strenuous effort to get the young people of the Sunday School into the church fold. The great time for discipling for the work of Jesus Christ is in the 'teens. If he had his way, he said, the children would unite with the church when they had attained the age of nine to twelve years.

The member of the school as they entered the church in the morning were each presented with a badge. In the evening, a concert program was carried out by the children. Remarks were made by Superintendent Sabin and two former Superintendents Professor N. B. Sargent and O. T. Roberts.

Summer Train Arrangement.

The summer time table of the Boston & Maine went into effect last Monday. The term Portland Division is now used instead of the old and familiar term Eastern Division. Every train on the division has received a new number. There are 16 trains a day from Boston and 10 trains on Sunday. There are 32 trains a day on the Gloucester branch and 20 on Sunday. Besides these, there is a Saturday afternoon special and the subscriber's private train which goes up and down the branch daily except Sunday. Several expresses have been added. There is also a train which is express to Boston from Magnolia, leaving there at 8.14 in the morning, and on the return trip, the train leaves Boston at 5 p. m. and does not stop until it reaches Magnolia at 5.42. There is a Sunday train leaving Gloucester at 8.08 p. m. and running express to Beverly. The usual 3.20 train from Boston now leaves at 3.25 and runs express to Beverly. The schedule between Manchester and Boston is as follows:

To Boston 6.24, 7.27, 7.58, 8.39, 9.35, 10.34, 11.33, 12.41, 1.35, 3.06, 3.16 (Saturdays only), 4.19, 5.19, 6.38, 9.06 and 10.10. Sundays 7.33, 8.33, 10.20, 1.30, 2.27, 4.41, 6.18, 7.54, 9.08 and 9.48.

Arriving at Manchester from Boston 7.02, 8.21, 9.13, 10.26, 11.42, 1.33, 2.10 (Saturdays only), 3.08, 4.14, 5.17, 6.02, 6.23, 7.21, 8.07, 10.23 and 12.14. Sundays 9.07, 10.56, 11.57, 1.32, 3.07, 5.22, 6.54, 8.12, 9.39 and 10.40.

EVERY MAN'S CAR—The BRUSH

A TRIED, PROVEN AUTOMOBILE FOR $485

IN VARIOUS MODELS ADAPTED TO THE USE OF

Merchants, Physicians, City and Country Salesmen, Contractors, Corporations, Farmers, Clubmen, Suburbanites, the Young Folk

In Fact to the Use of Anyone who can afford to own a Horse and Buggy and Many who cannot

The past year has brought forth many announcements of "sensations" in the automobile industry, but all of these have been "dream" sensations, founded on the hope of ambitious designers and the faith of inexperienced backers.

The announcement of the 1910 Brush at $485.00, has created a real sensation—one built on experience and the knowledge acquired by manufacturing the 3000 Brush cars now in use.

In the 1910 Brush, we offer a car, which with one chassis adapts itself to a hundred different uses.

A new car in power, smoothness, speed and looks, yet built on proven principles, by an organization already perfected.

The 1910 Brush not only outclasses all other small cars, but is far ahead of its own previous high standard.

Its balanced motor is the greatest Brush achievement. The result is single cylinder simplicity, reliability, light weight, low gasoline and oil consumption, low tire expense—4-cylinder power and smoothness. The most wonderful improvement in motor car construction in years.

Its performance is almost unbelievable. You will swear it is a 4-cylinder. You must see it—in fact, you must ride in it to be convinced.

Its power is astonishing. It responds to the throttle instantly and eats up the hills. More speed than you need—thirty miles an hour is easy—forty if you want it.

While the balanced motor is the most remarkable feature of the Model D, we have made numerous other improvements and refinements.

Here are some of them: wheel-base lengthened 6 inches; more graceful and rakish lines; Mercedes type radiator; new selective control; universal coupling shaft; improved dust-proof commutator; multiple disc low and reverse clutches; transmission control levers entirely housed and oil tight; more quiet muffler.

Think of it, $485.00, for the best-built, most thoroughly proven, smoothest running, easiest riding, most reliable, most economical, most powerful, handiest small car in America.

If ours were a new concern just beginning to learn the lessons all manufacturers have to learn, you might have reason to doubt the quality of a car at this price—

But we have learned the lesson—the 3000 Brush cars in daily use have proven the quality of Brush workmanship and material.

There was a crowd of a thousand people or more in the square Wednesday evening for the first band concert of the season by the Salem Cadet Band. A splendid concert program was carried out. One feature of the concerts of the last two years that was decidedly missed was the electric illumination. It is understood no provision has been made for illuminating the common this season. Last year and the year before, the decorations were used in connection with the Fourth of July celebration and were kept up the rest of the summer. It is hoped some movement may be made toward getting back the lights this year either by subscription or otherwise. We understand the cost of such a thing for the entire summer would be something under $200, and we have no doubt that many of our citizens would be glad to subscribe to a fund for this purpose. The electrical illumination has always been an interesting feature of band concert nights.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

IN PROSPECT.

WHEN science gets through monkeying
With man I rather guess
That he will know the answer
To questions, more or less,
Just how he is constructed,
The manner and the plan
Of building from the elements
The things that make a man.

The surgeons saw him open
And look into his heart,
Trim here and there a member
And take him quite apart.
They fool around his liver
And peep into his brain
And cast reproachful glances
At him should he complain.

They're bound to get acquainted
With man and know the worst,
The reason of his hunger
And eke the cause of thirst,
And how he does his thinking,
And why he goes to sleep,
And what may be the causes
That make him laugh or weep.

Some day, as now is mended
The auto or the bike,
He may to the repair shop
With all his troubles hike.
A monkey wrench attendant
The joints will tighten hard,
Put oil upon the bearings
And set him in the yard.

Where He Faded.

"Brown was pretty mad when the month's bills came in."
"Well, what did he do about it?"
"Went home for the purpose of starting a South American revolution."
"And did he do it?"
"No."
"Why not?"
"His wife met him at the door."

Such an Odd Idea.

"Do you know the nature of an oath?"
"I do."
"Well, what is it?"
"It is something you take before swearing to a lot of facts made to order to fit your side of the case."

Poor Memory.

"Jenks must be a very absentmind-ed man."
"I never noticed it."
"Well, I saw him the other night with some girls in a restaurant, and I think he had forgotten that he was married."

Explained.

"I often wonder why men marry."
"Do you?"
"Yes."
"I can enlighten you."
"Proceed."
"To have somebody to put the blame on."

Mutual.

"Yes, I shook hands with the president."

"Weren't you abashed at greatness?"
"Not a bit."
"I presume the president wasn't either."

Lots Like Him.

"He is very generous."
"In what way?"
"With his work."
"I don't understand."
"He always lets others do it for him."

Some Relief.

"His wife keeps things in a constant turmoil."
"Still, she has one good point."
"What is it?"
"She doesn't talk in her sleep."

Inartistic.

"How are you feeling?"
"All to the bad."
"But you look the very picture of health."
"Then the picture was drawn by a bum artist."

First Aid.

"His country is suffering from a terrible drought."
"Don't the express companies run in there?"

Didn't Match.

The sailorman was gay enough,
As any one could see.
They wondered that an ancient salt
So very fresh could be.

enough to give them away to our great-to shut up.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION.

Eleven Young People Received Diplomas from Story High School, Manchester.

The graduation exercises of the Story High School, Manchester, were held Tuesday evening in the Town hall, and were largely attended by friends and relatives of the graduates. A deviation was made this year from the customary form of graduation exercises, in that the graduates did not all have "parts," but the class presented instead scenes from the play Jeanne D'Arc as arranged by Percy Mackaye.

The salutatory was by Miss Coughlin, and the valedictory was by Miss Northrup, each presenting their parts in excellent manner.

The change in the order of exercises met with general approval, as in the old style when all of the graduates took part, exercises were apt to be of a monotonous nature and drawn out. The characters in the three acts presented were taken by various members of the class, and were very well presented. No scenery was used and no costumes were worn.

The graduates had seats on the stage and the members of the school occupied the middle section of the hall. The singing by the school under the direction of Musical Director Wales was very well rendered. Miss Elsie Northrup presided at the piano, and with two of the selections Arthur Kehoe played the violin, as an obligato.

The graduates were Elizabeth Theresa Coughlin, Agnes Maude Edgecombe, Annie Rosiline Francis, Alice Abbott Hoare, Byron Lytton Hobbs, Vera May Kitfield, Clarence Frederick Menken, Elsie Elizabeth Northrup, Mildred Frances Peat, Charles Elmer Smith and Bernard Otto Tyler. The class motto "Travaillez, travaillez, et Dieu travaillera," (work, work and God will work with you), in French hung above the stage. Letters were of gold on a green background, thus forming the class colors green and gold. The program of the evening was as follows:

Chorus, "The Soldier's Life" School
Invocation Rev. L. H. Ruge
Chorus, "Hail to the Beautiful Morning of May" (From "Joan of Arc") School

Salutatory Elizabeth T. Coughlin
Jeanne D'Arc, Act I. Class of 1910
Chorus, "The Storm-Fiend" (Veazie) School

Jeanne D'Arc, Act II. Class of 1910
Chorus, "Battle On" (Arr. from "Joan of Arc" by Emerson) School

Jeanne D'Arc, Act V. Class of 1910
Chorus, "Lovely Night, O Tender Night" (Offenbach) School
Violin Obligato, Arthur Kehoe
Valedictory Elsie E. Northrup
Chorus, "The Dance of the Fairies" School
Violin Obligato, Arthur Kehoe
Presentation of Diplomas and Medal Supt. John C. Makin
Benediction Rev. Theodore L. Frost

The characters in the three acts were as follows:

ACT I.
Seigneur De Bourlemont, proprietor of the "Ladies' Tree" Clarence Menkin
Colin, a villager, courting Jeanne Elmer Smith

Gerard, home from the English wars, betrothed to Hauviette Bernard Tyler
Jeanne D'Arc, the Maid Mildred Peart
Hauviette, a peasant girl Alice Hoare
Gerardine, a peasant girl Vera Kitfield
Isabelle, a peasant girl Annie Francis Mengette, a peasant girl Agnes Edgecombe
Peasants

Elizabeth Coughlin, Elsie Northrup ACT II.
Charles VII., Dauphin of France Bernard Tyler

Duc D'Alencon, his cousin Byron Hobbs
Seigneur De La Tremouille, his favorite Clarence Menken
A Tailor Elmer Smith
A Bootmaker Elmer Smith
Marshal La Hire Elmer Smith
Jean De Metz, of Jeanne's escort to the King Elmer Smith
Jeanne D'Arc Elsie Northrup
Ladies of King Charles' Court at Chinon
Mildred Peart, Annie Francis, Agnes Edgecombe, Vera Kitfield, Elizabeth Coughlin, Alice Hoare

ACT V.
Duc D'Alencon Byron Hobbs
A Judge Clarence Menken
Jeanne D'Arc Alice Hoare
English guards and attendants
Vera Kitfield, Annie Francis, Agnes Edgecombe

In presenting the diplomas to the graduates, Superintendent John C. Mackin gave the young people some words of encouragement and admonition. He urged them that in whatever walk of life they choose to go always to take advantage of the opportunities before them, though the opportunities may seem small at the start. Strength of character and firmness of purpose, he said are more essential than activity of mind.

An item on the program always looked forward to with keen anticipation by graduates is the presentation of the Appleton medal which is given to the one whose course at the school ranks highest in punctuality, industry and decorum. The announcement that the medal this year goes to Clarence Menken was met with tumultuous applause by the school and the entire gathering.

pears down a hill, in the distance, at the exact point where its presence ceased to be desirable.

Nevertheless, when figures are introduced into those Italian fountains, how gracefully the thing is done! See how the single jets combine with the marble figures, in this group from a Roman garden. The child Moses and his rescuer are the subjects rendered with a chaste severity of treatment and a beauty of environment that challenge admiration. After all, the fountain itself would be spoiled, without a proper setting of shrubs and trees, and this is hard to plan for, as the growth of the surrounding vegetation causes its height to change constantly, and to change the ratio between itself and the proportions of the fountain.

Those workmen in the older countries have a way of planning for things centuries ahead, and then waiting for them to grow. Such a garden as this one, where we find the fountain of Venus, requires from two to three hundred years, to reach perfection. The fountain was designed by the famous Giovanni of Bologna, and is wholly worthy of our most careful attention. It was a pretty thought, to place this pure white marble against a background of darkest evergreens, whose pillar-like forms have a certain similarity to the outline of the fountain itself.

Another group of statuary designed by the same sculptor is the fountain of Old Ocean, in the Garden of Boboli, at Firenze. While its surroundings are beautiful, they lack the charm of the last mentioned example. The appeal of the water is wholly subordinated to that of the statuary and its surroundings, in the celebrated "Little Fountain," of the Borghese Villa, at Rome, and in the beautiful Fontana d'Ercole, at Firenze, and this basin at Bagnai. The eye seeks vainly for something that it does not find, and we come back, with a sense of rest and refreshment, to the lovely single jet in the Villa Torlonia. After all, a fountain does not need statuary!

Very beautiful are these old Italian founts. Even when defaced by time and maimed by vandal hands, they are ivy-grown and moss-covered, draped in a delicate and graceful plant which is popularly known as "the hair of Venus": so that they do not lack decoration by the hand of Nature, even though the hand of man has failed them, and the festival of the Fontinalia is no longer celebrated, as in heathen Rome, with wells full of nosegays and fountains crowned with flowers.

It sometimes seems to me that common use has blunted our sensibilities where water is concerned so that we have lost, in a great degree, that love and admiration for it which was possessed by ancients. We turn a faucet, and the aqueduct water flows as freely as we wish, whether for bath or for drinking purposes. It has no beauty, when presented to us in this manner, and is so close at hand that we take it before we ever really crave its comfort. Thus the natural founts and streams, and the living quality of pure-cold water make no such strong appeal to us as to the forefathers of the race. Their reverence for natural fountains rose to the pitch where they were ready to endow the sparkling water with supernatural powers. The Greeks reckoned their Castalian Fountain to be of a prophetic nature, and the Druids of ancient Briton claimed the power of predicting events from holy wells and running streams, as well as from rain water or snow water, which they had stirred up with a magic wand made from the sacred oak.

Even after Christianity was introduced into England, it was the custom, upon Holy Thursday, to have religious rites performed at wells all over the kingdom. These wells were decorated with boughs of trees, garlands of tulips, or hawthorn branches; and often, after daily prayers had been recited at the churches, clergymen and choristers would assemble with the people, to pray and sing psalms at the natural fountains.

Near the parish church of Kirkmichael, in Scotland, a great natural fountain gushed forth from the rock and to it was piously given the name of St. Michael's Well. Its borders were planted with fragrant flowers, tended by anxious votaries; for the guardian spirit of the well, in the shape of a great dragon-fly, hovered about it continually, and by his demeanor gave predictions of the future to those who consulted him. Here came parted lovers, and anxious wives, and mothers whose children were going astray. Here came the sick and the sorry and the trouble-hearted. They watched his movements in silent awe, and drew conclusions as to their own success or failure, according to the apparent cheerfulness or dejection of the insect. By old Druidical teachings, he was supposed never to die, like the King of Great Britain, according to English law. What might seem death to the eye of the ignorant observer, would really be transition to another and similar form, which transmigration would hardly affect the identity of the magic guardian of St. Michael's Well.

How the sound of running water comes down to us, in song and story! Its music furnishes an obligato to how many passages of lightest comedy, of darkest tragedy, laden with love, or heavy with hate! Sometimes, among these old Italian scenes, the murmurous accompaniment goes on, although the central theme has ceased: sometimes the fountain lies as cold and dead as the master hand that worked its secret springs. Then it is that "I look for streams, immortalized in song,

That lost in silence and oblivion lie,—
Dumb are their fountains, and their channels dry,—
Yet run forever, by the muse's skill,
And in the smooth description murmur still."

 (Our Weekly Letter From)

By F. J. DYER

(Special to the North Shore Breeze)

Washington, June 22.—Sometimes the laudable ambition of a man in public life leads him to take a step which seemingly advances him toward the goal he has set for himself, but in reality lands him where he has more nominal prestige and less real influence for good.

Recent events have compelled persons watching the progress of legislation in Washington to conclude that this is what has happened to Senator Burton of Ohio. As representative from the Cleveland district, and chairman of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, Mr. Burton occupied a position in the House which was one of almost unique power and influence.

With a shining record in the House, it might have been thought that Mr. Burton would shine with even greater refulgence if elevated to a seat in the Senate. He chose to chance the issue, and he was elected. He has lost nothing of these qualities which made him a power in the House, but they do not seem to bring him success or reputation in his new field. He has toiled not less faithfully, or with less intelligence, but when he speaks the Senate listens with indifference, it gives no heed to his protests against items in a bill which he regards with the interest of a father in a child, and it recently passed lightly on questions regarding which he has been accustomed to speak with compelling authority, paying no apparent heed to his admonitions. Moreover, he has found questions of state patronage coming up persistently to intrude on his meditations and a thousand small details, in which his colleague, the Senior Senator from Ohio, delights, arising to vex and disturb him.

On the whole many have felt impelled to ask what has Senator Burton gained by his "elevation" from a position where he was a power to

This section includes the famous "Lookout Rock" which gives one of the most magnificent sea views on the North Shore. Several of the ledges offer views almost as fine. The immense oaks and pines have been carefully protected and are not paralleled in this vicinity. The plans have been made by Mr. Stephen Child of Boston, landscape architect.

From Boston to Montserrat Highlands in thirty minutes; from Salem, ten; from Beverly, three; from Pride's Crossing and Beverly Farms, five minutes, as "Shore Land" has increased so enormously in value and is practically out of the market, this tract which is the entrance to the North Shore will be taken up next and the present low values rapidly increasing, offers a safe and profitable investment. Bungalow and house lots are from $500 to $3,000 a quarter of an acre to 1 1-2 acres. Larger plots for estates.

Salt laden pine air and the nearness to rail and electric, with charming walks and drives to woodlands and beaches, will tempt buyers of summer homes and residents of the crowded towns in the vicinity. Mrs. Henry Peabody's residence, nearly completed, is a striking illustration of what may be accomplished in the way of adaption to the natural beauties of the location. For particulars inquire of one where he painfully approximates a nonentity?

The opposition to the admission as States of the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico, made apparent the powerful coalition of New England Senators, who have for many years practically controlled legislation in the upper House of the National legislature, against any increase of the representation of the far West in the Senate. Such increase threatens to disturb the balance of power. It is destructive of the sense of security and strength which these ancient and proud lawmakers have rejoiced in. Therefore it was decreed that the young giants out on the borderland of civilization,—as the "effete East" is pleased to regard it,—should stand at the closed door and wait with patience until they could force it wide enough so that they could enter and join the charmed circle.

The West has long had reason to complain of the attitude of the East toward it. When it has wished for recognition it has had to go hat in hand, and beg for what it has known to be its rights. The West, however, is fast coming into its own. It is getting power and strength and therewith, influence. Its demands will soon be voiced in firm tones, and it will have the might to enforce them. "The men who come to Washington to represent in Congress those hardy people, who at the same time are cultured and enterprising," remarked a prominent Western Senator recently, "are beginning to feel that the West and the South,—a region which also has long suffered at the hands of New England,—should unite and form a combination for both aggression and defense. In many respects the West and the South have interests alike. In many respects they have sympathies in common. Both have great resources, and both need men and money to hasten their development. The East is making overtures to the South, but the interests of that region lie closer to the fortunes of the West. Both should work together, and then both will better succeed in getting the recognition which has heretofore been largely denied them.

Attorney General Wickersham, it is said here in Washington, has learned a great deal since he was coaxed to abandon the richer fields of the legal profession in New York to serve his country as Attorney General in Washington. "When Wickersham came here," said a man high in official life, "he was acclaimed as the friend of Wall street. The people in the 'street' believed that they 'had him'. And he was in a sense ignorant of what would be required of him. The 'street' has learned that Wickersham was not its man, and it is roundly berating him now at every opportunity. Moreover, he has found out that the government of the United States is for the entire people and not for a few interests. I have had to see him officially a few times, and I can say positively that when it comes to enforcing the law, he asks only 'What is the Law?' And then he goes ahead and lets the chips fall where they will."

The Attorney General never learned the art of publicity, and therefore he is not well known, and his policies are not daily set before the reading public; but his course is standing well the scrutiny which has been focused on it and the more that Wall Street berates him, the more likely the public is to find his course worthy of approval.

"It has become more evident in the last two weeks, that industry is slackening and that a period of economic adjustment is at hand, even if there were no political interferences just now. The high cost of living of the last four years, and especially of the last year, has produced economic results that can no longer be ignored industrially. An industrial evolution is under way and is upsetting the calculations of Wall Street, as we believe. We have far too many middlemen—small merchants and dealers. These are being eliminated with friction and great individual hardship. These men in the past, have invested their savings in securities. They are not only ceasing to invest, but they are selling much that they have held."

This is from a market letter by a New York brokerage firm. It serves to emphasize what many others have already said,—that the middlemen take too much of the profit of production. There must come, in time, a closer business relation between the producer and the ultimate consumer. The disparity between the cost of production and the retail selling price is too wide.

THE BALDWIN TUMBLER HOLDER.

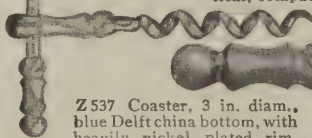

The Baldwin Tumbler Carrier is more than a convenience—it is a necessity. It meets a recognized need on every hand, but particularly in the life of the traveller, sportsman or tourist. No similar device ministers so gracefully to the individual. It gives you "A glass for yourself." The Baldwin is neat, compact, attractive to look at, and best of all, intensely practical. It takes up but little room in grip, bag or hamper, and is all ready for use. As a gift it is thrice welcome at any season of the year. It augments the usefulness of the Janus and other vacuum bottles—in fact it is indispensable to the man or woman who would protect health by hygienic drinking.

Each tumbler is held in a nickel spring holder which protects the glass from cracking and the fingers of the user from the heat of hot liquid. Nested within these holders and held in the case between a top and bottom spring, the tumblers cannot be broken. Sent prepaid at the following prices:

THE JANUS VACUUM BOTTLE.

The Janus Vacuum bottle keeps liquids hot without fire thirty-six hours, keeps liquids cold without ice seventy-two hours.

We have carefully investigated the various makes of vacuum bottles and have selected the Janus as the most desirable for several reasons.

STRENGTH ITS STRONG POINT. It is the only bottle in which the vacuum chamber is reinforced at the bottom and this form of support frees it from all of the strain of vibration incident to a sudden jar. The glass receiver is not held in place by plaster of paris or other adhesive. It has a rubber ring at the top to protect it also making a tight fitting joint. At the bottom it rests securely on a spring metal cushion of improved construction.

The Janus is the original take-apart bottle. It can be taken apart instantly. There is nothing about it but metal, glass, rubber and cork, making it the easiest bottle to keep clean. The cork has an aluminum tip which prevents its retaining the odor of the previous contents when used for a liquid of a different kind.

We send this bottle prepaid and guarantee safe delivery.

NORTH SHORE BREEZE

MANCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 1, 1910.

SOCIETY NOTES

Col. Henry May and family are among the new cottagers at Manchester this summer. They have taken the large Kimball house at Smith's Point and arrived last Friday. The house was occupied last year by the late Ambassador Nabuco of Brazil. There are a number of young people in the family, including the Misses Isabelle L. and Cecilia J. May, Gerald de C. and Henry Coleman May, who is connected with the U. S. Embassy at St. Petersburg. The Mays were in Europe last summer. Miss Cecilia May is very fond of motoring. She has a Maxwell Sportabout which she drives.

Mrs. Livingston Davis left Pride's Crossing Monday for a visit with relatives at Gardner, Me.

—x—

Mrs. L. B. Harrison of Cincinnati, who has taken the Cobb cottage on Masconomo street, Manchester, for the summer is expected between the first and the fifth of this month.

—x—

Daniel B. Wentz and family came on from Jenkintown, Pa., which is a suburb of Philadelphia, to Pride's Crossing, Tuesday. They have the Gardner cottage at Mingo Beach Hill this season. They brought on a special car load of horses, carriages, etc.

—x—

The George B. Posts of New York, who are to occupy the Dudley Pickman small cottage, will arrive at Beverly Cove within a few days.

—x—

Miss Dorothy Hancock of Texas and Hamilton presented the colors to the graduating class at Annapolis, at their recent commencement, and pictures of the function show Miss Hancock on the arm of Capt Bowyer, the superintendent, and Mrs. Donald McLean presenting Midshipman Benton with the D. A. R. cup for excellence in International law.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, who take an active part in North Shore society affairs, will be absent this summer, as they have joined U. S. Secy. of War Dickinson and wife on their trip to the Philippines.

—x—

Justice Oliver Wendall Holmes and Mrs. Holmes arrived at their summer home in Beverly Farms last week to remain during the summer. This is the place where Justice Holmes' father, the poet, summered for many years, and where he wrote many of his finest books. Only recently did Justice Holmes become the owner of the property. It was held by several heirs and he purchased their interests one by one until he became its possessor. He is one of the few summer colonists who exclusively prefer horses to automobiles and nearly every afternoon with Mrs. Holmes, he may be seen driving over the delightful North Shore roads. The cottage which he occupies has much to interest Justice Holmes, as it was there that he was notified of his appointment to the State Supreme Court and later of his elevation to the highest judicial position in the United States, one that he has filled with honor.

SOCIETY NOTES

Kermit Roosevelt was on the North Shore over the week-end with the McKean boys at Pride's Crossing. Henry P. and Q. A. Shaw McKean are at Harvard. They have been spending many of their week-ends at Pride's Crossing during the winter. The McKean house has been opened and the family are expected on from Philadelphia this week for the season.

—x—

The Dudley L. Pickmans, who have been spending the spring and early summer at their country estate in the Norfolk Hunt club district arrived at their Beverly Cove summer home this week.

—x—

George Dexter arrived this week from Europe and is with the other members of the family at Pride's Crossing.

—x—

The Robert Fulton Cuttings of New York are coming to the North Shore the middle of next week. Last year the Cuttings had the W. J. Mitchell house at Manchester part of the summer. This year, they will have Pitch Pine Hall at Beverly Farms, one of the Otis Luke cottages. This was the cottage occupied by J. D. Rockefeller, 2nd, several seasons ago. The Cuttings have been spending the spring at Tuxedo Park, where they have a beautiful place. The young people of the family were quite active in social doings along the North Shore last season.

Mrs. Francis A. Lane of St. Louis, who is now occupying her cottage at Manchester Cove, has been in Cambridge this week attending commencement at Harvard, where her grandson, Ralph M. Lane was graduated. She also attended the reunion of her son's class of 1885.

—x—

Miss Helen Hooper has one of the finest private garages on the North Shore. The building formerly used as a power house for making the electricity for the estate has been transformed into a garage. It is finished in white enamel, has all the latest up-to-date appliances and equipment. It is said to be the finest building that is strictly a garage, along the shore.

—x—

Mrs. DeWitt Talmage and her daughter, Miss Rebekah Talmage, annual guests at Magnolia, sailed for Germany, June 18, by the Lapland.

—x—

Miss Marian Greeley and her mother, Mrs. Rufus F. Greeley, of the Hotel Victoria, Boston, will be the only members of the family on the North Shore this summer. They are once more in the Brownland Cottage in Manchester. Because of the many orders for portraits received by Russell Greeley during what he intended to be a Christmas holiday with his mother and sister at the Victoria, he was unable to return to Paris until a few weeks ago. Mr. Greeley is hard at work in his studio in Paris, and is "keeping house" there with a college chum. His brother, Norman Greeley, also has deserted this section for the present having rented his cottage at Beverly and gone with his family to Poland Springs, Me.

Porch Parlors

By MARY H. NORTHEND

The outdoor living-room, or porch parlor, is coming more and more to be recognized as a necessary adjunct in modern house building, and today its location is as carefully thought out as the arrangement of any of the interior apartments.

Fifty years ago its erection was read, or entertain, as fancy dictates.

The first consideration in the erection of a porch parlor is its location, upon which depends its success or failure. It should be planned to be sufficiently broad to fulfil its purpose, for a narrow porch is worse than none at all, and then, too, it of the house, if the service portion is in a separate wing, is another excellent location.

Often it is found across the front of the house, and this position is desirable, provided the house is far enough removed from the main highway to be partially screened from the view of passers-by. The principal advantage of the porch parlor is the semi-privacy it affords, and therefore if it is erected at a point where its every nook and cranny are exposed to the gaze of pedestrians, it loses its chief charm and becomes the useless luxury it was once considered to be.

It should always be roofed over to prevent the warm rays of the sun from beating too fiercely upon it, and it may be railed in or not as the owner desires. Sometimes the roof is supported by large pillars, the spaces between being left vacant, or they may be filled in with potted plants and boxes filled with flowers. Again a rail of stone or wood extends around it, against which trellises are built, the whole rendered bright and artistic by means of pretty vines trained to clamber over looked upon as a useless luxury, and the uses to which it could be put were undreamed of; but all that has passed, and the homes of the present, whether situated in the city or suburbs, in the mountains or at the seashore, or whether constructed on an elaborate or simple scale, are considered incomplete without the addition of an open-air living-room.

For years women who love to cling to old-time housekeeping traditions frowned upon the "fads and frills" of their more up-to-date neighbors who took tea and entertained their friends on porches transformed into summer bowers, but at length their eyes were opened to the delights and benefits of the fashion and gradually they, too, took up the so-called "fad," and its adoption has now become almost universal.

And one cannot wonder at this, for surely there is no room in the house which lends itself so readily to artistic decoration as does the porch parlor with its outline of vines and pretty shrubs, and its free circulation of health-giving air, the benefits of which humanity at last is beginning to realize. It is a cosy retreat, where informality and unconventionality have full sway, and it is a place where one may lounge and should be erected at a point where it will not interfere with the lighting of the interior apartments. Within the angle formed between the main house and a wing is a good spot to build it, and along the rear the trellis framework.

A very pretty effect was introduced in the porch roof and outline rail of a large bungalow situated just outside the little town of Lincoln.

North Shore Flower Show

Beautiful Display of Roses, Sweet Peas and Other Flowering Plants at Annual Exhibit.

The annual rose and strawberry show of the North Shore Horticultural society was held on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Instead of pitching the huge tent on the lawn at the Essex Country club as has been the custom for the last few years, the show was held this year in the field off Vine street, Bevhouse plants very effectively arranged.

A new feature this year was the special class for dinner table decorations. Mrs. George E. Cabot was awarded the first prize. A beautiful pale blue delphinium and white roses were used for decorations. Mrs. B. Hammond Tracey was referred to. In such a display, the skill of the housewife is needed to give a finished touch.

The display of sweet peas by Mrs. James McMillan was unusually good. The flowers were perfectly formed and were of superior growth. From the expert's standpoint the display was one of the best of the show. The special prize offered for this class was awarded to Mrs. McMillan.

The special prize offered for all classes of roses was also awarded to Mrs. McMillan who had a most excellent display. Mrs. B. H. Tracey of Hamilton had a very beautiful basket of roses arranged for effect for which she was awarded first prize. Mrs. William B. Walker won second in this class.

One of the newest hardy flowers displayed was the Lupinus Poly. Moerheimi displayed by John Chapman of the Swift estate.

There were two very striking tables of orchids in bloom. Mrs. Lester Leland was awarded first prize in this class. Miss Helen Hooper was awarded the prize for the best society table of flowering plants in pots.

The complete list of prize winners and the various classes were as follows:

erly Farms. The delightful weather on both days favored the gardeners, but it is to be regretted that the attendance was not larger.

The show was superior in many ways to the June shows of former years. The interior of the tent presented a very handsome appearance. The entire inside of the canvas was covered with greenery, and made an effective background for the flowers.

The special medal offered by W. W. Rawson & Co. of Boston to the most successful competitor was won by Miss Helen Hooper (William Swan, gardener), 30 points; Mrs. P. Dexter (James Salter, gardener) was second, with 23 points; Miss Adele G. Thayer (James McGregor, gardener) third, 18 points, and Mrs. Lester Leland (Eric Wetterlow, gardener, fourth, 17 points.

The most striking exhibit and one that attracted the attention of every one that entered the tent was the mass of geraniums displayed by Miss Helen Hooper. In this special class calling for a "group of flowering plants, not to exceed 100 square feet floor space" Miss Hooper was awarded the silver medal. The first prize, the gold medal, was awarded to Mrs. Lester Leland who had a grand collection of general green-awarded the second prize. Her flowers were centaurea and gypsophila. The third prize went to Mrs. James McMillan. The other table was by Mrs. E. C. Swift.

Whatever credit may be given the gardeners for the success they attained in producing beautiful creations in plants and flowers full credit must be given the ladies for the excellent taste displayed by them in decorating, as shown in the class just furnished by the society. Knives, forks, spoons and glasses not allowed. Vases for flowers, napkins and table cloth furnished by decorator. The object was to show the artistic skill of decorator in the arrangement of flowers. This class was open to all. Prizes, $15, $10, $5, offered by society. Won by Mrs. George E. Cabot, Mrs. B. Hammond Tracey, 2nd; Mrs. James McMillan 3rd.

BASS ROCKS

The Thorwald began its 1910 season June 20, and among the season's guests to settle for the summer were Mrs. H. Young of New York and her daughters, Mrs. E. H. Emery and Miss G. G. Young. From Chicago arrived Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Miller, Misses Margaret E. Miller, Grace E. Tunpee. Helen C. Bates of Portland, Oregon, is another guest and another annual patron to register was Prof. William G. McGuckin, professor of modern languages at the New York City University.

Mrs. G. D. Raine, jr., and maid and the Masters Raine of Memphis, Tenn., also have taken apartments for the season. Mrs. Raine is a daughter of Charles F. Farnsworth, president of the Farnsworth, Evans Cotton Co. of Memphis, and a pioneer summer resident of Bass Rocks.

The golf links at Bass Rocks, now that they have been enlarged and wonderfully improved, are regarded by expert players as one of the finest links in the country. Nine new holes have been added since last year, making an 18-hole course. From 100 to 150 players may be seen on the links almost every day.

Mrs. William Renwick of Short Hills, N. J., and Miss Bacon of New York arrived recently for the season.

Mrs. C. G. Cooper and family of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, are dining at the hotel until their remodeled cottage is ready for occupancy.

Mrs. A. M. Lindsay and Miss Lindsay of Rochester, N. Y., have arrived in the Way cottage, corner Beach avenue and Traverse street, and Robert Laidlaw and family of New York have arrived in the Souther cottage below the Thorwald.

Arthur M. Cox and family of Manhattan, formerly of Brooklyn, have opened their attractive cottage.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. B. P. Lamberton and Miss Lamberton of Washington are at the Moorland. Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Norris, J. H. and P. Norris of Philadelphia are also at the Moorland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shaw, Pittsburg, Miss Aldis and maid, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Harvey, maid and chauffeur from hotel Bellevue, Boston, are also registered.

CAPE ANN RESORTS

Since contracts for fish and other commodities have been awarded in Rockport to supply Uncle Sam's warships it is certain that Rockport is to have the war vessels sometime during the summer.

Archbishop O'Connell of Boston is a frequent visitor to his summer home, the former Col. Jonas H. French estate at Bay View, which adjoins the former estate of Gen. Benjamin Butler, now the summer home of Gen. Adelbert Ames.

J. Spencer Brock of Ardmore, Penn., has arrived at his cottage on Paradise Cliff, Rockport.

William D. Searle of Brookline has opened his cottage on Hansen avenue, Pigeon Cove.

Rev. W. S. Packer, who has the Frost cottage, Land's End, Rockport, will preach Sunday mornings during July and August at Village Hall, Annisquam.

Bass Rocks

The Moorland is a popular center for auto parties, and among them have been Mr. and Mrs. George Eddy; Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Eddy; Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Eddy; F. W. Hollis and wife; J. S. P. Alcott and wife, Boston; A. O. Young and family party, Worcester; Roland H. Sherman esq., and family, Winchester; A. S. Wattles, wife and son of Canton, who had as guests, Miss D. Chapman, M. B. French (the Wattles spend a portion of each season at the hotel); Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Butler, Mrs. W. S. Kunerson and Mrs. H. R. Strepel, Detroit.

Last Saturday, the Everett Board of Trade, numbering 60, came by auto to the Moorland and partook of a special 4 o'clock dinner prepared and served in their behalf.

The tennis courts at the golf club claim many players especially the young women of the colony who have interesting contests. The courts of the Moorland have also been put in fine condition.

By the recent death of Mrs. Fanny Platt, widow of the late Milton H. Robertson of New York City, Bass Rocks lost a summer resident of long standing, her demise taking place at her charming estate on Atlantic avenue in which she took so much pride. Beside her son, Carroll, a Yale graduate, who was especially prominent on the Shore in water carnivals and tennis events, she leaves a sister, Miss Platt, and a niece, Miss Currier, who made up her household. The remains were taken to New York where services were held.

Mr. Beals and family of Lowell are occupying their handsome new summer home on Beach avenue. It has a picturesque situation on the edge of the golf links.

The bathing pavilion is open for the season and Miss Rebecca Sams, the popular stewardess, is in charge and the bathers and their suits are receiving the same careful attention.

SWAMPSCOTT

The Swampscott Yacht Racing Association is arranging for yacht races on July 4, and three cups have been offered as prizes.

Mrs. C. H. Bond, the Misses Edith and Mildred Bond, Charles L. and Kenneth Bond sailed June 24 on the Romanic for Europe, and the beautiful Bond estate near the New Ocean House has been secured by Mr. Metcalf of Boston and Newton. Mr. Metcalf is wealthy and particularly well known for his philanthropies.

Prominent arrivals settled at the imposing New Ocean House for the season are Mr. and Mrs. G. R. H. Thorne (Fanny Ropes) of New York; C. R. Hoyt of the Outlook staff, and family, and Traverse D. Carman of the same magazine, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Tanzo Sauvage of Newark, N. J.; and the widow of Jasper Van Wormer, the late banker of Albany, N. Y. Syracuse, N. Y., sends Mrs. Horace Candee, and for the season from Kansas City are Mrs. M. H. Hudson, Miss Hudson, Mrs. E. Thomas and Miss Alsson. They do considerable motoring along the North Shore.

Mrs. R. L. Sayle and daughter, Mrs. Edwin A. Merrill, of Providence, R. I., are among the arrivals at the New Ocean House.

On Tuesday afternoon of this week an enjoyable bridge party was held by the guests of the hotel. On July 4, special music and dinner is being planned by the management with dancing in the casino.

The beautiful new concrete villa on Puritan road being erected for Mr. Eisman, the wool merchant of Boston, is nearly ready for occupancy and is the most costly estate this side of Beverly, costing over $50,000. The estate embraces about two acres and occupies the Jeffries and Little Anawan hotel property, which was purchased to develop it.

The estate of A. F. Estabrook of Brookline on Atlantic avenue, Phillips Beach, has been greatly enlarged by securing land in the rear, from the Maria Phillips estate, for beautiful Italian gardens.

The tea room and gift shop on the North Shore is now a most popular institution and the Work Box Tea Room and Gift Shop on Monument square, has a coveted position in the social operations of this resort, a decided compliment to the foresight and particular creative genius of the two young women from Salem, the Misses Pickering and Varney, who preside over its departments. Miss Pickering is a member of one of the old Salem families and inherits the love of the artistic from her traditional surroundings. "The Work Box" has an ideal location on the ocean boulevard and the veranda and spacious lawns of the commodious cottage are factors for the giving of tea parties, while the dainty indoor tea room of rose and fawn with its rose shaded candelabra is popular for private indoor parties.

On Thursday of this week, the Misses Rapp of Cincinnati, who are spending the summer in Swampscott, gave a tea party on the lawn of the Work Box to twenty young friends and the party at the tete-tete tables covered with yellow umbrellas made a festive scene upon which the boulevard folk looked appreciatively.

MARBLEHEAD.

The Rockmere has been made the official hotel at Marblehead of the Automobile Association of America, and the increasing patronage include Mrs. Pennock Duey and her niece, Miss Lucia Bell of Philadelphia, and Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Hubbard of Holyoke, who are here for the season.

Mrs. George R. Harris has left her apartments at the Somerset, Boston, and settled at the Rockmere with her daughter, Miss Martha Harris, for the season.

Mrs. I. P. Ditmar and Miss Marjory Ditmar of Brooklyn have also registered at the hotel for the summer. The Westerners sojourning at the hotel include Roger Sherman and wife, and Mrs. Geraghty and family of Chicago; J. Brooks Nichols and wife, Detroit.

Auto parties registered at the hotel included Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Cumming, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kieffer, New Orleans; Misses Alice L. Kinsman, Martha Mills, Florence Littlefield and chauffeur, Springfield, and Mr. and Mrs. James Whitin, North Uxbridge.

The Snow Crest has entered upon its second season under the able management of Mr. and Mrs. Coates, and is another first class hotel, added to Marblehead's list. It occupies a most sightly position on the high elevation near Crocker Park and commands a grand view from its veranda and summer house.

Miss H. L. Rogers of Philadelphia who is touring the North Shore, registered there and will return again after touring the Gloucester shore.

Settled for the season are Mr. and Mrs. Hyman of Boston, and Dr. Stevens and wife, Boston.

An auto party from Boston included Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Bryant, and a yachting party was composed of Mrs. V. C. V. Wetmore, Skowhegan; Mrs. H. Savage, Chicago, and Miss Grace Blake, Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Robinson, Richard M. Robinson, and Miss Robinson all of Springfield have been registered at the Snow Crest.

Festivities at the yacht clubs are in order, and recently the Houghs Neck steamer brought down a large number of Boston gentlemen, who had a jolly dinner at the Corinthian club. An orchestra placed on the veranda discoursed music, while the diners discussed the menu. About 3:30, the steamer sailed for Boston with a happy company delighting in the cool sea breezes, while the temperature on land soared higher. The harbor is filled with handsome steam and sailing craft. Golf in this section will be played, as in past seasons, at the Clifton and the Tedesco clubs, Beach Bluff.

Guests at the Oceanside include Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Dexter, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Mayo, Jamaica Plain; Mrs. Matilda Evans of New York; C. W. Morse, Brookline, C. W. Stetson, Woburn.

The beautiful estate Questenmere on Marblehead Neck, the property of Fred E. McQuesten of Brookline, will not be opened until August, as the family is in Europe for the summer, and in August Mrs. McQuesten's mother will be the occupant.

"Redgate," the Charles W. Parker estate on Marblehead Neck is one of the noteworthy places in this section.

The old church of St. Michael framed in England and erected in Marblehead in 1714 is much viewed by summer visitors and the sexton is on hand Saturdays from 3 to 5 o'clock and after Sunday services. A silver offering for inspection is expected, and is contributed toward the current expenses of the church.

The Boylston's guests are settling for the season, and include Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wood, Margaret Wood, Arthur G. Wood, jr., and maid, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dyer and daughter of St. Paul, and grandson; Mrs. L. D. Griggs, and Franklin H. Griggs, jr., St. Paul.

AT THE HOTELS.

Everything is booming at Magnolia. The hotels are fast assuming the gayety of mid-season. The Oceanside hotel today had a house count of more than 300 guests and it is expected that by the Fourth, nearly 500 will be registered.

A number of brilliant functions are being planned for the summer. Noted among them will be a naval ball if the North Atlantic squadron comes to the North Shore, as is now planned. It has been informally announced that the fleet will rendezvous at Gloucester and Rockport in late July and August. The naval ball of three seasons ago was the most brilliant event of the season at Magnolia. Though it is a little early to make any announcement along this line, it is safe to say that the Oceanside under its new management will leave nothing undone toward making the naval ball this year a most brilliant affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Blume and Miss Graham of Boston motored down the North Shore Sunday for luncheon at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Spaulding of Cambridge were at the Oceanside Sunday and lunched with Percy Atherton, who is here for the season.

Lawrence H. Armour of Chicago came to Magnolia in his yacht over the week-end. He was at the Oceanside Sunday with his mother, Mrs. K. B. Armour, who is here for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Palmer, two children and maid, arrived at the Oceanside Sunday. They have apartments in Sea Crest cottage. Mr. Palmer is the president of the American Steel and Wire Co. They register from Cleveland.

Mrs. E. M. House gave a dinner party at the Oceanside last Saturday evening previous to the hop in the casino which, by the way, was a very interesting affair. At the dinner were Ami Lancashire of Manchester, K. I. Allen of Cleveland, Arthur Carpenter, U. S. N., George Lamson of Weston, Miss Thomson of Texas, Miss Elinor Thompson and T. A. Thompson, Jr., U. S. N.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Tucker. Mr. and Mrs. House and Miss Janet House left Monday for New York and have since sailed for Europe to spend the summer. They will return to the Oceanside to spend the early autumn.

Misses Florence, Phoebe and Elizabeth Adams and Master Hal Adams of Washington were among last Saturday's arrivals at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Hunter, R. E. Hunter and A. B. Bradley of Chicago were at the Oceanside over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter came on to Cambridge last week for the Harvard Class Day.

A. B. Dewey, Jr., of Chicago, was at the Oceanside over Sunday. With him were A. B. Glovinger of Lebanon, Pa., and M. S. Ackerman of Plainfield, N. J. The Dewey family will arrive at Magnolia the first of July for the rest of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Cook of Boston were to arrive at the Oceanside today for July and August. Mrs. Cook's sister, who was Miss Donna Beach of Mexico City was married during the last winter at the Majestic in Brookline. She and her husband may come to the North Shore later in the summer for a short visit.

Mrs. H. K. Tenney and two sons, Henry F. and H. K., Jr., of Chicago, arrived at the Aborn last Sunday.

Mrs. Charles W. Wilkins and Miss Christel W. Wilkins of Boston are at the Aborn for the season.

With the summer home-coming of President William Howard Taft to the vacation White House at Beverly Cove, it is safe to assume that play time on the North Shore has begun. For no sooner had the President arrived and been welcomed home to his family, than other men of national note made the North Shore a meeting place of especial importance. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who had come on from Oyster Bay and New York to the commencement exercises at Harvard, to preside at the reunion of his class, '80, and to sit at the head of the dinner of the alumni of the university of which he is president, was the guest of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge at Nahant Wednesday night and Thursday. Governor Hughes of New York, recently named for the United States Supreme Court by President Taft, and who also came to the Harvard graduation to be honored by a degree, also was received at the Lodge home. With Messrs. Lodge and Hughes, Mr. Roosevelt motored to Beverly Cove Thursday to take luncheon with the President.

J. Pierpont Morgan, another of those who were given honorary degrees at Harvard, on Tuesday night, was a guest at the home of Maj. Henry L. Higginson at West Manchester. Maj. Higginson had a few friends in to meet Mr. Morgan, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Agassiz.

SOCIETY NOTES

has been house physician at the Oceanside hotel, Magnolia. He came to the shore early this year, but was taken ill and had to be taken to the hospital two weeks ago. He was born in Bangor, Me., in 1873. Dr. Warren is survived by a widow and an infant son.

Sale of Well Known Manchester Hotel.

The sale of the Masconomo House, Manchester, by the executors of the estate of Agnes Booth Schoeffel, attracted a number of business men from Boston whose automobiles and traps lined the drive during the auction of this famed and beautiful property.

On the veranda of the hotel was Sidney Booth, a son of the builder of the house and a nephew of Edwin Booth. John B. Schoeffel, proprietor of the Tremont Theatre in Boston, was there in yachting costume having come up from Marblehead, where his craft lies when not at sea.

It was Mr. Schoeffel who finally bid in the house rather than let it go to real estate speculators at a figure far under its assessed value. The price for the property was $72,200, which included a standing mortgage of $36,500.

MARBLEHEAD.

The Nanepashemet, Marblehead Neck, have registered for the season, Mrs. D. P. Bartlett, Esther Bartlett, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Hubbard, Arlington; Mrs. John A. HERE'S to a "Saner Fourth!"

THE complaint has been made in the past that the famous old Masconomo House property at Manchester could not be improved and "kept up" because the place has been "tied up;" that part of the heirs were unwilling to do anything toward improving the property and wanted to sell. The property is now in new hands, virtually, as a result of the executors' sale Monday and John B. Schoeffel, husband of the late Agnes Booth Schoeffel, is ostensibly the owner. What a grand thing for Manchester if Mr. Schoeffel carries out his stated intention of tearing down the house and building a sort of an inn, part of which could be kept open a greater part of the winter, if not the whole of the winter! The property cannot be beat along the New England coast for location. It is situated off the famous Singing Beach, than which there is none better along the coast.

Have your Legal and Probate Notices appear in The Breeze.

Fourth of July at Manchester.

Manchester people are taking a great interest in the Fourth of July celebration. The "horrible" parade in the morning promises to be a big feature of the day's program, the whole of which has been arranged by the committee with an idea of having a safe and saner Fourth for Manchester.

The following persons will serve as judges of the parade: Eric Pape, Selectman E. S. Knight, Charles A. Read, Mrs. F. P. Tenney, Miss Lena Jones. The judges' stand will be on the common.

Chief Marshal Fred K. Swett has arranged for the formation of the parade as follows: The horrible and antiques will form on Beach street, between the railroad crossing and Tappan street; floral and artistic on Tappan street; trades below Tappan street. All floats and teams are requested to be in line by 5.45 and their place will be assigned to them by the Chief Marshal or his aids.

The line will proceed to the corner of Harbor and Bridge streets, before countermarching.

The prizes in the parade are as follows: horrible and antique, $10, $5 and $3; floral and artistic, $20, $10 and $5; industrial, $10, $5. Nearly all of the organizations in town have arranged to be represented in the line and many of the citizens will have private entries.

After the parade at 9.30, the boys' sports will be called on the Town common and will be entirely for the pleasure of those under 16 years of age. The following events will be run off: Snake race (five boys on team), prizes, $1, 50c.; potato race, $2, $1; sack race, $1, 50c.; basketball relay (five boys on team), $1, 50c.; pie race, 50c., 25c.; obstacle race, $1, 50c.

The outing at Singing Beach in the afternoon has promise of being a unique form of celebration. The whole town will be there. Upon the arrival of the train, due at Manchester from Boston at 1.32, line will be formed at the station and to the music of the Salem Cadet Band, all are to march to Singing Beach for the outing. There will be sports on the hard sand, including 100-yard dash; half-mile run; 440-yard relay (four men on a team). Cups will be given for first and second prizes in these events. There will be broad jump, pole vaulting, high jump, one-fourth-mile swim. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be given as prizes in these events; quoit pitching and grotesque or fancy bathing costume exhibition will bring the sports to a close. In these last two events, prizes of $3, $2, and $1 will be awarded.

The life-saving exhibition by Capt. King and his men of the Government Life-Saving station at Deliver's Neck, Cape Ann, will be a unique feature. Capt. King will bring the gun carriage, breeches buoy, life raft and full equipment of his station and give a complete exhibition of the work. This ought to prove especially interesting to the Westerners among our summer colony, as most of them, probably, have never seen life-saving crews at work.

The committee has concentrated its efforts to make the harbor illumination in the evening a grand success. It has arranged to encircle the basin within the drawbridge. The flotilla of motor and rowboats promises to be a large one.

Seldom, if ever, have more completed arrangements been made for a gala day. Every business man in town should endeavor to represent his business or trade in the exhibition and every one with a drop of patriotic blood in his veins should participate in the parade. We have talked a saner Fourth every year; we have it this year. It is up to us!

Manchester Is to Have Use of Masconomo Bathing Pavilion.

Manchester is to be immediately benefited in one respect at least by the purchase last Monday of the Masconomo hotel by John B. Schoeffel. Mr. Schoeffel has very kindly offered the use of the large bath house used in connection with the hotel in years past to the town. In a communication to J. S. Reed, chairman of the Board of Park Commissioners, yesterday, Mr. Schoeffel offered the free use of the bath house until such time as he may want the use of it. The pavilion contains thirty rooms. The townspeople ought to feel very grateful to Mr. Schoeffel for his kindness. The letter is as follows:

"Mr. J. S. Reed, Chairman of the Board of Park Commissioners, Town of Manchester, Mass.

"Dear Mr. Reed:

"It is with great pleasure that I extend to your Board the privilege of the use of the Bathing Pavilion formerly owned by the Masconomo estate to be used by your Board until such time that I may want the use of it.

"Very truly yours,
"John B. Schoeffel."

The Wellsbach Lighting Co. having very kindly agreed to set five double-arm lamp-posts on the Common for the use of the Fourth of July committee to be used in connection with the illumination on Fourth of July evening. These lamps are only temporary, as the selectmen have ordered two handsome pressed copper electric ornamental posts, one to be set each side of the fountain. They will probably arrive about the middle of July.

A very successful Strawberry Festival was held in the Town hall Monday evening under the auspices of the local W. R. C. The hall was very prettily decorated for the occasion, and the tables were bountifully filled and well patronized. The colors used in decorating were mostly pink and white and made a very tasty effect. The entertainment included a vocal solo by Mrs. Frank G. Cheever: song, Garden of Roses, John Gray; readings by Miss Effie Stidstone and piano solo by Miss Dora Marshall. A very pretty feature of the evening's program was an exhibition in club swinging by Misses Abbie Floyd, Mildred Peart, May Rogers and Annabelle Lodge.

Bad Runaway at Manchester This Noon.

Grace, the pretty little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Salter of Forest street, Manchester, had a close call this noon when she was thrown from the seat of a wagon, as the horse attached to the vehicle ran away. She and her father were returning from the Horticultural show at Beverly Farms. When in the center of the town, Mr. Salter went in to the news store, leaving the little girl on the seat of the wagon. The horse took fright at something and started madly up the street toward the postoffice. When in front of the residence of Franklin Hooper, J. H. Jackson, second man in the Munn stable, made a brave attempt to stop the horse. He grasped the bridle and would have brought the horse to a stop had not the reins broke. He was knocked to the ground, but was only slightly bruised, though he was stunned for a while. He was taken to Dr. Blaisdell's office and given immediate attention. Meanwhile after going about 30 feet farther, the horse made a sharp turn and threw the Salter girl from her seat. She fell between the whippletree and the horse's hoofs to the ground. It was a miracle she was not seriously injured. She was badly gashed in the head and also in the hand. She was taken into Dr. Blaisdell's office and Dr. Blaisdell and Dr. Glendenning rendered aid. The horse continued on its way to the junction of Forest and Summer streets, where it was stopped by Bruce Chapman.

The class of 1910 of the Story High School held their reception in the Town Hall last Friday evening, the affair being a very pretty one. The hall was beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and cut flowers, while a profusion of college banners made the walls look gay. The music of the evening was furnished by Long's full orchestra. From 8 to 8:30 the orchestra gave a concert program.

In the receiving line were Prin. and Mrs. Alfred L. Saben and the teachers, Misses Florence H. Kauffman, Masie B. Whiting, Edna M. Parker and Alice M. Brackett, and two members of the class, C. Elmer Smith and Alice A. Hoare. The grand march was started promptly at 8:30 and was lead by the class president, Miss Hoare and the vice-president, C. Elmer Smith, the remaining members of the class following. The hall was crowded. During intermission refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The floor was in charge of Byron Hobbs, assisted by Clarence Menken. The aids were Elmer Smith, '10; Bernard Tyler, '10; George Rust, '11; Roland Knight, '12, and Gordon Northrup, '13.

News Notes About the ...Stores... And other Business Enterprises

Miss E. R. Rice, the Fifth avenue, New York, milliner, has opened a summer branch in the Smith building, Lexington avenue, Magnolia, the last week. Miss Rice has heretofore given displays of her goods at various hotels along the North Shore. This is the first summer she has had a store. Miss Hunter of the New York store is in charge.

The Onyx Hosiery people have opened a branch office in the Donchian building, Magnolia, this summer, where a line of the exclusive silk and lisle thread hosiery made by this concern will be found.

E. T. Slaterry Co. of Tremont street, Boston, announce on another page, an exhibit and special sale of summer apparel and advanced fall styles at the Hesperus hotel, Magnolia. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

Mrs. Grace W. Bill brings to Magnolia this year a stock of Chinese and Japanese goods of the kind that are not usually seen in this country. It is in recognition of the decorative quality (and particularly in the summer home) of the things that are in everyday use in China and Japan, enormous bamboo fish trays, joss-house lanterns, baskets for everything from a fish to a baby, coolie towelling (beginning to be so much used in this country for-curtains), stunning big brass bowls that the Chinese cook opium in. Besides these there are elaborate embroideries and Japanese prints, mandarin coats and Japanese stencils, exquisitely finished baskets and lacquer and old brocades, all particularly selected for their artistic quality. A special feature of the shop is the Shantung table that is becoming famous for use on the porch and lawn. For the last two summers Mrs. Bill has done a large business at Lake Michigan summer resorts, but so many of her best customers have been on the North Shore that, at their suggestion, she is opening a shop at Magnolia. The shop is in the Foster cottage on Lobster Lane and will be open for business on Monday.

:: Beverly Farms ::

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Logan of Nashua, N. H., have spent the past week at the Farms visiting friends. They will remain over the Fourth.

The Misses May D. and Gertrude H. Connolly have accepted positions as instructors at the Salem playgrounds and will commence their duties there next week.

The Fourth at Beverly Farms in past years has been pretty noisy. Under the new law which calls for a "safe and saner" celebration, there is much speculation as to how the "sports" are going to celebrate, now that all the articles which have been used by them in the past are prohibited by the law.

At the Harvard commencement exercises Beverly Farms was well represented. Alderman A. P. Loring, jr., attended the Chief Marshall's spread; Justice Holmes attended his class reunion and dinner; Justice Loring was chief Marshal of the Law School association at which Judge Blake made an after dinner speech; Rev. Clarence S. Pond and Lawrence J. Watson, 2d, were also in attendance at the exercises.

Miss Swett, teacher at the Farms school, was called to her home in Amesbury, Wednesday, by the serious illness of her father.

Mrs. Clark, who lives in the C. E. Ober cottage off Hale street, has been confined to the hospital due to an injury received from the cranking of her automobile.

To consider in buying food. Selecting food requires the most careful thought and judgment. You have to please the taste and nourish the body. We all know a good thing when we eat it. Pure food makes rich red blood. Tender, juicy chops and steaks please the taste and aid digestion. In choosing a doctor you always select one who has proven his skill by what he has done. Our great success proves to you that we satisfy our customers. Our business has increased daily since we started. Through the dullest winter months we kept eight men hustling early and late. We buy nothing but the best, only from houses that have a reputation to protect. If there is anything good in the market, we have it. Our butchers have had high-class experience.

Our books are in charge of an A1 man. We use daily slips or pass books as you wish. Our store is equipped in the most sanitary way for handling pure food. Our service is the best obtainable. Can you afford to buy meats and fruits that are exposed to flies and dust, or that is put in a box and expressed around several hours and becomes heated and sweaty?

ASK YOUR DOCTOR.

Soon after your meat order leaves our cooler it is delivered to you and placed on ice, fresh and healthy.

We are the only North Shore store that raises its own vegetables, gathered fresh daily. We guarantee satisfaction in quality, price and service. Special contracts with hotels and yacht trade. Our teams are in Beverly, Manchester and Magnolia daily. Wholesale team in Beverly, Salem and Peabody.

Beverly Farms is to have its July 4th celebration! The committee has been hard at work getting the necessary funds and as the finance would warrant, has made up the program which will give the local people one of those celebrations that it has enjoyed for the past eight or nine years, and surpassed by none held in this vicinity. Like former years on July 4, all roads will lead to the Farms. There will be a ball game in the morning and sports and horse events will be held on the Vine street playgrounds in the afternoon. There will be a grand illumination and fireworks at West Beach in the evening. The Rowley Brass Band of 22 pieces will furnish music afternoon and evening.

The party of Farms young men who have formed the West Beach Swimming club are having their swimming raft with spring board built and will have it ready for use in a few days. It is to be anchored a short distance from the pier. A dance will be held in Neighbors' hall July 8 to defray the expense.

During the past week West Beach has been the outing place for crowds of people, coming for a day's stay from out of town. Many lunches have been partaken of on the piazzas or within the bath or boat houses along the beach bank. The warm temperature of the water has been a decided attraction to numbers of bathers, while many have enjoyed fishing and boating trips.

The July 4 celebration committee desires the co-operation of all people at the Farms to make this year's celebration a success. The sports and races are open to all who live in this vicinity. It is very much desired and hoped that at the beach in the evening all who own bath houses there will help out in the illumination by decorating with Japanese lanterns.

Many are looking forward to the annual fair of the Ladies' Sewing Circle which is to be held in the Baptist church Thursday at 10 a. m. There is to be a splendid assortment of articles, candies and refreshments for sale. An entertainment is to be given in the evening.

A beautiful spot at Beverly Farms is the rose garden at the Spaulding estate on Greenwood avenue, which is now and will be for some time at its best, although during the whole summer a fine display of beautiful roses can be seen there. The garden itself is laid out in a formal way, and has about 3000 plants of which there are over 400 varieties. Practically all are imported plants which were furnished and planted under the direction of Mrs. Harriett R. Foote, who conducts the "Rosery" on Devereux street, Marblehead. She has about 2500 plants of which there are about 900 varieties. She extends a cordial invitation to all to visit it.

The Ladies' Sewing Circle was entertained by Mrs. Marshall T. Larcom at her home on West street last evening.

A party of twelve Salem young ladies enjoyed a day's outing at West Beach Wednesday, occupying one of the large boat houses. Bathing and lunches were items of their pleasure. In the evening they attended the flower show.

Arthur Holland, operator at the Farms depot, has the sympathy of his many Farms friends over the loss of his father, Albert A. Holland, who passed away suddenly at his Gloucester home last Saturday morning.

The coming of the Rowley Brass Band for next Monday's celebration makes the eighth engagement this organization has had for the July 4th celebration at the Farms. In the past their good work, their willingness to earn their money in full and their ability to furnish suitable music for the occasion has caused the committee to give them the job. The National Fireworks Co. are to give the fireworks display, which is the same concern as last year.

Letters remaining unclaimed at the Beverly Farms Postoffice, week ending June 29, 1910, Mr. John M. Bradley, Miss Agnes Casey, Miss Mary Poulogue, Miss Marie Moonberg, Mr. J. H. Hardy jr., Mr. Frank McDonald, Miss Rachel McDonald, Mr. Murray MacKay, Mr. Robert Stacey, Miss Nellie Sheehan — William R. Brooks, Postmaster.

Miss Amy Griffiths of Salem and Lewis Voorhees of Danvers were married in Salem, Wednesday evening. A reception was held at the home of the bride at which only immediate relatives and friends were present. The happy couple eluded the vigilance of the party who wished to give them the accustomed send-off by coming to Beverly Farms for the night. They left Thursday for a short honeymoon trip among friends in Canada. Both Mr. and Mrs. Voorhees are well known at the Farms and have many friends here, Mr. Voorhees being a brother of Mrs. James E. McDonnell of this town.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Rogers of Springfield are the guests of relatives at the Farms for a two weeks' visit.

William C. Webster of Rockport and for many years a Farms' resident, was in town Wednesday renewing acquaintances.

Well Known Farms Resident Passes Away.

Jeanette, wife of Adelbert M. Marshall, passed away Wednesday afternoon at the Beverly Hospital after an illness of about three weeks. While at first it was not thought that her illness was dangerous, she took a turn for the worse and for the past few days the end had not been unexpected. Her death has brought upon the community a deep loss. Her pleasant and cheerful disposition, frankness and ready willingness to do a kind deed has made her a true friend to all. She has taken an interest in public affairs and the success of many events have been due to her interest and work. It is doubtful if another Farms lady would be greater missed than Mrs. Marshall. In the John West Colony, Pilgrim Fathers, of which she was a social member, and Preston W. R. Corps, she was foremost among the active members.

The community extends to the bereaved family its sincere sympathy. Mrs. Marshall is survived by a husband, three daughters, Edith, Alice and Ella, the latter being but four years old, also a son, Willie. Before her marriage she was Miss Chapman of Marblehead, in which town she leaves a number of relatives and a large circle of friends. Funeral services will be held from the Farms Baptist church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Keith's Theatre.

For the week beginning with Independence Day at Keith's a typical program has been arranged, one that is bound to attract widespread attention. In the first place it will include the Old Soldier Fiddlers, a remarkable company who will be seen in Boston for the first time. In it are four men, two who served in the Southern armies and two in the army of the North, all of whom are remarkable fiddlers. They play entirely by ear, and the manner in which they give the old songs and tunes invariably arouses the greatest enthusiasm.

Another picturesque feature will be the Geisha Girls from Japan, who make their first appearance here. These eight little maidens from the land of the Mikado have been the sensation of New York this summer. They have a beautiful stage setting and their performance is typically Japanese with singing and dancing features.

Also on the bill are Loverberg's Six American Dancers, who at the conclusion of their engagement at Keith's will sail for London to start a long Continental tour.

Real Estate :: :: :: :: And Improvements

There has been considerable activity in the real estate market on the Gloucester shore of late, most of the sales being made through the office of M. J. Meagher, who handles a greater part of the summer property in this section of the North Shore. One of the latest sales is that of lots Nos. 67, 68, 69, 70, 71 and 72 of the Eastern Point Land Co. to L. E. Smith estate. This property comprises some 350,000 square feet of the finest summer property on Cape Ann. It is the largest sale in Gloucester since J. H. Hammond bought his estate at Fresh Water Cove. It is understood that the purchasers will build a number of large summer houses for investment.

Mr. Meagher has also sold lot No. 66 of the same property, comprising 47,300 square feet to the Mutual Associates. This land is located on the corner of Kernwood, Bemo and St. Louis avenues. It will be developed for summer estate. The lot on the shore near the Patch wall, at the foot of the golf links, comprising

Porch Parlors.

The roof of the house was extended to form a covering for the outdoor living-room and it was supported at the edge by rough notched twin-elm posts, set in a rail of fieldstone, left uncut. The effect was most unique and the whole contrasted admirably with the picturesque rural character of the surroundings.

If the porch parlor is sufficiently large, enclose a portion of it for a sun-room. This is a place that is always enjoyed, even in inclement weather, and in addition can be successfully converted into a conservatory during the winter season.

But it is not alone in spacious outdoor living-rooms that this feature is found, for one of the most interesting sun-parlors I have seen was located at the end of a little porch at the rear of an old-fashioned farmhouse. It was constructed of a quantity of four-by-five photographic plates, which had proved of no use when developed, and were purchased very reasonably from a photographer who was glad to dispose of them. They were inserted into slender laths and firmly puttied, and served the purpose admirably. The work was all done by the son of the house, in leisure moments, and when finished, after weeks of patient toil, was well worth the effort. The cost complete was but ten dollars, and the retreat was a bower of beauty and a source of pleasure the entire year, being transformed into a tiny conservatory during the winter months, and serving the purpose of a tea-room in the summer season, with blossoming plants placed all about.

The floor coverings of the porch parlor are numerous and varied, the favorites being grass mats and rag rugs, although art squares, small woolen rugs and arts and crafts mats are also extensively employed. The grass mats have the advantage of being cool and easily kept clean, but at present are not quite so much sought after as the rag rugs, which come in a variety of soft, dainty colorings and are charming additions to any apartment. They are made in much the same manner as the old-time rag carpets, the difference being not so much in the method of making, as in the contrasting of the colors used, the rugs of today being perfectly harmonious in tone, and not presenting a confusing mass of tints, as did the old ragbag remnants. The art square has the advantage of being able to cover considerable space, and the arts and crafts rugs are always attractive, but to my mind the small woolen rugs are better omitted from the list of porch floor coverings.

Wicker is undoubtedly the most popular porch furniture, and deservedly so, for it combines in construction the desirable qualities of coolness and light weight. It is equally attractive in its natural or light coloring or when stained a soft green. Chairs of this material can be purchased in almost any shape; one of the most comfortable being an adaptation of the old English wing chair, with high back and wing-shaped extensions to the sides, a writing rest being arranged on the right arm, and a magazine pocket on the left arm.

Another comfortable type resembles a couch more than a chair, and is fitted with a very low seat, an adjustable back and a foot rest arranged beneath the chair, which may be drawn out when desired. On either side is contrived a newspaper or book rack, and in the right arm is a round hole sufficiently large to hold a glass of lemonade, or some other cooling drink.

Low, broad settees, very long or of medium length, are very fashionable at the present time, and come in wood, cane or wicker. The first named is generally fitted with cushions which are removable, and which serve as a foundation for the loose pillows scattered about. The cane and wicker settees have no fitted cushions, but are generally piled with downy pillows of all sizes.

Large swings, broad and high, of canvas or wicker, are charming additions to the porch furnishings, and have taken the place to some extent of rocking chairs. Then, too, there is the hammock which is always suggestive of comfort, and can be used in conjunction with the swing without causing a discordant note.

Besides the easy chairs, settee, and swing already referred to, provision should also be made for one low chair, with a comparatively straight back, at which one may sit to pour tea or write. Of course this must not be of the ordinary type of straight back chair used inside the house, but of a specially contrived veranda variety easily obtainable at any furniture establishment.

The selection of a table for the outdoor living-room is an important point but one quite easily decided at the present time with the wealth of designs that are today on the market. A favorite type of table is of medium size, constructed of unstained wicker. It has two rectangular shelves with smaller square shelf on two of the sides between larger ones. It proves an ideal receptacle for books and magazines and also furnishes space for the display of cut flowers. The wicker capstan stool is much used and is handy to hold jardinières filled with palms or plants and then when turned upside down it serves the purpose of a scrap basket.

The tea-wagon is a useful bit of furniture to install in the porch parlor and has been much improved of late. An attractive model, much in demand, is in reality a wicker table with the top sunk in to hold cups and saucers, and fitted at one side with a handle and mounted on two wheels. It is pretty in its natural coloring, but is seemingly preferable when stained a dark green or deep red. Then there is a wicker stand which has come to be considered an important accessory to the tea-wagon. It contains three shelves, placed one below the other, and is convenient to hold plates of cake or other dainties generally served with afternoon tea.

Flowers have come to play a prominent part in the decoration of the outdoor living-room; it has become quite a fad to employ florists to give fragrant finishing touches to furnished porch parlors.

The stone rail lends itself admirably to the effective display of boxes filled with blossoming plants, and some of these rails resemble a bit of an old-time garden, lined as they are with boxes planted with mignonette, heliotrope, and other old-fashioned favorites. The geranium, too, is a favorite plant much used in filling these boxes, and is always pretty, whether employed in a combination of tints, or used in one solid tone.

Nasturtiums are particularly well suited for hanging baskets, which are most attractive when covered with natural-colored rattan. All of these baskets are made with a

Our Weekly Letter From Washington

By F. J. DYER

(Special to the North Shore Breeze)

Washington, July 1.—Within two days the busy nation's capital has been transformed into a deserted village. Not only has Congress closed its doors until the short session shall open in December, but the President has transferred his office to the North Shore of Massachusetts, and many of the diplomats have followed him there; others going to Atlantic City, some to other resorts, and a few going to their native lands on leaves of absence.

Everybody else in Washington who is not tied down here by business, family affairs, or just pure poverty, has also shaken the dust from his feet, and is doing the best he can to enjoy life under more benign skies and amid more enticing surroundings.

During the next few months Washington will be one of the duller places within the confines of the United States. The only thing which will redeem it from entire oblivion as far as the news columns of the press are concerned is the fact that the various departments of the Government will continue to do business at the old stand it matters not that summer has been ushered in with a temperature of 103 degrees and more in the shade, according to one of the Weather Bureau's thermometers conveniently located at a street intersection where the passing populace may stop a moment just to learn how much it is really suffering; it matters not that with an unusually cool and rainy spring the weather man is disposed to believe that we shall suffer more in proportion during the months to come; it matters not that the army of government employees with only one month's leave of absence coming to them are trying to the best of their ability to distribute that leave of absence over as much of the heated spell as possible—the fact remains that the machinery of the government continues to go on and the press bureaus of various departments will continue to grind on ready-made news which occasionally has a flavor greatly resembling that made by the vulgar press agent of commerce. It therefore follows that the hundreds of newspapers throughout the country maintaining special correspondents in Washington, and whose readers are accustomed to daily installments of news and comment from capital must keep their offices open and the drainage; so that flowers thrive well in them. Among the larger flowering plants, which are suited to decorate the porch steps, is the hydrangea, which is a free bloomer, and is most attractive when planted in a soft blue Japanese crock. These plants are also pretty to place about the interior of the porch parlor.

Vines are useful as screens, and at the same time possess decorative qualities. The crimson Rambler rose is most attractive and easily grown, and the Virgin's Bower vine is particularly well adapted to the outdoor living-room, its thick growth serving admirably as a screening, and then, too, it has a long season of bloom during which time it presents a snowy bank of star-shaped flowers of delightful fragrance. The Clematis is one of the best of vines, and when in flower displays a mass of downy, white blossoms. It is particularly effective when used in conjunction with the coccinea, whose rose-colored blooms resemble half-closed rosebuds at a distance. Then there are the wistaria, honeysuckle, Virginia creeper, and numerous other vines, all finely suited to ornament the outline rail and roof supports of the outdoor living-room.

And yet there are people who come to Washington to spend the summer. Shades of Pluto! The Washingtonians will never cease to wonder what kind of a climate those people endure when at home.

This does not apply, of course, to the large number of people who come to Washington every summer simply to see the sights. Probably there is no place in America which holds the concentrated interest for tourists that Washington does. Undesirable as most people consider the city from a residential point of view, it must be admitted that it is one of the strongest drawing cards held by the tourist agencies. First of all, the city itself as the nation's capital is a place of surpassing interest. Its unique plan, its broad avenues, its tree-arched thoroughfares, its numerous parks and public places, its innumerable statutes—some of them to be sure, conceits in pot metal and vile samples of the founder's art—make Washington a city which the stranger will always find interesting for itself alone. Then the city has its historic shrines, its Capitol, the White House, the huge buildings, more or less bizarre, housing the various departments, and many private residences of really palatial aspect. But of all the sights in or around Washington there is nothing which carries such a lasting and perennial charm as Mount Vernon, the beautiful sylvan home of the first president of the Republic, situated in a most commanding location overlooking the Potomac River.

Senator Dixon of the Committee on Military Affairs submitted a minority report on June 17 regarding the bill to increase the Engineer Corps of the Army. The minority declared its belief that it would be unwise at this time to increase the Engineer Corps until there was urgent need of it when bills were pending for the increase of six other branches of the military service. These bills were as follows: To increase the Signal Corps, to reorganize the Corps of Dental Surgeons, to increase the Judge-Advocate General's Department, to add over 600 officers to the army, to add 42 officers to the General Staff, to increase the Quartermaster's Department. The minority report said:

"If this bill to increase the engineer's corps at this time becomes a law, the increase that will necessarily follow in all the other branches of the military service will entail more than $2,000,000 increase in the pay of officers alone in the military establishment, for there are now in the Engineers Corps 188 officers and 202 civilian engineers who do work on the rivers and harbors."

The report said that if it were the plan to put army officers on irrigation work, the minority was opposed to that idea, as the additional cost of displacing young civil engineers by highly paid army officers would add to the cost of the land to poor settlers who in the end must meet the cost of construction.

It seems probable now that before the investigating committee shall have given its report on the Ballinger-ranchot case to the public, interest in the matter will have died out almost completely. The public, with the aid of numerous moulders of public opinion throughout the country, has already pronounced its verdict. That part of the public which has decided that Ballinger has been unjustly accused is just as sincere and firm in its convictions as that other portion of the public which is firmly convinced that Ballinger is unfit for public office and ought in decency to resign from the service. As for the committee which seemed through hearings to be as badly divided on the subject as the public itself, there is no present prospect of its announcing a decision. Chairman Nelson, when asked about it a few days ago, replied that he was utterly unable to say when the findings of the committee would be made public. He was equally unable to surmise what the findings would be, and while he admitted that he would like to give expression to a few thoughts upon the subject, he said that he felt it necessary to restrain himself until after the committee had given its findings to the public. Senator Nelson has been quoted as saying that the Territory of Alaska needed the development more than conservation, or words to that effect.

BUFFETS

My! How they smack of the smart! They've just good style stamped all over them, and they are the best made things, almost, in our whole big store.

The stock that's put into them is excellent, and the greatest care is used in their finish.

This one, with pride, we call to your attention. It is a mass of great wide flakes of quartered oak up and down the entire front, which is divided into a long linen drawer at the bottom, divided closets in the centre, and two wavy curved drawers at the top.

The mirror arches on the sides and is of beautiful crystal bevel plate.

Two tiny shelves are prettily arranged in front of the glass, and the entire piece speaks volumes for the designer. The price tag tells our part in its beauty.

'Tis but $26.00

And a wonder at that!

We've a host of pretty round Tables to match up with it.

MANCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 8, 1910.

SOCIETY NOTES

Fair skies smiled on the Essex County club Wednesday afternoon, and a cool breeze blew across the green lawn to the tent in front of the club house and the well shaded verandas. The first Wednesday afternoon band concert was not as largely attended as most of those of last season, but there was a crowd of fully two hundred people on hand before the concert was over. There were being given by Mrs. Rufus F. Greeley, who had covers two dozen people at the club for lunch, one of the parties for eight. Dr. L. Venon Briggs and Mrs. R. J. Monks were others having small parties. Among the many noticed at the club Wednesday afternoon were Mrs. Samuel Culbertson and Craig Culbertson, her son; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Palmer of Cleveland; Mrs. R. F. Greeley, Miss Marion Greeley, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Clement, two sons and daughter; the Misses Kay of East Gloucester; Mrs. Charles deRham, Miss Marion Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Monks, Miss Grace Monks, Mrs. William Bagnell and Miss Effie Bagnell of the Oceanside, Mrs. S. E. Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. D. Herbert Hostetter, Mrs. W. Harry Brown and Miss Brown, Mrs. E. M. Wheelwright, Mrs. Arthur D. Cook, Misses Alice and Olivia Thorndike.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Magill of New York, who are occupying one of the Kimball cottages, at Manchester, left Thursday for a motor trip to the White Mountains.

—x—

The entertainment committee of the Essex County club is arranging for two dinner dances at the club on Friday evenings, July 29th and August 19th. These parties proved so popular last season and were so largely attended, that it is safe to say the announcement of the continuation of these functions will be very popularly met. The entertainment committee of the club is composed of Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Mrs. Philip Dexter, Mrs. Lester Leland and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas. The dinner will be served promptly at 8 o'clock. Tables must be secured from the steward and will be reserved in the order of application, as the number of tables is limited. It is understood that if the demand is sufficient a third dance may be given early in September.

—x—

At "Allanbank," her attractive summer home at Beverly Cove, Mrs. Bryce J. Allan gave a dinner party of twelve covers last Saturday evening.

—x—

Dr. and Mrs. Maynard Ladd of Boston, who have settled at the Morgan cottage on Proctor street, Manchester, for several weeks, had a few friends in to dinner Monday night. Dinner was served on the piazza, and the illumination and fireworks in the village across the harbor was enjoyed in the evening.

—x—

James Means and family are not to be at their cottage on Smith's Point, Manchester, again this summer, having taken a cottage at Mattapoisett, Mass., for the season. One of the sons, James MacGregor Means is spending the summer at Camp Choconut, Friendville, Penn.

SOCIETY NOTES

Congressman John W. Dwight of New York and Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Dwight, who have been touring New England in a big motor car arrived at the Oceanside in Magnolia Tuesday for a two-day visit among friends along the North Shore. Mr. Dwight is a representative in Congress from New York state, and after his trip will return to his estate at Dryden, N. Y. He and Mrs. Dwight travelled all the way from Washington in the machine and will go through Maine and the White Mountains before going home. While in Magnolia they went to Beverly Cove and were guests of President and Mrs. Taft on the yacht Sylph. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Beekman Winthrop. Mr. Winthrop is assistant secretary of the Navy. Mr. Dwight was also a guest at luncheon of John Hays Hammond after golf at Myopia and on Wednesday morning before leaving the Tennis cottage where they were assigned apartments, he paid his respects to Justice Moody who is convalescing at his cottage overlooking the sea at Magnolia.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Heinz of Pittsburg were recent guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Lancashire at their summer home in Manchester.

—x—

Mrs. E. V. R. Thayer and daughter, Miss Susan Thayer arrived at West Manchester, Wednesday afternoon from their home in Lancaster. They are to spend the balance of July and August at the Eben D. Jordan house, while the Jordans are in Europe. Mrs. Thayer's son, E. V. R. Thayer, Jr., and Mrs. Thayer are leaving Lancaster next week for a visit with Mr. Thayer's married sister, Mrs. Howland Russell at North Haven, Me. They will come to Manchester later for a visit with Mrs. Thayer, Jr.'s family, the H. Mortimer Brookses, who are to have the G. M. Lane house late this month for six weeks.

—x—

Mrs. Oliver Ames gave an informal party at her Pride's Crossing home last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ames came on to Pride's Crossing from their country estate at North Easton a fortnight ago.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Gildersleeve of Baltimore have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane and family at Manchester. They went over to East Gloucester Wednesday for an extended visit. On the same day, Mr. Lane's sister, Mrs. Van Rensselaer of Albany came to Manchester for a short visit. Mr. and Mrs. Lane and daughter are sailing the 20th of this month for Europe to spend the balance of the summer. The H. Mortimer Brooks family of New York, who are at Newport, are coming to the North Shore to take the Lane house for the balance of the summer.

—x—

The tennis dance given at the Town hall in Hamilton by Mrs. George von L. Meyer was attended by all of the young people from along the North Shore last Monday night. There were about 160 present. The young men and women were in tennis costume, which made it a decidedly novel affair.

Water Gardens

By MARY H. NORTHEND

Without water lilies of some sort the modern garden can scarcely be called complete, so potent is the indefinable but altogether delightful charm possessed by aquatic plants. Whether it is their suggestion of luxurious tropical climes, the delicate beauty of form and coloring embodied in their blossoms, or their delicious fragrance which most strongly appeals to the flower lover, it would be difficult to say. It is a fact, however, that a lily pool, be it large or small, is a source of perpetual pleasure during the summer months, and fortunately aquatics are comparatively easy of culture.

The queen of all water lilies is undoubtedly the magnificent Victoria regia, which is a native of the rivers and streams of Brazil. This wonderful plant produces gigantic blossoms of unsurpassed splendor when left unmolested in its South American haunts, but it does not take kindly to our colder northern climate. It is a hopeless task to undertake growing this tropical beauty in an outdoor pool, for without artificial heat beneath the tank it will seldom thrive. Furthermore, even under favorable circumstances it is a costly experiment which the amateur will do well to leave to a more experienced florist, while he devotes his own time and energies to the more hardy varieties of water lilies.

Probably the most satisfactory plant, judging from its beauty and the facility with which it adapts itself to varying climates and conditions, is the Nymphaea, or floating pond lily, with which nearly everyone is familiar. A native of the streams and lakes of the eastern half of the United States, the Nymphaea odorata, or common sweet scented white lily, is hardy and well adapted for water gardening. Once well established it will thrive almost anywhere and its fragrant blossoms and glossy pads are a constant delight to the eye from June until September.

Included among the hardy Nymphaeas are several varieties of colored lilies which afford a charming contrast when planted in combination with the white species. One of the very earliest kinds is the Marliacea rosea, a lovely rose-colored lily, which often makes its appearance long before the Nymphaea odorata has begun to put forth buds. The Marliacea chromatella is among the most satisfactory of all yellow water lilies and is also an early and persistent bloomer. Both are strong growers and as hardy as to require very little protection even during the cold winter months. Except in climates where there is danger of a pond freezing to the bottom, any of the Nymphaeas named may be safely left uncovered. North of New Jersey it is usually a wise precaution to drain the water from the lily pool in the autumn and cover the plants with a thick mulch of dry leaves or straw. Over all should be arranged a water-shed of boards to keep the basin dry and thus prevent the roots of the plants from freezing. If such a protection is afforded them until the frost is well out of the ground in the spring, Nymphaeas may be grown in any part of the country with little danger of loss.

Another lily which has been found admirably adapted for planting in America is the lotus, or Nelumbium. From China and Japan this sacred flower, which is so inseparably intertwined with the art and mythology of the ancient Egyptians, is imported to this country to ornament the pools and water gardens of the well-to-do. Its beautiful blossoms of soft rose color are held well above the water and continue from July till October, adding much to the charm of any garden. Hardy and vigorous, the lotus thrives amid almost any surroundings, once it is thoroughly established. It can, however, be raised only from imported seeds, since for some unknown reason those produced by American grown plants lack fertility.

In addition to the rose-colored exotic there is the native American lotus, which is sometimes known as the water chinquapin. Throughout July and August this plant bears magnificent pale yellow blossoms, closely resembling the common white pond lily in form and varying from five to ten inches in diameter. Like the Egyptian lotus this variety is a rapid grower and throws out stocky horizontal rhizomes which have a tendency to circle around the edge of a pool, crowding the Nymphaeas and other floating lilies into the center and effectually concealing them from view by means of their tall foliage. For this reason it is always advisable to plant lotus in a pool by itself, or at least to take the precaution of walling off a portion of the pond where it may grow without interfering with other aquatic plants.

Among the more tender species of lily, nothing is lovelier than the Zanzibars. These are surprisingly easy of culture and their beauty amply compensates one for the winter care which they require. Since they cannot be allowed to remain out of doors after the frost comes, it is best to plant them in tubs, allowing three or four plants to one tub for the first season and later dividing them as they mature. If arranged in this way the lilies can be readily lifted from the water in the autumn and removed to a warm cellar to be stored until spring. Zanzibariensis rosea is a pink lily of delicate coloring and delightful fragrance, while Zanzibariensis azure produces magnificent syk-blue blossoms. WATER PLANTS though usually small the first season, these lilies frequently measure from six to ten inches in diameter when the plants have reached maturity.

In connection with the subject of water lilies it is necessary to say a few words in regard to the construction of artificial pools. First of all, they must be absolutely water tight, and it is also important that they be proof against frost, if they are to be of any permanent value. There are, of course, ways of building basins for temporary use at very slight expense, but a tank that is to withstand the ravages of time and weather successfully must be well constructed. Concrete, combined with brick or stone, is undoubtedly the most satisfactory material for this purpose. A basin constructed with a solid concrete bottom and walls of brick, finished with cement and flaring outward sufficiently to allow the expansion of the water within when it freezes is to be recommended. Carefully constructed, such a pool will last for years and is sure to prove in the end quite as economical as a cheaper one which is constantly in need of repairs.

The regulation depth for a lily pool is two feet. Of this space, twelve inches is occupied by a layer of marsh earth, well enriched and plants, such as the Anacharis canadensis gigantea, serve to purify the water, and either goldfish or sunfish may be relied upon to destroy the larvae of troublesome insects. Both kind of fish must never be put in the same pool, however, for the covered with a light top dressing of clean white sand. A few submerged sunfish will invariably kill their weaker neighbors.

PRESIDENT TAFT ON "WHO'S WHO."

Snapped in His Auto and Used for Cover Design.

The annual book "Who's Who Along the North Shore" is now in press, and we have been favored with advance sheets and a proof of the cover design, which is a splendid reproduction of a snap shot of President Taft in his White Steamer, taken by the "Who's Who" photographer just at the turn in the road leading to the President's summer home. The picture is a very animated one, full of action, with Miss Helen Taft seated beside her father and Capt. Butt on the seat with the driver.

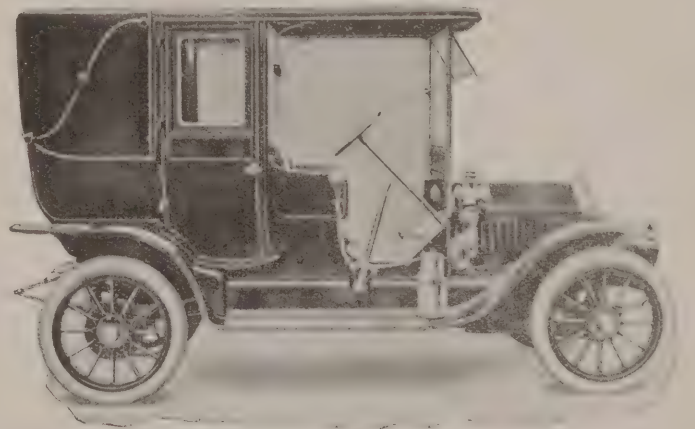

A glance at the sheet for the text shows that the work has been thoroughly done, giving as far as possible information about every person on the shore as follows: Street address at shore; name of cottage, winter residence; business address; name of firm; kind of business; wife's maiden name; name of children; and children's ages.

Last year's volume elicited very favorable comments. We heard one who spends his summers here, declare it to be the most thorough and accurate book of the kind he ever saw, adding that he found use for it as much in the winter at home as he did here in the summer. Besides, nearly every one in position to know admits it to be the handsomest and most attractive book of the kind published.

We are informed that the new book will be much larger than last year's, making between 350 and 400 pages. The price is $2.50, and the Breeze will have copies for immediate delivery as soon as out. The book will probably be ready for distribution tomorrow.

THIS STABLEMAN KEEPS PACE WITH THE TIMES

William M. Stevens, proprietor of the Union Stables, Beverly is one of the best known stablemen along the North Shore keeping pace with the times in that he is gradually substituting taxis and autos for his horses as a mode of public conveyance. Early in the spring Mr. Stevens bought a handsome seven-passenger Buick car for use at the Beverly station. He also maintains a string of cabs at the station, and as the passenger alights from the train he may travel by horse or by auto,—just as his inclination and his pocketbook dictates. The auto may be engaged for a spin along the North Shore to Manchester or Gloucester, or to the Summer White House. Mr. Stevens has added another motor car to his equipment this week and is now ready to attend all calls at any time, day or night.

Although the younger of the Oceanside guests are enjoying the Wednesday and Saturday night hops which are attracting also many of the cottagers along the North Shore, everyone at this popular hostelry is talking of the tennis ball which will follow the tennis tournament for the amateur championships which is to be started July 25. This ball will be one of the novel events of the vacation season at Magnolia if the plans of those in charge are carried out, after the fashion of most Oceanside affairs. Because of the expected large number of entries for the tournament, the event should last about two weeks, so that notwithstanding it will be some time before the ball, all of the younger set are especially active in seeing that everything is done toward its success. The committee in charge of the tournament are E. H. Gurney, Reginald Kennard and Sherman Panhallow.

A very interesting and elaborate event on the Cliff club's social calendar was the dinner party last week given by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Shuman of Boston and Marblehead Neck. It was in observance of their wooden anniversary, and was given in the Colonial dining room of the club. Covers were spread for sixteen guests. The decorations were of white tulle and red and white roses and the favors were wooden Dutch shoes. The costumes of the women present were very beautiful. The club had a display of fireworks on the holiday. These summer evenings jolly groups are being served with light refreshments on the lawn under the spreading boughs of the stately trees. Among the guests introduced, recently were Admiral Domeca Garcia of Buenos Ayres, who was in the party with Fred Wood of Boston, Mrs. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Henri Desmond of Boston and Archibald Johnston, Bethlehem, Pa. Exhibition of Miniatures.

At the London Studios, 28 Central street, Manchester, will be opened on Monday next, an exhibition of old miniatures on ivory. The collection is large and contains a number of interesting and valuable old miniatures of the various European schools, many of the works being extremely rare. There are numerous portraits of celebrities. Two good examples of Cosway and several other early British miniaturists are to be remarked. Along with the miniatures there are many interesting oil paintings on view, including two small portraits painted by Sir Thomas Lawrence, one of his uncle and the other of his cousin. There is an interesting portrait of Kemble, the actor, by George Clint, an artist who made a specialty of painting likenesses of actors; also portraits by Sir Peter Lely, Sir Godfrey Kneller, Sir David Wilkel, Temers, Pourbus and a small but extremely well-made head attributed to Gainsborough. There is a "Madonna and Child" here which Mr. Bernard Berenson pronounces a Titian. The London Studios is quite a little Cluny Museum, presenting a most interesting collection of antique and historic furniture, and all sorts of curios and bric-à-brac, including a collection of cameos and some notable specimens of mosaic work and enamels. It is a distinctly interesting place to visit, and is beginning to be a resort for collectors in search of rare things. The London Studios, Inc., hails from London, England, and have stores also in Paris and Boston.

The Atlantic Seashore Development.

Article IX.—Famous Island Resorts.

The shores of Connecticut bordering on the Long Island Sound do not properly come under the caption of these articles. Also they have been now long developed and pre-empted for homes. But it is well to call attention to them as instructive in prophesying the future of other shores.

With cities like New Rochelle, Stamford, the Norwalks, Bridgeport, New Haven, New London and others strung along the edge of the North Shore of Long Island Sound the intervening waterfront has long ago become the home of the wealthy suburbanites and the field for the unfolding of popular summer resorts and beautiful estates.

From Throg's Neck to Buzzard's Bay it is one continuous series of reserved seats before Neptune's marine stage, where passes continually a panorama of every imaginable craft in a roadstead from the Gulf of Mexico to the St. Lawrence for the commerce of the greatest continent on earth, presenting a scene of which the soul of the seashore idler never tires. Here then are shores of rare beauty and limitless attraction easily reached by both palatial steamers and trains leading the van of the hosts gathering along the Atlantic.

The real initial trend of seashore homes along permanent lines really began here in far famed Newport, also Narragansett, Watch Hill, and other places now as eagerly sought as any. But Newport leads them all in having first established the idea of palace homes along the surf-swept ocean heights now considered everywhere as the "correct thing" among the millionaire "smart set." Newport is now but one of many American resorts that rank with famous old world watering places and outrank some of those faded European resorts in the regal splendor of estates.

The great islands off this coast of New England present an interesting study. These surf-encircled shores, once desolate and barren, whose loneliness echoed only with the boom of the breakers and the sea gulls scream, now resound to the sharp flapping of the sails of racing boats coming about and echo with the sputtering of tight motor boats and the euphonious signals of the millionaire's yacht.

The unprecedented yearly increase in summer residents astonishes the quaint old fisher folk who cannot keep up with the rush for accommodations for the stranger among whom are throngs of hearty westerners who come to look up locations where they finally settle with the air and solid comfort and luxury of people who have come to stay.

Seven miles seaward from New London is Fisher's Island, a popular seaside resort constantly growing in favor.

Block Island—romantic "Isle of Manisses," as it lays twenty-five miles out in the blue sea, is truly an ocean resort where wind and wave play unhindered over and around the throngs that come and go during the season. A stay here surpasses an ocean voyage. With concerts on the beach, with bathing, yachting, canoeing in the sheltered coves, with the excitement of fishing for shark, swordfish and blue fish in the deep sea, and with tennis, golf, teas, fish dinners, bridge parties and dancing on shore what more could the beaux and belles of the seashore demand? And laden with the stimulating salty tang of the sea, one is continually breathing in big lungfuls of this ocean air for the very joy of breathing.

And then there is the lure of old Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket. Why search far afield for the ideal summer retreat with these varied and beautiful ocean isles so near at hand? Why travel the whole world round for a quaint setting to one's dreams when it is found on our own shores? The dingy corners of the old world hold nothing more rare, more alluring. Here are old-fashioned villages centuries now in mellowing. Here are quaint character sketches in human nature in habits and forms of speech beyond the story teller's art to reveal and found only in life's realism, the true charm of plain folk, good simple folks, found in but few places in this new world of ours. The whole situation on land and sea has the flavor of some ripe old vintage about it that cheers and invigorates the jaded soul of the artificial dwellers of Gotham.

Nothing can surpass the charm of these sedative old towns with artistic urns in some fine road, evolved from a cowpath, to its final lazy windings across the whispering moors. Here the clatter and whirl of manufacturers, the ceaseless roar of toil is left far behind. This is the land of rest, not the mart of grinding activity.

The climate has the lulling, dreamy effect of some southern isles without, however, the enervating influence found in those latitudes. And yet with all this quieting and soothing effect upon mind and body there is nothing dull here. People have been coming here now for over half a century to enjoy this peculiar rest and recreation of these rare islands.

Nantucket has shown a spirit of progress in a notable achievement during the past year in completing a new railroad system linking every town and community within its borders. And cottages have grown up everywhere on Martha's Vineyard and estates of ever increasing size and luxury are continually crowding the shores and hilltops, and from the porches of these summer homes the eyes are feasted upon such views as Vineyard Haven, and marine glasses widen a vision of seashore glory unmatched for interest and charm.

The waters of Vineyard and Nantucket Sounds are tempered to a degree where the bathing is simply ideal and the most delicate can live in and on the water for hours with perfect safety and delight.

Boat racing, from the dingy fisherman's dory to the trim racing yachts, and water sports of all sorts are arranged in meets and carnivals of continual gaiety.

This is the place of revelry in sea food in an endless round of cod, haddock, mackerel, sea trout and many other variety of fish, to clams, scallops and lucious lobsters and crabs, climaxed by genuine old fashioned clam bakes, clam chowders and fish dinners to make the most pessimistic dyspeptic sit up and take notice.

But it is said you cannot drive these foolish fishes from these shores. They love these islands and tradition says that often the overloaded fisherman—how overloaded is not explained—are compelled to feed them ginger cookies, which they come and eat out of the fisherman's hand, before they can be persuaded not to overcrowd the boats.

The Creator has been kind to old New England's shores, but nowhere more kind than in the gift of these island gems. And He has not made any more like them so charmingly and centrally located in the choicest center of the civilized world.

PARAPHRASES

I.

(Emerson)

Easy in solitude
To live aright
In all the soul's completeness,
Greater, amid the multitude,
Still to be true to right
And keep with perfect sweetness,
The freedom born of solitude.

II.

(Ingersoll)

When the day is done
And the work, though slight,
Is finished beneath the sun,
When the gold of eve
Meets the dusk of night,
'Neath the silent stars of the upper deep
The tired laborer falls asleep.

III.

(Landor)

When Love doth find the soul,
The body is as nought
And only turns to it
As to an afterthought.
Its best allurements at the last
Are but the nuts and figs of the divine repast.

IV.

(Chs. Wagner)

Our needs
Grow with our satisfactions.
And our greeds
Still more imperious in their exactions.
A lot so glad, so sad, so bad,
And so lamented—
Both satisfied and discontented!

V.

(Margaret Fuller)

Reverence the highest,
Be patient with the lowest.
Are the stars too distant?
Regard the thing that's nighest.
Still persistent,
Pick the pebble at thy feet
As thou goest.

VI.

(Mark Twain)

[This is a versified inquiry
Taken from Pudd'n-Head Wilson's diary.]
If you would habit break,
What is the course that you would take?
Would you with the tenderest care,
Lead it downward stair by stair,
Or, without pity or parley or wait,
Throw it out of the window straight?

VII.

(Walt Whitman)

This dust was once a man
Of rarest traits:
Gentle, plain, resolute,
Under whose cautious hand,
Against the foulest crime
Of any land or time,
Was saved the Union of these States.
—Joseph A. Torrey in the Boston Transcript.

RANDOM THOUGHTS.

By D. F. LAMSON.

No. LV.

The discomfort of hot weather may be more easily borne when we stop to think how needful it is to all vegetable, and so to all animal life; if the heat of summer were not experienced, we may be sure that some worse things would be.

A man distinguished for culture and position, referring to the responsibility of preachers and public speakers, has lately said that he was often afraid at the thought of addressing the audiences that he met; many of his hearers of not half his years or wisdom or experience would no doubt scorn the idea of being afraid of appearing before any audience they did not know enough to be afraid; certain persons we are told, rush in where angels fear to tread.

A great many spend weeks at the seaside and the mountains, and all the memories that they have to bring home are those of balls and flirtations, of dinner parties and tennis courts and golf links; while others live again for months in the remembrance of sunsets, and mountain vistas, and forest depths, and the many-twinkling smile of ocean, and the music of its surge. So true is it that there must be the inward sense for the outward world to appeal to, that we "receive but what we give, and in our life alone does nature live."

The great advance in public sentiment in England and America in favor of arbitration and the limitation of armaments, is one of the most hopeful of recent indications of national sanity; when nations are controlled by common sense war will be a thing abhorred like the fabled Minotaur or Victor Hugo's devilfish; the wonder will be that men calling themselves civilized once resorted to it as a means of redressing national grievances or of settling national disputes of boundary or jurisdiction, of enlarging their borders or increasing their wealth.

The material prosperity of the country is increasing by leaps and bounds; but this hardly overbalances the loss of some things among us; what can compensate for the passing of the frugal comfort, contentment and intelligence that once characterized rural New England? Is the vastly greater luxury and display of the present day to be valued for a moment with the solid virtues of thrift, economy and independence once common in all our country towns?

To put oneself or one's preferences foremost is mark of a narrow, small, selfish nature, as to think of other's convenience or happiness first is certainly a sign of a broad, generous and noble soul.

In the nice "ear of Nature," at this tuneful season, there are many grades of harmony but no discord; what seems so to us is but the reflection of our dull sense; had we an ear as perfectly attuned as Nature's is, the disharmonies and dissonances that often jar upon us would resolve themselves into a majestic anthem, its keynote "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Manchester Playgrounds.

The Brooks street playgrounds at Manchester, after months of work, is now in readiness for the boys and girls who care to use it. The baseball diamond is in condition to use from now on. The school committee has awarded the contract for the playground apparatus to the A. G. Spalding Co. of Chicago, and a prompt delivery is expected. On one end of the long steel frame will be four swings. Next to this will be two parallel bars, a trapeze and two swinging rings. There will be teeter boards for the young people,—four in one set. There will also be a giant stride of six rings. All the apparatus will be made from Ford's galvanized steel and is warranted and guaranteed for five years by the Spalding Co. Under the trees are five sand pens for the little tots. The tennis courts are already in use. The committee has completed the work, for which $2000 was appropriated, within the appropriation.

hardest worked machines in town today. It is working 24 hours each day—three shifts of eight hours each. The Breeze has just completed setting the type for a monthly magazine published at the Portsmouth Navy Yard. It is also setting the type for the list of polls of the City of Salem, a job that in itself takes one man's time, for over two weeks. The City charter for the City of Beverly is another one of the many jobs being composed at our office at the present time, all of which would tend to show that this piece of up-to-date machinery is very much in demand by outside printers. The machine is the latest model and most up-to-date. It has filled a valuable place in the Breeze equipment since last February.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy A. Wheaton are on a two weeks' vacation trip to Maine.

Miss Annie Knight is spending a few weeks with her sister, Miss E. S. Knight and family, School street.

Mrs. Mabel Putney and daughters, Lidorra and Beatrice of Springfield are the guests of Mrs. Anna Phillips, School street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Edgecomb of Cambridge were guests over the Fourth of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Edgecomb, Forest street.

Mrs. Mary A. C., widow of Charles H. Sheldon, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Minnie L. Bates, Salem, last Sunday. She was born in Andover and was 79 years old. Most of her life she spent in Manchester. She is survived by a son, Albert Sheldon, two daughters, Mrs. Susan, wife of Franklin K. Hooper of this town and Mrs. Bates of Salem.

Mrs. Jeffrey T. Stanley returned Wednesday from a short visit with her son in Woburn.

Albert P. Richardson and family spent the holiday in town with Mr. Richardson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Richardson, Ashland avenue.

Deputy Allen S. Peabody and chiefs will go to Lynn next Thursday evening to raise up the officers of the tribe of Red Men of which he is deputy.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goldsmith of Winthrop have been spending a part of the week in town with Mr. Goldsmith's mother, Mrs. Upton Goldsmith, School street.

The Selectmen received word this morning from the Board of Railroad Commissioners saying that the petition had been granted, and the B. & M. R.R. will be instructed to install a bell alarm at the Beach street crossing in addition to a gate-tender now maintained there.

John Spinney narrowly escaped serious injury or death when he started to drive across the railroad tracks at Boardman Crossing after a train had passed last Friday. The first train made so much noise in passing that he did not hear the shrieking whistle of the engine of a freight coming from the opposite direction until it was almost upon him. Pulling his horse short, he held the animal in check close to the passing cars and fortunately neither he nor the animal was hurt.

A motor boat party of Beverly young people hit upon a most unique way of celebrating the Fourth. They came down the shore to take in the sports at Manchester in the morning, but as they reached the flats off Norton's Point, they decided they would spend the balance of afternoon there instead of proceeding to the wharf farther up the harbor. The next time they come to Manchester, probably they will bring a chart with them and follow the snake-like channel instead of cutting across the lots over the partly inundated mud flats.

The drug clerks' ball, one of the select dancing parties of the summer at Manchester, will be held in the Town hall on Thursday evening, August, 25.

The District Nursing Association Fund.

During the coming week all residents of Manchester will receive an appeal for a contribution to the fund, which is being raised for the support of a district nurse in the town.

The committee of the Woman's club, issuing these appeals, earnestly desires that every citizen may have a share in the establishment of this good work. No one need feel that any amount he is able to give is either too small or too large.

A dime is better than no contribution, and is acceptable on the principle that every little helps. While, on the other hand, it is well for the generous giver to remember that although a certain sum is necessary for the first year's expenses, it is desirable to have a surplus fund for future use, and give accordingly.

Let us make the establishment of the District Nursing Association a civic work in which every family in Manchester has some share.

SUCCESSFUL CELEBRATION.

Manchester's Safe and Sane Fourth Brought Most Gratifying Results

The efforts of all concerned to make this year's celebration of Independence Day in Manchester "safe and sane" was crowned with success, for not only was the day celebrated in such a way as to lack the un-sane and boisterous features of former years, but a program was carried out that proved highly entertaining for the citizens as a whole. Hundreds of people were attracted here from surrounding towns.

It was a very quiet "night before." It was long after midnight before any semblance of a July 4th celebration was evident.

The horrible parade was a splendid success. Nearly the whole town turned out to see the parade, and from Beverly Farms and other surrounding towns came scores of people. The parade started at 6:30 from in front of the Breeze office on Beach street. Hundreds of the summer people turned out for this feature, and not a few took an active part in the parade.

The parade was headed by a detail of mounted police and Chief Marshall Fred K. Swett and his aids, D. T. Beaton, L. N. Cook, Bernard Boyle and Alfred Hooper. The Boys Brigade in fancy costume furnished the marching music with a large drum corps. John Connors, dressed as a Teddy bear followed in a two horse hitch bearing a masked personage taking off Col. Roosevelt. The outfit was called "Teddy's return." Teddy was given a rousing ovation all along the line.

The Manchester Club's entries came next in line. This was headed by a small detail of fake police and a drum corps specially made for the occasion. The club had three floats, —one a take off on the recent bake-house fire; another on the afternoon whist, showing the "ladies" playing whist in one half of the float, and the husbands at home taking care of baby and doing the house work in the other half; another float was a slap at the school committee. The most comical feature was the water board "auto wagon", —a hit on the local water board.

Next in line came the "joy riders." The little son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kuhn in Indian costume, riding on his pony was next. Other features in the line included a beautiful float by the Daughters of Rebekah, showing Rebekah with her urn at the well. Misses Alice and Olivia Thorndike in a harvesting rig. The Harmony Guild. The W. R. C., showing tent and soldier boys with the army nurses. Mrs. Verry's decorated auto. The Woman's club district nurse float. In the Industrial division were Magnuson & Hylan, florists; Roberts & Hoare; D. M. Knight's express; G. W. Hooper, grocer, three wagons; E. A. Lane, painter; F. W. Bell & Son; L. W. Floyd, the novelty store; E. L. Valentine's market; Smith's express, seven wagons; Bullock Bros., one auto.

The winners in the three divisions were as follows:

Antique and Horrible division—1st prize, Manchester Club, bakery fire; 2d, joy riders, Carter and Joseph; 3d, Manchester Club, woman's whist; honorable mention, auto wagon, hokeypokey cart, Roosevelt's return.

Floral and artistic division—1st prize, Woman's Relief Corps; 2d Harmony Guild; 3d Manchester Woman's Club; special mention and particularly artistic, "A Harvesting Cart," entered by Misses Alice and Olivia Thorndike; honorable mention, Daughters of Rebekah float; Mrs. Verry, automobile.

Industrial division—1st prize, Valentine's market; 2d, Magnuson & Hylan, florists; special mention, Walter R. Bell, shoes and gentlemen's furnishings.

At nine o'clock some sports were run off on the common, in which the boys under 16 took part. The result of the various contests were as follows:

Snake race:—1st prize ($1.00) Knight, G. Baker, Purdy, H. Baker, Walsh. 2d prize (50c) Jackson, Odenthal, Hartley, Coughlin, Angus.

Potato race:—1st prize ($2.00) W. Slade, 2nd prize ($1.00) Alfred Needham.

Sack race:—1st prize ($1.00) Manuel Miguel, jr. 2d prize (50c), Orien Chadwick.

Basket ball—1st prize ($1.00) Knight, G. Baker, Purdy, Walsh, H. Baker, 2d prize (50c) Jackson, Odenthal, Hurley, Slade, Angus.

Pie race—1st prize (50c) Alfred Needham. 2nd prize (25c) Henry Odenthal.

Obstacle race—1st prize ($1.00) W. Slade. 2nd prize (50c) Orien Chadwick.

The afternoon sports at the beach drew out a big crowd. Everybody joined in the parade, following the Salem Cadet band on the arrival of the 1:32 train. Part of the sports were held in the field of the Masco-nomo house, adjoining the beach and the rest on the beach. The summary:

Broad Jump—1st prize, William Mulligan; 2nd, Benjamin Devine; 3rd, Willard Rust.

Pole Vault—1st prize, Gordon Slade; 2nd Arthur Gould; 3rd, David McNeil.

High Jump—1st prize, Allen McKinnon; 2nd, Oliver Church; 3rd, Willard Rust.

100-yard Dash—1st prize, William Sheehan; 2nd, Oliver Church; 3rd, Albert Coffin.

440-yard Relay Race—1st prize, William Sheehan; 2nd, William Mulligan; 3rd, Willard Rust.

880-yard Run—1st prize, Albert Coughlin; 2nd, David McNeill.

Quoits—1st prize, Otis Lee and Alex Carter; 2nd, John Riggs and William Cook; 3rd, Burgess and Everett Smothers.

The exhibition by the life saving crew from Dolliver's neck was not as satisfactory as expected, but the fault was not with the crew. The strong undertow and brisk breeze kept blowing the scow from its intended position and thus bothered the crew in its work. It must be understood that in rescuing a crew from a stranded ship the ship is usually stationary. In this case, however, the ship was whisked about and made the work very unsatisfactory. The shooting of the rope by which the breeches buoy is manipulated, was very finely done.

As a grand climax to the day's celebration a beautiful illumination of the inner harbor was held in the evening. At a signal red fire was set off around the entire basin, and this, aided by an almost continual circle of lanterns, and the decorated boats in the basin, made a pretty effect. S. P. Bremer's Velthra was illuminated from stem to stern, and a continuous display of fireworks was set off from her deck all evening. The Salem Cadet Band rendered a splendid concert during the evening, for three hours. Fully 3000 people were in the centre of the town.

The committee in charge of the day's program was composed of Frank G. Cheever, chairman; Albert Cunningham, Louis O. Latons, Richard L. Cheever, John F. Scott, Walter R. Bell and Hollis L. Roberts. To them much credit is due for such a successful carrying out of this, the first celebration of Independence Day in Manchester under the "safe and sane" regulations.

A hand book of useful information for Magnolians is to be issued next week for free distribution with the compliments of the Village church. An edition of 5000 will be printed. Its contents will include train and mail service, tides, business directory, hotels and boarding houses, religious services, recreations, carriage drives and automobile routes, fire alarms, with a rough map of Magnolia Point, all comprised in sixteen small pages. A list of private houses with rooms to let will be published if those desiring mention will send in their names tomorrow (Saturday) to Rev. F. J. Libby with number of rooms and rates, he will see that they are added to the list.

The summer services of sermons Sunday mornings at the Village church will be on texts from the book of John. The title of the series will be "The Spiritual Heights." Next Sunday morning, the subject will be "The Beginning of the Soul's Life," John 3. All seats free and all are welcome.

Friday and Sunday evenings, Prof. H. J. Krumpeln, the talented blind organist at the Village church, will give a musical program from 7:45 to 8:15 before the regular service. All are invited. Sunday evening his recital will include, selections from Mendelssohn's Fourth Sonata; Carillon, Wolstenholme; overture to Norma, Bellini; Marche Militaire, Gounod. Hymn practice tonight from 7:45 to 8 o'clock, followed by the following program on the organ: Flower and Cradle song, Guilmant; Forget-me-not, Allan Macbeth; "War March of the Priests," Mendelssohn.

That the innovation of a 9 o'clock mass for Catholic services in Library building is appreciated is shown by the large crowd present last Sunday. There was nearly as many as at the 7 o'clock mass. The late mass is most convenient for the summer guests, and many who were unable to attend the first, appreciate the efforts of Father Fennessy in behalf of the Catholic population, and hope to see a place of worship erected in Magnolia before long.

Miss Marion Symonds of Gardiner, Me., is enjoying her annual vacation as guest of her mother, Mrs. John Symonds.

A horse owned by Mrs. H. G. Curry and driven by Owen Rooney, coachman for Mrs. Curry, took fright and bolted when going down the hill near the Hesperus hotel, on Wednesday morning and in turning the corner at the foot of the hill the carriage struck a rock throwing out the driver. The horse and carriage then collided with the "Green Gables." The animal cleared from the wreck and kept on at a terrific rate up Magnolia avenue, as far as the Pumping station at West Gloucester where he was stopped by William Tucker who returned him to Mrs. Curry's stable. The injured man was removed to the Addison Gilbert hospital in the ambulance where it was found he had received a broken ankle and a severe shaking up. The carriage was badly smashed, but the horse was unharmed.

Our Twelfth Department Manager's Sale

Another Unusual Event Will Happen At This Store

The Department Managers have asked us again to turn the management over to them for this Twelfth Department Manager's Sale. This, they think will settle the question—will prove which one has made his department most attractive. This we have decided to do and we know of no better time than now while every department is brimming full of odds and ends and broken lines and surplus stocks. So—Our Department Manager's Sale will commence Tuesday, July 12th, and continue through to Saturday night, July 16th.

You should not overlook the tremendous importance of this sale to you—the manager's are thoroughly in earnest—each has searched the markets for especially good bargains—each one has dropped the price away down. Don't miss this sale for you will save money with every purchase of needed goods. You will profit largely by this rivalry of our managers—we waive all thought of usual merchandise gain—but profit by the increased good feeling toward us by our customers this unusual occasion will produce.

FOR PARTICULARS SEE MONDAY'S SALEM EVENING NEWS, JULY 11TH.

A host of mourning friends and acquaintances gathered at the Baptist church last Saturday afternoon to pay their last tributes of love and respect to the memory of the late Jeanette C. Marshall, wife of Adelbert M. Marshall, who died Wednesday noon. The members of Preston corps W. R. C., attended in a body and a large delegation from John West colony, U. O. P. F., was also present. The Rev. Clarence S. Pond, pastor of the church conducted the services. Samuel Gentlee of Beverly sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Face to Face." The W. R. C. read their ritual also and sang in chorus "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Abide With Me." The bearers, all members of John West colony, U. O. P. F., were W. B. Publicover, Howard E. Morgan, Alexander Campbell, Harold Bennett, Charles H. Hull and George F. Wood. The interment was at the Farms cemetery.

William Bresnahan has given up his position as driver for the American Express company at the Farms.

Miss Abbie Williams is assisting at the insurance office of Charles F. Lee in the Endicott building in Beverly.

Miss Agnes Leahy, a Farms young lady who is a trained nurse in Boston, is spending her vacation with her family at the Farms.

John L. Eaton, a former Farms resident for many years, came here last Saturday, and has spent the past week renewing acquaintances.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Osborne have been entertaining friends all this week at their cottage at Asbury Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Warden of Rochester, N. H., have spent the past week at the Farms visiting friends. They are to remain another week.

Miss Sarah Donovan, a trained nurse at the Carney hospital, Boston, is spending a two weeks' vacation with her family on High street.

A delegation from John West colony, Pilgrim Fathers, will go to West Gloucester on July 18, for the Pilgrim Wanderers basket picnic. The outing is being arranged by the Gloucester colony.

David Larcom was taken by the Manchester police this week and sent to the state farm at Bridgewater for three months. He was celebrating the Fourth too strenuously.

Crowley & Lunt, the Beverly City Directory publishers, have put their 1910 edition in circulation this week. It is a splendid volume containing 16,884 names, an increase of 700 over last year. The book also contains a North Shore map, with list of summer residents, and numbers indicating location of houses.

The Fourth of July celebration committee desires to express their sincere thanks to all for aid and co-operation in giving Beverly Farms another excellent celebration. To the summer residents and the business men, as well as others, is the committee grateful for the financial support which made the celebration possible.

A party of Farms ladies went on an outing Wednesday, taking the trolley from Beverly and going as far as Kittery, Me. They spent a part of their time at Salisbury and Hampton Beach where they had dinner.

Mrs. Jesse Pierce is reported to be in continued serious illness.

The elimination of the revolver and the cannon firecrackers had much to do with making Independence Day and the night before sane and safe. As far as noise and confusion was concerned the day was a quiet one. It also had much to do with keeping many in the "night before," who otherwise would have been out all night. Taking away the object to raise a racket left many no desire to make a night of it.

The laying out of a baseball diamond with a wire netting backstop is very much desired on the Vine street playgrounds. This place seems to become more appreciated every day, and because of it being so central it has the effect of keeping many of the Farms young off the streets and it also serves to develop much athletic ability. Baseball is the popular sport and the cost of laying out a diamond would be small. The ground surface is very much in need of leveling and smoothing.

Many complimentary remarks have been made since the July 4 celebration over the very good time which the Farms people enjoyed on that day. The sports and horse events were well handled, closely contested and furnished much interest and amusement. The display of fireworks in the evening were excellent and pronounced by many to have been the best ever given at the Farms. The band fully came up to its past record and furnished plenty of good, lively and appropriate music. All roads seemed to have led to the Farms that day and the village was filled with out of town visitors.

The tables of fancy and useful articles as well as the refreshment booth did a good business and a tidy sum was realized for which the ladies are grateful. An excellent entertainment was given in the evening.

The Fourth at Beverly Farms.

The Fourth of July celebration on the safe and sane plan attracted about 1,000 to Beverly Farms for the games in the morning and afternoon. At West Beach in the evening there was a band concert and a splendid fireworks display. The display was pronounced one of the best ever seen here.

At Tweed's field the single men, captained by Augustus Callahan, defeated the married men, captained by Benjamin Hawkins, 22 to 10. There was a second game played by a married men's team, captained by Howard Morgan, and a single men's team, captained by John Bresnahan, the former winning, 10 to 9.

Horse racing events, in which a number of horses owned by cottagers along the North Shore were entered, proved interesting. Joseph Barror, who rode for G. S. Mandell, won a number of prizes, as did also Charles Syrus, riding for D. B. Wentz.

At Marshall's field in the afternoon there was a program of sports. The winners were:

Auto Notes

Perhaps the most objectionable noise in a car is that caused by a general looseness all around; parts shaking about which ought to be rigidly attached to some portion of the mechanism. This denotes a general carelessness in attention to the machine and can only be oviated by frequent inspection and the tightening up of all parts liable to come loose from the very first time the car is used on the road. If a car has been habitually neglected in this respect it becomes almost impossible to remedy the general noisiness, and many cars which should run practically silently for years will, if not attended to, speedily become incurable rattleboxes. A distinct knock will be set up if heavy parts, such as the gear box and crank case become loose on their bearings through the slackening back of the nuts. This happened in the case of a gear box through one nut slackening back and causing a knock that was very difficult to locate. It is very necessary therefore to see that all parts are properly tightened up.

Don't Do It.

Don't race the engine. If you release the clutch the engine will run away. Close the throttle. You can not abuse the motor worse than by allowing it to race at a high speed without load.

Don't advance the spark lever when cranking.

Don't shift the gears without first releasing the clutch.

Don't apply the brakes hard except in an emergency.

Don't start before seeing to the gasoline, oil and water.

Don't tear the motor to pieces. Locate the trouble first.

Don't allow the machinery to be covered with dirt. Wipe it often.

Don't let in the clutch suddenly.

Don't hurry when operating the car and gear shift lever.

Don't allow motor to knock by reason of having the spark lever advanced too far ahead on heavy grades or where pulling a heavy load. The driver will, however, find it best to keep his spark advanced where the pull is slight, as the motor works cooler and uses less gasoline.

It is the confirmed belief among the leading manufacturers of the higher-priced heavy touring type of cars that the comfortable, efficient, seven-passenger machine cannot be made lighter than the present most approved practise accomplishes. Many contemplating buyers stand aghast at the heavier appearing machines, and charge up to the disadvantage of this class of cars a greater consumption of gasoline and added wear and tear on tires with a general advance in all-round upkeep.

The average big car runs ten miles to a gallon of gasoline. At an ever-age cost of 15 cents per gallon, this is 1½ cents a mile, and with the annual mileage of 10,000 miles—admittedly a high but not unusual mileage of the heavier capable cars—it would show an expenditure of $150.

A heavier car might only make eight miles to a gallon of gasoline, which would be an additional fuel cost of 20 percent, or $30 per annum—easily made up in the item of repairs, of which the latter cars are, of course, more susceptible than the machine properly designed and built with weight proportionate to work which is called upon to accomplish. And this does not take into account the greater ease and comfort to be obtained from the stolid "car of the road," the very weight of which can but be a source of comfort to its touring occupants.

O—O

Chain lubrication, though troublesome, as it necessitates removing the chain is so beneficial to its life and efficiency and save so much useless work being done by the engine that it well repays the trouble it entails. The two main points are to remove grit and dirt, which grind away the metal in the links and rivets, and to insure due amount of lubricant reaching each rivet and the interior or bearing surface of each block or roller. To remove all dirt, boiling in soda or potash water for half an hour is a good plan. The chains should then be hung up to thoroughly dry. When dry soak the chains for a few hours in a pan full of black lead and melted tallow; this insures the mixture reaching all the rivets, and when the chains are drained and wiped they show a clean, dry surface, to which mud and dust are not inclined to stick.

New England Antiquities.

The bulletin of the newly formed Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, telling of a concerted effort on the part of a number of the leading citizens of Massachusetts and New England, to prevent the further destroying of New England antiquities has been recently received at the Breeze office.

The gulletin is a well gotten up folder, containing a large number of cuts of the more famous landmarks each being accompanied by an article giving full information concerning it. With these is published a strong article dealing with the aim of the society and telling of the comparative inexpensiveness of carrying out its project. It first tells of the work of the smaller historical, ancestral, patriotic and similar societies, and although giving credit to the above mentioned societies for the great work they have done, the article makes it plain that they are more or less confined to a special object, whereas by a slight elaboration, as is proposed by the the New England society, one organization could be made to cover the whole field.

Keith's Theatre.

One of the most important engagements of the summer is made by B. F. Keith for the appearance at his theatre in Boston next week of Le Grande Pandore, the famous doll revived from the court of Louis XIVth by John Colby Abbott. This doll has been the sensation of drawing rooms of Boston, New York and London and Paris, where it was exhibited by Mr. Abbott. The patrons in London being Mrs. Whitlaw Reid, the Marchioness of Londonderry; the Dowager Countess of Sherewsbury; Lady Newborough; Lady Palmer, and Mrs. George Cornwallis West. In Boston the doll was exhibited at Mrs. John L. Gardner's Fenway Court.

This feature will make a special appeal to the women, especially as Le Grande Pandore shows the beautiful dresses of the time of Louis XIVth and Marie Antoinette, and is particularly interesting at this time on account of the hairdressing which is now reaching the alarming proportions of these times. At Keith's the doll will be exhibited in all its beautiful costumes by Mrs. John Colby Abbott, wife of the inventor, and already has aroused the greatest interest in Boston.

A Good Investment

Be your own landlord.

Better and safer than banks or stocks.

Buy a piece of the land, now for sale, adjoining the beautiful Montserrat Station.

Put by five or ten dollars a month and own one of these attractive house lots. Later build your own cottage, make your own garden and pay no more rent.

This is an ideal location, between Beverly and Prides's Crossing, on electric and train lines near High and Grammar schools and not crowded.

Houses rent and sell rapidly and land values are steadily increasing. All grades and prices from $300 to $3000.

A very attractive plaster house is going up on Magnolia St. The large double house on Spring St. is nearing completion. The boys' playground, opposite the station, has been opened. The neighborhood tennis court is now ready.

Leave the noisy town and come out for a glimpse of the fields and woods of Montserrat; only five minutes from Beverly.

Our representative will be at the office, 157 Essex St., every day except Sunday and evening appointments may be made by phone No. 721.

Our Weekly Letter From Washington

By F. J. DYER

Washington, July 7.—One would hardly have looked for it in a lawyer and a judge, perhaps, but President Taft is displaying business ability. In the Treasury Department alone it was found that a large sum of money could be saved yearly by changing methods in vogue since the days of Alexander Hamilton, and installing new appliances and machinery to facilitate business. A large number of clerks were dispensed with and places were found for nearly all of them in various other departments. The government's work went on better than before.

For many years the Lighthouse Board has been under the joint jurisdiction of the Army and Navy. If one may ignore for a moment the serious nature of the duties devolving upon this Board, he may find a great deal of amusement, '(If he be a mere civilian)', over the conflict of authority which has been a perpetual snag.

It is seldom, however, that the very serious gentlemen in the Army and Navy can see what is the reason for the amusement, which they are somewhat disposed to resent. In the Lighthouse service there has never been any real executive head since 1852, although the Government expense annually for the maintenance of lighthouses, lightships, and other signals and devices for the protection of the lives and property of mariners, $5,500,000 a year, with another $500,000 for the betterment of the service.

As at present constituted, the lighthouse board is composed of two high ranking officers of the navy, two officers of the corps of engineers of the army and two civilians, with an officer of the army and an officer of the navy as secretaries.

The Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor is ex-officio president, but the actual head of the board is its chairman, who it elects. Under Rear Admiral Adolph Marix, the present chairman, the board has enjoyed more harmony than ever before in its history.

The Secretary of Commerce and Labor has decided to banish both army and navy from the board and put it on a civilian basis. One result will be the saving of thousands of dollars annually to the national treasury. The board will be transformed into a bureau, with an executive officer, a commissioner of lighthouses at its head. This commissioner will be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. He will be responsible to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, just as is the commissioner of labor or the commissioner of fisheries. He will have the necessary assistants, and his jurisdiction will be divided, probably, into nineteen districts, which will include Porto Rico and the naval base in Cuba.

We are finding out more all the time about our non-contiguous possessions. It is but a little while since we found out that Alaska was anything but a land of perpetual snow and ice with no redeeming qualities, and no possibilities of industries except the catching of fur seals and salmon. Now we know that it is a golconda of mineral wealth—coal, copper, gold, tin—a region in which there are forests so luxuriant that the Government is figuratively weeping because it is not able to use the splendid timber which is going to waste there, a land which boasts as great a diversity of climate almost, as California, with a warm current laving its southern coast where agriculture will soon yield big harvests and where homesteaders are already taking up farms. That is not all,—but it is suggestive that we are getting acquainted with one of our possessions. We have been told that Porto Rico is to be a great health resort; that the Panama Canal Zone will some day be as famed for the salubrity of its climate as it was at one time for its pestilences; and now comes the news that the Philippines are not only healthful but that persons who go there may look for the prolongation of their days in pleasurable pursuits. The Insular Bureau reports that the death rate among the more than 8000 government employees in the islands for the quarter ended March 31 was only 6.9 per 1000 per annum. These employees of whom some 3700 are Americans, include all the officials and employees of the insular, provincial and municipal governments and police and fire departments of Manila.

NORTH SHORE BREEZE

MANCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 15, 1910.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mid-season next week will find North Shore society with plenty of attraction in the sporting line to which to turn their attention. With the first polo tournament of the season at the Myopia Hunt club, the tennis tournament at the Essex County Golf club and the open golf tournament at the Essex County club, besides a variety of other diversions, no one can complain for lack of sport. The tennis tournament at the Montserrat club starts Monday. There will be ladies' singles and doubles and mixed doubles. There are a large number of entries, including all the best known young people of the North Shore. The polo tournament at Myopia will start Monday, July 18, and will continue to Tuesday, July 26. On Wednesday, the 20th, the play will be for the Myopia Cups, Cooperstown vs. Mr. Amory's team. The special invitation golf tournament will be played at the Essex County club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 21, 22 and 23.

The early demand for tables for the dinner dance at the Essex County club on Friday evening, July 29, would indicate that the event will be one of the most important social functions of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond of New York and Washington, are in Chicago to attend the wedding, Monday, of Miss Mary Ryerson at her home in Lake Forest, Ill., to Mr. Frost, a Southerner. The Ryersons are close friends of the Hammonds.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland and her two daughters are to pay a visit to the Hammonds at their beautiful estate at Fresh Water Cove, later in the summer. Miss Marion Wise, a niece of F. G. Newlands, U. S. Senator, of Reno, Nev., is a guest of Miss Hammond at the present time.

Mrs. John L. Bremer, who has been spending the late spring and early summer at her summer estate in Manchester, has gone to Walpole, N. H., for a few weeks' stay. She is stopping at the Walpole Inn. Her daughter, Miss Sarah Bremer is at Cohasset for a short visit with her brother, Dr. Clifton Long Bremer and family.

Mrs. James T. Fields has with her for a visit at "Thunderbolt Hill," her Manchester summer home, Miss Jessie Cochrane of Rome, Italy, who is in America making a round of visits with friends. She plans to visit her old home in Kentucky before returning to Italy in the autumn.

Mrs. Thomas M. McKee is giving an informal dinner at her Beverly Farms home tonight. Covers will be laid for ten.

Frederick Foster Carey and family have come on from Tuxedo Park and are occupying "Lodgehurst," one of the J. Warren Merrill cottages on Smith's Point. Mr. Carey has brought on his schooner yacht, the "Signet," aboard which he will do more or less entertaining during his stay on the shore.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mrs. W. B. Thomas will open her residence at Pride's this afternoon for the first of the musicales arranged by Mrs. Hall McAllister. There are to be two others, July 29, at the residence of Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, jr., and on August 12 at the villa of Mrs. Oliver Ames at Pride's Crossing. All are at 4 o'clock and the artists have been carefully selected. Francis Rogers for one, and he has a notably fashionable following here as well as in Washington, where he frequently sings at the White House.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Denegre entertained President Taft and family at lunch last Saturday, at their beautiful summer estate, Villa Crest, West Manchester. Mr. and Mrs. Denegre have been entertaining Attorney General and Mrs. Wickersham a few days this week, during their visit to the North Shore. The Attorney General came here to see President Taft.

Count Wedel, chargé d'affaires of Germany, is to be joined at Manchester within a few week by Countess Wedel, who remained in Germany for a few weeks after her husband's return to America.

The H. T. Bradleys of Nyack, N. Y., are newcomers to the Manchester shore this season. They have just taken the Perkins cottage on Sea street for July and August.

One of the finest auxiliary yachts in North Shore waters this season is that of W. Harry Brown of Pittsburg which dropped anchor off Burgess Point recently, after a cruise up the coast from New York. She has three masts and is square rigged. A few days ago Mr. Brown, with a party of friends, left these waters for a two or three weeks' trip to Labrador. The Browns are occupying the Sohler cottage, formerly occupied by the Thos. Beals family, and which is near President Taft's. They are newcomers to the Beverly shore and are enjoying it to the fullest extent.

Mrs. George D. Howe has with her for the month of July, at her Smith's Point summer home, Mrs. Henry P. Coffin and daughter, Miss Margaret G. Coffin, of Boston, who are cousins of Mrs. Howe.

Dr. Franklin Balch and family have returned to Manchester for another season. They are occupying the small cottage on the Henry L. Higginson estate, West Manchester. The house has been greatly improved since last year when it was occupied by Mrs. Hall McAllister. It has been moved back from the highway about 100 feet and a large addition has been built including a veranda porch.

Mrs. W. Scott Fitz has consented to open her residence on Smith's Point on Thursdays, July 28 and August 4, at 11 o'clock, for two explanatory talks on Chantecler (in French) by Charles Le Deuc, who has a degree of Docteur es Sciences Politiques of the "Journal" of Paris.

The Culture of Roses

By MARY H. NORTHEND

Perhaps never during the many years of its widespread popularity has the rose been more fashionable for garden planting than it is at the present day. The scores of new varieties, which have been created and perfected through the wonderful skill of modern florists, have made this beautiful "queen of flowers" a greater favorite than ever before, and today there are few gardens to be found which do not harbor at least a few members of the great rose family.

Professional gardeners have been devoting a great deal of time and attention of late years to the cultivation of roses, for it has been the fashion for every large estate to have in connection with it a garden set aside exclusively for roses. The fad for gardening of this sort, like so many other caprices of the rich, has been eagerly taken up by many people of more moderate circumstances, and rose growing is now the pet hobby of not a few enthusiastic amateurs.

In its favor it must be admitted that a more sensible fad has seldom been adopted. The healthful outdoor labor which gardening calls for is a boon to the business man who is shut up in his office all day, and surely the resulting crop of delicate, fragrant blossoms is an ample recompense to the flower lover, in return for the labor and outlay necessary.

In order to insure a good degree of success in the cultivation of roses, the beginner should have some knowledge as to the requirements of his plants. It is true that some roses of hardy and courageous varieties will make a brave struggle and often grow strong and thrifty under unfavorable circumstances, but the best results can only be secured by giving due consideration to soil conditions, fertilization, and the proper care of the plants.

The amateur will make no mistake in growing his roses in a garden quite by themselves, as this is by far the most satisfactory way. Many people in their anxiety to beautify their grounds, make the mistake of laying out a rose bed in some conspicuous portion of the lawn. By nature the rose is clearly unsuited for such a position, for not only is its foliage in most cases unsatisfactory for ornamental purposes, but the loveliness of the blossoms as well can be best appreciated and enjoyed only when viewed close at hand. It requires the intimacy of a small garden, from which all other flowers and with this end in mind some gardeners choose a location in close proximity to trees. It is never advisable to plant roses in such a spot for two good reasons. In the first place they do not take kindly to being shaded, and furthermore it is impossible for the plants to thrive when all the nourishment from the soil prepared for them is being absorbed by greedy tree roots, as often happens in such cases. The latter difficulty can be prevented by sinking a four-inch wall of stone or brick to the depth of about four feet between the garden and the trees, thus heading off the roots. However, as the construction of such a defense entails no small amount of bother and expense, it is by far the best plan to avoid it altogether, if possible.

The next thing to be taken into consideration, after the garden site has been selected, is the condition of the soil. Roses are gross feeders and require plenty of nourishment. Good, rich loam containing a small percentage of clay is considered the most satisfactory soil for the hardy varieties, but a tendency toward soggyiness should be carefully guarded against. In case the ground is not sufficiently drained by nature artificial means should be supplied for the superfluous moisture to filter away. A simple and effective way of providing the proper drainage is to open up the rose beds to the depth of about three feet and then fill in about a foot with a layer of clam shells, broken brick, coarse gravel or any similar substance that makes a porous filling. A few cinders spread above this will serve to keep the soil from washing down and at the same time allow the water to filter through freely. The remaining depth may be then filled in with earth which has been prepared. The lower soil for a depth of about eighteen inches should be enriched by means of a generous amount of well rotted cow manure thoroughly worked in, and a little bone meal, scattered with a sparing hand before the are excluded, to properly emphasize the beauty of each individual rose. When people commence to realize the truth of this, they will see the wisdom of planting their roses in simple, well arranged gardens.

One of the first problems which confronts the would-be rosarian is the selection of a suitable location for his rose garden. If the best results are to be obtained spot must be chosen with an eye to its natural adaptability to the needs of the plants. The most satisfactory site for a rose garden is an open piece of ground, preferably with a southwest exposure, and high enough to be free from very late spring frosts, which are apt to cause so much trouble in low land by nipping the tender young shoots as soon as they put forth. To be ideal the location must have plenty of sunshine, for roses delight in warmth and light and fresh air. In many cases it is a wise precaution to provide for some protection against high winds, dressing is forked in, is an excellent addition. Any good top-soil which has not been recently fertilized is suitable for filling in the rest of the beds. The beds should be arranged at least five or six weeks in advance of planting time, if possible, to allow the ground to settle. When ready for the plants to be set, the surface of the beds should be about an inch below the level of the surrounding earth, in order that all rainfall may be caught and retained during the hot weather.

In respect to shape, the rose beds may be varied to suit one's taste, but small ones are usually preferable to those of larger size. By means of these varieties requiring slightly different soils can be readily grown, each kind in its own particular bed. Often a grower has a large number of rose plants of similar habits and in such instances long, narrow beds allowing for the grouping of such plants are most convenient. A strip of ground four feet wide accommodates two row of plants and by setting them out diagonally rather than directly opposite each other every plant will receive an equal amount of air and sunlight, tending to promote a uniform degree of develop-the soil of the beds.

NEW AUTO LAWS

It behooves motorists to keep in mind the amendments to the automobile law that became effective last Sunday.

There are several amendments that it will be most wise to keep in mind, as the interpretation of the reading of the same rests entirely on the judgment of the constables and later the court. These are those referring to smoky exhaust and harsh, objectionable and reasonable noise in the sounding of signals in thickly settled districts.

The law says that no operator of any motor vehicle shall at any time permit any unreasonable amount of smoke to escape from the vehicle. In this clause also there is left wide opportunity for persecution, for what is an unreasonably smoky exhaust to one person may not seem so to another.

Another clause is that no operator shall at any time permit his vehicle to make any unnecessary noise by cutting out the muffler or otherwise. The enforcement of this clause will undoubtedly be common in the city streets, and will put a stop to the annoying practice of some drivers of using the muffler cutout as a warning to pedestrians instead of the horn provided for the purpose. As amended the law requires the motorist to signal only where his view is obstructed upon approaching an intersecting way, curve or corner. The eight-mile limit also applies now to intersecting ways, crossings, corners and curves where the operator's view is obstructed, and not to all corners and curves.

Professional chauffeurs will be relieved of the duty of wearing badges furnished by the Highway Commission, as under the law as amended the wearing of a badge will not be required. Chauffeurs, however, must carry their licenses, as heretofore, and must produce them when called upon to do so by a police officer. Number plates may be hung four instead of three feet from the ground.

New Jersey motorists are barred from Massachusetts by decision of the Highway Commission, under the amended section of the law relating to non-resident motorists. The Highway Commission has decided that New Jersey does not give similar privileges to Massachusetts motorists that Massachusetts gives to non-residents, and therefore New Jersey motorists will have to take out licenses and certificates if they want to enter Massachusetts.

The amended law provides that a non-resident, who has complied with the laws relative to motor vehicles of the state or country in which he resides, may operate his car in Massachusetts for not exceeding ten days in any one calendar year without registration, provided that the said state or country grants similar privileges to residents of Massachusetts. The Highway Commission is required to determine what states or countries do or do not grant similar privileges and its determination is final. Under this section, New Jersey motorists have been placed under the ban. No action has been taken regarding any other state.

By this amendment visiting motorists cannot legally run in and out of Massachusetts at will without registration, for their total stay inside a calendar year is limited to ten days. Under old law visiting motorists were considered to be within their rights if they did not stay more than ten days at a time, the number of ten-day periods being unlimited. The present law doubtless will force many non-residents spending the summer in Massachusetts to take out registration certificates and licenses.

Boston Sculptor in Magnolia.

Roger Noble Burnham, sculptor, of Boston and Magnolia, has permitted us to reproduce two pictures of his portrait work which are of special interest because of remarkable contrast.

The exquisite girlishness and innocence of the maiden, just budding into womanhood, with Life before her, and the stern head of Old Age, with Life behind him, are excellent examples of the sculptor's remarkable ability in portraiture. Connoisseurs and critics have asserted that this study of Old Age is equal to the old Roman portraiture at its best. Mr. Burnham's summer studio is in the Library building in Magnolia.

SOCIETY NOTES

John H. Storer and family returned to Manchester the latter part of last week for the summer, and are occupying the Loring cottage on Smith's Point. They usually spend the early summer at their country estate in Waltham.

There were 32 players in last Saturday's handicap golf competition at the Essex County club. The lowest gross score was made by G. F. Willett, who made the 18 holes in 82. Mr. Willett and Harrison K. Caner, jr., tied for the net prize, each having a 78.

The J. Walpole Craighies of New York are among the recent arrivals at Manchester. The family is occupying a cottage at Old Neck. They did not come to the North Shore last season.

Mrs. Thomas M. McKee, Mrs. Gerard Bement, Mrs. Frank Bemis, Mrs. J. F. Curtis and several others composed a merry party of North Shore ladies that went to Lake Sunapee, N. H., recently for a fishing trip. They returned Wednesday week.

Fraulein Wolters, who is so well known along the North Shore, is arranging to give a series of entertainments for children and young people, as well as adults, along the North Shore in the month of August. She has engaged a very well known actress, Miss Ida Mulle, who is at present in Paris and who will return to America for this occasion. She played a very successful role as Polly Parrot in Savage's "Woodland" and she will be remembered by those who saw her in this as a very clever and refined impersonator and mimic. One of the entertainments will be given in the Manchester Town hall, one at Swampscott, one at Magnolia and one at the Hotel Tudor in Nahant.

Mrs. Jere Abbott of the West Manchester colony has gone to Northeast Harbor, Me., for a two months' stay. She is stopping at the Clifton House there. She will return to West Manchester for the early fall.

Kermit Roosevelt, who was recently on the North Shore as the guest of the McKean boys of Philadelphia and Pride's Crossing, sailed July 9 for Paris on the Hamburg-American line from New York. The practical reason for his trip is stated as the completion of his studies there, which were interrupted by his year in Africa, while rumor has it, Cupid has a part in his plans since Miss Margaret Rutherford is to summer in Paris. She is the beautiful young American woman, who it is claimed captivated Mr. Kermit during his recent sojourn there. Miss Rutherford is the stepdaughter of Wm. K. Vanderbilt, sr.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Fell (Dorothy Randolph) of Philadelphia and Narragansett Pier, whose wedding took place at the Pier, July 4, are spending their honeymoon on the yacht Georgianna II., and the cruise includes New England waters. Their wedding had much interest for North Shore society, as Harrison Tweed of Cambridge and Beverly Farms was an usher and Mrs. Charles A. Munn (Mary Astor Paul), who is summering in Manchester, was one of the bride's attendants. She wore a white chiffon gown laborately trimmed with vichy lace and wore a light blue girdle. She also carried a gold basket filled with roses. Miss Eleanora Sears of Beverly Farms was among the guests present at the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Fell while stopping at Newport on their honeymoon cruise, were guests Saturday evening, July 9, at a dinner dance at Berger's given by Mrs. George McFadden of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and Newport.

Friends of the Myron C. Wick of Youngstown, O., and Manchester were shocked by the news of the death of Mr. Wick last Monday, for it was only six weeks ago that he was here to prepare for the opening of the summer home again. He was sixty-three years old, and had been interested in the steel and iron business. He is survived by a widow and four children.

THE Manchester Board of Assessors will probably complete the figures of fixing the tax rate for the year by the middle of next week. Last year the rate was $9.40 per thousand. It will probably be under this figure this year. The Assessors of Brookline have announced the rate of taxation in the town as $12.50 on the thousand, an increase of $2.00 over last year.

SENATOR Lodge may or may not have had Manchester in mind when he addressed the Town meeting in Nahant last week, but it is significant that upon his motion an amendment to the Nahant by-laws was adopted for a warrant committee of nine members to consider all articles for the annual warrant and report to the citizens previous to the meeting. This would be similar to Manchester's appropriation committee.

MORSE STABLE DESTROYED

Hundreds Hurry to Spectacular Fire Which Burns Horses on Malt Hill, Beverly Farms

Flames flaring skyward Monday night out of the woods on Malt Hill, Beverly Farms, toward the close of the dinner hour, drew hundreds of persons from all along the North Shore in automobiles, carriages and on foot, to a most spectacular fire which destroyed the stable at the home occupied by Mrs. Samuel T. Morse of Boston and her daughter, Miss Frances Morse. Three horses were burned to death, the coachman being away and the stable locked.

By the time Miss Morse had notified the fire department at Beverly Farms, an alarm was turned in from Manchester by some person who was hurrying to the scene.

Both departments responded within an incredibly short time and much praise is due the firemen and those who volunteered their help in saving the house and assisting the women, who reside there alone with two nurses and servants to attend Mrs. Morse, 84 years old, an invalid.

While the fire was raging up through the woods surrounding both house and stable, sparks were seen dropping on the housetop. Men carried a line of hose to the roof and saved the home.

In the meantime many men came from homes nearby to the assistance of the women, and Mrs. Morse was taken in an automobile to stay with friends until after the danger was past when she was brought home. Major Henry Lee Higginson, William Hooper, and George H. Lyman did much toward directing the household and making it easier for the firemen and those who were helping and encouraging the women.

Persons from far and near saw the flames and at once realized the importance and danger. Quick to respond at a time of need, dinners were left uneaten, and regardless of attire, every one who could, went to the fire. The roadways were lined with pedestrians. Many drove; some went on horseback and bicycles, and glaring headlights of motor after motor bordered the road and drives close to the belching engine which was pumping the water up the long hill and drive to the roaring and crackling blaze in the woods on the hilltop.

The fire did not last for long; the stable was filled with hay and the blaze had a start on the fire fighters. It is to the great credit of the men that the house was saved. For situated in the center of a thick wood on a hill, it was no easy matter to reach the burning building especially in the fast falling darkness. Yet this may have been an advantage, for it kept many of the sightseers from reaching the scene until most of the work was done.

Many were lost in the woods and had to wait for a sight of a chance match to light a part of their way back to the road. Over rocks and stumps and through brush and into trees, climbed women, children and men toward the dying flames above. Weird were the forms and shadows of the men, their faces lighted by an occasional angry flash of fire, as the embers crackled and crunched in the smoldering pit. It was very late before all was quiet and every one was satisfied to go home except those detailed to watch through the night.

Mrs. Samuel T. Morse and her family wish to express their appreciation and gratitude to the fireman, policemen, and to all others who gave assistance at the fire at Malt Hill on the evening of July 10th. They feel that their prompt and efficient help prevented a much more extensive disaster.

CULTURE OF ROSES.

for sale by florists and nurserymen are divided into two distinct classes which are known as "budded" and "own-root" plants. Many well known rose growers prefer the former, which are grown from buds inserted in some variety of wild wood, commonly in the so-called Manetti stock. It is true, on the other hand, that not a few equally prominent rosarians insist that there is nothing so good as "own-root" plants. This difference of opinion need not seriously affect the beginner, however, for if good, healthy plants of either variety are properly set out and cared for there is small danger of unsatisfactory results.

It seems that the greatest objection that can be brought against budded roses lies in the fact that there is a possibility of the wild wood cropping out and choking the budded growth. There is of course, danger of such a thing happening if the plants are left to shift for themselves, but it is practically impossible if the plants are carefully watched and all wild growth is removed immediately upon its appearance. All shoots which start below the inserted bud may be readily identified as wild suckers and should be cut off close to the stock. Eyes, which will develop sooner or later into suckers, can sometimes be detected before a plant is set out, but if they are removed with a sharp knife no further trouble will result. With the exception of this single disadvantage, which may be overcome by persistent vigilance while the plant is young, the budded rose is quite as satisfactory as the own-root variety, since it is just as long-lived and frequently surpasses the latter in vigor and beauty of its blooms.

The most suitable time for planting roses is in the autumn before the ground freezes, or, in the case of tender varieties which cannot survive our cold winters in the North until they have become firmly established, early in the spring. The plants are then in a dormant condition and can be handled without fear of damage. A hole must be made for each plant sufficiently large to admit the roots without breaking and deep enough so that the bud (if budded plants are used) shall be about three inches below the surface. After a plant has been set in place with its roots carefully arranged so as not to cross each other, the hole is packed very firmly with earth. As soon as all the planting is done a top-dressing of coarse manure should be spread and the plants cut back to about a foot from the ground so that they may not be broken or uprooted by high winds.

In order to keep the plants in first-class condition during the summer months some attention must be given to cultivation. After the winter covering has been removed from the rose beds early in the spring, the ground should be thoroughly forked over to a depth of several inches, taking great care not to break or otherwise injure the roots of the plants. In hot, dry weather the soil soon becomes hardened and should be frequently loosened in order to allow any moisture to penetrate to the roots. Should the season be unusually dry it is a good plan to water the beds occasionally and the man who takes the trouble to feed his plants with a weak solution of liquid manure every eight or ten days during blossoming time will be rewarded by a crop of fine, healthy roses and a prolonged season of blooming.

In common with the rest of the plant world, roses are the prey of a certain number of insects, which are capable of doing mischief if they are allowed to work their own free will unmolested. There are a number of reliable insecticides now on the market and any of these, if used in time, will prevent the tiny destroyers from becoming established in the rose garden. Beetles, or rose-bugs, are perhaps the hardest to get rid of, since they seem to thrive on poison and baths of insecticide. They may be exterminated, however, by knocking them off from the bushes into a pan filled with kerosene oil, if one will make a careful round of the garden early every morning for a few consecutive days. Practically the only disease to which roses are subject are black spot and mildew and these may be checked if taken in time. Bordeaux mixture sprayed on the plants in April is usually all that is needed to prevent black spot and mildew may be kept from spreading by dusting both the affected plant and those about it with flowers of sulphur. An occasional spraying with clean water aids in keeping the leaves free from dust and in a healthy condition.

Before cold weather sets in for the winter rose plants should be either tied securely to stakes set in the ground, or cut down to about two feet in height. They are then ready for their winter covering, which naturally varies according to the climate. Where the winters are comparatively mild a spreading of coarse manure is often sufficient protection, but in colder regions a heavier covering of straw or leaves is necessary. Early in the spring this winter mulch may be removed, and after careful pruning to thin the plants of old or weak wood, and insure a vigorous growth, they will be ready for another long season of blossoming in return for the careful tending which has been given them.

The matter of selecting roses for a garden, whether it be large or small, must depend, of course, largely upon the owner's personal likes and dislikes. There are many classes of roses and scores of varieties in each class so that every taste may be suited. This wide range often confuses the amateur who is unlearned in the ways of rose buying, however, and as a slight guide to the prospective rosarian it may be well to mention a few of the many satisfactory varieties.

At the present day there is probably no rose more popular than the hybrid tea. They are hardy, good bloomers and most varieties are very well adapted to withstand the somewhat harsh and variable climate of our northern states. Among the most beautiful varieties are the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Dean Hole, the greatly admired Killarney, Belle Siebrecht, Souvenir de President Carnot, the Etoile de France. roses are also magnificent specimens and among the hardier kinds Gen. Jacqueminot, Magna, Captain Christy and Paul Neyron.

Just a word should be added in behalf of climbing roses, for they lend themselves to decorative purposes as no dwarf rose ever can. Nothing is lovelier to trail over a pergola or summer-house than one of the many varieties of climbers and the effect is equally good when they are trained over a porch trellis or hide some unlovely wall or fence. Little pruning is necessary and many hardy sorts will survive the winter with but little extra protection. The best way to shield the tender varieties is to lay them flat on the ground and cover with earth or straw and leaves.

Climbing roses, like their dwarf relatives, offer a large assortment to choose from, but the amateur will make no mistake in selecting the Wichuraiana rose for one. Another rose worthy of a place in any garden is the Debutante, with its clear, light pink blossoms. Evergreen Gem, bearing flowers of buff-white, has excellent foliage, while Reine Marie Henriette, a brilliant red, climbing La France of pale pink, and Marechal Niel which bears blooms of rich pure yellow are among the finest climbing roses to be obtained.

The Manchester fire department was called out last Monday afternoon for a brush fire in the rear of Mrs. John L. Bremer's property at Smith's Point. The department made a quick response and were able to check the flames before they had advanced to the buildings nearby. This proved to be a more serious fire, that in the stable of Mrs. Samuel Morse estate at Beverly Farms, just over the Manchester line. Manchester's services were proffered by assistant engineer Sinnicks. They were not needed as the fire had gained considerable headway long before either department was notified. The Beverly Farms firemen, however, were very grateful to Manchester's proffered assistance.

A petition has been in circulation the last week asking the board of park commissioners to have the public bath-houses at Singing beach kept open until 6 p. m., instead of closing at 5 o'clock.

Bathers at Singing beach are much pleased with the arrangements for designating the temperature of the water. Through the kindness of Mrs. Rowe, wife of Park commissioner F. A. Rowe, a set of temperature colors have been presented to the commission. The three colors are used to designate the temperature of the water, the red flag meaning that the water is warm, white that it is medium and blue that it is cold.

Wednesday, July 27, is the date decided upon for the annual gathering of Ye Elder Brethren. This is the most important of the summer outings at Manchester. It is only those who attain the age of 50 that are entitled to attend the gathering. The organization has become one Manchester's institutions. If the weather is not pleasant on July 27 the outing will be held the following day.

Grace Salter, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Salter of Forest street, who was so seriously injured in a runaway accident two weeks ago, is getting along as nicely as could be expected. She was able to leave her bed today for the first time.

Miss Marion Scott, will play the violin at the evening service at the Baptist church Sunday evening.

Round trip tickets to Boston, $1.00, at Bell's.

A Musical Treat.

The concert at the Baptist church Wednesday evening was a musical treat. The artists were first-class and rendered the program delightfully. Mrs. Kilduff has a rich voice with splendid range. Her high notes were particularly good. Mrs. Moss showed great ability in handling the violin. Both Mrs. Kilduff and Mrs. Moss were called back twice for encores. Mr. Saunier played smoothly and with fine expression and was warmly applauded. The new Estey organ showed itself to be of superior tone.

Rarely, if ever, is such a musical opportunity afforded the Manchester public, and it was somewhat surprising that there were not more availed themselves of the opportunity of hearing something really good. The church was cool and beautifully trimmed with ferns by Magnuson & Hylen, the florists, and cut flower, added to the beauty of the decorations. The interior of the church is beautiful with its simplicity and perfect taste and its lighting system, and lends itself readily to the decorator.

An exhibition and sale of George C. Gebelein's hand-wrought silver is announced to take place at the Bradford Studio of Arts and Crafts, Magnolia, on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Mr. Gebelein will be at the studio on Tuesday, July 19. Included among the patrons for the exhibition are James L. and David M. Little, Mrs. Gardner Greene Hammond, Mrs. Henry S. Shaw, Mrs. Charles R. Hayden, Miss Fannie Faulkner, Mrs. Edward C. Richardson, Mrs. Charles W. Jones, Mrs. C. Howard Clark, jr., Mrs. Horace B. Stanton, Mrs. Joseph Sargent, jr., Mrs. J. Harrington Walker, Mrs. Frank Bemis and Mrs. Nathaniel N. Thayer.

The oldest citizen of Manchester would not recognize the brick basement of the "Old Doughnut House" on Bridge street. Piqued by the sign of the Venerable Bede, we went in to see what the limner was doing. Mr. Robert Hyde hails from Santa Barbara, California, and is already known to the North Shore from his studio in Magnolia last summer.

He has created a field in his efforts to make original and pertinent gifts, mementoes however small that carry a secret and mark a time. Do you seek an engagement, birthday or anniversary gift, there are personal and impersonal selections in large and small books, in mirrors and in frames, to fit the friend, the day and your attitude. Or is it a wedding gift and "the bride has every thing," need it be elaborate or simple, intimate or variously reserved in its expression; there are certificates richly coloured and gilded, bride's books, marriage greetings from the poets and house blessings for the new hearth and hall, long and short messages from friend to friend with the exact sentiment you wish to convey. If it is a felicitation upon a birth, there are child records and photograph frames with snatches from the old lullabies and new child songs. For the house gift at the close of your visit, or the parting gift to your guest, for the souvenir of a dinner or the small something new as a prize; they are all there.

To care and finish of workmanship and excellence of materials and mountings, the craftsman has brought a happy discrimination in his choice of subjects. Veliam, le-

In Yachting Circles

Among the yachts in the cruise of the Eastern Yacht club to Bar Harbor and return, which started last Saturday, are H. M. Sears' Hope; C. Reed Anthony's Doris; F. M. Whitehouse's Isis; C. Howard Clarke, jr.'s Savarona and Arthur W. Stevens' Wianno. The boats were to reach Bar Harbor tomorrow and were to return to Marblehead after the cruise breaks up today.

o/o

The fifth race of the season for the Manchester one-design class, at Manchester was sailed last Saturday afternoon there being twelve starters, and but for a light and fluky east wind, it would have proved a highly interesting contest. The Lamb sailed by Miss Edith Fabyan of Manchester again won out, and the Solitaire sailed by Miss Bessie Lee of Beverly Farms came in second. Some of the boats barely finished within the time limit.

o/o

The new boat built by the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club of Canada as the challenging craft in the races to be sailed the latter part of this month for the Seawanhaka cup, is expected to arrive the latter part of this week. The boat is coming from Montreal by rail. The members of the party will come with the boat are William C. Finley, Charles H. Rough, helmsmen; Huntley Gordon, Ross Hutchins and George Riley.

Mrs. Elbridge Foster left Tuesday for Boston where she will be the guest of her son, Benjamin Foster.

Mrs. Ernest Allen and daughter Thelma of Somersworth, N. H., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Butler this week.

Miss Alice Libby is a guest at the parsonage this week.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Women's Club House Association of Magnolia was held at the club house Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The following officers were elected: board of directors, George A. Upton, Otis Weld Richardson, Mrs. George H. Wheelock, Mrs. F. F. Story, Miss A. G. Hunt, Miss Ethel P. May and F. J. Libby; treasurer, Miss Ethel P. May; clerk, F. J. Libby. The report of the treasurer showed that the club has been self-supporting for four years, carrying a mortgage of $500. In view of the necessity of repairs from time to time, however, it was voted that steps be taken to raise the debt if possible this summer and the clerk was empowered to act in the matter.

About two hundred people enjoyed "An evening in Ireland" at the Women's Club House on Tuesday evening when the following program was carried out: music, Anna Stromblad; pictures of Ireland and lecture by Rev. F. J. Libby; dance, Abby May and William Hunt; song, "Shoogy Shoo," Ruth Sullivan; recitation, "Jimmy Butler and the Owl," Carrie Ray; song, "Come Back to Erin," with chorus by all. Souvenir Irish flags were presented to all present. The membership of the Women's club is now 205.

Gentleman's night will be held at the Women's club next Wednesday evening, July 20 for members and their gentleman friends only.

Professor Krumpeln's music at the Village church this evening will be as follows: Chorus of Angels Scotson-Clarke; Adagio, Rinke; Grand Choeur, Guilmant. Sunday evening: Pastorale and Fugue: Mendelssohn; Minuet, Gishy; Flower Song from Carmen, Bizet; Overture to Tancred, Rossini. The musical services begin at 7:45 o'clock. Hymn practice tonight from 7:45 to 8 o'clock. The subject of the sermon next Sunday morning in the Village Church will be from John 4: "The Satisfying Spring."

Mrs. Fred Davis and infant son of Annisquam are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Symonds.

The new Magnolia Hand Book appears today with the compliments of the Village Church. It is for free distribution, the business firms having contributed the cost of its production. It is twice the size originally expected, but its completeness justifies the enlargement.

Business at the Men's club continues brisk and prosperous. The chauffeurs' rooms are nearly all let for the season, and the restaurant is crowded to its capacity. The membership is now 117. The annual meeting of the members of the Men's club was held on Tuesday evening. The club was reorganized and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year. President, F. J. Libby; vice-president, H. L. Hannaford; secretary, Fred Dunbar; treasurer, T. D. Martin; executive committee, Fred Smith, H. Foster, Chas. Van-Hise, H. W. Barnes and John Culross.

Until further notice there will be no Saturday night dances at the Men's club. The Wednesday night dances will be lengthened, closing at eleven o'clock. For these dances music will be furnished by Blythe's orchestra. Admission will be twenty-five cents for members and fifteen cents for ladies.

There will be no dance on Wednesday evening, July 20, at the Men's club because of gentleman's night at the Women's club.

Interest at the bowling alleys of the Men's club is increasing daily, and rivalry between the various teams is growing hot. The "Mallard Ducks" lead the list with a clean score, having defeated a team

The warm weather of this week and the warm temperature of the water has no doubt been the cause of this week's record attendance for the season at West Beach. Crowds have been in bathing each day. There has also been many outing parties from out of town.

Keith's Theatre, Boston.

Next week at Keith's there will be a bill of more than usual interest from the fact that it will contain a number of artists who have condensed their best offering from musical comedy and the legitimate stage into a few minutes for vaudeville.

One of the most prominent of these will be Elizabeth Price, who was recently featured with Nora Bayes in "The Jolly Bachelors" at Low Fields' Broadway theatre in New York. Another is Charles King, who took George M. Cohan's place in "The Yankee Prince," and who will at Keith's do some of his Cohan stunts that made such a hit on Broadway.

Another couple from the legitimate are the Dolly Sisters, who last season appeared in the big theatre scene in "The Midnight Sons," and were one of the hits of that production.

Connolly and Webb will be a team new to Boston, with a splendid comedy called "A Stormy Finish," in which some excellent piano playing is introduced.

F. P. Gaudreau is passing out some very attractive time table cards containing the complete list of trains on the Gloucester branch, showing the arrival and departure from all stations. Cards may be obtained at his barber shop in Central square, next to Varney's drug store.

To consider in buying food. Selecting food requires the most careful thought and judgment. You have to please the taste and nourish the body. We all know a good thing when we eat it. Pure food makes rich red blood. Tender, juicy chops and steaks please the taste and aid digestion. In choosing a doctor you always select one who has proven his skill by what he has done. Our great success proves to you that we satisfy our customers. Our business has increased daily since we started. Through the duldest winter months we kept eight men hustling early and late. Our books are in charge of an A1 man. We use daily slips or pass books as you wish. Our store is equipped in the most sanitary way for handling pure food. Our service is the best obtainable. Can you afford to buy meats and fruits that are exposed to flies and dust, or that is put in a box and expressed around several hours and becomes heated and sweaty?

ASK YOUR DOCTOR.

Soon after your meat order leaves our cooler it is delivered to you and placed on ice, fresh and healthy.

A marriage of much interest to Farms people was that of Miss Addie Foster Day, daughter of Charles H. Day, commander of Preston Post 188, and Charles Alexander Sutherland, which took place on the afternoon of July 4 at the residence of Rev. E. J. V. Huiginn of Beverly. While their intimate friends knew the wedding was to take place shortly, the event on the above date was a great surprise to them. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland are very popular at the Farms. They are at present residing at the home of the bride's parents on Oak street. They are planning to take a trip to Montreal, Canada, the former home of Mr. Sutherland.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Pierce have vacated the house on Hart street. Preston Place, where they have lived for a number of years, and have moved into a nearby tenement. Mr. Pierce has a pretty cottage under construction, located on his property on Hart street, adjoining the Jesse Pierce estate. Quincy A. Shaw, 2nd, who purchased the various estates in that vicinity early last spring also secured that of Mr. Pierce.

The pupils of Miss Gladys Trull will give a recital and entertainment in Neighbors' hall tonight. A dance will follow, the music being furnished by the Salem Cadet orchestra.

The annual summer outing of the Pilgrim Wanderers will be held at Fernwood grove, Gloucester, next Wednesday, July 20. There will be quite a delegation present from the local colony.

Former Alderman Robert E. Hodgkins and family, also J. M. Publicover and family, have been enjoying camp life the past week at Mr. Hodgkin's cottage on Squam river, Gloucester. Mr. Hodgkins and Mr. Publicover came to the Farms every day, however, to attend to their business affairs.

The family circle of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan was made larger by the arrival of a baby girl on Tuesday.

The Thissell Provision company, who are occupying one of the stores in Neighbors' hall block, have been for some time cramped for room to meet the requirements of their steadily increasing business. The latter part of last week, the firm completed arrangements with the owners of the building whereby they have leased the next store occupied by Wong Fook, the Chinese laundryman, and will turn the two stores into one, which will enable them to add many new features to their business. Mechanics are now at work in the vacant part renovating and setting up fixtures. Wong Fook, the laundryman, has leased the next store to the one he occupied and which was until recently used for a barber shop.

Wednesday's meeting of the Sarah W. Whitman club took the form of an afternoon's outing. They met at West beach, where they occupied one of the large piazzas of a boat house on the beach bank.

The business meeting of the Beverly Farms new band will be held at their rooms on High street next Monday evening.

The Band concert at Manchester last evening proved a big attraction for a large number of Farms people.

Mrs. Silverberg of West street was very much surprised on Tuesday to have her mother, who is an aged lady, walk into her home. Her mother has been spending the past two years in Los Angeles, Cal., and as relatives were coming East, she took the opportunity to make the journey, Mrs. Silverberg not knowing of the intended visit.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hicks (nee Gertrude Chipehase) and Mrs. Martin of New York arrived the early part of the week. They have taken apartments on Haskell street.

It has been especially "hot" during this week for the Beverly Farms firemen as they have been called upon to answer several alarms. Besides the Morse stable, they were called out on Monday to fight a fierce forest fire rear of George F. Wood's residence on Hart street, which took several hours to put out. On Tuesday evening they had a brush fire to handle in the rear of the Allen Curtis estate on Oak street.

Weston W. R. Corps 93 are to hold a public lawn party on Marshall's Field Wednesday, July 27. A tag entitling the wearer to admittance can be purchased for 25c. The ladies have been at work for some time, making arrangements and have planned to make this event one of pleasure for all. There is to be a pretty illumination of lighted lanterns, dancing, refreshments and a variety of other features, all of which will go to suit the various tastes of the patrons. As the money received from affairs of this kind is devoted to worthy objects, the purchase of a tag would not be money misspent.

Ganderbone's Forecast

For July.

Copyright 1910, by G. H. Rieth.

When the Ballinger trial is ended,
And the jury has said what it thinks;
When the case has been made and defended
With the wonted political winks—
We shall smile—and gads, we shall need to
That feel it as well had been dropped,
And the Guggenheim crowd will proceed to Resume where it was when it stopped.

The signs shall come down in the timber,
And the patents shall tie up the coal.
The law will get flabby and limber,
And the trusts will do well on the whole.
It always turns out in that manner,
Although we may blush to confess it,
And we do not regard it a banner
Achievement, exactly, to guess it.

July is a tribute to Caesar. One day, with some other insurgents, he talked by the Pillar of Pompey on tlings of political urgency. He was just on the point of explaining the key to some government riddle when a party of regulars jumped him and cut him in two in the middle.

There were Decius Brutus, the speaker, and Cassius, boss of the Senate, together with others insistent upon some political tenet. "The party forever!" they shouted, and what with that terrible slasher Servilius Casca, great Caesar as well had been run through a hashier.

At any rate, Antony found him cut up into fodder for fishes, and begged this request of the Romans, who granted the least of his wishes. And thus it has happened and shall be so long as the Tiber runs by the Pillar of Pompey that Caesar shall live in the name of July:

The dynamite cap and the rocket shall remind us of tyranny thwarted, and the valiant forefather shall turn in his coffin to see what he started.
The eagle shall mount on his pinions and circle the North and the South, and the rapid-fire orator stand on the platform and shoot off his mouth.

This latter, however, is harmless in a strict pathological way, but remains notwithstanding an evil we must in due season allay. Alas, how deficient is nature that might lay this pest on the shelf with ruling that shooting his mouth off he gave the lockjaw to himself!

This tetanus, we are quite certain, has good and defensible uses, and all of its manifestations thus far have been only abuses. The idea, as we regard it, is not that it should be the cause of any more serious matter than locking the orator's jaws.

You know that we never hear of it except on the Fourth of July, and whenever some innocent gets it we forever are wondering why. Well, this is the fact of the matter, and by Jove we are willing to bet it turns out in the long run that no one but a lot of old wind-jammers get it.

However, be that as it may be,
And get whom the tetanus will,
The jubilant youth of the nation
Will resume with its shooting to kill.
The safe and the sane celebration
Will suit us who are not so skittish,
But the youngsters have got to do something
To show what we did to the British.

There never was anything safe in the way the forefathers attacked them, and as for the saner attainments, the old fellows seem to have lacked them. They simply cast fear to the bow-wows and waded into the affray, and a boy does not think himself worthy if he can't shoot himself, anyway.

At any rate, Jeffries and Johnson will growl like a couple of poodles and observe independence with beating the hair off their mutual noodles. They'll alternate making the other leviathan howl for his mother, and if the country at random is lucky they'll manage to kill one another.

It's only a plan to make money, deserving the strictest of strictures, for what they will have is a race war, dividing what's made on the pictures. We've been pretty mad in this country for dollars, and power, and places, but this is the first time we've trafficked upon the abyss between races.

The fat occupant of the White House

Will lie on his back in the grass
Beneath the green Beverly maples
Observing the aeroplanes pass.
The chauffeurs will keep right on chauffing,

With seeing it's no one but Bill,
And they'll sigh just to think what had happened
Had they flown over Sagamore Hill.

The Fourth shall return to discover
Us waiting in battle array,
And what with one thing and another

Regretting we won, anyway.
The cannon shall boom, and the scramble

Put by five or ten dollars a month and own one of these attractive house lots. Later build your own cottage; make your own garden and pay no more rent.

This is an ideal location, between Beverly and Prides's Crossing, on electric and train lines near High and Grammar schools and not crowded.

Our Weekly Letter From Washington

By F. J. Dyer.

Washington, July 15.—It is inevitable that the views of the East and West should differ regarding the conservation of the nation's natural resources. Senator Borah, of Idaho, one of the young intellectual giants of the Senate, delivered a speech shortly before Congress adjourned, in which he gave his view on the subject. He said that 150,000,000 acres of the public domain had been granted to railroads and other public service corporations, and that a most liberal policy had been followed toward them, even when they had not earned their land grants. To homesteaders about 115,000,000 acres had been granted. The homesteader said the Senator, was required by law to "take his family upon the land, improve it, and reside upon it for five years. No matter how desolate the locality, how insufferable the cold of the winter or the drought in summer, no matter what crop failures or sickness occurred, he had to remain or forfeit the title. He was chained like Prometheus to his rock. If he left for a time to gain a livelihood to support his family his title was promptly challenged and the most strict interpretation of the law administered. A few years ago by a cruel, unjust and illegal system a method was devised which, as a practical matter, extended the residence period to seven or eight years. It not only extended the residence period, but it put upon the settler already limited in means an extra burden for attorney fees and expenses of litigation." The Senator continued:

"The settler would make his proof, and a special agent would appear and file an objection to the issuance of patent. In other words, the special agent acting for the Government, was proceeding upon the theory that every settler who came in contact with the public lands was dishonest and a perjurer. The special agent was accomplishing in this way two things which added greatly to his zeal. First, he was overseeing and supervising the honesty and integrity of all men—and how fascinating this kind of service is to a special agent no human language can describe. There is an exquisiteness of pleasure connected with such service known only to the highly wrought and sensitive soul of a special agent. Second, he was justifying in the most conclusive way the necessity of his work and the necessity of his continued employment by the Government.

"Thus the system, with an appetite increasing as it fed, indiscriminately challenged every title, good and bad. By the time the special agent completed his report and the matter was finally passed upon months and years had passed. Often the homesteader, impoverished and harrassed, gave up the work of his five years and his prospect of a home and went into the town to enter the competitive field of the day laborer. Mr. President, I do not hesitate to say—and I shall be glad to see the man who will refute the statement—that this system is an outrageous violation of law, of every principle of justice and of rightful relationship which should exist between the government and the citizen."

Senator Borah made it plain that the West protests against the policy of non-use. He said: "Every water power unused, locked up in idleness and inactivity when there are communities to serve, is a subtraction from the sum of human happiness and prosperity. Every piece of land which will produce the necessities of life dedicated by law to non-use, incorporated in a reserve and denied to settlement, is an extra burden upon every man who buys the necessities of life. Every year in which thousands of feet of ripened timber are permitted to rot and fall in the reserves you are stealing something from the human race that belongs to it, and every year that the great coal beds of the Pacific slope go undeveloped it costs this Government extra millions to send coal around to the Pacific, burdens every citizen in that part of the country with exorbitant freight charges, and puts extra millions into the hands of eastern coal companies who are delighted to see this go on. It would be a magnificent scheme indeed to compel the whole great West to hold its vast resources in idleness, deprive its people of their enjoyment and use, and compel them to pay tribute to those resources of which you have taken possession here and developed at your own free will."

SOCIETY NOTES

Every table for the dinner-dance at the Essex County club next Friday night had been engaged early in the week, and many who desired tables have had to be disappointed. Everything points to a most successful and brilliant social affair. The way the twenty tables were snapped up and the demand for the tables for the August dinner-dance emphasizes the occasion for more of these functions, and it is likely others will be arranged. Among those who have engaged tables for the dinner are Judge W. H. Moore of New York and Pride's Crossing, who will have a party of sixteen; Mrs. John C. Kerr of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. C. A. Munn, Mrs. Washington B. Thomas, Dr. L. H. Lancashire, Mrs. J. Warren Merrill, Mrs. R. F. Greeley, George F. Willett, Mrs. E. C. Fitch, Mrs. S. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. Arthur D. Cook, the German embassy, Samuel Carr, Mr. Kelch of the Brazilian embassy, Captain Vassilieff of the Russian embassy, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. W. S. Kennard, Mrs. J. B. Bagnell and L. C. Hanna.

Mrs. Maxwell Norman gave a luncheon for ten last Sunday at her summer home in Hamilton.

Mrs. Francis L. Higginson was hostess Monday evening for a company of guests at her Pride's Crossing residence. On Sunday she had as dinner guest the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham of Boston, who preached at the Beverly Unitarian Church.

Polo has been a big attraction for many North Shore people this week. Two games were played Monday afternoon and two Wednesday afternoon at Myopia. Two more will be played Saturday afternoon, one at three o'clock for the Hamilton cups between the winners of Wednesday match and the Ramblers, and at five o'clock a special match, Cooperstown vs. Myopia A. Next Monday at three there will be a special match and at five the final match for the Myopia cups will be played. There has been more or less entertaining at the Myopia club all the week occasioned by the games.

The Washington B. Thomases are on another cruise in their yacht, the "Arbella." They left Pride's Crossing the latter part of last week and are cruising in Maine waters as far as Bar Harbor.

—x—

Judge Peters and Dr. Vance of Louisville, Ky., were on east last week in connection with their duties as members of the commission having in charge the building of a new city hospital for Louisville. They were down to Beverly Farms and dined with Samuel Culbertson, who resigned as a member of the commission, and whose place on the board Dr. Vance was appointed to take.

—x—

Regret is felt in Washington and along the North Shore over the transfer of Mr. Kroupensky, counselor of the Russian Embassy, to a similar official position in Vienna. He is now abroad on leave and his successor has as yet not been appointed. He has summered on the North Shore for several seasons.

SOCIETY NOTES

The weekly band concert at the Essex County club Wednesday afternoon was the occasion of another brilliant gathering of North Shore people. The veranda and lawn in front of the clubhouse was alive with smartly gowned matrons and young people. Several hundred people were there, cottagers and their guests driving and motoring over from Beverly, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms and Manchester and from Magnolia and the Gloucester shore. Several informal luncheon parties were given at the club previous to the concert including one at which Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch was hostess. Mrs. Fitch had fourteen at her table. Miss Helen Lancashire was hostess for another party, there being besides her father, half a dozen young people in the party. Mrs. William McMillan of St. Louis was over from Magnolia and gave a luncheon for nine.

—x—

W. H. de Beaufort, attaché of the Netherlands legation, was a guest of Colonel and Mrs. Henry May of Washington and Manchester over the last week-end.

—x—

Mrs. Muchmore is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. S. Stearns, at the Lea cottage, Magnolia. Mrs. Muchmore is from New York, and motored over, making the trip in one day. Miss Ada Lewis, a cousin of Mrs. Livingston-McCormack, so well known on the North Shore, will be the house guest of Mrs. Stearns for the month of August. Miss Lewis is also from New York.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Frick of Pride's Crossing have been in New York a few days this week.

—x—

Mrs. Joseph Sargent, a former summer resident of Magnolia, now spending the summer at Cohasset, is the guest of Mrs. Horace B. Stanton at the Hayden cottage, Magnolia. Mr. and Mrs. Stanton will sail soon for Europe where they will go to Oberammergau, and Paris.

—x—

It has been definitely settled that Mrs. Susan Longworth is not to occupy her cottage at Beverly Cove this season, and consequently her son and daughter-in-law, Cong. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth will not come to the North Shore unless they pay a visit here later. The Longworth cottage is being occupied for the balance of the summer by Charles P. Curtis who moved in the first of this week. Mr. Curtis is prominent in yachting circles along the shore, being the owner of the "Ellen," the winner of last season's trophy.

—x—

Henry C. Frick maintains at his estate at Pride's Crossing one of the largest, as well as one of the finest stables to be found along the North Shore. There are fourteen horses in the stable. Mr. and Mrs. Frick use their horses very little however, preferring motoring to driving. Miss Helen Frick is seen on the North Shore drives occasionally holding the ribbons over her pet pair of dark bay ponies, and sometimes riding on her saddle horse. Childs Frick maintains a stable of his own near the Myopia Hunt club. He plays polo and follows the hounds occasionally in the autumn.

Some Interesting Formal Gardens

By MARY H. NORTHEND

When we consider the subject of flower culture in its highest aspect, we must agree that the most elaborate development of the art is found in the formal garden. This feature has come down to us from antiquity; as the modern Italian garden is but the direct lineal descendant of the Roman villa, where peacocks walked the terraces and gold-fish disported themselves in the fountains, while among the tastefully grouped shrubbery, the finest sculptors had embalmed in deathless marble the flight of Daphne or the death struggles of Ancaeus, torn by his own hounds.

Returning crusaders brought to Holland, along with tulips, hyacinths, and various other bulbs from the Holy Land, the theory of the Italian garden, as seen and admired by Dutch crusaders in the seaports of Italy. A hint was enough for these flower-loving people. Thorough and practical in all their habits, they soon caused their sandy, alluvial soil to produce bulbs of a quality hitherto unknown to floriculture; and the theory of the Italian garden was soon adapted to the requirements of Holland, forming the basis of the Dutch garden of the present day.

The Italian Renaissance brought the formal garden into England, about the middle of the fifteenth century. Modifications of this model resulted in the English tea-gardens, which served as a pattern for our Colonial ancestors, when New England was being settled, and gardens were being coaxed into bloom amid virgin forest and meadow.

These same quaint old-time gardens, with their appealing loveliness have exerted their influence upon the handsome grounds all along the North Shore, and many a formal garden has kept the touch of simplicity in the prim, box-bordered path. Our earliest impressions of beauty are those which persist longest, and our childish memory of "Grandmother's garden" insensibly affects the ideals of our after life.

Our first thought is that formal gardens must of necessity show great and depressing similarity. This is not true, because each contains features distinctly individual, which render it unique among its class. Unless the garden is an exact replica, made so by direct intention, it can no more be like another than two human faces can be exactly alike. There is a general similarity and what we might call a family re-been the principal theme of so many a beautiful garden, that we had almost grown to believe that the center was its acceptable place. This is not true. Change the shape and size of the fountain, and it is more ornamental in another place. It can stand in a nook or corner, among the shrubbery, with an effect fully as artistic as that reached by the great central location of the Italian scheme.

An example of individuality where original and striking effects are produced, as just now suggested, by means of unusual grouping, is found in the formal garden of T. Jefferson Coolidge at Magnolia, Massachusetts. It is reached from the somewhat higher level of the entrance by means of short flights of stone steps. In the center of this sunken space, one would naturally look for the stereotyped fountain of Italian marble, but one looks in vain. Its place has been usurped by a stone sun-dial, brought from England by the owner, and the usurpation constitutes a

As around the dial lie formal beds of blooming plants, which are changed as the season changes, so that they may be always in fullest floescence. Nor is the fountain wholly wanting. As we stand by the sun-dial and look across the brilliant paterres, we see a flight of stone steps, guarded upon each side by a crouching leopard. Behind these, and against the wall, stands a handsome fountain, supported by strangely-carved dolphins, and surmounted by a statue of Neptune armed with his trident. Granite, steps, below the fountain, lead down to a little pool beneath, where grow rare lilies. The note of individuality is sharply struck in the whole plan of this arrangement, and the fountain, in its unusual but thoroughly appropriate location, is still the dominant thought.

semblance, but very little servile imitation; as the position occupied by each differs so widely from that assigned to every other, that location alone would render repetition not only undesirable, but actually impossible. Each formal garden is a rule and a pattern for itself, and could hardly be copied to advantage.

Certain features appear and reappear in endless variety that always escapes monotony. The feature which was once termed an arbor, has now been transmuted into a pergola, but has suffered nothing by the change. According to the lay of the land and to the juxtaposition of buildings, it may occupy center, entrance, or any side, with equal appropriateness. So it is with shrubbery and the trellises; so with the sunken garden and lily-pond; so even with the fountain, whose location, more than any other one thing, can make or mar the beauty of the whole enclosure. The great central fountain, in varied shapes and forms, has the Navy, George von L. Meyer, at Hamilton, Massachusetts, shows a delightful formal garden, most attractively laid out. It lays at the right of the house, and is reached by a flight of marble steps. Wrought iron arches overhung with vines and rambler roses are features, and in the centre is a beautiful marble well-curb flanked by terra cotta vases which stand upon tall marble pedestals. Defining the geometrically designed flowerbeds are small cypress trees, kept carefully trimmed. These diminutive trees are being made quite a feature of at this estate, and are extensively used for ornamental purposes. They are transplanted direct from the woods in their wild state, and the experiment has been most successful.

The formal beds of the garden each show a solid mass of bloom, and between them are gravelled paths and plats of velvety greensward edged with a border of sweet alyssum or lobelia. At one end of the garden, in the centre of a flower-bordered grass plot, is a handsomely carved fountain of Italian marble,

Mrs. Guy Norman's Sicilian garden was brought there and filled in after the walls were laid. So it is really a sea garden. Great jars stand along the upper terrace, and jars, (Continued to Page 53.)

SOCIETY NOTES

"Nature has been most kind to this section of the North Shore," writes an ardent devotee of the North Shore after a recent visit to Beverly Cove, "and what nature did not accomplish the hand of man has aided and has reared stately tree-bordered avenues, taken swamplands and transformed them into bowers of beauty and sylvan retirement for the very wealthy and representative clientele of the Cove. Old ocean does her part, too, in the stage setting as does the picturesque little lighthouse at the Cove, which stands out as a bit of drama in this novel ensemble of delightful attractions in a vicinity most notable now as the summer home of a President of the U. S. In the foreground of the picture are the shores of Marblehead and Salem and the islands—Mystery and Baker's. The combination of ocean and woodland is a charming asset of many of the estates here and there is a maze of intricate paths, groves and thickets in which one is glad to get lost for they reveal such artistic treatment of the landscape gardener and retirement in its most restful guise. And it is no surprise that the Presidential family should be so highly pleased with the essentials of beauty and quiet the Burgess Point section of the Cove offers."

Miss Harriet Dexter is away from Pride's Crossing for a short visit with friends at Northeast Harbor, Me., and other points in that vicinity.

The naval attaché of the Brazilian embassy, Lieut. Com. Marques de Azevedo and the Marquesa are at Mt. Elliot, Va., for the summer and their Washington apartments at Stoneleigh court are closed.

Gordon Dexter of Pride's Crossing is cruising in Maine waters in his steam yacht the "Pawnee." He was at Northeast Harbor Tuesday.

There was much North Shore interest in the wedding July 16, at Philadelphia, of Miss Priscilla Toland and Gaspar Bacon of Boston, son of U. S. Ambassador Robert Bacon of Paris. The Baroness Von Schauensee of Rome, who presides over a beautiful home there, crossed for her sister's wedding.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth arrived at Bar Harbor last week as the guest of Mrs. Nicholas Anderson of Washington, at the Miller cottage, and was to remain a week or more, as much entertaining was to be done in her honor.

Davies Sohier, Harvard '11, son of Col. and Mrs. William D. Sohier of Beverly, and Bishop Lawrence's son, W. A. Lawrence, are soon to depart for England where they will join classmates for a motor tour.

Miss Estelle Turner, who is the guest of Mrs. Roger Noble Burnham at Magnolia, is a Southerner who has just returned from Europe where her sister and herself sang the plantation melodies of the Old South to their banjo accompaniments. They sang in Italy and France, but their greatest successes were in England, where they appeared before royalty at a garden party given by the present King and Queen, at which the late King Edward was present. They also sang at Mrs. Ronald's. Mrs. Potter Palmer's, Sir Laurence Alma Tadema's, the American Embassy, and many other places of the kind. In America they have sung at the White House for Mrs. Roosevelt's guests, at Newport and at Bar Harbor. They will sing at Beverly in August at one of the fashionable summer cottages.

SOCIETY NOTES

If you have found pleasure in dining al fresco in a setting of beautiful and multicolored lights where the strains of well rendered music, excellent cuisine and service have made the pleasure complete, all you who visit this summer section will have gone away with something lost, unless you have stopped on your motor-ing trip at the North Shore Grill in Magnolia. This novel and beautiful summer dining club—club only in that one may enjoy club service and club privileges—is becoming more and more popular with each week of the present season. Situated opposite the Library Building in Magnolia, at one end of the attractive Colonnade, the Grill is an ideal place to entertain friends or to go alone to enjoy quiet and rest in an atmosphere of art and music. Among the recent guests were George B. Inches who came from his summer home in Nahant with a party of friends; Baron Albert de Schlippenbach, consul-general at New York for Russia, who is visiting in Manchester, and a party of friends; Joseph W. Welch of the Oceanside, Magnolia, and Walter S. Hill of Rockport; and A. G. Hodges a New York banker who drove over from his summer home in Wenham for luncheon. Walter D. Denegre, of New Orleans and Washington came to the Grill with two men friends Saturday from his summer estate in Manchester. The Misses May of Manchester and Washington entertained friends at the Grill Saturday night. Visitors who took advantage of the special Sunday night dinner which have been attracting many persons to the Grill included James B. McLean and family; C. R. Manville and family, and others from the Oceanside, Magnolia, besides many motor parties from points along the North Shore and Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wigglesworth of Milton and Manchester and their daughters are in Europe this summer.

The Earl and Countess of Suffolk, who have been in America for a short visit with friends and with the latter's mother, Mrs. Levi Leiter, at Beverly have returned to England, taking passage on the Baltic.

Miss Edith Castle, oratorio contralto, of Boston, will spend some time in Magnolia during July. She has friends who will make her stay very pleasant. Miss Castle is engaged for the month of August at Chautauqua, N. Y.

Bar Harbor is entertaining many North Shore people during the cruise of the Eastern Yacht Club and President Taft is also there this week and was expected to try his skill on the Kebo golf links. E. T. Stotesbury, father of Mrs. S. E. Hutchinson of Philadelphia and Beverly Farms, is also at Bar Harbor, the guest of his daughter, Mrs. John Kearsley Mitchell, 2nd. Mr. Stotesbury recently bought an island in Bar Harbor, a reputed gift to his daughter, and much speculation is aroused as to the ultimate development of it.

Sig. Delfino Menoth, the great Maestro, engaged to supervise the Boston Opera Company the coming season, is occupying a cottage on Puritan Road, Swampscott, with his family and secretary. Sig. Menoth came to Boston from Warsaw, Russia, where he was Regisseur-General at the Imperial Opera House.

J. Pierpont Morgan, who was on the North Shore last month as the guest of Henry L. Higginson of West Manchester, has been in Marblehead Harbor this week on his steam yacht, Corsair. Mrs. Morgan accompanied him.

Mrs. A. M. Kidder of Englewood, N. J., and Wenham is receiving the congratulations of her friends on her recovery from a recent illness.

SOCIETY NOTES

Flannels and linens have the call now despite the setback attempted by the Weather Man during the week, and even to the uninformed and uninitiated, it is evident that the much planned society tennis tournament is near at hand. Held on the Oceanside courts, where have been played so many important national tennis events, and under the auspices of the active and ambitious members of the Magnolia Lawn Tennis Association, this year's tournament should surpass those of years past in that a number of players well known to society in many cities will have an opportunity to test their ability against some of the best amateurs. Entries are being received already and the unusual number of young women who thus have signified their desire to compete means much to the success of the event which will last at least two weeks. Miss Helen Taft, the daughter of the President, a strong player and who has been seen on the Myopia courts many times this season, has been asked to compete, and members of the committee expect to receive her entry within a short time. Miss Eleanor Sears of Brookline, and Newport and everywhere society congregates, has been one of the strongest players of the women in the Magnolia tournaments heretofore and her reply to the request to play is awaited anxiously not only by the committee, but by the women entrants, though not with the same feeling. Miss Eleanor Bradley of Brookline is often seen on the Oceanside courts making ready for the tournament. Another strong Brookline player is likely to be Mrs. Eleanor Rowe. Miss Josephine Stevens, Miss Alice Thorndike, the Misses Lee—Bessie and Marie—are among the other Brookline girls who will attempt to keep the honors of the event in this part of the country. Miss Louise Panhallow, whose brother is a member of the tournament committee, will with him, represent Jamaica Plain, and as they both are fast players, they are apt to upset some calculations not only in the singles but in the mixed doubles. But the girls from Boston and nearby are not likely to have an especially easy time in carrying off the tournament honors if one may judge by the practice play each day on the courts. For there are among the guests of the Oceanside, and the cottagers along the North Shore, some girls from New York and the Middle West who evidently know something about tennis. From St. Louis, the home of Dwight Davis, who formed the Magnolia association when it was entered in the National association play, and who did much for the sport all over the country, are three players at least, already seen and heard from, who will be worthy contestants. They are Miss Effie Bagnell, Miss Ethel Johnson and Miss Mersman. Then New York will have the Misses Solari, Miss Julia Colbert, Miss Katherine Moore, and Miss Katherine Tweed. The Misses Pollard who came over from Eastern point last year and captured much of the glory will be seen on the courts again. Other "outsiders" as far as distances are concerned may loom up as outsiders and outdistance some of the above mentioned players. They are Miss Britton of Washington, daughter of Alexander Britton, and the Misses Baxter of Tennessee. Many other society girls are yet to be heard from. They will compete in the singles and doubles for women and mixed doubles. A large number of young men from all along the North Shore and all over the country who always appear in this tournament will play and under the direction of Reginald Kennard, Sherban Panhallow, and factory tournament is assured.

The eleventh hour announcement that the Essex County club tennis tournament in Manchester-by-the-Sea will begin on the same day has not daunted the enthusiasm of the Magnolia Association and it is understood that an effort will be made to have the players in both tournaments in so far as the rules of each club will permit. The Essex County Club tournament will be open to members and invited guests of the club and members of the Nahant, Myopia and Montserrat clubs, in mixed doubles—partners to be drawn by lots—women's handicap singles and men's handicap singles. The entries will be closed July 28, for the Essex club and July 30 for the Magnolia association.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Noble Burnham were at home informally in their studio at Magnolia last Sunday afternoon. One is sure to find at Mrs. Burnham's afternoons those who do things and those who are interested in the things which are done. Her Thursdays last winter invariably introduced some delightful and interesting visitor to Boston as a special guest. Mrs. Burnham is a traditional Southerner in manner and believes in greeting the stranger within her gates with true cordiality and bidding them sincerely welcome.

The Hawthorne Inn is having a very busy season. Proprietor Stacey says it is the best in his career as manager of this popular hostelry. There were a little more than 400 guests registered in the Inn and its various cottages Tuesday and the prospects for August point to an even busier month.

There are many young people at the Hawthorne Inn this season—more than usual—and as a result there is continually something going on in the amusement line. At present they are very much engaged in a tennis tournament, thirty-two young men and women taking part. They are also arranging an entertainment to be given soon. The tournament was started Tuesday and the first round must be finished by Saturday afternoon. Cups will be awarded the winners and medals to the runners up. K. P. After a trip to Cape Cod they return to their summer home at Spring Lake Beach, N. J.

Mrs. John Brown Herron has returned to Pittsburg, after a visit with Mrs. H. M. Curry at Magnolia. Mrs. Herron's visit recalls the fact that her fine estate, "Hadston," on South Linden avenue, Pittsburg, was the scene of a very brilliant wedding reception April 9 following the nuptials of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth, and Henry M. Curry at the Calvary Episcopal church, Pittsburg.

Robert Taft, son of the President, will spend several weeks at Murray Bay, Canada, this season, the seat of the former summer home of the presidential family and where young Taft's friends will give him a cordial welcome.

Dr. F. G. Balch and family of Boston have arrived at the small Higginson cottage, West Manchester, which they occupied two seasons ago. On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. John Balch of Milton will arrive for a two weeks' visit with Dr. Balch and family.

Major and Mrs. Henry L. Higginson of Sunset Hill, West Manchester, gave a dinner for eight Wednesday evening. They have their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. Henry Higginson, near them again this season, being occupants of the bungalow on the estate for some six weeks. The A. Henry Higginson four-in-hand is one of the smart rigs seen on the North Shore drives this season.

Mrs. Anna P. Peabody of Commonwealth avenue, Boston and Bar Harbor, has rented "Floriana," her Ipswich estate, to the J. T. Willetts of New York.

Ipswich.

There is a distinct charm about this inland North Shore town, that has earned for itself a warm spot in the affections of many of the most wealthy people of the country, a number of whom have reared very beautiful and costly estates in the sweeping confines of broad fields and towering elevations. So satisfied have they become with their summer environment that they remain now in many cases as permanent residents of this town, so full of historical tradition and where many old colonial mansions are significant. To the list of costly summer mansions will be added another, namely, that of R. T. Crane, jr., of Chicago, who bought the Castle Hill property last year. It is to be of slap dash, Spanish type, some 100 x 300 feet in dimensions and will probably embrace some 65 rooms. Ira G. Hershey of Boston is the contractor and the architects are Shepley, Rutan & Coolidge of Boston. Mr. Coolidge is in full charge. The Crane family are occupying the original house on the Castle Hill.

James Howe Proctor of Boston is expending some $100,000 on an addition to his estate on Fellows Road. Selectman Chadburne, the well known Ipswich contractor and town official, has the big painting contract in connection with this estate.

Dr. Joseph L. Goodale and family of Beacon street, Boston, are abroad this season and the Misses Hunneman of Roxbury have their estate on Argilla road.

The Willett estate has been rented to Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Cook of Boston and Dedham and the Theodore Wendell farm to Mrs. Rogers of Boston. Miss Rogers, the daughter, is an artist of much ability and this is their second season in Ipswich.

Swampscott.

A. P. Pierce and family of Chestnut Hill, Boston, are spending their seventh season at the New Ocean House.

Robert Bernard and family of New York have arrived at the Ocean House for the remainder of July. Mr. Bernard is auditor of the Lincoln National Bank, one of the largest financial concerns in the country.

H. Pendleton Stevenson of Washington and New York is enjoying his sixth consecutive season at the Ocean House.

E. S. and J. B. Highland, prominent clubmen of Lowell, were among the motorists to recently register at the hotel.

The concerts at the Tedesco Country Club have been inaugurated and many beautiful gowns are shown among the contingent who attend and who motor down from the hotels and cottages. The band concerts on Saturdays at the Nahant Club House also are enjoyed by members of the Swampscott colony, particularly Mrs. Curtis Guild and her sister, Mrs.

John Lavelle, who motor up frequently for these functions and renew acquaintances in Nahant where they formerly summered.

Marblehead.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood of the Carleton, Boston, were recent guests at the Cliff club, being accompanied by Admiral M. Domeneq Garcia of Buenos Ayres, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ireland of Boston. Dr. Nathaniel P. Breed of Lynn has also been a recent partaker of the hospitality of the club. H. R. Wright of Springfield, a member, had as recent guests Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Monte, Miss Bess Wright, Springfield, and Miss Sara Martin, Rochester, N. Y. G. P. Hathaway of Devereaux introduced this week Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Cutter, H. M. Hobson, the Misses Cutter, Nashua, N. H. Mrs. Adams of the Carleton, Boston, gave a veranda party for five in honor of the 75th birthday of her mother. There were special floral decorations for the occasion. The concerts on the electric grand square piano at the club are much enjoyed by dinner guests, and informal dancing is often indulged in after dinner.

This is the last season that summer residents of Marblehead Neck and visitors will have to drive over the old road between the town and the neck, for within a short time work is to begin on the improvement of this place, and it probably will be finished before next summer. When it is done the narrow strip of rock and stone will be a beautiful causeway with a first-class driving road, a fine walk and seawalls on either side. The highway commission, to which the Legislature delegated the duty of expending the special appropriation of $50,000 for the Marblehead Neck improvements, has prepared the specifications and is about to advertise for bids. There is a stretch of about a half-mile and the specifications call for the construction of a breakwater along the ocean side with riprap outside the wall, the rebuilding of a part of the wall on the harbor side, the strengthening of this wall its entire length, and the construction of a causeway forty feet wide between these walls. Thirty feet of the width of the causeway will be occupied by a first-class macadam road, probably with dustless surface. The remaining ten feet will be used for a walk. The road across to the Neck was badly damaged last fall by a storm, but it was put in fair condition and has been serviceable this summer.

Cape Cod—Buzzards Bay and South Shore.

ARTICLE IX.

Cape Cod, the far-famed, defiant arm of the old Commonwealth; an arm that the land shakes in the face of old Neptune; an emblem of American independence that lifts its clenched fist at Provincetown toward any foreign foe that dares to threaten our shores.

In the hollow of this protecting arm landed Brewster, Bradford, Standish, Alden and others, the forefathers and founders of the Republic; until this arm of the old Commonwealth is the boast of American history now fittingly memorialized in the giant shaft erected at Provincetown to be dedicated August 5th by President Taft and a host of other eminent Americans.

Thoreau's land it is sometimes miscalled. He tramped the Cape shores many years ago and wrote a book about it in a pleasing style, but he never saw Cape Cod. That land of a thousand charms that today blossoms in such beauty Thoreau never saw. But he did see its quaint folks, its vast wave-swept beaches and felt its ocean breezes, and could this prince of the pen see it today how differently he would write.

And yet three centuries ago Brereton eulogized the glories of Cape Cod and said that in comparison England was a barren land. He was enthusiastic about its sweet soil, clear lakes, springs, green grasses, wooded hills, fertility and fruitfulness.

Verrazzani, Gomez, Gosnold, Champlain, Hudson, Smith and other adventurous spirits explored Cape Cod and historians assert that a thousand years ago the daring crews of old King Arthur landed on its shores.

the rendezvous of the Indians in far forgotten days. the sands in many places still retain the indelible marks where they built their huge bon fires and where they feasted on a blended dish of green corn, luscious shell fish and sweet fleshed mackerel baked on hot stones and steamed in sodden sea weed that in results cannot be equalled in electrically geared or other modernized cooking devices. Whoever has not anticipated at some time or another this feast of the simmering stones and smoking sea grasses and revelled in the epicurean delight of a real clam bake has till a revelation for his jaded stomach, passé with hotel fare or even the art of a French cook?

Arrow heads and other Indian relics are often found in a stroll along the beach or a ramble over the hills. Until 1870 some of the richest lands remained in the possession of the Indians before they could legally be sold, but they have now passed into the hands of investors and developers who have foreseen the prospective value of these rare lands as homesites.

The varied life of Cape Cod on land and sea has been enshrined in song and story for generations, until this storied peninsula is drawing multitudes to its shores who cannot resist its charms when once they have come within sight of the peaks of "Grey Gables" and the red tiled roof of "Crow's Nest."

Since Gosnold sailed up that sparkling sea, Buzzards Bay, five miles wide and thirty miles long, called the "Naples of America," and named the lands beyond Cape Cod in 1602, more than two thousand registered pleasure craft alone, white-winged beauties, dance over the amethystine waters with the sunlight aslant on the gleaming sails and the spume-swept hulls.

Soon Boston men may sail direct from the city via the new Cape Cod canal, now being rushed day and night to completion, to their palaces along the breeze-swept harbors and moor in safe anchorage or at private wharf. The building of this twelve million dollar canal backed by great financial interests is second in importance to the Panama canal alone. It will revolutionize the coast-wise traffic and cause an influx of population along the Cape Cod shores of a significance to which as yet but a few have awakened.

From the point where the New Haven road branches southward through Monument Beach, the Pocasset, Cataumet and the Falmouths the shore are already dotted with the homes of the wealthy. Quisset harbor, Falmouth, is a dream of pure delight. The scenery along the shores of Buzzards Bay and from Wood's Hole to Cotuit and beyond is grandly varied. The winding sea line forms harbor indentations, inlets, islands, peninsulas, all backed by the terraced tree-crowned hills.

At "Wood's Hole," an old fashioned name that brooks of no change and clings to the place, are the government fish hatcheries where the egg spawn of every kind of fish are sent out to all part to restore the depleted rivers, harbors and lakes of the country.

Eastward is the town of Waquoit, with its growing summer population, on Waquoit Bay, one of the most beautiful harbors on Cape Cod; and beyond Popponesset, surrounded by high rolling bluffs and knolls connected by the famed Mashpee river to lake Wakeby, is one of the prettiest bays to be found anywhere, where the lands bordering it are the object of ambitious projects in seashore and city development.

At Oysterville the state has dredged a channel around Grand Island, making possible a sail of twelve miles in land-locked waters from Oysterville to Cotuit, the home of the celebrated oysters of the epicures. These shores are increasing in leaps and bounds under the stimulus of the aristocratic homes springing up in a night.

Along the edges of these sapphirine bays, shading off under the sky lights at times to tints of turquoise, where the trees come down to the luring lap of the waves and stand knee deep in the silver sands and shining pebbles, there nestle many quaint villages around which are beginning to cluster the "cottages" of royal proportions, boat clubs and landing places, both public and private.

No more gorgeous sunsets are vouchsafed the poet's soul than those gathered from over the waters of Vineyard Sound and the scene whether under the golden sun or the silver moon is a perennial delight for the lover of the beautiful.

A climax to a sail across the waters of Nantucket Sound is a clambake on Monomoy Keys where the storms sometimes wash bare the quaintly carved bones of some strange and forgotten craft that founded here before the American day dawned.

At Chatham and Orleans around and beyond Pleasant Bay to Truro on the North there is a singular grandeur in the sand dunes and blue billows of the wild ocean front where the most celebrated light stations of the world and the finest wireless station on the continent rear themselves among the curling, creamy, but cruel breakers, and where the hardy life guards form a setting for adventure and heroism unmatched by the pages of fiction.

Amid the aroma of meadow and marsh, bounded by variegated forests and billowed knolls, nestle old fashioned villages, along old fashioned roads and old fashioned cottages are there smothered in a wealth of climbing roses, the finishing touch is the quaint old wind mills lending the last dash of Old Holland to complete the picture.

Whether it be a basket picnic under a huge parachute on the beach, a clambake along the edge of some shady patch of brush, a fishing party, a sail by moonlight, an informal hop at the hotel, or an affair of sweller proportions, can anyone conjure up a more luring quest for the lover of summer abandon than old Cape Cod?

At Magnolia.

A little girl ran up on the veranda of the Oceanside in Magnolia yesterday. Great big tears stood out of her eyes and she held her skirt in which something was bundled, close to her breast. Burying her face in her mother's lap she cried: "Dolly is killed!" "Never mind," answered the mother. "We'll have a new Dolly." "But I don't want a new Dolly," sobbed the child. "I want Dolly," and she would not be comforted. The mother was playing bridge, and the child quietly sobbing sat on the piazza beside the table and tried to mend the doll's broken head. Her sobs became more and more subdued and then a bright light dawned. She plucked her mother's skirt. "Mother, who did you say brings the babies?" "Dr. Stork," was the answer. "Then couldn't Dr. Stork fix a baby that had been run over by an automobile?" was the next question. "I suppose so," answered the mother, thinking to replace the doll after the child had gone to bed. "Then let's call him," cried the little girl. "May I call him, mother?" "But I'm afraid he wouldn't get to Magnolia before tonight," parried the mother, "although you may call him if you can find his address." The little girl jumped to her feet and gathering the pieces of the broken doll into her aproned skirt, ran as fast as she could toward the Library Building. A while later after the bridge was finished, the mother and her friends walked up the street wondering why the child had not returned. At the corner of Lexington and Norman avenues, the child was found, sitting on the grass, holding the doll's head together, and murmuring to herself: "Please good Dr. Stork, fix Dolly—please, good

Dr. Stork, fix Dolly." The women stopped in wonder, for there above the child was Dr. Stork, evidently oblivious to the appeal of the child on the grass. A new Dolly is expected by one little girl who went to bed with a promise, though it came not from Dr. Stork.

For the Dr. Stork to which the little girl prayed is of bronze—an idol of good fortune from old Japan—a superb piece of workmanship. Riding triumphant on the back of a tortoise, the bronze piece is symbolic to the Japanese of the higher nature over the lower, and as it is said to mean great good-fortune to its possessor, Roger Noble Burnham, the sculptor, fears he will not be able to keep it long inasmuch as there already have been many inquiries, which are likely to result in the removal of Dr. Stork and his "steed" to some North Shore estate.

North Shore People Interested in Pageant at Peterboro, N. H.

Many of our North Shore people are interested in the "Pageant of Peterboro, N. H., to be presented on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, August 16, 18 and 20, under the direction of the MacDowell Memorial association. The pageant will be entitled "The House of Dreams," and will be a memorial to Edward MacDowell, much of whose music was composed in Peterboro. The music, choral and instrumental, will be adapted from his work.

The pageant, arranged and presented by George P. Baker, will illustrate historic episodes of Indian life, of the Scotch-Irish life of the early settlers of colonial and revolutionary days, of the rise of the milling industry, of the civil war and later days. There will be a chorus of seventy-five voices led by H. Brooks Day.

Music has been orchestrated and the orchestra will be led by C. D. Clifton. There will be two hundred performers. The lyrics have been specially written by Hermann Hagedorn, the author of the "Troop of the Guard," and other poems, to fit MacDowell's music.

A number of North Shore cottagers, who frequently visit the Cheney's, the Basses, the Scofield's, and others who have magnificent country estates at Peterboro, or who go to beautiful Dublin, nearby, plan to be at Peterboro for this occasion. The performance will be in the woods on the grounds of the memorial association, and near the golf grounds, at 3.30 p. m. For seats and further information apply to MacDowell Memorial Association, Peterboro, N. H.

Yachting, including the international race for the Seawanhaka Cup, next week over the course of and under the direction of the Manchester Yacht club, has been and will be attended by numerous social functions which mean much to the gayety of the North Shore season. Mystery Island Inn, that novel and popular resort about a mile out from Beverly Farms, will be the scene tonight of a dinner by the local clubmen to the visiting yachtsmen from the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht club, thirty guests being provided for. The challenging yacht is the St. Lawrence, a snappy appearing craft of the sonder type. Allison V. Armour of Chicago, who is visiting his sister, Mrs. F. Meredyth Whitehouse in Manchester, gave a dinner Wednesday night on his beautiful yacht, Utowana, in honor of the coming races. Many visiting yachts are in North Shore waters and as the Corsair, with the owner, J. Pierpont Morgan and Mrs. Morgan, on board, is in Marblehead Harbor, the financier may witness the races. W. Harry Brown's palatial yacht also is here and may be seen along the course. President Taft, before he departed on his Maine coast cruise last Monday was asked to present the Seawanhaka Cup and it is hoped that he will be here in time to do this.

The Massachusetts invitation golf tournament which began for three days yesterday at the Essex County club is the largest tournament of the kind ever played at the club, with 128 entries, including some of the best known followers of the sport in the country. Four sixteens were qualified at the end of the first day of play and the handicaps allotted. The playoff for the finals today weeded out all except those to go over the course in the finals tomorrow. Many informal luncheons were given in connection with the tournament; the gallery was large and the parking spaces were lined with automobiles and other vehicles.

It is not an unusual thing any day to see a big four-in-hand filled with a jolly party of vacationists bowling along over the North Shore roads from Magnolia to West Beach at Beverly Farms. Here a speedy motor boat is taken for a delightful sail of a mile to Mystery Island, just off the Beverly Farms shore, and after a luncheon or dinner at the Mystery Island Inn, the same party may be found in a large launch skimming along over the harbor down by the Manchester shore to Magnolia, thus completing a circuit which embraces a magnificent ride through the North Shore roads, and a sail of three or four miles on the ocean, all within a period of a few hours. It is thus that the Mystery Island Inn is filling a long felt want for North Shore people. The island is getting to be a decidedly busy and attractive place; more so than most North Shore people realize, although it is evident from the increasing number of North Shore people who go to the Inn for luncheon or dinner parties nearly every day, that it is getting to be quite a popular spot. Among those who are occupying bungalows on the island this summer are: C. T. Keller, who is connected with the N. E. T. & T. Co.; T. Clarence Hollander of Boston; George N. Towle of Newton; Benjamin Shreve of Belmont; J. B. Henderson of Brookline, who spent last winter in Egypt; Jacob Rogers of New York. All of the bungalows are decidedly attractive. John Harwood of Brookline, is at the present time putting up a large bungalow on the western side of the island. The C. M. Cabots of Boston and Beverly Farms are also occupying a bungalow on the island. Among those who visited the Inn the last week are: Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mitchell and Mrs. Thomas Carnegie; Ralph C. Haywood, Robert L. Martin, Henry L. Russell of Salem; Mr. and Mrs. J. Eiseman of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Shuman, Mr. and Mrs. A. Koshland, J. W. Gummey, L. B. Use Them.

Within a short time, say the sanitary officials of the city, a familiar object in our streets will be the new catch-all can, a metal affair looking very much like the mail boxes for newspapers and packages, and attached to a post some four feet high. It is not intended for ornament but for use. It is a device to help make Boston clean, but it cannot do its work automatically.

Wherever a catch-all can is posted there will be still less excuse for throwing paper and rubbish into the street than there is at present. And it will also serve as a warning that an offense of this kind is punishable by a fine of $20.

Seeing the above notice in a Boston paper, I wondered why, when we have street scavengers to gather up the debris, that people think it necessary to throw into citizens' lawns, paper bags and envelopes from mail matter. And why should the lawns be made dumping grounds for whiskey bottles, empty cans, pieces of telephone wires, soiled hose and other rubbish, to be removed by the owners of the lawns at great inconvenience.

As the town does everything for the cleanliness of the streets, it seems to me private property might be protected in some way.

A citizen.

Miss Alice Jacobson of Danielson, Conn., is a guest for a fortnight of Miss Marion Scott, Norwood avenue. Miss Scott teaches in Danielson.

Miss Josie Rand of Portsmouth is spending a fortnight visiting her brother, Station-agent F. C. Rand and Mrs. Rand, Union street.

A meeting of the Manchester Launch club will be held next Wednesday evening, July 27, at eight o'clock. Refreshments will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Nevins returned to Flemington, N. J., Tuesday, after a pleasant visit of a week with the latter's sister, Mrs. F. J. Merrill and family, Bridge street.

The work of repairing the Town hall building has progressed quite well. It is expected the upper portion of the hall will be ready for use by the first of August.

The Drug Clerks' ball in the Manchester Town hall on Thursday evening, August 25th, is an event which many young people are planning to attend. The occasion will be, as in former years, one of the leading events of its kind during the summer.

Letters remaining unclaimed at Manchester, Mass. P. O. for week ending July 16. A. P. Almy, Miss Bruner, W. B. Bleg, Bert Carr, C. K. Cummings, Ch Case, Salvator Gouffurta, Mrs. Newton Howe, Miss Mia Lunden, Mrs. Mary McDonald, Miss Kate Murphy, Mrs. F. O'Connor, Mrs. Mary Quinlan.—Samuel L. Wheaton, P. M.

Work is to be started very soon on tearing the stalls from the ground floor of the engine house on School street to make room for the auto fire truck which is due to arrive within a few weeks, after many long drawn out promises. The fire horses in the meanwhile will be kept in the barn on the newly acquired property adjoining the engine house, and they will probably be kept there permanently. Driver Chadwick is to go on to the factory of the automobile concern making the truck so as to learn the ins and outs of the piece of apparatus before it is shipped to Manchester. William Lamasney is to serve as substitute driver in Mr. Chadwick's absence. The deeds for the new property adjoining the engine house were passed this week.

To the Sons of Manchester, at Home and Scattered Abroad:

Greeting: The annual gathering of the Elder Brethren will be held at Tuck's Point, West Manchester, at high noon, Wednesday, July 27. If you live in Manchester, or were born there, or were lucky enough to marry a Manchester girl, and are fifty years of age, you are entitled to take dinner with us—after paying 50 cents. If there is a storm on the 27th, the gathering will be held on Thursday, the 28th.

Mrs. Dennis O'Sullivan of Lincoln street received news recently through a friend of her girlhood days in her native home, Glyngerry, Ont., of the whereabouts of a long lost brother to the effect that her brother years ago had gone to the gold mines, had been successful and that he was now dying. Mrs. O'Sullivan, being his youngest sister and his favorite in the family, would come in for the largest share of his fortune.

The first series of free organ recitals at the Village church, will be given next Tuesday evening, July 26, at 8:30 o'clock, by the blind organist, Professor Krumpeln. The program is as follows:—Overture to The Magic Flute, Mozart; Pastorale, Edward German; Air-de-Ballet, Chaminade; Serenata, Wolstenholme; Pilgrims' Chorus, Wagner; Nocturne, Chopin; Prélude-Pastorale, Mendelssohn; Communion, Batiste; Barcarole, Tchaikowski; March of the Prussians, Krumpeln.

The subject next Sunday morning at the Village church will be from John 5, "Innovations on the Lord's Day." The subject in the evening will be "Is Purity a Duty?"

The new hand book is out and is being widely circulated and very generally used. That it is being read is shown by the fact that John J. MacDonald, the electrician whom the printer entered by mistake under "Eggs" also was visited the very next morning after the appearance of the hand book and had great difficulty in convincing the would-be purchasers that he had no poultry products for sale.

The Women's club held another very successful Gentlemen's Night on Wednesday evening, which was largely attended by the members with their gentleman friends. Dancing was enjoyed by all until a late hour.

One of the directors of the Women's Club house was given in the Breeze last week as Miss A. G. Hunt which should have been Miss E. G. Houghton.

Miss Grace Story is the guest of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Story this week.

Ernest E. Allen and daughter Thelma, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Butler the past two weeks, returned to their home in Somersworth, N. H., Thursday.

Mrs. Henry Brown visited her brother William McCormack Wednesday at the Eye and Ear Infirmary at Boston where he is confined after having undergone a very serious operation on his ear.

Miss Maud Butler has resigned her position with the Gloucester Electric Company and is enjoying a much needed rest.

Mrs. Samuel Brown and son of Salem are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jabeth Dunbar this week.

The Rev. Father Dwyer, P. R., was the celebrant at seven and nine o'clock masses Sunday. Father Dwyer is so gratified at the attendance at both services that he has decided to read two masses each Sunday during the summer season.

Mrs. Fred Lycett was the guest of friends in Brookline the first of the week.

On Tuesday evening the members of the Women's club are invited to the recital to be held at the Village church.

The membership of the Men's club is now nearly 150. The facilities of the club-house are being taxed to their limit. The annual tournaments in bowling, pool and checkers will begin Monday, August 1. The entries will be received the week preceding. Last week the cup was won by L. Messa of Magnolia with a score of 121. Until further notice the cup will be given to the man making the highest total score for three consecutive strings instead of for the highest individual score.

Experiment for Laying Dust.

A most novel dust-obviating experiment, that of planting rose bushes beside the rails, is being made by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad between Providence and New London, on the "shore line." Already stretches of track have been laid out with young bushes, and if the experiment succeeds, practically the entire distance will be similarly treated.

This particular stretch is said to be the dustiest in the whole line to New London. The rose bushes selected will send out, under favorable conditions, shoots from 10 to 15 feet long in a season, it is stated, and within a year the experiment places should be bowers of rambler roses. The intertwining of these shoots will, in a few years, make a complete thick "blanket" through which the dust will not be sucked up by the fast-moving trains.

Sewage Disposal in Manchester to be Discussed at a Meeting to be Held Later This Summer.

A meeting is to be held in Manchester later in the summer at some time and place to be announced later, looking toward the adoption of some method of disposing of Manchester's sewage. In view of the agitation that is being made it may be of interest to many of our readers to refer at this time to a paper by L. L. Lumsden, past assistant surgeon, U. S. public health and marine hospital service, on what town and city authorities can do in the prevention of typhoid fever. The paper was printed in the monthly bulletin for May of the Mass. State Board of Health. Ruskin is quoted as saying that:

"Any interference which tends to reform and protect the health of the masses is viewed by them as unwarranted interference with their vested rights to inevitable disease and death."

The paper goes on to say that education of the people, taken in a broad sense, is, therefore, essential to advancement in sanitation, or disease prevention, as in other measures for the uplift of our nation.

"Thus in proper sewage disposal we have a measure which is of remarkably broad application in the prevention of disease. As a simple prescription, with 'shotgun' effects, it can be most highly recommended for the ills of the community."

"With the facts which the accumulated knowledge of ages lays before us, can any one doubt the wisdom of a municipality when it spends sufficient money to secure a proper disposal of its own sewage and to prevent, to a reasonable degree, the spread of infection, coming through various media from the sewage of other communities? The value of the health and happiness preserved to the people by the use of this simple sanitary device can not be measured on a monetary basis."

"Typhoid fever has been defined as a 'disease of civilization' but as Sedgwick well says: 'It ought to be clearly understood that it is only a disease of defective civilization, for it has gradually become notorious that the widespread of frequent occurrence of typhoid fever in any community must be due somehow to defective sanitation, and defective sanitation means defective civilization.'"

"The rate of prevalence of typhoid fever in the United States in comparison with the rates in other countries is high. Thus the annual typhoid death rate per 100,000 population for the period of 1901-05 was in Scotland, 6.2; in Germany, 7.6; in England and Wales, 11.2; in Belgium, 16.8; in Austria (1901-04), 19.9; in Hungary, 28.3; in Italy, 35.2; while the rate in the United States during the same period was about 46 (estimated).

"Do not these figures plead eloquently that in the development and exploitation of the wonderful natural resources of our country it is high time that serious consideration be given to measures for the conservation of that most important of all our resources, the nation's health?"

"Careful epidemiologic studies have shown that in some communities there may be a high typhoid death rate due largely or even entirely to factors other than water in the spread of the infection, and sanitarians now regard the typhoid death rate of a community as a fair measure of the intelligence exercised by that community in respect to sanitation in general."

"Officials who would advance the best interests of the municipality should know that one of the most important and vital of all these interests is the conservation of the health of the people.

"Of the conditions affecting the welfare of the whole people of a community, a good sewerage system and a good water supply are certainly among the most vitally important. If the treasury funds are insufficient to provide these, the town authorities should keep the facts clearly and persistently before the people. By so doing, the people eventually may be made to understand and become not only willing but anxious to supply the necessary funds."

Mrs. Mary Bartlett is entertaining at her home on Hale street Mrs. John Streeter and Miss Elfa Streeter of Hinsdale, N. H.

The improvements and alterations to the George F. Wood house on Hart street are nearly completed. The house, which was one of the oldest in this vicinity, is now equipped with modern appointments. An ell has been added, too.

The approaches to the West street engine house are soon to be changed and improved. The present grade from the street to the house is such that a quick and bad jump for the apparatus is encountered. The new approaches are to be of brick, laid on an easier grade.

S. John Connolly, who recently bought a house lot on Haskell street, from the Watson estate, yesterday broke ground and will build there a handsome cottage house.

The Sarah W. Whitman club held a meeting Wednesday afternoon at one of the large boat houses on West beach, the meeting taking the form of an afternoon outing. Next week's meeting will be held at 10 Oak street. At the church chapel on Thursday, Aug. 25, the club will hold its annual fair.

This year's city government outing, held Wednesday at Salisbury beach, did not attract the usual number of former and present members as in the past. Those who attended from the Farms were Mayor Trowt, Alderman A. P. Loring, jr., Councilman F. L. Woodberry, former Councilman T. J. McDonnell and Chas. H. Day.

The young men are quite happy over their new swimming float which has the much desired spring board on it, anchored a short distance from the West Beach pier. They now desire to secure funds sufficient to purchase and run a cork life line from the float to the shore.

A number of outing parties have taken place during the past week among Farms people. Some are scheduled for next week.

Connolly Bros. are repairing and oiling Grape Vine road from the Beverly Farms line to Wenham and Hamilton. This is a decidedly favorite route for a pleasure ride, and this work now makes the road surface one of the best.

It is reported that Matthew Smith has purchased the Robert J. Brown estate on Hart street, which has been in the market practically since Mr. Brown moved from the Farms to Holliston, a few years ago. The estate is a desirable one, consisting of a large two family frame dwelling, other buildings and over two acres of land which has a large frontage on the street. The new purchaser buys for investment.

Councilman and Mrs. Frank L. Woodbury at their home on West street, have been entertaining Miss Bertha Carpenter of Foxboro, Mass., a former Farms school teacher. Miss Carpenter was accompanied by her father and sister.

Mrs. Arthur F. Felton and two children of Philadelphia, this week joined Mr. Felton at the Farms for the summer. Mr. Felton came here about two weeks ago and is a chauffeur for a summer resident.

A Good Investment

Be your own landlord.

Better and safer than banks or stocks.

Buy a piece of the land, now for sale, adjoining the beautiful Montserrat Station.

Put by five or ten dollars a month and own one of these attractive house lots. Later build your own cottage, make your own garden and pay no more rent.

This is an ideal location, between Beverly and Prides's Crossing, on electric and train lines near High and Grammar schools and not crowded.

Houses rent and sell rapidly and land values are steadily increasing. All grades and prices from $300 to $3000.

The boys' playground, opposite the station, has been opened. The neighborhood tennis court is now ready.

Leave the noisy town and come out for a glimpse of the fields and woods of Montserrat; only five minutes from Beverly.

Our representative will be at the office, 157 Essex St., every day except Sunday and evening appointments may be made by phone No. 721.

They played at the field day and evening bazaar which was held on the Church grounds at Centerville, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid and Men's Improvement Societies. FORMAL GARDENS.

pots and vases of all descriptions stand upon the paths and along the walls. Every inch of soil is crowded with bloom, and the effect is novel and foreign beyond description, besides being very beautiful.

The garden of W. B. Thomas, at Pride's Crossing, is tasteful and appropriate. The great central square of closely clipped turf supports an old English sun-dial, of graceful pattern, in a suitable setting of flower beds, containing only the well known old English flowers.

In the foreground lies the great triangular bed of tuberous-rooted begonias, with a border of broallia. Against the fence clusters great quantities of shrubbery, which stands out well against the background of encircling trees, while in its turn it forms a most effective background for lilies, iris, foxglove, larkspur, phlox, and a hundred other garden favorites, with no set arrangement except that suggested by their height. Truly has it been said that every garden is individual, and that this very quality of individuality lends to each an additional charm.

SUMMER SOCIAL REGISTER, 1910.

This year's Summer Social Register, just issued, in comparison with that of last year, indicates a most remarkable similarity in the choice of residences for the summer months.

This Summer Social Register is limited, as usual, to the country or foreign addresses of those families who have communicated the information, and those whose names do not appear in it have retained their city residences as a Post Office address for the summer months.

Of the 12,361 changes among the families or individuals belonging to New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, Providence, St. Louis, Pittsburg, St. Paul, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Oakland, Baltimore, Buffalo and Southern cities and Cleveland, Cincinnati and Dayton, the latter three being the additions for this year, 6311 are located inland, and 2828 are at the seashore; 958 families have gone abroad; 812 foreign bankers' addresses are given, and 298 families have arrived from the other side since April 1st. There are 139 families residing on their yachts, as compared to 150 last year; 711 persons have married since April 1st, and 160 men and 144 women have died as compared with the deaths of 177 men and 166 women for the corresponding period last year.

The names, descriptions and illustrations of 662 yachts appear opposite the names of their owners, and are also to be found in the yacht index at the back of the book: 262 of these are sloops, 78 are schooners, and 322 are steamers.

Of the 6311 inland residences, 61 are at Lenox, as compared to 74 last year, 191 families are at Bernardsville, Morristown and Short Hills, as compared to 264 last year; 113 are in the Adirondacks, as compared to 199 last year; 177 are in Canada, as compared to 164 last year, and 5769 families are scattered at various other inland resorts.

Of the 2828 seashore residences—67 are located at Bar Harbor, as compared to 174 last year; 835 are on the upper New England coast; 361 are at Newport and Narragansett, as compared to 378 last year; 213 are scattered along the North Shore of the Sound, in Westchester and Connecticut, as compared to 375 last year; 388 are on the North Shore of Long Island, as compared to 485 last year; 395 are on the Gloucester Day Celebration.

Everyone on the North Shore remembers last year's Gloucester Day celebration as the biggest event of the year on the North Shore. Thousands and thousands of people from all parts of the shore were in attendance. This year the celebration will take the form of a grand garden party by the Ladies' Auxiliary the proceeds to be devoted to the Roger Conant house. The party will be held at Stage Fort Park. The music will be furnished by the bands of two warships in attendance on that day. Other attractions will be announced later.

To Rebuild F. Mathew Society Home

The Father Mathew Total Abstinence Society of Salem, whose building at 129 Essex street was partially destroyed by fire about two months ago, has perfected arrangements for rebuilding. Contractors will begin operations at once.

A great deal of interest has been aroused among lovers of Colonial architecture in the disposition of the beautiful Mackintire porch. This porch has long been recognized as one of the finest architectural specimens of the Colonial type extant. It has been photographed, measured and sketched by artists and architects more than any similar structure in this vicinity.

It is known that the disposition of the Temperance Society is to donate this porch to the Essex Institute at Salem or some similar institution, but the expense of the alterations which the Temperance boys are going to make in their building will be so great that it is feared they will have to sell the porch and stone steps with their old-fashioned mud-scrapers and wrought-iron railings.

Very Successful Conference.

The Young Women's Conference at East Northfield, which was concluded last week, was remarkably successful. The Rev. J. Stuart Holden of London, who, it was feared at first would be unable to speak, gave a strong series of talks toward the end of the conference. The Rev. Ozora Davies of Chicago, Miss Margaret Slatery of the Fitchburg Normal School, Rev. George S. Cady of Dorchester and Rev. John McDowell of Newark were the other principal speakers. Large delegations from girls' preparatory schools and various churches made a sum of delegates over 400. The conference was enlivened in the afternoons by baseball games, a grand field day, a tennis tournament and many drives. The tennis tournament was very close, being finally won by Miss Edith White of the New York City Missions, a former champion.

Keith's Theatre.

There has been a series of summer sensations at Keith's and not the least of which was "The Maid of Mystery," whose identity is still secret, and for the coming week there will be another exceptionally strong bill, a feature of it being plenty of laughing material.

Laura Burt and Henry Stanford, whom last season were with the New Theatre company, will appear in a sketch called "The Order of the Bath," that contains some of the most amusing situations placed upon the stage in a long time. The bath is really a bath-room and by a spring lock a young society girl and a typical Englishman are locked in it for the night. The situation is decidedly humorous, and Miss Burt and Mr. Stanford get all there is out of it.

Another feature will be the Temple Quartette, unquestionably the best male quartette now in vaudeville. Julia Frary is also on the bill, and other features are Lamaize, Bennett and Lamaize, acrobatic clowns; De Haven and Sidney, the dancers; the 4 Readings; and other big features which will be announced later.

War at Revere Beach.

The thrills of war, with all the graphic details of a real battle; the booming of cannon; the blowing up of ships; the true drama of the first conflict between iron clads—the notable and world renowned Monitor and Merrimac will be enacted commencing this week at Boston's big amusement grounds by the sea—Revere Beach.

Visitors to this famous resort have been attracted on the Boulevard within the past few days by the erection of the deck of a warship with its pilot house, its bridge and its turrets with their guns pointing out to sea. This makes the novel entrance to the great building in the rear just recently built especially for this great exhibition.

Day and night for the past four weeks, 'till long after midnight, an army of carpenters, electricians, artists and mechanics have been employed getting into readiness this gigantic production.

To give some idea of its magnitude, the stage upon which it is produced is one hundred and ten feet wide; the great cyclorama curtain that forms the sky background showing twenty miles of perspective, weighs ten thousand pounds, and is 150 feet long. In the foreground is seen Hampton Roads, the Federal fleet, and beyond the fortifications.

From the time the great plush curtain that hides this wonderful creation from view, parts and discloses the Merrimac steaming up the Roads; the ramming and sinking of the Cumberland with the Stars and Stripes still flying at her topmast; the attack of the Congress which is set afire and after night-fall blows up; the audience beholds all of nature's changes in sky from morning till sunset, and sunset to dawn of the next day. After the first day's battle, resulting in victory for the Merrimac, as the clouds of smoke roll out to sea, a great electric storm takes place making a thrilling close to a day's fierce fighting. When morning comes, and with it unexpectedly the little Monitor, the "cheese box" as the Confederates called it, the real great interest becomes intense, and hearts beat fast and furiously as the Merrimac, her funnel pouring out volumes of black smoke, bears down upon the little Monitor as both boats open fire and steadily approach each other — the contrast is somewhat the same as that of little David when he "sized up" the great Goliath. Belching their shot and shell into the very port holes of each other it is Hell itself let loose, and finally as the Merrimac turns away, her bow down, the fervor of the audience reaches the limit.

The Boston Journal's Flower Day

On Wednesday, July 27, The Boston Journal is to hold its second annual Flower Day for the poor children of Boston.

It is to be another day of joy and happiness for those little people living in the crowded tenement quarters where flowers never grow.

The people of far and wide well remember that great success of last year, when, in a single day, blossoms from garden and field poured into the Journal office—poured out again into districts where flowers are like coins of gold; brightened hospitals, where tots, pale and ill, smiled in spite of their affliction, because of their coming; stirred the hearts of hundreds of little folks in the missions of the city; made a day in the lives of all those unfortunate boys and girls that will never—no, never be forgotten.

And now it is all going to occur again.

Last year over 100,000 bouquets were contributed.

It was the people living in the suburban localities who made such a grand day possible, and now the opportunity of giving has come again.

The express companies, the railroads, the merchants, the clergy, and the suburban newspapers have all co-operated enthusiastically, and the event promises to eclipse that of a year ago.

On the morning of July 27, between the hours of 8 and 11 o'clock, flowers may be left at The American Express Co.'s office and will be forwarded promptly.

The garden flowers and the daisy from the field are all welcome. Even a green shoot pleases flower-hungry little folks.

MANCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1910.

SOCIETY NOTES

With the dinner-dance at the Essex County club Friday evening, the real festivities of the social season at Manchester-by-the-Sea will begin. These affairs are important and each year are attended by leading members of society. Every table was engaged early and many who waited until the eleventh hour were disappointed so that another dance probably will be held in addition to the one already planned. Those who have tables include Judge W. H. Moore of New York and Pride's Crossing for a party of sixteen; Reginald Kennard of Boston, who will be host to a party from the Oceanside in Magnolia, to be chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cuendet of St. Louis and made up of Miss Maude Scudder of St. Louis, Katherine Britton of Washington; Kenneth Seggerman of New York, and Miss Katherine Moore of New York. Roger Hill of Saginaw, Mich., the former crack hurdler of the Yale track team, will be a guest of Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Lancashire of Alma, Mich. Others who have tables engaged are Mrs. John C. Kerr of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mrs. C. A. Munn of Washington, Mrs. Washington B. Thomas of New York and Boston; Mrs. J. Warren Merrill, Mrs. R. F. Greeley, George F. Willett, Mrs. E. C. Fitch, Mrs. S. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. Arthur Doane Cook, members of the German embassy, Samuel Carr, Mr. Kelsch of the Brazilian embassy, Captain Vassilieff of the Russian legation, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. W. S. Kennard of St. Louis, L. C. Hanna and Mrs. J. B. Bagnell of St. Louis, and the Italian embassy.

Baroness Rosen, wife of the Russian ambassador, came over from the summer embassy in Manchester Monday to Magnolia where she was hostess to her friends and en tourage at tea at the North Shore Grill.

—x—

Miss Cecelia May returned to Manchester Wednesday from a very pleasant week's visit with Miss Ethel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay. Miss Isabel May left Wednesday for a visit of a week or more with the Breeses at Southampton, L. I.

—x—

Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot issued some one hundred and fifty invitations to a dancing party last Friday evening at "The Oaks," Beverly Farms, in honor of the younger members of her household, Lewis Jackson Cabot, Eleanor Cabot and Thomas D. Cabot. The invitations were well distributed among the young people along the shore and the festivities of the evening were greatly enjoyed by the participants.

—x—

Miss Margaret Kemp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George William Kemp of New York City and Southampton, L. I., was a recent guest of Miss Helen Lancashire at Norton's Point, Manchester.

—x—

Max Norman has purchased of Harris and Moulton, 35 acres of land at Middleton for stock farm purposes. The property is within one hundred feet of Fern-Croft Inn.

SOCIETY NOTES

Myopia Hunt club members and their friends have been following the polo matches very closely the last fortnight and many functions of greater or less importance have been occasioned by the games. The "pony drag" season is now on. The pony drag for the children of members will begin in August and will take place twice a week, on Tuesdays and Fridays. The hounds will meet for the older ones at 5:30 p. m. during August as follows: Tuesday, the 2d, Hamilton Four Corners; Friday, 5th, Wenham Neck Meeting House; Tuesday, 9th, Great Oak, Asbury Grove; Friday, 12th, Lord's Hill, Wenham. Fixtures for the rest of the month will be announced later. The above dates are announced by George S. Mandell, master.

Tennis will be the next big attraction at the Myopia club. Beginning Monday, August, 8, two tournaments will be started,—mixed doubles, partners to be drawn by lot, and a ladies' singles tournament. These events will be open to members and associate members of the Myopia Hunt, Essex County, Montserrat and Nahant clubs, and to such other persons as the committee may invite. The entries close Wednesday, August 3, with the lawn tennis committee.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wilkins of Washington have as their house guest at Beverly Farms Mrs. Edward C. Mayo of Richmond, Va., who is receiving a very agreeable introduction to the North Shore.

—x—

W. S. Roelker, jr., of New York and Newport is on the North Shore for a visit with Fulton Cutting at Beverly Farms.

—x—

Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee has been on from Highland Falls, N. Y., for a visit with Mrs. Amory A. Lawrence at Beverly Cove.

—x—

Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby and children of the West Manchester colony are to spend the month of August on Cape Cod, where they have taken a small cottage at Marion.

—x—

E. M. Wheelwright of the Beverly Farms colony, is at Jackson, N. H., for a short sojourn.

—x—

Miss Jeanette Dodge of Cleveland, O., is on the North Shore for a visit with Miss Marion McGinley, Smith's Point, Manchester. Miss McGinley, by the way, is one of the many North Shore girls who have become quite adept as motorists. She may be seen driving her limousine, with friends, nearly every day.

—x—

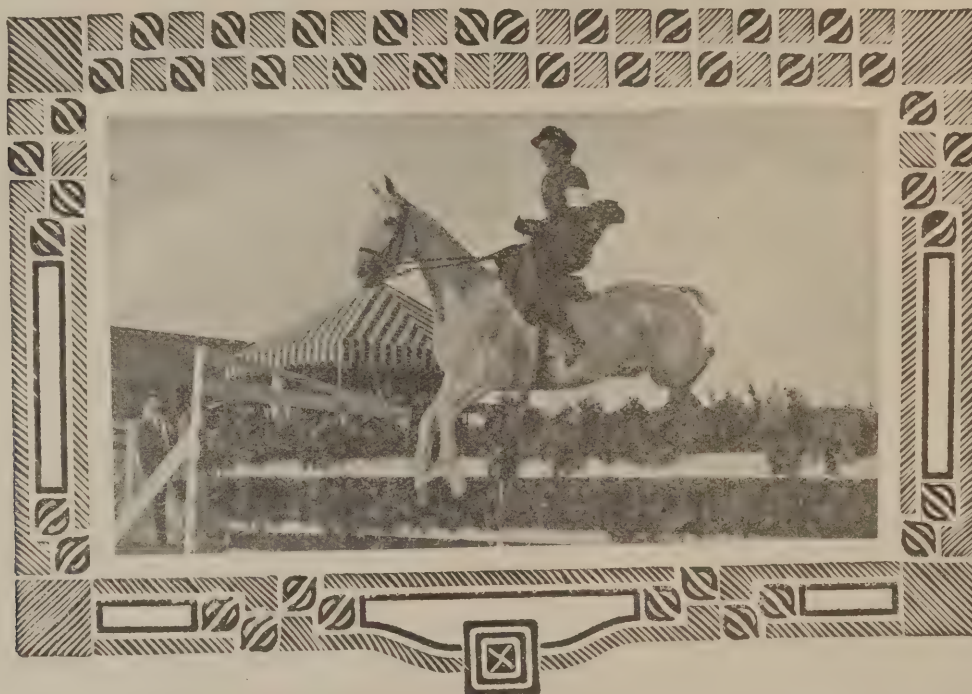

Miss Boynton, who has been visiting Mrs. W. S. Spaulding at Pride's Crossing, returned to her home in Kenilworth, Ill., Tuesday.

—x—

Mrs. Henry P. McKean gave an informal dinner at her Pride's Crossing residence Wednesday evening. Next Friday evening, August 5th, she is to give a young people's party, dancing to follow the dinner.

Horse Returns to Favor

North Shore Society Folk are Taking Advantage of Wood-lined Roads

MISS E. R. SEARS TAKING THE JUMPS AT THE MAGNOLIA SHOW LAST YEAR.

The horse—after temporarily giving up his title to the road—has “come back” along the North Shore, and society, which was responsible for the decline of the beast in favor of the automobile has gone back to its first love—the horse.

This summer more than ever since the perfecting of the motor car, the horse has returned to favor and members of the smart set all along the shore and especially at Manchester and Magnolia, are taking advantage of the beautiful roads and bridle paths and the sandy beaches for riding and driving.

Prominent among the persons well known to those in every walk of life, who have ignored the coming of the automobile and have remained loyal to the horse are the Hon. Oliver Wendall Holmes, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court and Curtis Guild, sr., father of the former governor of Massachusetts.

Seated in a modern “one-hoss shay,” Mr. Justice Holmes who spends his summers in Beverly Farms in the house where his illustrious father did so much to advance American literature, may be seen on the roads along the North Shore, driving with Mrs. Holmes. The drives through Manchester and Magnolia are especially fascinating to the justice and he takes advantage of every pleasant day.

Mr. Guild who for many years has been a summer season guest at the Oceanside in Magnolia is seldom seen in an automobile, much preferring the carriage and horse as a mode of conveyance. One of his favorite drives is along Crescent Beach, Magnolia, and most any pleasant morning he may be seen driving up and down the sand in a basket phaeton behind a speedy little pony.

Of the younger set, Mrs. J. J. Weil of the Oceanside contingent seems to be a leader and in addition to spending most of her time guiding a fast horse to a trap, she has been on the box of Harry Coulter’s coach, tool-ing the reins over the backs of his prize four-in-hand. Mrs. Weil is a clever whip and loves the ringing tones of the coaching horn as the coach rolls over the roads between Magnolia and Pride’s Crossing.

Another lover of the horse in Miss Maude Scudder of St. Louis, who has come to Magnolia for the season with other members of the family, and is often seen on the road with her clever pony “Punch.” R. H. Morehead of Pittsburg, rides nearly every day with his son Horace. Another Pittsburg family, the Henry C. Fricks, who are at their magnificent Pride’s Crossing estate, is perhaps an exception to the rule, although in the case of the daughter, Miss Helen, the horse still reigns supreme over the automobile. The Frick stable is probably the most extensive, in structure at least, of any on the North Shore and many high-bred animals are kept here. Except in the case of Miss Helen, who rides and drives, these animals are seldom used, the automobile being preferred by other members of the family.

J. J. Weil, who comes to the Oceanside for every other week during the season is as enthusiastic rider and driver as is Mrs. Weil. The two children are being brought up to love the horse and every day, while the head of the family is here, Mr. and Mrs. Weil, Miss Elizabeth and Master John, are on horse back for long gallops over the Magnolia and Gloucester bridle paths.

One of the most daring riders of the young women here this season is Miss Irene Rossiter, who seldom rides except when she is holding the bridle of a jumper. She is a friend of the Fred Bonners of New York.

Mary Margaret Walker, daughter of Mrs. J. Harrington Walker of Detroit, has brought her own trap to the Sargent estate on the Shore road in Magnolia. Allen Stearns, also of Detroit, is one of the younger boys at Magnolia this summer who spends much of his time in the saddle. Others of the young people who are fond of riding are Master Storer of Manchester, "Billy" Coolidge, son of T. Jefferson Coolidge, jr., of Boston; Miss Thayer of Manchester; Miss Elizabeth Young of New York; Ray Brown of New York; Miss Wellington of Boston; Miss Wheelock and Miss Foster of Boston. The last mentioned five are guests at the Oceanside.

One of the most valuable stables on the North Shore when one considers horseflesh and not buildings, is the stock of thoroughbreds owned by Judge W. H. Moore of New York. On his extensive summer estate at Pride's Crossing, most beautiful out-of-doors, Judge Moore, has a private training track bordered with gardens and flower-arched walks and lawns and it is here that the enthusiastic horseman spends much of his time. In addition to this the judge often drives his four-hand coach to and from the Myopia Hunt club.

Speaking of the Myopia Hunt club it might be well not to forget this organization which has done so much for the horse for here it is that some of the best polo teams have been organized and have played.

Because of the many who are spending so much time riding, the Magnolia Horse Show and Meet, which will take place on the beach August 20, should be more successful than even the shows of former years. Arrangements are in charge of Harry Coulter, more officially J. Henry Coulter, from whom blanks for entries may be obtained by addressing him at the Oceanside. As this will be one of the sporting events most important to society along the North Shore this season it is expected that of the entries will include the names of some of the best known members of the smart set from all parts of the country.

Miss Eleanora Sears, who last year took such a prominent part in the beach horse show at Magnolia, is expected to appear with hurdlers and jumpers besides other entries.

The meet is divided into eleven events. In the children's saddle class, the young handlers of the ponies must be under sixteen years old. This event is a combination class for ponies under fourteen hands, three inches, in height and the animals must be shown, under saddle and driven to trap, to be judged for confirmation, paces and manners.

The runabout class will be for horses of more than fourteen hands, three inches, and not exceeding fifteen hands, two inches, the horse to count seventy-five per cent and runabout, harness and appointments twenty-five per cent.

One of the most interesting events will be the ladies' driving competition, post entries, in which the entrants will be required to drive a horse and gig, furnished by the horse show committee, through such obstacles as the judges may require, obstacles to be placed at certain selected positions. In making the awards, the judges will consider the pace through the obstacles, form used in driving and the time required for the drive.

In class four, ladies and gentlemen will compete in the saddle riding horses fifteen hands and over, horses to be judged by confirmation, weight and manners, showing in walk, trot and canter. Horses ridden by ladies will be given a handicap of ten per cent.

Family harness horses, such as are used on the North Shore and before appropriate vehicle, if driven by a lady, will be allowed twenty per cent. in class five.

In the jumping class, open to all weight, the jumps will be over four feet, the medium weight to be carried to be about 140 pounds.

Three pretty races down the beach sands are scheduled, the quarter-mile race for galloways or ponies, fifteen hands or under; the quarter-mile dash over the flat for horses fifteen hands or over, and the open hurdle race over the quarter-mile stretch with three jumps of three feet each.

Already arrangements are under way. It is expected that the best horses and turnouts on the North Shore will be seen in the Magnolia meet and the colors of some of the best known stables will be worn.

SOCIETY NOTES.

There is great rejoicing at Paine Hill, Pride's Crossing over the recent visit of Dr. Stork to Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Cummings (nee Lydia Lyman Paine) who were presented with a daughter on July 16,—a fifth member of the Cumming's household.

The death of the only grandchild of the Rantoul family, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Rantoul, in London recently, has particularly saddened that family connection at Beverly Farms this summer. Mrs. Rantoul, who was Charlotte Talbot of England, was on her native heath, when the death occurred. Mr. Rantoul was homeward bound and his sister, Miss Edith Rantoul, went to Quebec to meet him with the sad news, which was unexpected. Mrs. Rantoul has taken passage on the Ivernia and is bringing the remains home.

HENRY COULTER, The Oceanside, Magnolia, Mass.

AT THE HOTELS.

Although society has been kept busy with all sorts of sports and affairs of importance to a summer colony, all of the younger set at Magnolia are eagerly awaiting the tennis tournament under the auspices of the Magnolia Tennis association. The play will begin Monday and entries will be closed tomorrow night. It is hoped that enough will be entered so that play may be continued for at least two weeks. At the end of the tournament there will be a tennis ball in the casino and large ball-room at the Oceanside hotel, and as this will be a costume affair, it will be a pleasing change from the formal hops at which evening gowns and evening dress have prevailed. Under the direction of Reginald Kennard of Boston, the secretary of the Magnolia Lawn Tennis association, the tournament is an assured success especially because of the many young women who will compete for the beautiful silver cups which are offered in addition to the Magnolia challenge cups for women. Girls prominent in society all over the country have entered for the tournament. In addition to these many others have signified to one or another of the committee their intention of playing. It is expected that Eleanora Sears who recently won the women's challenge cup in the tournament at the Montserrat Golf club, will be among the young women who will try to keep the cup in this part of the country. Alice Thorndike who was a runner up at Montserrat club is expected to appear in the tournament at the Oceanside and try and retrieve herself for the defeat at the hands of Miss Sears. Because of this some excellent play in the women's singles should result. Alice Sargent who has won a wide reputation on the courts is another likely entrant as is Edith Deacon who is very much in the minds of society at the present time. Miss Deacon has been a guest at the Francis Amorys at Beverly Cove, of Mary Josephine Amory, and played in the Montserrat tournament, although she did not seem to be performing as usual, losing in the first round. An attempt is being made to persuade her to show her real tennis ability on the Oceanside courts. But these strong players may have some difficulty in defeating the young women from other parts of the country, as many who are stopping at the Oceanside for the season have shown many signs of being desirous of taking some of the silverware—meaning the cups—home with them. And judging by the practice play, the cups may travel some distance. Nearly five hundred dollars has been expended in trophies for the tournament and the cups are beautiful examples of the silversmith's art. There will be cups for first and second prize in the women's singles; a first and second, in the men's singles, four cups each in the women's doubles, the men's doubles and the mixed doubles, in addition to the two big challenge cups. Miss Helen Taft and her brother Charley have been apprised officially of the meeting and if they return to Burgess Point in time they may compete, as both are good players.

The dinner-dance at the Essex County club tonight will be attended by many of the Oceanside contingent and several parties have arranged for tables.

Alan Corey, captain of next year's Yale varsity baseball team and a leading football player at the New Haven university, is on a motor trip through Maine for a few days with an Oceanside party which includes Miss Marguerite Johnston, and Miss Marguerite Sullivan of Detroit. Percy James Orthwein of the Yale varsity swimming team, who summers with his folks at Rye Beach, N. H., has been at the Oceanside for several days and will be at the Essex County club dinner-dance.

Miss Rand of Minneapolis, who has been entertained by the popular daughters of former governor Baxter of Tennessee, and of the Oceanside each summer, has returned to her home, to stop en route with friends along the way.

Wooster Lambert of St. Louis, who not long ago distinguished himself as the hero of a most successful balloon descension into the Mississippi river from a point some 8000 feet skyward is somewhat of an all-around entertainer and frequently joins the orchestra as trap drummer and busies himself a bit on the piano to the joy of large audiences.

SOCIETY.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter returned from Chicago last Sunday, joining the former's mother, Mrs. L. Z. Leiter, at Beverly Cove, and bringing to her a little grandson, presented to the Leiters on July 1, in Chicago. There is great rejoicing in the Leiter household since the little arrival is the first to perpetuate the Leiter name.

Godfrey Cabot of the Beverly Farms colony is in West Virginia for a short sojourn.

One of the jolly parties of young people that recently made the trip to Mystery Island Inn by motor boat from Magnolia was composed of Misses Phoebe Adams, Margaret Britton, Helen Johnston, Georgianna Baxter, Margaret Walker, Isabella Wadsworth, Edith Stevens and Helen Wheelock, and Edward Stevens, Magee Baxter, Hendrickson Johnston, Walter Comfort, Charles Dadsworth and A. B. Dewey, jr. The party was given by the last two named.

Mrs. Lewis Hancock gave informal luncheon parties at her cottage in Hamilton, Tuesday and Thursday afternoons of this week.

The S. E. Hutchinson estate at Beverly Farms, which has been transformed into one of the most attractive along the North Shore since Mr. Hutchinson bought the property two years ago, is the center of much entertaining this season. Quite the most welcome guest, in his frequent week-end visits, is Mrs. Hutchinson's father, E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, who spends much of his time at Bar Harbor with his other daughter. Mr. Stotesbury is a guest over the present week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson. Miss Cynthra Hutchinson, the debutante daughter of the house, has been entertaining two young friends from Philadelphia, Miss Marion Almy and Miss Sophie Hutchinson, who are remaining over for the dinner-dance at the Essex County club tonight. Dr. and Mrs. O'Neil are up from York Harbor for a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson, too. Mr. and Mrs. Pemberton Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Bell of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Baltimore and Bass Rocks, were recent house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson.

Ammi W. Lancashire has been entertaining at Manchester, Calvert P. Cottrell, 3d, of Westerly, R. I.

Henry P. King of Boston and Pride's Crossing is enjoying a cruise in Nova Scotia waters in the Sch. yacht Ranger. He was at Dixby, N. S., the early part of this week. Neal Rantoul of Beverly Farms accompanies him.

These pleasant summer mornings find quite a number of the young people of the summer colony enjoying the pleasures of beach life at West Beach, Beverly Farms, and being taught the art of swimming by an instructor. We noted in one of these groups one morning this week Jack Caswell, Belle Dexter, Edith Fabyan, Isabel Boardman, Anaretta Luke, Eleanor Jackson, Isabel and Peggy Porter, Elizabeth Caswell, Josephine Rantoul and others.

One of the most delightful events in the amusement line, this season, will be the giving of the Joseph Jefferson plays by George Kiernan, the talented young artist, who will act the entire cast of characters in "The Rivals," at the Oceanside Casino, Magnolia, Friday evening, August 5, and "Rip Van Winkle," at the Hesperus, Tuesday evening, August 9, at 8:30 o'clock. Mr. Kiernan's appearance here has been guaranteed by subscriptions from most of the cottagers and some of the people in the hotels.

EXHIBITION AND SALE OF GRUEBY POTTERY.

To be Held at the Bradford Studio of Arts and Crafts, Magnolia, August 1-13.

An opportunity is to be given North Shore people to see a splendid collection of the famous Grueby Pottery at Magnolia all of next week. As fine a collection as has ever been brought together will be displayed at the Bradford Studios of Arts and Crafts from August 1st to 13th inclusive.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Palmer of Cleveland who are season guests at the Oceanside were among the Sunday night diners at the North Shore Grill. Mr. Palmer is president of the American Steel and Wire Company. Other Sunday night guests at the Grill included W. S. Spaulding as host to a party of seven; Freeman Smith of Washington and five friends; Colonel and Mrs. John Hadyn, and nine guests and John T. Byrne, who entertained six.

Miss Sarah P. T. Boist of New York arrived at the Stanley cottage, Magnolia, last week. Miss Boist is a very talented and well-known drawing-room lecturer belonging to an old Knickerbocker family and connected with the aristocracy of England, being a cousin of the late Lady Hornby. Exceptional opportunities in travel, meeting the crowned heads and distinguished Europeans have made her lectures among the best and most noted in New York.

AT THE HOTELS.

A frequent visitor to the Oceanside Hotel in Magnolia is J. C. Hood of Lowell, who comes to the North Shore to spend a few days at a time with his uncle, C. I. Hood, of the "Spindle City." The elder Mr. Hood is a season guest at the Oceanside, having been assigned apartments in the Highlands cottage.

"Reggie" Kennard of Boston, who is the "hub" on which is revolving the coming tennis tournament at the Oceanside under the auspices of the Magnolia Tennis Association, went to Boston Monday to witness the match on the Longwood courts between Larned, the tennis champion, and McLaughlin, the 19-year-old wonder from California. And he is a wonder if one may judge by "Reggie's" enthusiasm which was not dampened even by the storm which drove the "gallery" to shelter before the play could be completed.

Magnolia had a near sensation Monday. For a time excitement reigned. And then the heavens rained and the "sensation" passed away with the shower, leaving a rainbow of laughter which was turned on two bell-boys at the Oceanside. Here it is as it was told some hours later.

2:30 p. m. Telephone Bell—"Tingle-Tingle, etc., etc."
2:30:15 p. m. Day Clerk Bell—"Yes. This is the Oceanside.—Yes. What!—Just a minute—Oh, boy—front—you! Anybody! There's a man drowning off the rocks. (Exit bellboys) All right, good-bye."

When Mr. Bell hung up the receiver things began to happen. Someone had telephoned that they heard a voice calling for help from the dashing waves. The boys running toward the water front caused considerable excitement and they had gone perhaps a hundred yards when they were being followed by men, women and children. As the boys stopped at the road overlooking the ocean, they turned for an instant and saw the crowd following. The bell-boys waited only a moment. Something was wrong in the minds of the pursuers. Evidently there had been a misunderstanding. Bell-boys running had created an unfavorable impression. But they were not going to wait to learn just what was the matter. They took to the woods. And that move did not tend to inspire confidence in the minds of the pursuers. They took after the boys. It was purely a misunderstanding all around, but—the tangle was not unravelled until sometime later when the signs of storm had driven the crowd back to the house. Then it was learned that someone on the ocean front had heard or thought they had heard a cry for help. The Oceanside was the nearest place. Hence the telephone call. Hence the unusual sight of running bell-boys. Hence the misunderstanding on the part of those on the verandas. Hence the "sensation". 'Twas a pleasant diversion anyway and the boys don't seem to mind.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Carpenter, Miss Sadie A. Carpenter, Doris Carpenter and Earl W. Carpenter, make up a Providence family registered at the Oceanside for an indefinite stay.

The Rev. W. E. Strong of Boston who was in the pulpit at Union chapel, Magnolia, Sunday morning, was a guest at the Oceanside. Mr. Strong is a member of the American Board of Foreign Missions.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kohler of New York have joined Mr. Kohler's father, who is a season guest at the Hesperus. Other season guests from New York are Mrs. Henry Boynton Moore and Miss Katherine Moore, who are in the hotel proper and Mrs. Shortland, Mr. and Mrs. E. Littlejohn, and Miss Clifton, who are in Villa cottage, Hesperus.

Percy James Orthwein, who is one of the best known young men in the St. Louis smart set, has been with the Missouri contingent during the week at the Oceanside. Another St. Louisan to be added to Magnolia summer colony is Samuel Cupples who has joined his family at the Sea Vista cottage. The other members of the Cupples family arrived several weeks ago. With them now also is Dr. A. J. Wagers, who came from St. Louis with Mr. Cupples.

From St. Paul, Minn., has come a large party for an indefinite stay in Flume cottage, one of the Oceanside connections. They are Mrs. J. R. Nicols, Miss Nicols, Mrs. Albert Wilson, Miss Leisa Wilson, nurse and chauffeur.

The Aborn at Magnolia is enjoying another busy season. Nearly every room in the hotel and cottages is engaged for August. Among recent arrivals are Dr. and Mrs. C. Stanley Smith of Cincinnati. They are to remain here through most of August.

Mrs. H. C. Whitaker has returned to Magnolia for another season. With her daughter, Miss Louise Nelson Whitaker and German governess, she came to the Aborn last Saturday from Wheeling, West Va., for the balance of the season.

Miss Alice Cushman of Philadelphia and Miss S. L. Huntington of Salem were at the Aborn over the last week-end, guests of Miss A. M. Brown of Boston, a season guest there.

A Brookline family to arrive at the Aborn last Saturday for the balance of the season is that of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Amsden.

Mrs. Alexander G. Kent of North Tonawanda, N. Y. and her two grand children, Miss Alexandra Costikyan and Kent Costikyan of Montclair, N. J., arrived at the Aborn from Hartford, Conn., P. B. Gale, who is accom-

Another well known insurance man to register at the Aborn from Hartford, Conn., P. B. Gale, who is accompanied by Mrs. Gale. Judge Nichols, president of one of the large companies of Hartford, and Mr. Tryon, treasurer of the same company, are also guests at the Aborn.

The Hesperus was a busy place over Saturday and Sunday, many automobile parties stopping for the far-famed Hesperus dinners. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thacher, New York; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Merwin, Bridgeport; Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Meighan, New York; Dr. and Mrs. O. F. Carr, Belmont, and Master Russell Carr; Dr. and Mrs. F. N. Hornbrook, Boston; Dr. and Mrs. T. F. Kenney, Worcester; Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Takey, Bridgeport; Mr. and Mrs. William M. Bailey, and Miss Ruth Bailey, Malden; B. M. Johnson and guest of Boston; Dr. L. Gillett, Westfield; H. A. Pumpelly, Oswego, N. Y.; Mrs. J. C. Littlefield, Brookline; Mrs. C. Billings, Winthrop Beach; and Miss E. Jackman, Roxbury.

J. J. Weil of Elmsford, New York, arrived at the Oceanside Sunday to join Mrs. Weil who is a guest at the hotel for the season. Mr. Weil plans to depart tomorrow night to return again a week from Sunday. The Weils are great lovers of the out-of-doors, spending much of the time riding and driving and playing golf. As Mrs. Weil is a worthy match for her husband in these sports they have been competing with each other in saddle or on the links nearly every day this week, varying the fun of bridle-path and greens, with drives over the woods-lined North Shore roads. Several times, too, Mrs. Weil has shown her husband that she has not forgotten the trick of the whip as they have bowled from Magnolia to Pride's Crossing atop of Harry Coulter's prize coach and four to the accompaniment of the warning horn.

At the residence of Mrs. Adele R. Linguard, "The Pines," Annisquam, next Monday—August 8, at 4 o'clock will be given a unique and up-to-date "Matinee of Song," followed by afternoon tea, Miss Linguard presiding. The function is to aid the Leonard Guild of the Annisquam church in obtaining funds to erect a parsonage. The versatile program will be rendered by the English barytone, Wilford Russel, who has sung for fashionable society abroad and in America at musicales given at the White House by Ex-President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The leading spirit in the affair is Chamberlain Brown of Cambridge, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Brown, have a cottage at Annisquam and are prominent members of the summer colony as was his grandfather, the late Gen. Chamberlain of Cambridge. "The Chorus Boy" is the title of the musical travesty of impersonations, songs, etc., to be presented by the society amateurs under the direction of Mr. Brown.

SOCIETY NOTES

The North Shore Grill at Magnolia is becoming more and more popular among the automobilists touring this section and the Saturday and Sunday night dinners are attracting large numbers to Magnolia also from the hotels and cottages in the summer-colonies. Mrs. Catherwood of Philadelphia gave a dinner to six guests Friday night. Saturday night Mrs. John Young of New York was hostess to eight; C. E. Cotting entertained a party of six, and Robert Gould Shaw, 2nd, of Boston, was host to six.

Samuel Kennard of St. Louis gave a birthday party Monday in honor of his daughter at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia. Twenty covers were laid and the affair was one of the prettiest seen at the Grill this season. The Kennards are guests at the Oceanside for the summer. Other Monday guests at the Grill were F. G. Redfield who motored over from Manhattan. He gave a dinner to a party of six persons, friends and fellow tourists. Lady Clay of Scotland also was a recent Grill guest as hostess to eight friends at dinner.

Edward Rantoul of Beverly Farms and Charles K. Cummings of the Pride's Crossing colony, who are on an auto trip as the guests of Mr. Rumrill of New London, were due to return today.

Mrs. C. D. Norton, wife of the secretary to President Taft, has recovered from her illness and is able to take a short auto ride. It is reported that the Pickering house, Lothrop street, Beverly, is being prepared for Secretary and Mrs. Norton's occupancy.

Wooster Lambert, a young representative of an old St. Louis family, had as a guest Sunday at the Oceanside, Le R. K. Howe of New York City.

AT THE HOTELS.

One of the prettiest sights at the Oceanside during each week is the dance given on Tuesdays after dinner in the casino for the children. While none but the younger folk may dance, the other guests at the hotel may watch and many take advantage of the opportunity. Last Tuesday evening on account of the cool night nearly every one of the Oceanside children was dancing and the affair was greatly appreciated.

Sherban Penhallow of Jamaica Plain, who is a member of the committee of the Magnolia Tennis Association which is in charge of the tournament to be held on the Oceanside courts beginning next Monday, was a guest at the Oceanside Tuesday of Reginald Kennard of Boston who is in active charge of the tournament.

Mrs. Logan of Independence, Missouri, her daughters and guest, Alonzo H. Findley, jr., also of Independence, came over to the Hesperus from Bass Rocks Sunday night for dinner. They came to the Hesperus today for the balance of the season.

SOCIETY NOTES

President Taft is home again. And with his return, society around Beverly is showing some signs of life. It is expected that the President and members of his family will be at the Essex County club dinner-dance in Manchester tonight. Soon after his return yesterday and almost before the echoing guns of salute on the Mayflower had died away, the President had decided that his first duty was a visit to the sick, and, after reading the papers and attending to some official matters, he got into his automobile and was driven to the summer home of Mr. Justice Moody at Magnolia for a social chat. The President was attended by Captain "Archie" Butt.

Miss Edith Deacon of Newport and everywhere in society, who has been a guest of Miss Mary Josephine Amory at the Francis Amory summer home in Beverly is in Hamilton, the guest of Mrs. George von L. Meyer, wife of the secretary of the United States Navy. Her fiancé, George Peabody, is still ill in the hospital.

Marchese Paolo di Montagliari, chargé d'Affairs of the Italian embassy, has as his guest Donna Anna Maria Strozzi of Florence, Italy, who has been in this country about a month. The marchese and marchessa had an exciting ride in an engine cab Wednesday afternoon when they missed the train which was to take them to meet their guest in Boston. The marchese used the engine of the private subscribers' train returning from Magnolia to keep his appointment with his guest and bring her to Manchester in time for dinner. It was an experience that the noble pair are likely to remember as important to their official stay in the United States.

The men's singles at the Montserrat Golf club, remain to be played before the tennis tournament is completed. Miss Eleanora Sears won the women's handicap singles by defeating Miss Alice Thorndike last Friday, 6-3, 6-0. The finals in the mixed doubles were won by Miss Mary Curtis and Dudley L. Pickman, jr., who defeated Miss Carrie Munn and C. M. Amory, 6-4, 6-2.

The "Ma Ma" Talking Dolls are back again at the Indian Store, opposite the Grill, at Magnolia. And with them came many other Toys and Games—not to mention the excellent Curacao Panama hats, now known so favorably.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Ipswich.

Ipswich without her artistic element, which has helped to make her famous, would not be traditional Ipswich, and the Wilcomb House, at the foot of Ipswich river, with its old fashioned garden of brilliant colors, houses many of the art class of ten members conducted this season by G. L. Noyes of the Eric Pape Art school, Boston. This pleasant company of kindred and congenial spirits includes among its knights of the brush Grace M. Sawyer, Worcester; the Misses Waters, Boston; Perry Haynes, Cambridge; Robert E. Grace, West Medford. Other guests there are Mrs. James Ryder, Danbury, Ct.; Mrs. J. G. Holcomb, Carmel, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Nordstrom, Cambridge; Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Tucker, Newton; Mrs. G. L. Noyes, Boston.

Prof. Arthur W. Dow, whose art school here, gave much notoriety to Ipswich, is teaching at the summer school of Columbia University, of which he is head of the art department.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Dixon of New York are at the Farley estate, Meeting House Green.

Mrs. Gerald Livingston Hoyt (nee Appleton) and Miss Hoyt of New York are at "Appleton Farm," which embraces 200 or more acres, upon which are the estates of the various members of this prominent Boston family.

Mrs. Anna P. Peabody of Boston and Magnolia has offered a part of her grounds of the Brown estate, for a stadium for the open air pageant the last of August to be given under the auspices of the Ipswich Historical society, which will have the material aid and support of the summer colonists, who also will have parts. The first church and old fort is to be reproduced and all the stages and traditions in the fascinating history of Ipswich are to be repeated in the pageant.

Mrs. Charles S. Tuckerman of Boston opened "Applefield," her beautiful residence on Waldingfield road, Monday afternoon of this week, in behalf of Rev. J. W. Atwood, former rector of the Ipswich Episcopal church, who spoke in the interest of St. Luke's Home, which he has founded in Phoenix, Arizona, for consumptives and where he is laboring most magnanimously.

Mr. and Mrs. William Elkins of Philadelphia (nee Elizabeth Tuckerman), are at "Sunswick" for their annual sojourn with Bayard Tuckerman, author and lecturer of New York and Mrs. Tuckerman.

To stand the test of 114 years of hospitality offered, is the interesting inheritance of the Agawam House at Ipswich, and this picturesque old hotel in a historical part of the town, looks down from its high and sheltered elevation most proudly, for its old time atmosphere and antique furnishings still allure the stranger for a summer in Ipswich or the automobilists, who are most grateful to come within its restful and comfortable quarters after long runs, where the proprietors give one a most cordial welcome. Among the many guests registered at the hotel recently was Charles J. Glidden and chauffeur, Boston, who had as guests, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Havemeyer of Ardesley-on-the-Hudson, N. Y. Miss Margaret MacLaren Eager, the well-known director of society pageants and theatricals, spent a few days here and secured reservations for August, as she is to direct the great pageant in Ipswich in August, to be given under the auspices of the Historical society. She is located at Deerfield in the interest of a pageant to be given there. Other guests at the hotel are Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Huke, Earl R. Huke, Torrington, Ct.; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Huke.

The summer residents here are migratory and change scene of their social operations frequently. During the absence of Congressman A. P. Gardner, Mrs. Gardner is spending much of her time in Nahant with her father, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge. The R. L. Agassizs are in Newport until the middle of August.

F. A. Magee and family, who have been absent a year have returned to their Walnut road estate, Wenham, and settled there last Friday. Their son is still in Montana.

SOCIETY NOTES

Robert Bacon, jr., son of the present American Ambassador to France, began his duties in Washington, July 21, as private secretary to A. Piatt Andrew, asst. secretary of the treasury department, who is a summer resident at East Gloucester. Young Bacon's father formerly was a member of the firm of J. Pierpoint Morgan & Co., and Robert, jr., is to enter on a financial career. He is particularly well-known by the North Shore Harvard men as captain of the Varsity crew when at Harvard.

Mrs. C. L. Holt, who has recently been engaged as soprano soloist for King's Chapel, Boston, pleased the guests at the Oceanside Tuesday night with an impromptu recital in the hotel parlors immediately after the orchestral concert over the porte cochere. As a matter of fact Mrs. Holt may have outdrawn the orchestra for the usual music offering was cut short and the veranda was abandoned for the parlors.

Swampscott

Judge Perkins of Washington, formerly of Kentucky, is a guest at the Bellevue. Judge Perkins sat on the Kentucky bench for 30 years, now he is leaving jurisdiction behind and taking up golf on the Tedesco club links this summer very ardently. S. B. John Craig and Mary Young-Craig, the well-known Boston actors are at "Craigholm," their Beach Bluff estate and enjoying a well earned rest. Mrs. Craig's brothers (Wilfred and Bert Young) have come on from New York, and are at "The Bellevue" to be near them.

SWAMPSCOTT

There has been much out-door sporting interest at Beach Bluff, the past two weeks. Tennis, baseball and billiards have been the principal attractions and have attracted a pretty large gallery of onlookers. The finals in the men's doubles between Plympton Brothers and Davenport and Hellman late Saturday afternoon, July 23, gave Davenport and Hellman the two handsome cups. The result of the match was, 6-14, 6-8, 8-6, 4-6, 10-8. The consolation cup was won by Pratt and partner and the runner up were Bradford and Chase. The finals in the mixed doubles will be played tomorrow. Another event which brought out a large number of fair rooters and interested spectators was the baseball game between the Hotel Preston nine and the Clifton Heights nine. The victory went to the Preston team in a fast and lively game, the score being 7-5. In the ranks of crack billiard players at the Preston, Messrs Lincoln Grant and F. E. Schultz of Boston have been having some very interesting and clever contests with quite a gallery of onlookers to note their prowess. Tea-Table Tattle.

Sh! List to the tale of a hair-raising wail, of hair never raised by a razor—of a lock that was picked and a maid's temper nicked when heretofore nothing could daze her.

On last Wednesday eve — this yarn I believe is true for a friend of mine told it—two chaps had a date. The maidens were late and perhaps one lone pin wouldn't hold it.

From a certain hotel to another hotel, the boys in an auto went speeding, while one—cruel wretch—was planning a sketch, the other the law was exceeding.

But that's getting away from what I would say, so we'll play that the call is most ended. "Let's go for a ride," said the boys. The girls cried: "Why, that would be perfectly splendid."

They went and came back but alas and alack—those are nice handy words for a "poet"—one sweet lady fair wasn't every bit there but not 'till at home did she know it.

'T is a sad tale to tell and hard to tell well, but I plead for a maid in distress. Should I falter when ink may aid? Should I shrink though I haven't the lady's address?

Lost — Two Puffs. Pedigree Unknown. Owner?

There you are; that is done, though when I "began," I very much feared I would falter. A lass with brown hair found some hair wasn't there and she feared her appearance 't would alter.

Whoever should find two puffs, would they mind replying to this little ditty? 'T is the only good plan to help a poor man and a maiden who wants to be pretty.

Now there is the tale of a hair-raising wail—of hair never raised by a razor—of a lock that was picked and a maid's temper nicked when heretofore nothing could daze her.

THE Breeze numbered 60 pages last week—the largest in the history of the paper. We hesitate to call our readers' attention to the fact, but so many words of commendation have come to us during the week we feel it a duty to express our gratitude to the hundreds of North Shore summer residents as well as permanent residents for the hearty and continuous support given the paper. It is this assistance that makes such a large paper possible. The paper is but a reflection of the busy period through which the North Shore is passing just now.

MANCHESTER'S TAX RATE $8.40.

The Board of Assessors of Manchester Tuesday announced the tax rate for the present year as $8.40 on $1000,—one dollar less than last year, and one of the lowest rates for a number of years. The assessment is based on a valuation of $15,266,760, which is $1,995,497 increase over last year. The rate last year was $9.40.

The valuation is made up as follows: Resident—personal $7,511,591, buildings, $2,034,350, land, $1,551,-

SEWERAGE FOR MANCHESTER DISCUSSED AT MEETING YESTERDAY.

A meeting of the citizens was held in the chapel of the Congregational church, Manchester, yesterday afternoon at which the subject of sewerage for Manchester was discussed. The meeting was called by the committee appointed at a meeting held last fall at Mrs. W. L. Putnam's to take up the matter. Dr. George H. Washburn is the chairman of the committee. The meeting yesterday was attended by nearly two hundred of the townspeople and summer residents. After introductory remarks by Dr. Washburn, Dr. George W. Blaisdell told of some existing conditions and urged the adoption of some remedy.

Fred K. Swett, chairman of the Board of Health, told what the town was doing, how at the present time a soil cart is being used for the purpose of removing sewage and cleaning cesspools and that the town paid out last year for this purpose about $800, in addition to about $600 paid by the citizens. He hoped something could be done within the next few years toward having a permanent system of sewerage.

Edward S. Knight of the board was the next speaker. He told some of the dangers and discomforts from Saw Mill Brook and Central Pond. He was in favor of some system of sewerage disposal. The pond and the brook were sources of great danger and nuisance, and he felt the town should take some action at once. There was no question in his mind but what the town could well afford having this, as it has a valuation of $15,000,000 and a remarkably low rate of $8.40. A sewerage system could be built without any increase in tax rate.

C. C. Dodge representing the manufacturing interests of the town said he was interested to know that the summer residents were more interested in this question of sewerage than the natives. In whatever system is adopted, he felt that the town could not afford to pump its own sewerage out to sea.

Dr. Glendenning was heartily in favor of the introduction of some form of sewerage. The town is exceedingly healthy it is true. Its health conditions is one of the most valuable assets in attracting summer residents, but he felt the time was coming when immediate and prompt action must be taken for handling the sewage of the town. The question in his mind was, can the town afford not to do it?

Prof. Winslow, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was next speaker. He spoke along a general line at first, telling of the need of handling the sewage of a community in some form or other. Filth, he said, was the nurse and not the mother of disease. In the case of Manchester he thought that there were two great dangers, one through bathing and the other of having the sewage deposited on the flats as the tides go down. He read from papers prepared by two young men, graduated from Technology this year, on the introduction of sewerage for the town of Manchester, in which the plan was outlined for having sand filter beds to the west of Pine street, to which the sewage could be pumped. In his mind the sand filter system would be the best for Manchester. He thought such a system could be carried out to completion at a cost of $62,000. He thought if it would cost $2,100 to clean out Central pond this year it would cost much more to do it the next time. The question is how long can you afford to wait before tackling this problem? We have here a very real, very solid asset, for this is the grandest playground in the country. People come here to spend their vacations from all sections. We must preserve our beauty and our attractions. It is folly, short-sighted kind of policy to let this matter of handling our sewage go on in this way. Sewage disposal is just as much a part of the community life as the water supply. He thought the annual cost of filter beds would be in the vicinity of $500 not counting the cost of pumping the material to the beds.

O. T. Roberts said that the special committee of the town appointed to look into the matter of sewerage and the Central pond had arranged for one of the most expert men of the country to visit the town and a report from him would be forthcoming at some later date.

535, total, $11,097,476; non-resident—personal $31,114, buildings $1,872,975, land $2,265,195, total $4,169,284. Grand total $15,266,760. Less exemptions $28,495, making the total assessed valuation $15,238,265.

The amount voted in town meeting to raise by taxation was $124,302.

Review Old Days Over Bowls of Chowder. 117 "Boys" Present.

Fair skies and cool breezes favored the Manchester Elderlies Wednesday when they held their 32d annual gathering at the Tuck's Point picnic grounds. The gathering is always "the" gathering of the year for the 100 or more "boys" who assemble at these unique gatherings, for it is a reunion of Manchester's young old men, or connections, who have attained the age of 50. At Wednesday's outing there were 117, several more than last year.

Of those present there were twelve whose ages aggregated 1034, which is an average of more than 86 years. The venerable librarian, Delucena L. Bingham was the Nestor of the gathering, his age being 95 years. William Johnson came next, his age being 93.

There have been 12 deaths in the association during the past year, as follows: George Kimball, Salem; Samuel Driver, Beverly; Asa Hooper, Boston; George Goodridge, Reading; Peter Chisholm, Gloucester; Issacher Lefavour, Beverly; Henry S. Grew, Boston, and J. T. Stanley, William J. Pert, Robert Culbert, John W. Marshall and George H. Martin of Manchester.

Long before the noon hour had arrived the boys could be seen wending their way toward the Point, and every train brought one or more returning sons. Handshaking and congratulations were in order all around, for it is a time of renewing acquaintances, and recalling the days of old. In some cases some of those present hadn't seen each other for decades.

Toward noon the smell of the chowder told the company the hour for the serving of the chowder was approaching, and promptly at 1 o'clock President George F. Allen called the gathering to order. The chowder reigns supreme on these occasions, and it was none-the-less true in this case. Chef Frank Crombie and his assistant, John Babcock, know how to mix the ingredients of a good clam or fish chowder to perfection, and the gathering was loud in the praise of their success on this occasion.

After the dinner President Allen called the meeting to order. The officers made their annual reports and the old board of officers were re-elected. Mr. Allen was chosen president for the 32d consecutive year. A vote of thanks was extended to the young men who had waited on table.

Francis M. Stanwood of the Smith's Point summer colony was introduced as the first speaker. Mr. Stanwood took occasion to take exceptions to certain statements in an instalment of Senator Platt's autobiography recently published in McClure's Magazine which cast aspersions on the memory of James A. Garfield. The speaker went briefly over the accomplishments of the late President from his college days to taking his seat at the head of the nation, all of which he accomplished and was laid in his grave before he was 50 years of age.

J. A. Torrey noticed two classes here today, the rich and the poor—but on this day the rich and the poor meet together and chowder is the diet of them all. He read the following original rhyme:

When you come to view it,
Ain't it funny—
Everything you buy with money
Ties you to it!
All the fun that's in it
Is not worth the freedom
That you lost to win it,
So you well may rue it.
Property, property, property!
All we buy is clog and hamper Poverty is liberty!
Chuck it all and be a trumper.

tour abroad, gave an interesting description of the Messina earthquake, he being commissioned while in Italy as a U. S. representative in the relief work. He gave Ambassador Griscom and Capt. Belknap unstinted praise for the part they took in the work and related many incidents of the harrowing scenes at Messina.

E. B. Chandler of Texas, who is summering at Gloucester, spoke briefly, saying he found that very few of the old men present neither drink nor smoke, but he discovered that most of them had been married no less than five times.

D. L. Bingham recited the "Psalm of Life" as a conclusion to a few remarks.

W. C. Rust gave a rambling sort of talk along a reminiscent line, which was very interesting. He remembered when they used flint and not matches to start their fire in the morning. There were only 80 or 90 houses in town and everybody appeared to be happy and contented. Fishing was the means of livelihood, then. The furniture business followed and then came Manchester—the Summer Resort. In cabinet-making days the men would go to work at 5 o'clock in the morning and work until 7 or 8 o'clock at night. They looked forward to the nights when they could work—and were not looking for 4 o'clock to strike as now. The people today have more money to spend, more luxuries, but they are no happier. Real solid comfort is not what it used to be. He would like to see trolleys in Manchester. He wanted to see some form of sewerage. He wanted to see a new street from Desmond avenue (School street) to Pine street, along the foot of Standpipe hill.

Rev. L. H. Ruge, Town Clerk A. S. Jewett and Dr. W. H. Tyler also made remarks. The last named referred to some of the visions he had had, and how they were coming true as the years advanced. One of them was seeing the Manchester police under civil service, another in seeing the Manchester schools on a par with those of other towns, so that our boys and girls can leave here and enter college without any conditions hanging over their heads. Another vision is that relating to a Y. M. C. A. for Manchester, which he hoped to see carried out.

Philemon R. Sanborn of West Acton and Capt. Wm. Collins of Gloucester also made brief remarks.

Those present were: George F. Allen, George F. Allen of Beverly, Daniel Allen, Thomas Appleton, 90;

Madame Paul Beigbender and her children of Boston are visiting Mrs. Herbert Shaw, Summer street.

Mrs. L. W. Carter plans to spend most of August with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Clark, at Southampton, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nichols and little son left Tuesday for a vacation trip to Maine.

Long's full orchestra, 12 pieces, has been engaged by the Manchester drug clerks for their annual ball, to be held in the Manchester Town hall on Friday evening, August 26. The party, incidentally, will be one of the swellest of the summer, and is an event many young people all along the North Shore are planning to attend.

William McCormack.

William McCormack, known in theatrical life as William J. Mack-aye, died at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, Tuesday, July 26, as a result of operations performed on the ear. Mr. McCormack was born in Manchester, June 30, 1869. He received his education at the public schools, but at an early age he entered the Harvard Medical School as an assistant to Prof. Wood and Dr. Harrington, with whom he remained several years. Having a tendency for a theatrical career, he joined a stock company and traveled extensively, with some of the best. He was of a happy disposition and a general favorite among his many associates.

He is survived by a mother, Mrs. James McCormack; two brothers, Caplis and Arthur; and three sisters, Mrs. Nellie Smith and Mrs. W. W. Joseph of this town and Mrs. Hannah Brown of Magnolia.

Funeral services were held yesterday at the home of his mother, 79 Summer street. Interment was in Rosedale cemetery. Rev. L. H. Ruge of the Congregational church officiated.

The First Appearance in Manchester.

Charles K. Harris and May Melvin, well known to all New England theatre-goers will appear at the town hall, Manchester, for three nights,—Monday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week,—this being the first time that Mr. Harris has ever appeared in Manchester. He has for years played in Salem and to be presented by

CHARLES K. HARRIS AND MAY MELVIN

Supported by a First-Class Company

"The Blockhead" is a clean, bright, refined and up-to-date comedy. In the character of Professor Theodore Blockson Heddington, Mr. Harris is at his best, and it is undoubtedly the funniest comedy role he has ever played. Miss May Melvin as Kitty Barnes, the professor's pupil, is as full of fun as a bubbling spring.

If you want a real good hearty laugh don't fail to see "The Blockhead."

Tickets on Sale at Allen's Drug Store.

Gloucester and many Manchester people have gone to both places to see him and his company, formerly the Harcourt Comedy Co. Having three open nights Mr. Harris was induced to play Manchester by John J. Fritz, a former Manchester boy, who is now business manager and advance representative for the Harris and Melvin Co. Mr. Fritz said he wanted the Manchester people to see Mr. Harris in the Blockhead, in which he plays the title role and Miss Melvin needs very little introduction to a good many Manchester theatre-goers. She has been playing the leads for the Harcourt Comedy Co. for the past seven years, and has endeared herself to thousands of people all through New England, New York and the middle West. The Charles K. Harris Co. and May Melvin ought to pack the house each night, as it is the best aggregation of players that have ever played this town. The company plans to put on a play at Beverly Farms August 6.

The debt on the Parsonage, the ladies are paying, has been reduced now to $536, through the generosity and co-operation of the many friends of the church. There will be the usual flower table and the table for home-made candy as well as the useful and fancy articles which have been made during the winter.

The program for the coming week at the Women's club is as follows: Tuesday evening, "An Evening in Japan and China;" Wednesday afternoon, basket class; Thursday evening, whist; Friday evening, masquerade ball for members only. Saturday afternoon, embroidery class. On Tuesday evening, August 9, "The Pixies," will give a fairy play to which all are invited.

The annual tournaments in bowling, pool, billiards and checkers at the Men's club begin August 1. Entries are being made this week and judging from the number already received there will be unprecedented interest in this year's matches. In the bowling there are to be tournaments for individuals and teams. Entries for these tournaments close at 9 p. m., Saturday, July 30. Frank Treadwell of Boston won the high score last week with a total of 283 for three strings.

The dance held at the Men's Clubhouse on Wednesday evening was a most delightful occasion, about 75 couples being present. Next Wednesday evening a "Leap Year" party is to be a special feature. Music will be furnished by a three-piece orchestra. Dancing from 8.30 to 11 o'clock.

Scarcity of GenuineWhite Oak Timber.

Washington, D. C., July 28.—It will surprise most persons who know something about oak to be told that the so-called white oak timber of our markets is often a mixture not only of various species of the white oak group but also of other species, such as the red oak. This generally unknown fact is reported by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which, as a part of its forestry work, is frequently called upon to pass judgment upon the identity of market woods in dispute.

Foresters divide all the oaks into two distinct groups—the white oak group and the black oak group. One way of distinguishing the two is by the fact that the black oaks require two years to mature their acorns, while the white oaks take but one. The woods of the two groups of oaks are also structurally different. The true white oak, known to botanists as Quercus alba, is merely one of the species which make up the white oak group. Red oak, on the other hand, belongs to the black oak group. Red oak has a number of other common names, among them mountain oak, black oak and Spanish oak.

There is so much confusion in the ordinary use of names of the oaks that it is almost impossible to keep them straight without resorting to the scientific names, but the marketing of wood of the black oak group as white oak is hardly fair to the consumer. Red oak, for instance, is now much more abundant than white oak, grows faster, and is generally regarded as inferior. The two species often grow together and occupy the same general region.

In the early days of its abundance, market white oak was derived almost entirely, it is safe to say, from Quercus alba, the true white oak. This species combines approximately the utmost strength and toughness of any of the timber oaks, excepting possibly the southern live oak, which in the colonial days was so highly prized for shipbuilding that it was protected by special laws. The immense inroads made upon the then apparently inexhaustible white oak forests which stretched from the Atlantic seaboard to about Missouri, gradually so reduced the supply that the use of other species became inevitable.

At present time it is almost impossible to obtain a consignment of white oak that does not contain pieces of some other species. Of the white oak group those most used, in addition to the true white oak, are burr oak, chestnut oak, chinquapin oak, post oak, swamp white oak, cow oak, and overcup oak; of the black oak group, Texas red oak, red oak and spotted or water oak.

Real white oak timber of number one quality is very largely cut into quarter-sawed boards, while a combination of one or more white oaks and red oak may constitute other cuts of "white oak." In many markets, the term "cabinet white oak" is now understood to include a mixture of white oak and red oak, while it often signifies red oak only.

The question, "What is white oak?" is now coming up among consumers and manufacturers of commercial oak timber. The above-named white oaks are distinct but closely related species, which together must be depended upon for the future supply. For the ordinary purposes for which true white oak is used, practically all the trees of this group yield woods that can be interchanged and will serve equally well.

The Beverly Farms depot is being wired for electric lights, an improvement that will no doubt be appreciated by all.

The Boston Post of Monday had the following item from Dracut: "Fooling in a boat cost the life of Mary Hennessey, 21, of Chelsea here Sunday. She, with a party of friends, started out to go bathing in Long pond and while rowing to the bathing pool she engaged in a friendly tussle with Proctor Denno of Everett, lost her balance and fell overboard. William Crowley of Cambridge, who was a member of the party, made several attempts to save the girl and succeeded once in bringing her to the surface but could not hold her long enough for other help to arrive." Proctor Denno until a year ago lived at Beverly Farms and is very well known here.

It is understood that the Board of Directors of the West Beach Corporation are looking into the matter of extending the pier. For some time this has been under consideration, the idea being, that under the present arrangements there is hardly enough water at low tide. One plan has been to build the pier out to where the outer float now is, and then have one large float, instead of two smaller ones.

Preston W. R. corps on Wednesday afternoon and evening held a very successful lawn party on Marshall's field, which was well attended. Besides music for dancing upon a large platform there were other amusing features. The various sales tables were well patronized. In the evening the grounds were prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns. The ladies are very thankful to all who aided them in carrying out the event.

Those who attend the dance and social in Neighbor's hall next Thursday evening, Aug. 4, under the management of the Beverly Farms club, are sure to have a good time. Long's orchestra will furnish the music.

On Monday last while swimming off the West Beach pier a young lady had a narrow escape from drowning. When quite a way from the nearest landing point her strength gave out. Her cries for help brought to her aid three Farms young men, Dennis Donovan, Leon Pierce and Daniel Neville who reached her in time to prevent her from going down the third time.

Matthew Smith has purchased the house at Preston Place formerly owned by John L. Pierce and recently sold to Q. A. Shaw, 2d. Mr. Smith is planning to move it from its present location to the Rob't J. Brown property which Mr. Smith became the owner of last week.

Herman A. McDonald, asst. sec'y to Gov. Draper, was among the 183 who early this week passed the bar examinations.

Mrs. Gertrude Davis Stillman, wife of Henry Dodge Stillman, age 25 years, died at her home on Hull street, East Wenham, last Monday morning after a few weeks' illness. Of a bright and cheerful disposition, her acts of thoughtfulness of others, and her kind deeds drew about her a host of friends, who sincerely condole with the bereaved family in their affliction. Besides a husband she leaves a father, Henry Kimball, of Haverhill, and three sisters, one of whom during the past year has made her home here. Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at her late home and were conducted by Rev. Clarence S. Pond and Rev. Frank Parker of Wenham. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Selections were rendered by the Wenham Baptist church choir.

Addison Davis and family are enjoying camp life these days in a cottage which they own on the shores of Gravelly Pond. They have recently purchased a farm at Rowley and will probably move there in the fall.

Improvements are under way at the West Beach property. The additional land acquired by the corporation, in the changing of the street is being enclosed by a street wall. A new entrance is being made with piers on each side.

Night Officer Coakley of the Beverly Farms beat is taking his annual vacation. Officer Pickett is substituting.

Put by five or ten dollars a month and own one of these attractive house lots. Later build your own cottage, make your own garden and pay no more rent.

This is an ideal location, between Beverly and Prides's Crossing, on electric and train lines near High and Grammar schools and not crowded.

Houses rent and sell rapidly and land values are steadily increasing. All grades and prices from $300 to $3000.

The boys' playground, opposite the station, has been opened. The neighborhood tennis court is now ready.

Leave the noisy town and come out for a glimpse of the fields and woods of Montserrat; only five minutes from Beverly.

Our representative will be at the office, 157 Essex St., every day except Sunday and evening appointments may be made by phone No. 721.

AUGUST

Last year,
Alack and alas!
Beverly, Mass.,
And Bill on the flat
Of his back in the grass
Sounding the depths
Of the opaline sky
And watching the clouds
Floating dreamily by.
Last year,
Alack and alas!
Beverly, Mass.

This year,
Sagamore Hill,
Strenuous still,
And no one complaining
For want of a thrill,
Shindy and sass
Just as certain as fate—
Beverly, Mass.,
Can dream early or late,
Snore as it pleases
And snooze as it will—
This year,
Sagamore Hill,

Of August it may first be said, its name is from Augustus, whom men have likened unto Ted, perhaps without injustice. He made the world go round about as many times a minute and the news was always dull without the great Augustus in it.

He had his Ananias club for liars and for fakers, and he loved to sail his little tub among the Roman breakers. He counted peace a sort of plague, and never did pursue it, but let it rally at The Hague, and you couldn't beat him to it.

He preached about the same old things that Teddy has been preaching, and most of Rome's awakenings resulted from his teaching. He battled hotly for the right, and valiantly imbued it, and the stork could not attempt to light but what he up and shooed it.

There was, however, one affair to tell which is to tattle, and that was where this Roman bear was coming in from battle. He had, of course, put everything opposing him to slumber, and Rome awaited him to sing some laudatory number.

But here the parallel desists. Augustus said them, No sir! and when he entered with his lists it might have been the grocer for all the greeting that he got from that admiring chorus, the which desire, of course, was not a bit like Theodoros.

But howsoever, when he died the month that loves to grill us was being written far and wide the season of Sextilus. They wanted to commemorate the hot time he presented the nation with, at any rate, so August was invented.

The dog days will resume again,
And the man who voted water

With the weather down to eight or ten

Below will grow the hotter
With wishing that he had foreseen
The season hot and stewing,
And nothing but a choice between Pink lemonade and bluing.

It will not strike him, we're afraid, as when the cold was stinging, and up and down the wind-swept street the icicles were clinging. There's nothing like a dry parade, the shouts of Hallelulliah, and the children skillfully arrayed for what you want to fool you.

It's very easy to forget there's such a thing as summer, or such a quantity as sweat, what time the busy drummer is rub-a-dubbing up the street a million bumps a minute, and the line sweeps by with rhythmic feet and the little shavers in it.

It somehow makes it seem that booze is only fit for motors, and in the scuffle that ensues not very many voters bethink them that a chance remains that milk won't give them gristle to last when August boils their brains and their ears begin to whistle.

A crafty temperance is that contriving its elections when Boreas is at the bat in these disputed sections.
There is a time for everything, to labor and to potter, and one to sit way back and sing inaudibly for water.

At any rate, the world will spin

With very small pretension
And the fall elections will begin
To clamor for attention.

The next few weeks will fire the gun
Repeatedly and oftly,
And a lot of folks begin to run
For office very softly.

The bold insurgent will have polled the principal chautauquas, and will by that time have been told how far discreet his balk was, or if to follow his attack with further demonstration, or quietly to tip-toe back upon the reservation.

The hopeful Democrat will tool this way and that way training, and hope to have us as a rule have none of their explaining. He'll carefully trim up his wicks and get his pump pulsating, and pass the grand stand every six or seven seconds waiting.

There'll be some dust put up, it seems when this event gets going, and some things starting at the seams that wanted proper sewing.

Our Weekly Letter From Washington

Washington, D. C., July 28.—The U. S. Department of Agriculture is using this year on the National Forests over ten tons of tree seed. Most of this seed has already been planted or sown. The rest will be utilized later in the season, as favorable conditions are presented.

It takes a great many tree seeds to make ten tons. Jack pine, the most important tree for planting in the Nebraska sand hills by the Forest Service, will average something like 123,000 to the pound. Of Western yellow pine, the tree most extensively planted throughout the National Forests as a whole, 10,000 seed will make a pound. Altogether the ten tons of seed to be used this year represent perhaps 300 million single seeds.

If every seed could be depended on to produce a young tree suitable for planting, the result would be a supply of nursery stock sufficient to plant three hundred thousand acres of land, but no such result can be looked for because many seeds do not germinate. Most of the seed will be sown, either broadcast or in seed spots, or planted with a corn-planter, directly in the place where the trees are to stand.

Even when nursery stock is raised a liberal allowance must be made for loss. In the first place, a considerable percentage of the seeds will be found to be infertile. Of those which germinate, many will die before they leave the nursery beds, and many more will be lost in transplanting. If from a pound of Western yellow pine seed that contains 10,000 individual seeds, 4,000 three-year-old transplants are available for field planting, the Department of Agriculture has obtained satisfactory results.

There are now twenty-four National Forest nurseries with an annual productive capacity of over eight million seedlings. But there are many millions of old burns on the National Forests which are waiting to be restocked, and some quicker and cheaper method than the actual planting of nursery-grown trees is urgently needed. Therefore the foresters are making experiments on a large scale with

found to give good results in some regions. It was first tried in the Black Hills of South Dakota, with an encouraging outcome. To broadcast an acre of land with yellow pine seed about 8 pounds of seed is used. One of the most formidable drawbacks to this method is the extent to which the seed may be consumed by birds and rodents. If the season happens to be one in which food for these animals is scarce, the loss is very heavy. The problem of control of animal pests, such as field mice, ground squirrels, and gophers, which eat the tree seeds, and also the further problem of preventing the depredations of rabbits, which are altogether too fond of the little trees themselves, whether nursery transplants or field-grown seedlings, is receiving the attention of the Biological Survey experts of the Department of Agriculture.

In some localities the Department has had to purchase seed, but most of that seed is gathered by Forest Service men themselves. The cost of gathering has varied for the different regions from thirty-five cents to one dollar a pound. As a rule, the seed is collected in the fall months, when most conifers ripen their seed. Parties of three or four men ordinarily work together. Where lumbering is in progress the collectors follow the sawyers and take the cones directly from the felled trees. In standing timber, the task is much more arduous. The men must often clamb tall pines and pull the cones from the branches as best they can. Where these are on the extremities and beyond the reach of the hand, pruning shears are used. The cones are dropped to the ground and then gathered into buckets and transferred to sacks, in which they are carried to a central point for further treatment.

The extraction of the seeds is tedious rather than difficult. In some cases the cones are spread out upon sheets in the sun, when, after a time, they open and the seed drop out; in other cases it is necessary to resort to artificial heat. This is applied by placing the cones upon trays with screen bottoms and raising the temperature of the room to the proper degree. The cones open, the winged seeds fall out, and the seed is separated finally from wings and dirt by a fanning mill. A good many seeds have been removed from the cone by hand, but this is a sore trial to the fingers of the pickers and an exceedingly slow process.

In Everything Men Do They Leave the Indelible Imprint of Their Minds

Following out this suggestion how possible it is to recognize the honest effort, the simple, direct, natural thinking of those men of old Colonial Times in the furniture produced during that period.
It almost bears out the thought, "I am genuinely good as the man that created me was genuinely good."

This being true, is it any wonder that the makers of

... FURNITURE ...

Today seek the old and reproduce it in the new. Isn't it commendable in them? Aren't they in this way preserving the old, and handing it down to posterity?

They are very careful in its construction, very exacting as to details, and why isn't it better for you in buying, to invest in pieces that you know are truly new, that are based in price as to what they really cost, than to buy the so termed "antiques," you know not where they have been, or what they truly are, that cost you fabulous sums because of some fancied origin?

We've a store of reproductions that make an interesting sight, true copies of famous pieces, that cost no more because of that fact, that are made in the very best manner and good for a hundred years. Tables, Low Boys, Lamp Stands, High Boys, Hall Sofas, Settees, Fireside Chairs and the like, not antiques, not antique store prices, but all reproductions at modern furniture store prices.

We especially extend a very urgent invitation to the visitors along the North Shore to inspect this unusual collection, which we know will prove of interest to them.

Dr. and Mrs. Inches and family of Medfield arrived at Manchester last Friday and are again occupying the C. W. Ward cottage on Sea street, for the balance of the season.

—x—

Mrs. Frank W. Seabury came up from Cohasset over the week-end and was with friends at Beverly Farms. They attended the dinner-dance at the Essex County club last Friday night as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson. The Preston Gibsons have the Seabury cottage this season.

—x—

Mrs. George von L. Meyer gave a dinner party of 17 covers at Rock Maple Farm, her Hamilton residence, last Saturday evening. Miss Edith Deacon has been a house-guest of the Meyers during part of her stay on the North Shore.

—x—

Edward Small Moore and family are not spending the summer on the North Shore as customary, but are remaining at their estate at Lake Forest, one of the delightful resorts outside Chicago. Mr. Moore came East the latter part of last week on business and was up from New York over night, Friday, calling on his people, the Judge Moores at Pride's Crossing, and his brother Paul at Beverly Farms. Mrs. Moore was one of the McGinley girls of Pittsburg. They will come on to the North Shore to spend the early autumn, which many think is the best part of the year here. Mr. Moore is playing on the polo team at his home town this summer and is enjoying life to the fullest. He has a great future before him in railroading.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. T. Howard Lewis of Boston, who are occupying the Pierce cottage, Old Neck, Manchester, are entertaining Mrs. Lewis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Lindsay of Wilmington, Del.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Miss Effie Bagnell of St. Louis is to wed William Culbertson of Louisville, Ky. By the time this typed statement reaches the reader, there will be many who will say that it is not news, that it was announced last Wednesday at the Oceanside by Miss Bagnell's mother. True, but nearly every friend of the young woman, and that means every one in society on the North Shore, has been busy with congratulations for Miss Bagnell and "Billy" Culbertson. There was little show about the announcement which was made by Mrs. William Bagnell, the mother, just before the happy pair went in to luncheon Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Bagnell have come to the Oceanside in Magnolia for so many summers, that now they have apartments in a cottage connected with the hotel called the "Bagnell" which is almost like one of their own. Miss Effie has been in Magnolia so much that she might be said to have grown up there, and she has become one of the most popular in the younger set. Just before the tennis tournament started Craig Culbertson, who, according to certain publications, is the fiancé of Alice Vandergrift of Pittsburg, and his younger brother, came to the Oceanside from Beverly Farms, where the Culbertsons are spending the summer. Craig played in the tournament and was successful up to the fourth round. "Billy" did not play in the tournament and was even more successful. Miss Bagnell also played in the tournament and lost. There is a saying "unlucky in cards, etc.," but cards have nothing to do with tennis. However, on Wednesday the engagement was announced and everyone appears to be happy. All was not joy on the happy day, however, for Samuel A. Culbertson, who is a leading banker and broker in Louisville, lay very ill at his summer home. Two of the leading physicians in this part of the country were summoned—Dr. Samuel J. Mixer of Boston and Swampscott, and Dr. James Marsh Jackson of Boston and Beverly Farms, who is attending the Hon. William H. Moody, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, ill in his summer cottage in Magnolia. After a consultation, the physicians agreed on the ailment, and in the evening, Dr. Jackson announced that Mr. Culbertson is suffering from a complication of diseases, but that he was much better and out of danger.

—x—

Mrs. William C. McMillan and her daughter, Miss Doris, are visiting Mrs. James McMillan at "Eagle Head," Manchester.

—x—

The young friends of Mrs. W. Scott Fitz are finding great delight in her beautiful garden at Singing Beach, Manchester, and armed with their cameras make pilgrimages to these floral bowers and get most artistic pictures. Mrs. Fitz has several parties in prospect which will be given in the gardens.

—x—

Mrs. William E. Littleton of Philadelphia and Beverly Farms has had a brief visit from her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Griswold, who had returned from their wedding trip abroad and were en route to Philadelphia. Mrs. Griswold was a bride of last April.

Magnolia Boat-Maker and Fisherman Won’t Admit He Saved “Big Bill,” our President, from Davy Jones’ Locker, But the Facts are in This Yarn.

Cap’n Bill “aint nothin’ but an ol’ lobster-ketcher,”—he says so himself—but if it hadn’t been for Cap’n Bill, “Big Bill” Taft might not now be riding in the car, bearing he Presidential crest, past the shack at Magnolia where the ol’ fisherman lives in the summertime with his little grandson. As a matter of fact, “Big Bill,” had a narrow escape from Davy Jones’ locker although Cap’n Bill won’t admit that “you could put it just thataway.”

Of course, Cap’n Bill, being “nothin’ but an ol’ lobster-ketcher,” is modest, and even insists that “‘Twa’n’t no sech thing;” that Taft would have been President anyway,—though he “mout have got wet.”

Fifteen year ago, William Howard Taft was not as big, speaking generally, as he is now. He was not even “Big Bill” to many of the millions who have learned to know his smile and his “greatness.” But Mr. Taft, receiving a generous handicap from Nature in the race for “bigness” and the right to the title of “Big Bill,” has had the advantage of Rooseveltian and golfing publicity, while Cap’n Bill being, as before mentioned naturally modest has hidden his candle in a lobster-pot so that at the age of three-score-and-some he is just a happy-go-lucky fisherman with scores of friends—millionaires, ministers, magistrates, men—who put a high value on the handshake of Cap’n Bill—lobster-ketcher.

“Pretty” may not be considered much of a word to use as descriptive of the weather, but to Cap’n Bill it pictures a pleasant, bright, nothin’-to-do sort of a day.

So—on a “pretty” afternoon recently, Cap’n Bill sitting on the gun’l of a boat hauled up alongside his shanty, was aroused from a day dream of a fo’e’s’le of years ago, by the honk and purr of a steam touring car. By the time his sand-filled eyes could pierce the fog of dust that had curled up behind the car, the machine had been stopped, and a man draped in a tweed suit of English walking cut and a cap to match was strolling up the gravel path to the little cottage where the Hon. William H. Moody is trying to get well enough to take his place on the United States Supreme-Court bench in the Fall.

“I’d knowed that back anywhere, anytime,” said Cap’n Bill aloud, taking his weathered hat from his heavy shock of greyed hair and stretching his big frame to its full height.

“And that walk, too,” he added, swinging his big foot over the side of the boat and leaning his elbow on his leg so that he might rest his bewhiskered chin in his hand the better to manipulate his Missouri meerschaum.

“Ahoy, chum!” he hailed as I came away from the gate across from the shanty.

“Lo, Cap’n Bill,” I called, going to where the old man stood.

“Wa’n’t that our President?” asked Cap’n Bill, and when I allowed he had named it, he continued: “I knew I couldn’t go wrong on the look on him, though as you can see for yourself, I only got a sight through the fog his wagon kicked up.

“If I’d only knowed he was agoin’ to steam past here, I’d ’ave been standin’ up with hat off.

“But Lor!, I suppose he wouldn’t remember an old lobster-ketcher like me,” continued Cap’n Bill after a pause, “would he now?”

Without waiting for my opinion on the matter he continued in the same strain; “You see I’m only one o’ the common people and I don’t suppose I ought to expect that the President of the United States would remember an ol’ lobster-ketcher he hadn’t laid eyes for nigh onto fifteen year, would he now?”

Cap’n Bill was working up a story and I knew that the only way I could get it was to keep my mouth shut and not be tempted by the frequent would-he-now that was the Cap’n’s way of keeping his listener interested.

That is the Cap’n’s little hint to the one who interrupts his narrative even by request. So I kept my mouth shut while Cap’n Bill knocked his pipe clean, and then followed him into his little shanty.

Motioning me to a chair he sat in his big old-fashioned rocker and while he carefully and slowly filled his corn-cob sailor-fashion, chipping his smoking from his pressed plug, I crowded my tongue-burning mixture into a dude briar and wonderer if I really appreciated a smoke. As if reading my thoughts, Cap’n Bill broke the silence with this bit:

“Long about fifteen year ago, thereabouts, when Magnolia was jest as pretty but maybe not so expensive as ’tis nowadays, old Gen’l Knox used to come here with his two boys,” began the captain.

“Now you needn’t get inquisitive about Gen’l Knox for that wa’n’t his name, but bein’ as how his boys is livin’ and are good friends o’ mine, I don’t suppose ’twould do me any good to go tellin’ all I know. You scen one o’ the sons comes here now and as he is pretty well known and rich, he might object to an ol’ lobster-ketcher braggin’ about his friendship with him. So we ii just make believe it don’t make no difference about a name. It’s near enough to Knox anyhow so that most anyone who remembered Magnolia when the general used to come here will remember the right name.

“I was fishin’ ’round here then and ketchin’ lobsters, jes’ as I am now, passing the time in the winter makin’ sailboats to sell to the children in the summer, jes’ like I am now. I got to know the summer people pretty well, takin’ them out fishin’ and teachin’ them to sail, an’ helpin’ the kids learn how to swim, so ’twa’n’t strange for me to be called on when the Knox boys wanted to make up a fishin’ party.

“One day one o’ the boys came down to my place and says: ‘Cap’n Bill, I want to use yer boat tomorrow for a fishin’ party. Will yer take us out? Judge Taft is here and he likes fishin’ “Course I’ll take yer out—I don’t care who yer got visitin’; don’t make no difference to me.

“Guess I didn’t know what I was talkin’ about though, for next day when the boys came down they

The Atlantic Seashore Development.

ARTICLE X.—CAPE COD.

All Eyes on Provincetown.

As the Breeze comes to its readers Cape Cod Bay and the surrounding shores are reverberating with the sound of booming cannon. During this great celebration today at Provincetown, where multitudes are gathered to dedicate the one hundred thousand dollar monument to the Pilgrim fathers, in which President Taft, Governor Draper, Dr. Eliot and many other eminent men are taking part, and in which sixteen battleships are firing their salutes, is a fitting occasion for vaunting the glories of "Old Cape Cod."

The history of this famed peninsula and its venerable towns are well established in the annals of America and the glories of the past are more than being duplicated in the unfolding glories of the present.

Well might the motto of Michigan be the motto of Cape Cod—"Si quacris peninsulam amoenam circumspice"—If you seek a delightful peninsula, look about you.

Branching north at Bourne's Neck and Buzzards Bay a quiet but significant change is taking place aside from the great Cape Cod Canal project. Everywhere communities are quickening into life. Sagamore Beach, instituted of late years on the broadest lines of the great Chautauqua assemblies, is making rapid progress toward its place among the most famous of these resorts.

Just beyond, Sandwich, called the "Cranford of Cape Cod," the first founded town on the peninsula, lacking nothing of its quaint charm of old, is progressive and modern in the best sense. Speeding automobilists skimming the fine state road passing through the centre of town invariably slacken speed to admire the rare setting of this old place and drink in the beauties that are unduplicated on the Cape.

Continuing along the North Shore the spell of the Western plains comes over the great marshes at Barnstable and Yarmouth to which is added the twangy sea beyond unknown to the westerners.

To those that skim the faultless state road connecting towns like Brewster, Orleans and others to Provincetown there is no tour quite the same. With the great waters on either side one seems to be running into the limitless sea where at last the breakers comb over the bars mountain high, thrilling to behold from the safe, slumberous seat of a touring car, but terrible in the eyes of many a shipwrecked crew.

To the west the bay is an animated scene of shipping and marine splendors, climaxed by the grim North Atlantic squadron in its manoeuvres, in which gun practise by day and flashlight wig-wagging at night play their somber and significant parts. Varied and interesting are the naval, lighthouse, and life saving exhibitions given during the season, enlivened by social functions of even greater interest.

From the great memorial tower at Provincetown overlooking the blue palpitating waters on a clear day one has a view of the entire Cape from Provincetown to Plymouth. And there are hilltops on the Cape commanding views of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket where the liquid sapphire seas flash with a thousand fires in the sun.

The same topographical beauties that entranced Gosnold and Brereton are there still only enhanced by the art of man. Many placid lakes, rivers of winding loveliness and purring streams in a series of inland waters unsurpassed are attracting multitudes that pitch their canoe camps and build their artistic bungalows along the lake fronts and rural roads. They that know the thrill of a whizzing line and a singing reel and the undefined joy of the tug of the finny captive, and they that love to await the coming of the great migratory flocks that settle on these lakes in their fall journeys to the south, say that the inland waters of Cape Cod are the sportsman's paradise.

Here abounding in great variety of finny beauties are the fishing holes of the Boston millionaires, the favorite retreats of the Isaac Waltons of the day coming from near and far to cast their lines where Webster, Cleveland, Jefferson and others cast theirs, and whether it be on the broad bays where they haul in their nets quivering with living silver, or by the side of the still pool where lurks the gamy fish in the cool depth, there is a generous response to the hopes of the angler.

In the wake of the angler comes the hunter lured by the "honk, honk" of the wild geese, the wild duck, plover and quail. Even deer, mink, fox and racoon are still the rewards of a day's tramp.

Brereton's eloquence on the climate is still voiced in song and story, for the same climate that first invigorated and then inspired him prevails today.

Here are beaches without undertow and waters tempered to a degree that warrants a long, lazy swim or a sand bath and makes a resort for people of advancing years who still enjoy the benefit of the beaches, until young and old are alike tanned a ruddy brown. And over the sunny days creeps the balm of the evening and the cool nights continuing and completing the refreshing and stimulating process upon body and mind.

As the visitor afoot or awheel winds along the quaintly twisting roads of blue gravel so delightful to the eye,—whether it be under the cool archways of the trees where they lose themselves among the whispering oaks or under the dark green twilight of the pines, around the terraces of the lakes over the causeways of rippling brooks and shallow bays, or through the marshes,—vistas unfold laced with lights and shadows that would make a painter world famous could he reproduce the tints.

What chemical process can produce a perfume as the blending fragrance of fern and fir and wild cherry? What chemical concoction can clear the lungs choked with the city's dust and smoke as the balsamic breath of the trees?

State roads are building everywhere penetrating undreamed of realms of poetic and artistic fancy making the driveways of Cape Cod second to none in the state, until the tourist finally decides that the art of road making by Cape Cod folk has superseded the art of sailing the seas.

The varied phases of club life and outdoor sports that make the seashore so attractive are not lacking. The golf courses are especially adapted to all-year playing, being rarely covered with snow and ice, and the famous Sepuit golf course, where Governor Draper delights to play, often sees him making the rounds irrespective of the season.

Striking changes are wrought in this arm of New England since Cleveland built "Grey Gables" and the red tiled roof of Jefferson's "Crow's Nest" lifted itself

SOCIETY NOTES

Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Porter, who secured the Nelson Bartlett cottage, Beverly Farms, this season, sailed from Hamburg, July 29, after several weeks' trip abroad, principally in England and Scotland. They are returning by the way of Montreal and Quebec and are due in Beverly Farms, August 7. Mrs. Porter was Miss Margaret Cochran Dewar of Scotland and her visit to her native home has been particularly enjoyable. Dr. Porter has attended medical conventions in London and Glasgow of much interest and advantage to him. During their absence, Dr. William Carter Quimby and bride (Miss Thayer), daughter of Congressman Thayer of Worcester, have been at the Porter cottage. On July 30, the little son of Dr. and Mrs. Porter, Charles B. Porter, observed his fourth birthday and this charming little fellow had a number of cousins and playmates as guests to help him celebrate the day. A prize birthday cake was divided among the little folk.

—x—

Miss Héloïse Meyer of Lenox has been the recent guest of Mrs. Frank B. Bemis at Beverly Farms. Mrs. Bemis gave an informal luncheon Tuesday of this week for a group of friends in the Farms colony.

—x—

Mrs. Taintor, widow of George Blair Taintor, of Pittsburg, is on the North Shore for a visit with Mrs. Otis H. Luke at Beverly Farms. She will be here a week or ten days.

—x—

Mrs. Charles F. Ayers had a small informal dinner party at Juniper Ridge, the Ayer summer home at Hamilton, last Saturday. Covers were placed for ten.

—x—

The vacation farm of Miss Helen Frick at Wenham is being kept open in a very hospitable manner for those privileged to enjoy its comforts and restful opportunities. Twelve young women from the cities are accommodated weekly.

—x—

R. M. Bradley is making improvements at his Manchester estate and is having the ground in the rear laid out for a fine tennis court. A coachman's lodge is also being erected.

The Coming Horse Show at Magnolia.

August is here and so is the real season at the hotels in Magnolia. The Oceanside is crowded to capacity and the Hesperus and Aborn are fast filling. While this in a measure is due to the tennis tournament which was begun on the Oceanside courts Monday, in the main arrangements had been made long in advance for the coming of society women and persons of national prominence to this charming North Shore resort. The beautiful days for the last few days have been followed by an evening cool which has kept nearly every one indoors with the result that bridge and music have been the rule.

One of the events important to the North Shore summer season will be the Magnolia Horse Show which will take place on Magnolia Beach, August 20. As is usual on this date leaders in society and lovers of the horse from all along the North Shore—the cottages and hotels—will be on hand, or rather on horse, to take part in or witness the events. These have been arranged with rare good judgment by J. Henry Coulter of the Oceanside, Magnolia, and if one may judge by the unusually large number of entries already received, the show will be even more successful than have been the meets of other years. Society will be well represented on the beach that day and persons in the smart set from all over the United States, and even from foreign lands as representatives from many legations are summering here—will be among the enthusiasts who each year do so much to make the show of vast importance. Many of the persons staying at the Oceanside and the cottages along the shore are here for the season and have brought with them animals that have showed in similar meets in different parts of the country.

Many young women have forgotten for the time being the joys of the motor car even on the perfect North Shore roads, and are very enthusiastic this year for the horse, and every pleasant day many are seen in the saddle or handling the reins. For this reason it is expected that there will be many entries in the ladies' riding and driving events and also in the jumps. Alice Thorndike, who already has a large collection of ribbons will probably appear in many of the events. Miss Thorndike is an enthusiast and is a leading figure in the horse shows in this part of the country. Miss Eleanora Sears, who is another leader in the society set who always when she is in this part of the country appears with some of the best horses that can be found anywhere, will as usual be a factor to contend with when the bugle calls the animals to post in the saddle and hunting events. Miss Sears is one of the most daring riders in the smart set and even when entered in jumping events with men she has carried off many a blue ribbon. Miss Helen Frick, daughter of Henry C. Frick, of Pittsburg, will come up from her father's beautiful summer estate at Pride's Crossing with her ponies, saddle and harness horses and will have to meet entries by Miss Katherine Tweed of New York and West Beach Hill, Beverly Farms; the Misses Munn of Manchester and Washington; Miss R. T. Paine of Coolidge Point; Miss M. Newell of Magnolia; the Foss "twins"—Miss Helen and Miss Esther—of Cohasset; Miss Elizabeth Cutting of Beverly Farms, Miss Alice Brown of Beverly Farms, and Miss Clara Curtis of Manchester. Miss Maud Scudder of St. Louis, who is at the Oceanside for the rest of the season, has brought her pony, "Punch," with her, and will show the clever animal on the beach in the coming meet. Mrs. J. J. Weil of Elmsford, New York, will have a number of entries in the show this year, and will appear in the riding and driving events. It is Mrs. Weil who is driving the Coulter coach and four every day from the Oceanside to Manchester by way of the Essex County club, varying the route from time to time by making the run to Pride's Crossing and return. Another Oceanside entrant will be Horace Morehead of Pittsburg. Other probable entries will come from Miss M. M. Walker, Magnolia; D. B. Wentz, Pride's Crossing; George Chipchase, Pride's Crossing; S. H. Fessenden, Coolidge Point; W. S. Kuhn of Manchester and Pittsburg; Harrison Tweed, Beverly Farms; Miss Wheelwright, Beverly Farms; Walter D. Denegre, Manchester; Norman Prince, Wenham; George Mandell, Beverly Cove; George Bartlett, jr., Manchester; Harry Lee, Beverly Farms; J. H. Collins, Cohasset; C. G. Once upon a time some young men from this neck of the woods went up into Canada—Lake St. Louis—and succeeded in bringing home with them a considerable amount of silver which had been shaped by a most artistic silversmith into a beautiful trophy. This part of the world hailed the returning expedition with delight for there had been many before them who had sought the lost treasure in vain. "Now that you have got it again, see that you keep it," sang the waves along the North Shore. So the sailors, for they were sailors and had earned the right to be called such, locked the silverware up in a safe deposit vault in Boston and entered it—Seawanhaka Cup. At last some very estimable gentlemen came down here from Lake St. Louis with a pretty little sailboat and suggested they were here to get the silverware. They served such notice on the Manchester Yacht club which had title to the trophy. The boys at the Manchester club are a genial crew and wanting to do the right thing in spite of the (to them) ridiculous demand upon them, sent for some bright new marbles and had a fresh WELCOME spelled into the wire mat on the veranda. "We'll give you a good time," said the Manchester boys to the crew from up North, "and if you'll be real good we may let you see the cup. But there we draw the line for we rather like the thing and prefer to have it handy. You have a pretty little sailboat; so have we." And after looking at the St. Lawrence, the visitors' boat, the Manchester boys showed their friends, who were from the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht club of Montreal, a little affair over in the Manchester yard which had MASSACHUSETTS painted across the stern. Then the Manchester persons gave a few parties, including one at the Mystery Island Inn and in the midst of the joy of the evening produced for a flashing instant the Seawanhaka Cup which had been taken out of the vault for the occasion. That was the last the men from up North saw of it for when they went after it in the St. Lawrence the Massachusetts was always just ahead. In cold facts, after a bad getaway day, the Massachusetts successfully defended the Seawanhaka Cup in three straight races. For that reason, before the end of a very busy week the boys from up North were on their way home, sadder but wiser. They will have their sailboat back on Lake St. Louis and maybe will build another. The Massachusetts will continue the defender. But the boys from Montreal are a good crew, a jolly lot of "tars," and the event was a most pleasant affair, clean, honest sport being in the very air of the race. And the Manchester boys say: "Come again," and mean it. The Velthra, Commodore Bremer's yacht, was the scene of much gayety during the racing days, for the commodore is a delightful host and those of the St. Lawrence men who were not racing were helped to forget their continuing defeat by the hospitality of Manchester club members on board. Secretary Merriam of the club cared for the guests in the absence at the wheel of the commodore.

SOCIETY NOTES

We motored over to Mystery Island Inn the other day—and when we say “motor” we do not mean to imply that we had one of those new fangled automobiles, the kind that goes on sea as well as land—but by motor-boat! And what a charming little sail it was! And what a charming place it is after one gets there—cool breezes, magnificent view of Massachusetts bay, and of the entire North Shore from Magnolia, along the Manchester, Beverly Farms, Pride’s, Beverly and Marblehead shore. We (editorially, of course) had no idea there was such a place along the North Shore. A most delicious dinner, a walk around the island, with a look-in at some of the beautiful bungalows, a stop here and there to pick some of the delicious berries that grow by the bushel all over the island, and then a sail along the Manchester shore, past Coolidge’s Point to Magnolia. No wonder so many of the cottagers and their friends, and guests from the hotels take that delightful “combination” trip to Mystery Island—a drive by carriage or auto to the pier, motor-boat to the island, luncheon, afternoon tea or dinner, a walk about the rocky shore if one cares for it, and then a sail back to Beverly Farms or further along to Magnolia. Mystery Island is being put on the social map,—and that means much for it. One of the number of interesting mementos one finds in looking over the Casino, is a telegram from Colonel Roosevelt expressing his regrets to the late Charles S. Hanks that he couldn’t attend the “opening” of the Inn six or seven years ago. A clipping from the Essex Gazette (Salem) published back in 1775 gives a touch of history to the island. It is as follows: “To be sold: The islands called the Great and Little Misery, lying in Salem Harbor, being part of the estate of Benjamin Marston, Esq., late of Manchester, deceased. Said islands are well accommodated with a good dwelling house and barn, a good well, a pond of water, which waters four divisions of pasture. The whole is divided into six divisions by a good stone wall; the buildings and fences are in good condition. Any person minding to purchase the premises, may apply to Benjamin Marston, Esq., of Marblehead, executor of the will of the deceased aforementioned, who will sell the same at a reasonable price, and on easy terms of payments.”

Many North Shore people have been dining at the Mystery Island Casino this week. Mrs. Harry E. Russell gave a party for ten, her guests including Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bemis, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mitchel, Mrs. L. M. Cuthbert and Mr. Boardman. Mrs. Otis H. Luke gave a coaching party Sunday in honor of her house guest Mrs. G. B. Painter of Pittsburgh. Mon. Pontalis of the French embassy gave a dinner to members of the Russian, Italian and German embassy. Other guests at the Casino this week included Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dayton and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ferguson of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brune, Miss Irene Rositer, W. W. Lester and J. J. Newton.

The junior national polo championship was won by the Myopia second team at Narragansett Pier, last Saturday, when the North Shore boys defeated Bryn Mawr by 7¼ to 6½. The Myopia second team was composed of Adelbert Ames, jr., Harrison Tweed, H. Had-den and C. G. Amory.

EAST GLOUCESTER.

The social cup of tea is the great medium here for sociability, the making of new friends and the discovery of the natural charms of this section of the North Shore, since the walks to "The Willowfield," the new Hawthorne Inn Teahouse and to Eastern Point Golf club house are filled with natural beauties. Both these places are filled daily with social groups and at the club house the following Hawthorne Inn guests have been recent hostesses there: Mrs. Keech and Mrs. Crawford, who gave a tea for ten; Mrs. Vickery for twelve; Col. Bruce of the Beachcroft for fifteen; Mr. McKee of the Fair View for six; Mrs. Hornbeck (Hawthorne Inn) for fourteen. Last Friday evening Mrs. Elwell of the Inn gave a dinner party and this Friday evening Miss Elwell entertains in a like manner. Another select tea party at the club house this week was that of Monday afternoon, given by Mrs. Eugene Van Rensselaer of Berkeley Springs, West Virginia, a cousin of Mrs. Basil Gildersleeve of Baltimore; Mrs. Edwin Florance, Elizabeth, N. J., and Miss Fannie B. Seamon of Elizabeth, N. J. Mrs. Van Rensselaer is here again after five seasons' absence, and will soon be joined by her son, the Rev. Stephen Van Rensselaer, of Burt Hills, Saratoga, N. Y. Mrs. Florance's daughters are abroad this summer.

Mrs. Dupont Lee of Wilmington, Delaware, and Hawthorne Inn was the prime mover in the suffrage meeting and debate held in the house parlor of the Inn, Tuesday morning, and it was largely attended by the suffragette contingent.

Prof. and Mrs. Basil Gildersleeve have left Hawthorne Inn and gone to join their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane, of the Manchester colony, who are at Northeast Harbor, Me.

The winners in the July 29th golf tournament were Miss Robinson of the Fair View and Mrs. St. Johns Butler. Golf tournaments at the Eastern Point club will continue on Fridays in August for ladies, and on Tuesday and Thursday of this week there was a two ball foursome handicap tournament, the prizes being offered by the Siamese ambassador. In an effort to raise a fund for the improvement of the walks in Magnolia, Morris Burke Parkinson, a Boston photographer, who has a summer place in Magnolia, will deliver an illustrated lecture in the Oceanside Casino next Thursday night, on walks out-of-doors. The lecture will be at 8:30 o'clock, and will be illustrated with 100 autochrome slides which will include beautiful color views from nature and portraits from life, including examples of color photography by Miss Murdoch, whose exhibition is still in the Roger Noble Burnham studio, exhibition hall in the library building, Magnolia. It is intended to have the men get to work on the building and improving of the walks just as soon as the money begins to come in on the sale of tickets so that those here will get the benefit of the improvements this season. The walk to Rafe's Chasm which is a popular vantage point is badly in need of repair, as it has become so overgrown with vines that it is almost impossible for women to make the trip comfortably. This is the finest walk there is in Magnolia. Newport, Bar Harbor and other resorts have their fine ocean promenades, but Magnolia with all the natural beauty to aid, has let its walks run down during the last two years. If money enough can be raised a plank walk will be built to the bathing pavilion and this will add much to the comfort of the many who go there every pleasant day. The committee in charge of this lecture which has been given in the Boston Public Library and before the New England Convention of Photographers, by Mr. Parkinson, is very much worth while. The committee in charge includes the Rev. F. J. Libby, chairman; Mrs. Albert Apsey of the Aborn; Mrs.

B. W. Quimby, Green Gables; Mrs. A. C. Wilkins, Hesperus.

'T is a great place—the spacious lounging room, lobby if you like, of the Oceanside—for the teller of tales, and the every-ready listener. Truth—and though some of the yarns are strange, 't were vulgar and impolite to hint that anything besides rubber will stretch—truth is stranger than fiction. Queer how a common every day occurrence will remind a person—"that reminds me" often is the introduction to many an odd tale. Listen:

"A short time ago when I was a younger man than I now am—I am 22 years—I went up into the woods of Maine on a camping trip with a schoolmate. We stayed until we were tired of the life in the open, that is, in one place, then decided we would walk back to Boston. Nice little walk, to Boston from Maine in the Spring of the year, and nothing much over head besides rain, and nothing much under foot except rain. And so, believing my friend could rid his system of a little touch of the grip, we decided on this strenuous exercise in the open. I didn't believe he had the grip anyway, and when we got back to Boston in a matter of a few days, walking all the way, the doctor who was called, said it wasn't the grip at all,—just plain honest to heaven pneumonia." That may sound like a fool story, but it brought this. Listen:

"Why that's nothing. Once when I was suffering from a serious attack of rheumatism, I decided to forget the doctors for a while and get well. So I climbed into a saddle and after riding 442 miles in less than no time, got up into the Rocky Mountains where the snow is a persistent factor. I was all tired out. There was no place to sleep except in a bed of snow. I wrapped myself in blankets and soon fell asleep. In the morning, I felt much better. I tried it again and again, night after night, and would you believe it—silence gives consent and assent too, evidently,—in a week or so, I was cured.”

’Tis a great place for tales, the Oceanside, at midnight.

SOCIETY NOTES

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. George E. Brewer (Elsie Carr) of New York over the arrival of a nine-pound daughter yesterday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Carr at West Manchester where they are spending the summer.

Mrs. Russell Tyson of the Manchester colony has been at Brattleboro, Vt., this week for a short visit with her mother, Mrs. Richard Bradley.

Mrs. Edward L. Wood has as house guests at her summer cottage, Singing Beach, Manchester, Mrs. W. H. Barney and Miss Mae T. Newhall of Providence.

The large house party which has been entertained by the J. Harrington Walkers at Magnolia was broken up Monday by the departure of six guests. Among those leaving were the Misses Burnham and Sterling of Detroit.

Miss Mary Colgate Colby has just returned from England and will not be in Cabot Lane cottage, Beverly Farms, this season. She is at the Colby homestead, New London, N. H., for the balance of the summer.

Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett of Boston has with her for a visit at Brownland, Manchester, her daughter, Mrs. Burlingame of New Jersey. Mrs. Gittings and daughter of Baltimore arrived at Brownland this week, also Mrs. Beers and daughter of New York.

Roger Noble Burnham's studio in the Library building, Magnolia, is one of the interesting places to visit in Magnolia. There is a fine exhibition of paintings for August, besides Mr. Burnham's sculpture. Especially beautiful is his sun-dial design which is a veritable work of art and which he will take to Italy in October to be cut in marble. It is to be hoped that some North Shore garden will next summer be the delightful and appropriate setting for it. Burnham's last portrait is a most lovely bit of sculpture, the likeness of Miss Marjory Stearns, daughter of Mrs. F. K. Stearns of Detroit. One of his last winter portraits is that of Elsa Tudor, Countess de Pierrefeu, in her scarf dance—airy, graceful and full of imagination—it alone is well worth a visit to the studio.

SOCIETY NOTES

Tennis has been the chief diversion in society along this section during the week and will continue to be all next week and until finals in the tournament at the Essex County club, on the club courts, the Magnolia Lawn Tennis association on the Oceanside courts and the Myopia Hunt club (to be started Monday) shall have been decided. Society matrons and maidens, members of foreign embassies and their families and persons prominent in every walk of life are either watching the play every day or are taking part. Dinners, luncheons and teas are in order, and many cottages along the North Shore are filled with guests. The heroine of the tennis tournaments, as usual, has been Miss Eleanora Sears, who began by winning the cups in the tournament at the Montserrat Golf club, two weeks ago. Then she started in to mow down her opponents in the tournaments at the Essex County club and at Magnolia, playing at one place in the mornings and at the other in the afternoons and winning with no seeming exertion. At the Essex County club, Miss Margaret Thomas of Boston will meet the winner of the match between Mrs. L. M. Cuthbert and Miss Sears in the women's singles and in the mixed doubles finals. Miss Sears and F. I. Emery will meet Margaret Curtis and DeFord Beal. The young women who have appeared in these tournaments represent the leading families all along the North Shore. On the Oceanside courts these young women were seen in the tournament during the week: Mary Josephine Amory, Edith Deacon, Lucy Blair, Alice Thorndike, Susan Thayer, Ellen Morse, Mrs. Richardson, Miss Johnston, Helen Penhallow, the Misses Cozzens and Colbert, Miss Solari, Miss Stevens, Miss Wadsworth, Miss Britton, Effie Bagnell, Miss Dutcher, Mrs. Q. A. Shaw, 2d, and Margaret Walker. At the Essex County club, in addition to many who played in the matches at the Oceanside, were Miss M. Lovering, Mrs. E. K. Arnold, Miss Grace Monks, Mrs. L. M. Cuthbert, Miss M. Thomas, Lilly Sears, Miss N. Thayer, Mrs. Rosamond Auchincloss, Miss Phelps, the Misses Munn (Carrie and Gladys), who also were in the Oceanside meet, Mrs. Ames, Miss M. Curtis, Leslie Bradley, Miss MacInnes, Miss Prescott, Miss L. Wright, Miss Wharton, Rosamond Eliot, Helen Fitch, Edith Sigourney. One of the surprises at Magnolia was the defeat of C. Sherban Penhallow, jr., of Jamaica Plain, the first winner of the Magnolia cup. Penhallow was beaten by a fellow clubmember, F. B. Taylor, of Brookline after hard fought sets, which were most spectacular. Two hours had passed before the young men shook hands after three sets had been necessary to defeat the former Harvard player. Both players are members of the Noanett club of Jamaica Plain.

This noon Miss Sears and Miss Susan Thayer won the Magnolia doubles tournament by defeating Miss Helen Penhallow and Miss Helen Morse, 6-2, 6-0. There was a big gallery on hand for the match. The cups were presented after the match by Reggie Kennard.

Mrs. Appleton and daughter, Miss Florence Appleton, of Cambridge, who were at the Oceanside two seasons ago, were down the North Shore last Sunday and lunched at the hotel, spending the afternoon with friends at Manchester.

O, My! Guy 'em!

Awake! Ugh! The dawn discovers me a fright

Without the puffs of brown I lost last night

While riding in a motor with some friends.

I am indeed in a most awful plight.

And when the 'phone rang those who stood before

The hotel desk heard an unearthly roar

Of laughter. But HE later sobbed:

"'T will take my all to buy the lady more."

Ah! Every puff that from our heads we lose

For you to laugh at but inspires the muse

In some vain jingler's head. 'T were not so bad

If he were not so nosey after news.

But Ssst! I have a clue! Perhaps a cat

Mistook my puff for the most common rat,

And scooting down the road past

Coolidge Point

Was followed by a dog when tempted:

"Scat!"

"Perret" indeed is gone—a collie, brown—

My puffs in fact are gone—of color brown.

I wonder if the dog has seen the cat

Who chased a "rat" and got my puffs of brown?

A hair perhaps divides the false and true,

So speed dog "Perret;" it is up to you

To overtake the cat and find my "rat."

For then dog "Perret" we will find you too.

Anti-Fly Crusade.

"Beware of the house-fly."

This caption heads a warning bulletin issued by the Bureau of Health, and Director E. R. Walters is seeking public co-operation in a war against the household pests.

That the progeny of one fly during a summer season may run into sextillions is emphasized as warning of the alarming manner in which they expand the insect census. "Musca domestica" is the technical name for the common house-fly, which is said to number 98 per cent of the seven different species.

"Don't allow these pests to make an aeroplane course out of your dinner table," is the important advice handed out by health authorities. "They generally descend for repairs in a sugar bowl, on a desert dish or become 'summer boarders' in the cream pitcher."

That flies caused the terrible typhoid fever scourge which decimated summer camps during the Spanish-American war is given as one example of their menace. It is contended that much of the sickness during the summer months is caused by them. Infants especially, according to the bulletins, are endangered by the house-fly.

The number of disease germs carried by a single fly, it is said, ranges from 550 to 6,600,000. These figures are based on experiments in which 414 flies were used at the Agricultural Experiment Station in Storrs, Conn. The average per fly is 1,250,000 germs.

Cleanliness is pointed out as the most effective means of discouraging flies. This rule should apply to yards as well as kitchens. Milk supply, especially that used for infants, should be guarded carefully.

District Nurse Receipts.

The Manchester Woman's club is meeting with success in its endeavor to have Manchester provided with a district nurse. The committee reports $125.10 as the receipts from the Pop Concert held last spring, and contributions of $438. The total of $563.10, however, is insufficient and other contributions must be forthcoming before the association can go ahead with its work. The summer colony has contributed substantially toward the fund, and many others are doubtless intending to give their aid toward the movement.

G.A.R.-W.R.C.-S. of V. Fair.

The joint fair of Post 67, G. A. R., W. R. C. and S. of V. will be held in the Manchester Town hall, August 29 to September 3, inclusive.

This fair will be worthy of your co-operation and assistance, as all moneys derived therefrom will be expended in relief work, as from time to time may be expedient.

Any article of merchandise or gift of money would be gratefully received by the committee. Post 67, G. A. R., represented by E. P. Stanley; W. R. C., represented by Rita T. Mitchell; S. of V., represented by L. W. Floyd.

Special Town Meeting.

At their meeting last night the Manchester Board of Selectmen decided to issue a call for a special Town Meeting to be held on Monday evening, August 15, at 8 o'clock. The principal business to come before the meeting will be the report of the board on the matter of building a seawall on the town property at West Manchester station.

This question was brought before the spring meeting and the selectmen were instructed to confer with the committee of property owners building the seawall along their property. They are now ready to report.

The young ladies at Brownland cottages are making arrangements to hold their private dancing party in the Manchester Town hall on the evening of September 6. This is one of the most select private dancing parties of the season and is eagerly anticipated by the choice few who are fortunate enough to secure invitations. There are about thirty girls at Brownland this year.

The police were out last Sunday and did some more active work in putting a stop to speedy and reckless automobile driving. Two were summoned into court. One of them, Floyd C. RANDOM THOUGHTS.

By D. F. LAMSON.
NO. LVI.

Two men may do precisely the same thing from entirely different motives, and it is the motive that gives character to the act; one man saves a quarter that he may have to give to him that needeth, another saves a quarter to add to his carefully treasured hoard; the one is self-denial, the other avarice, two things as wide as the equinoxes apart; and yet the act was the same in both cases.

Position is generally attained by slow degrees, step by step, and not by sudden flight; but it may be lost by a single mistake or mishap; an oak is the slow product of centuries, but it may be prostrated in an hour; a building may be great and imposing and may be demolished in a moment as the result of a defective pillar or a sandy foundation.

There are persons who have credit for great control of their feeling, simply because they have little feeling to control, their impassiveness is counted to them for strength; there may be calmness on the surface when the feelings are stirred to their depth, so there may be because there is no depth to be stirred; human judgments must always be more or less fallible because more or less superficial.

There may possibly be room for doubt whether the vast increase in the number of college graduates is altogether a hopeful indication; it may be feared that many are being educated above the sphere where they must find their employment, and that a dislike for homely tasks and plain living is often bred in college halls that will be a poor preparation for the prosaic and commonplace realities of life.

There are two classes of things that are not greatly worth while to worry about, the things that can be helped and the things that can't be helped, and most of the things that people worry about belong to one or the other of these classes. This, perhaps, has been said before, but it will bear saying again.

There are many districts in New England, once a name significant of intelligence and order, that are fast becoming seed-beds of ignorance and crime; and these same decadent communities are largely without church attendance, without Sunday-schools, without the Bible; is there any connection between these things? How long can civilization endure without the old safeguards?

A distinguished philosopher has written a suggestive book on "Varieties of Religious Experience"; it is something for a modern philosopher to admit that there is such a thing as religious experience worth writing about; not merely an opinion, or a speculation, or a fancy, but actually an experience, something that may be known, that reveals itself to the consciousness and is a living and potent force in the determining of character and life. Prof. James is a long way ahead of some of his race.

There is a joy that differs from mere happiness, light-heartedness, merriment, that does not depend on circumstances but is deep and abiding; but in the best and strongest characters there is often a strain of sadness; it must be so in a world like this, though where there is shadow there must also be sunshine.

After several attempts to read "The French Revolution"—hardly intelligible sometimes, dogmatic often, always volcanic; but were it otherwise, it would not be—Carlyle. The style is perhaps, however, suited to the subject, the frenzied temper of the times, the jumbled, hurly-burly, anarchical scenes which he attempts with lurid colors to portray. As a literary artist, Carlyle is an impressionist—or he is nothing. Yet interesting always, sometimes fascinating, and if not fascinating, compelling; he will be read under protest, but he will be read.

News Notes About the ...Stores...

And other Business Enterprises

The "Gallery of Foreign Arts" of Boston, is advertising a public auction of a $50,000 collection of art treasures, under the large canvas on the grounds where the new Magnolia hotel formerly stood at Magnolia. The sale is now on, and will continue at 10.30 a. m. and 3 p. m. daily until the entire collection is sold. The assortment consists of European and Colonial furniture, selected oriental rugs, solid and Sheffield silver, old china, bric-a-brac, etc.

North Shore ladies who are looking for the latest in fashion without waiting until the fall season arrives, would do well to pay a visit to the North Shore branch of M. Davey & Co., in the Donchian building, Magnolia, where they will find a choice collection of imported street and evening gowns, automobile coats and materials of various kinds. The concern is closing out their French models at half the Paris cost.

Ella Harding of Lexington avenue, Magnolia, will have a very interesting exhibition on Saturday, August 6, at The New Ocean House, Swampscott. Miss Harding will represent the Mme. Campbell corset in advanced fall models, which set the fashion, and an attractive display of gowns and waists with advanced Paris models from J. Fields, N. Y.

Persons along the North Shore and especially at Magnolia are very much interested in the photographic work being done by B. Frank Puffer, the New York and Palm Beach photographer, who has a studio in the North Shore Grill buildings in Magnolia. Mr. Puffer, besides his studio sittings and interior portrait work, is making a specialty of direct color photography of gardens, exteriors and interiors of summer estates. He was very successful in this line of work at Palm Beach and already has executed orders on the North Shore. During the week, he has made some excellent views of the tennis players and the gallery at the Oceanside, including several panoramic views which take in the crowds on the lawn and in the balconies of the hotel. These include excellent action pictures of the players. The pictures he has on sale at his studio.

SOCIETY NOTES

"Elwood," the beautiful residence of Mrs. Edward L. Wood of Brookline, on Cobb avenue, Manchester, was most hospitably opened Friday afternoon for a card party and luncheon for ten guests, given in honor of Mrs. W. H. Barney, and Miss Mae Newhall, of Providence, house guests of Mrs. Wood and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth C. Wood. Mrs. Wood will give a children's party later this month.

The future of Hotel Masconomo, Manchester, is a matter much in the minds of both permanent and summer residents and we are permitted to state that a Western syndicate will undoubtedly purchase the hotel property, make marked improvements, enlarge the house to double its rooming capacity and heat and light the hotel in such a manner as to permit a portion of it to be kept open and to be utilized in such a manner as to provide a winter hotel for Manchester also. The syndicate will conduct the hostelry on the lines of the big western lake resorts, also on The Thousand Islands' idea, it is said.

Bass Rocks

A wedding of much interest to the summer contingent here was that in the Lincoln, Mass., St. Anne's church, Tuesday noon of this week, when Miss Margaret Beauvais Mendell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Mendell of Kendal Green and Bass Rocks, and Coert Du Bois of the United States forest service were married. The wedding was purely a family occasion, and in deference to the wishes of the young couple the ceremony was kept as simple as possible. Geo. E. Clement, a close friend of Mr. Du Bois and formerly an associate in the forest service, acted as best man, and Miss Mary Starr Mendell, the younger sister of the bride, as maid of honor. Mrs. Du Bois is a graduate of Smith college, in the class of 1904. Mr. Du Bois, who is a son of Dr. John C. Du Bois of Hudson, New York, is associate district forester of district 5 of the U. S. forest service, and is headquartered at San Francisco, where he and Mrs. Du Bois will reside. Mr. Mendell, the bride's father is president of the Youth's Companion Corporation and has a summer home on Atlantic avenue, which is rented this season.

Wednesday afternoon the bridge whist party had among its players Mrs. Grabow, Mrs. Robert MacKinnon, Miss Van Wormer, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Kimball, Mrs. Buzzell, Mrs. Wiggin, Mrs. Pearce, Mrs. Sayles, Mrs. Ames, Mrs. Chappell, Mrs. Abbott and Mrs. Candee.

MANCHESTER

Miss Margaret Cummings and Miss Lulu Felton of Cambridge are guests of the former's aunt, Mrs. Wm. Johnson, Bridge street.

Mrs. Fletcher Hodges arrived from Indianapolis, Thursday of this week with her children for a visit of several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Andrews, Vine street.

The Chas. K. Harris and May Melvin Co., appeared in the Manchester Town hall on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week and everybody who attended the performance were loud in their praise of the "show." It is seldom Manchester has the privilege of witnessing performances of the standard given by Mr. Harris and his company, as a show of this kind usually does not "do" the small towns. In the "Blockhead," Monday night, Mr. Harris was at his best. He kept the audience in a state of merriment throughout the evening with his droll wit. "St. Elmo," was played Wednesday evening to a large audience and last night "The Miller's Daughter" was presented.

Miss Mabelle Eagleston of Boston and Miss Emma Andus of Hamel, Minn., have been visiting Mrs. H. L. Slade for a few days. This was Miss Andus' first visit to Manchester. She was delighted with the beautiful scenery and took her first dip in salt water, which she enjoyed immensely.

The police were out after the auto speeders again Wednesday and held up six at Manchester Cove. Four of them were in court yesterday and were fined $15 each. They were James Murray, Harry Brown, Chas. W. Kimball and Harold Watson. The other two were to appear in court today, as they had their cases held off in order to be represented by lawyers. They were H. K. Caner and A. D. Cook.

Manchester Has Smallest Tax Rate This Year.

Twenty-four cities and towns outside of Boston, but in or near the metropolitan district, have announced their tax rate for 1910, and they show no marked tendency to increase as was expected when the state tax was fixed at $1,000,000 more than last year. It is interesting to know that of this number, Manchester has the lowest rate, $8.40. Lynnfield comes next with $12. The rate then goes in varying degrees up to Chelsea, which has $22.40.

The board of assessors yesterday completed the work of levying the tax for 1910, based on the rate of $8.40 fixed last week. The books will be ready to turn over to the tax collector within a few days and it will then be a matter of only a week or so before the bills will be sent out.

Wednesday, August 17, is the day set for big gathering of Pilgrim Wanderers at Tuck's Point. The outing will be held this year under the auspices of the John West Colony, Pilgrim Fathers, of Beverly Farms. Manchester Pilgrims as well as those from other parts of the North Shore will be in attendance in large numbers.

The selectmen have petitioned the Boston and Maine railroad to install a bell alarm at the Sea street crossing and thus do away with the whistling now practised to warn the gateman. Complaint has been made by several of the summer residents living near this part of the town and the selectmen have given prompt attention to the request. Workmen have been engaged this week installing the bell alarm at the Beach street crossing and it will be in working order within a day or so. The railroad has put a night gateman at this crossing, and it is hoped it will be a permanent feature.

Some one tried to gain an entrance into the Library building Wednesday night, but was scared away after the window had been pried open and the screen removed. About 11 o'clock Mrs. J. A. Lodge heard a pounding noise in the Library building, which isn't more than twenty-five feet from her residence. She became suspicious and went to the telephone to give an alarm. It is supposed the would-be burglar became frightened and left his job. Next morning it was discovered that one of the windows in the library had been broken in, the screen removed, and the window pried open by a chisel, or bar of some sort. It is puzzling to know what any one would want in the library, as there is nothing there but books. There is never any money kept in the building outside the small change collected in fines, very seldom amounting to over a dollar or two at a time.

There was a narrow escape from drowning at Singing Beach last Sunday. A party of 20 young people from Danvers came to the beach for the day. One of the number, a young man named Hood, a brother-in-law of Warren Emerson of that town, about 35 years of age and employed in Boston, went in for a swim. The water was very cold and he got badly chilled in going to the raft. On starting to return he was seized with cramps, but managed to get hold of the life line and in a partially unconscious condition worked his way ashore and fell exhausted and unconscious on the beach. Caretaker McCormack gave him stimulants and after he and a number of Hood's companions had worked over him more than an hour he was revived.

It would appear that Manchester is not to escape the troublesome elm beetle which has been showing itself in other parts of the state, much to the detriment of many large state-ly elms. A number of the bugs were discovered on the George R. White estate, Smith's Point, last week. Tree warden Young was called into the case and found that the beetle had gained great headway in that section. Immediate steps were taken to check its progress.

The fair for the Village church on Wednesday was highly successful. The sale was patronized better than ever and the Ladies' Aid society wishes, through the North Shore Breeze, to thank cordially all who cooperated and all the friends who helped generously. The proceeds will be announced next week.

Mrs. John B. Knowlton returned Wednesday from a very pleasant visit with her daughter, Mrs. E. Haring Dickinson at West Gloucester.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. William DuBois of St. Augustine, Florida, upon the arrival of a daughter in their home on July 22. Mr. and Mrs. DuBois are well known in this town, having had charge of the "El Unico" gift shop for several seasons.

Thomas P. Abbott of Hartford, Conn., is in town this week visiting relatives.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Bill gave a very interesting talk to the members of the Women's club, upon her travels in Japan and China showing many curious and interesting things which she had gathered in her travels. After the lecture tea was served in real Chinese fashion.

Next to Men's Clubhouse

North Shore people who have motored or driven over the Shore Road in Magnolia have noticed the large fish flying from the top of the flag staff in front of Mrs. Bill's shop, next to the Women's clubhouse. Those who have never been to Japan probably do not know the significance of the fish as a token of good luck. At the time of the San Francisco earthquake, Mrs. Bills' son-in-law, Professor Whitner of Berkeley College, California, was delegated by the government to make the official report of the terrible fire. One of the places destroyed was the Japanese Meji, which is significant to saying the Twentieth Century store, and the proprietors were so grateful for the excellent work performed by Prof. Whitney in connection with insurance adjustments that they sent to Japan and had one of these large fish-balloons sent over to San Francisco for him. This is the fish which greets North Shore people as they drive over the Shore Road. Look at it the next time you pass by!

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 9, "The Pixies," will give a fairy entertainment at the Women's club. There will be a masquerade ball at the club this evening for members only.

The annual tournament in bowling, pool and checkers at the Men's club began last Monday and is now in progress. The membership of the club is nearing 200. Michael Revelas of Manchester won the high score cup for last week with a score of 299 for three consecutive strings. The "Leap Year Party" on Wednesday evening was a grand success, drawing the largest crowd of the season. Music was furnished by Long's orchestra of Manchester. Pure food makes rich red blood. Tender, juicy chops and steaks please the taste and aid digestion. In choosing a doctor you always select one who has proven his skill by what he has done. Our great success proves to you that we satisfy our customers. Our business has increased daily since we started. Through the dullest winter months we kept eight men hustling early and late. We buy nothing but the best, only from houses that have a reputation to protect. If there is anything good in the market, we have it. Our butchers have had high-class experience.

Our books are in charge of an A1 man. We use daily slips or pass books as you wish. Our store is equipped in the most sanitary way for handling pure food. Our service is the best obtainable. Can you afford to buy meats and fruits that are exposed to flies and dust, or that is put in a box and expressed around several hours and becomes heated and sweaty?

ASK YOUR DOCTOR.

Soon after your meat order leaves our cooler it is delivered to you and placed on ice, fresh and healthy.

had a sure enough big man with them. He must have been a big man; he looked it.

"But he was such a jolly good-natured sort of a fellow that it wa'n't very hard to get along with him and the fact that he was a judge didn't seem to make no difference.

"My boat was buoyed off shore an easy pull, but we had to use the tender to get to her. I looked at the judge; then I looked at the tender.

"That poor little boat is several sizes too small for the judge, I said to myself, holding her nose down hard as the visitor climbed into the stern. It was all I could do to keep that boat from kickin' up and turning turtle.

"It was the custom for me to do the rowin' but I see how things was likely to be if I got in the middle with Knox in the bow. I could picture Knox shootin' out over the deep blue sea if he ever got in there and I ever let go. An' somebody was a goin' to get wet and the judge was goin' to be that somebody.

"So I tells Knox he'll have to row so he holds the boat while I get just as far up in the bow as I can and try to balance the big visitor in the stern. Then I make Knox take the for'ard oarlocks and we starts. Even the two-to-one couldn't keep the nose of the row-boat anywhere nears the water so I felt pretty good when we had climbed over the rail o' the little fishin' boat.

"You see I hadn't asked the judge if he could swim.

"O' course there was no way of tellin' that the man I was balancin' over the briney deep was a future President. He didn't have any idea that he was goin' to run above the green trees, evolving a seashore beauty that even those familiar with the movement along the Atlantic are amazed. Millions are being expended both in private and public enterprises. The state is making great improvements in building roads, dykes along the waterfront, dredging channels and harbors and other public works, and private development on the waterfront to the bluffs and hilltops beyond is steadily narrowing the still available and desirable lands. Each season sees a further transition taking place in the erection of state-architects and the skill of the builders.

This season on Cape Cod is a record breaker, the finely equipped New Haven train service carrying fully one third more of summer residents and visitors than ever before. Cottages, camps, palaces and caravansaries are annually increasing by the score, taxing the genius of the architects and the skill of the builders.

Many Boston millionaires and New England's wealthiest families are building their summer homes here. From New York they come, from the south, from Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha and beyond, until the way things are moving on Cape Cod she will soon be in the ultra fashionable class as a summer resort.

the White House and be such a big man in every sort of way.

"But there's the man right across the street now, and I knew him by his back and walk just the same as fifteen years ago.

"And I'll bet he's just as jolly now as he was then even if he is President of these United States."

Cap'n Bill knocked his pipe clean again and I knew it was time for me to go.

"Come and see me again, chum, and I'll tell you how I showed Judge Taft how to bring the cap'n of the water boat to terms during the fishin' trip," said Cap'n Bill in parting. "That is if it doesn't bore you," he added modestly.

I was leaving the shanty just as the big car carried the President away and I saw the two men take off hat and cap, the one to the President, the other to the man, and I hoped that soon "Big Bill" would again meet Cap'n Bill "lobster-ketcher."

Winter Address, BRADFORD, MASS.

Most Successful Conference Ever Held at Northfield.

The Women's Interdenominational Foreign Missionary Conference just conclude has proven one of the most successful ever held at Northfield. An unique feature of the Conference was the Pageant of Missions, given to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of Women's Foreign Missionary Societies in this country. Over two hundred people took part in the pageant, which represented fifty years of missionary progress in China, Burmah, Japan, Turkey and other mission fields. It was held upon the lawn of the Northfield before a large audience. Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Beverly arranged the pageant.

The registration of the conference was 435, a fourteen per cent. increase over last year, beside a large number attending without registering. Denominationally the registration was as follows: Congregationalist 146, Baptist 120, Presbyterian 47, Methodist 39, Dutch Reformed 29, Lutheran 15, Woldensen 8, Protestant Episcopal 7, Christian 1, Undenominational 1, Evangelical 1, Friends 1, missionaries and others 20.

The principal platform speakers were Rev. Arthur T. Pierson, D. D. of Brooklyn, Mrs. Helen Barrett of Montgomery of Rochester, Rev. Robert S. MacArthur, D. D. of Calvary church, New York City, and Rev. Arthur J. Brown, D. D., of the Presbyterian Board.

The General Conference for Christian Workers is the next and last of the Conferences, being in session from August 4th to 21st. The program is to be in general as in former years—each morning in the auditorium a Bible class conducted by Mr. Morgan followed by a praise service and general address, the afternoons are given up to recreation except for conferences on special subjects, and in the evenings there will be the usual Round Top and auditorium services. Some of the speakers for these various services will be Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, Rev. J. Stuart Holden, Rev. John A. Hutton, Rev. Len G. Broughton, D. D., Rev. G. Glenn Atkins, Rev. E. B. H. MacPherson, Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D., Rev. H. C. Mabie, D. D., Rev. H. Elvet Lewis, Rev. R. A. Torrey and Rev. Charles Inglis.

mann's act is chiefly noted for its fun making qualities. While he has on the stage an elaborate electrical apparatus, he does all sorts of amusing stunts. The amusing part of his act is where he gets a stage full of people and puts them through the most amusing stunts. All the hypnotists and mesmerists who have been on the stage are outdone by Doctor Hermann, and his engagement promises to be one of the events of the summer at Keith's.

Another strong feature will be Angela Dolores, who will make her first appearance in the delightful comedy called "Cupid at Home." Another new feature will be Sergeant Brennan, an English soldier who is the greatest master of diabolism who has ever come to this country. The Empire Comedy Four will also appear after an absence of several years in Europe, where they scored one of the biggest successes ever made by an American act.

Our Weekly Letter From

Special to the North Shore Breeze

Washington, August 4.—The quality of the United States Consular service has improved greatly in the past five or six years. Political appointments are now seldom made. Applicants for appointment must now secure the approval of the State Department to their candidacy, and then they are given examinations both written and oral, to test their fitness for the positions which they wish to occupy. In this way the service is gradually being recruited from a class of well-educated, intelligent, energetic and ambitious young men, who are raising the standard of the service and making it one of the best in the world. One very important result will be the extension of our foreign trade. At the same time, the consuls are giving close attention to the interests of American citizens abroad. The introduction of the civil service idea into the foreign service is doing much to elevate it and make it a career upon which even the most ambitious may well seek to enter.

Many years ago, with the discovery of oil in California, where coal was scarce and very expensive, the railroads there adopted it for fuel in their locomotives. There was an immediate benefit in the direction of economical operation. Moreover, travel was given an added delight because of the absence of cinders and smoke. Incidentally, there was such a large decrease in the number of grain and grass fires due to the absence of the flaming cinders which started many fires, that the Santa Fe railroad found in the saving by fewer damage suits from farmers and others, reason enough in itself for converting all locomotives on its Pacific coast lines into oil burners.

The example of the western roads might well be followed by those in the rest of the country where there is a sufficient supply of oil to insure the steady and economical supply of that fuel. Anyone who travels on a road where coal is used, as for instance on the routes between Washington and New York, will wonder why the use of oil fuel is not adopted. The smoke and cinders from the locomotives render travel on such roads in the summer time, when windows must be kept open to insure enough fresh air to prevent suffocation, a positive burden. Probably some enterprising railroad will meet this issue before long, and equip its locomotives with oil burners, thereby winning both the gratitude and the patronage of a long suffering public.

Many persons are aware by this time that the United States possesses a tropical valley away down in the southwestern part of the country, in what was one time a portion of the "back country" of San Diego, but which has somewhat recently been cut off and modelled into a new country called Imperial. Only a few years ago this was a portion of the famous desert region where sidewinders, chuckawallas and gila monsters resented the intrusion of the prospector. The heat reached 120 degrees sometimes in the shade, if there was any shade, and it was thought that the region was worse than useless. However, an enthusiastic engineer had an idea that irrigation would turn the desert into a garden, and although he was jeered at and hooted at he persisted until at length, out of his efforts, it came to pass that a dam was built, ditches dug, and water conveyed from the river to this sandy desert. Then the magical transformation took place, and the desert began to bloom. Now the first cantelopes of the season comes from Imperial valley, the introduction of cotton has resulted in the planting of 16,000 acres this year with no pests to annoy the farmers, the cottonwood grows to the dimensions of a saw log in three or four years, and in short everything grows like mad as soon as the water is turned on to give the soil life. And it has been found that the soil is not sand, as was commonly supposed, but silt from the overflows through past ages and eons of the Colorado river. Now comes the chief viticultural expert of the Department of Agriculture, Prof. Geo. C. Husmann, and says that by introducing the proper varieties of vines, this region will supply the United States with the earliest and finest grapes, capable of carrying to the Atlantic seaboard in good condition.

The government is making the valley resemble the tropics more closely by introducing the date palm, which has been shown to thrive there and fruit abundantly, and perhaps we may yet see bananas and other choice tropical fruits grow in profusion in this once despised locality, provided that the government finds out how to control erratic Colorado river, which is at once the life and menace of the valley. President Taft has as one of the problems before him this summer this very question, and he has called in the aid of the best experts in the government service to help settle a very vexing situation.

For weeks past, the time stretching now into months, there has been received at the census office a steady stream of kicks and protests from enumerators who want their pay and can't get it. Many of these enumerators have been seeking a settlement for months. Piteous appeals come in from them. Some of them have sickness in their families. Some of them are about to lose their homes unless they can get the little sums due them. Others have still other pressing needs. Even food and shelter are lacking with many. Aggravating these appeals are the local troubles of the women who have been working at tabulating in the main office in Washington. They too have been complaining long and loud because they could not get their pay. The trouble seems to be chiefly in the internal administration of the office, and it is no wonder that the chief of the bureau gets out of town, as he is said to do, in order to get away from the torrent of complaints that pour in upon him. His real troubles, however, will come when the cities which feel that his figures are libels on them are heard from. Washington was the first, but there are many, many more to be heard from.

In Everything Men Do They Leave the Indelible Imprint of Their Minds

Following out this suggestion how possible it is to recognize the honest effort, the simple, direct, natural thinking of those men of old Colonial Times in the furniture produced during that period.
It almost bears out the thought, "I am genuinely good as the man that created me was genuinely good."

This being true, is it any wonder that the makers of

... FURNITURE ...

Today seek the old and reproduce it in the new. Isn't it commendable in them? Aren't they in this way preserving the old, and handing it down to posterity?

They are very careful in its construction, very exacting as to details, and why isn't it better for you in buying, to invest in pieces that you know are truly new, that are based in price as to what they really cost, than to buy the so termed "antiques," you know not where they have been, or what they truly are, that cost you fabulous sums because of some fancied origin?

We've a store of reproductions that make an interesting sight, true copies of famous pieces, that cost no more because of that fact,
that are made in the very best manner and good for a hundred years. Tables, Low Boys, Lamp Stands, High Boys, Hall Sofas, Settees, Fireside Chairs and the like, not antiques, not antique store prices, but all reproductions at modern furniture store prices.

We especially extend a very urgent invitation to the visitors along the North Shore to inspect this unusual collection, which we know will prove of interest to them.

SOCIETY NOTES

By far the most important social function of the week was the tea given yesterday afternoon between five and six o'clock by Miss Mabel Boardman to meet President and Mrs. Taft and the others members of their family. The tea was given at Wyndeclass, the beautiful summer home of the Boardmans on School street, Manchester. Over two hundred people attended, including all of the best known people on the North Shore. Most of the members of the diplomatic corps were there.

—x—

Senor Don Francisco de la Barra, Mexican Ambassador to the United States, was host at a very charming luncheon given at Green Gables, Magnolia, last Sunday, in honor of Ex-Governor Curtis Guild, jr. Covers were laid for fourteen, and the emerald, crimson and white of the Mexican flag were prominent in the table decorations. Among the guests were the Baron and Baroness Rosen, Miss Rosen, John Hays Hammond, Miss Hammond, Miss Burnham, Marquis Montagliari of the Italian embassy, Marchioness Montagliari and Viscount Denoist de 'Azy.

—x—

Miss Agnes Musser of Philadelphia is up from Northeast Harbor, Me., for a visit with the C. Howard Clark jr's., at West Manchester. Miss Katherine Hare of Philadelphia, is on from the Hare country home in Strafford, Pa., for a short visit with the Clarks, too.

—x—

Mrs. Stephen Gurteen of New York is coming to the North Shore next week for a short visit with the Prescott Bigelows, at Manchester Cove.

—x—

Mrs. John L. Gardner spent the last Sunday at Dr. and Mrs. Maynard Ladd's cottage, Smith's Point, Manchester. The group of men around a sundial in Mrs. Ladd's studio in bronze and marble, has been bought by Mrs. Scott Fitz for her Italian garden, off Masconomo street, Manchester.

—x—

Congressman and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth (Alice Roosevelt) have been on the North Shore this week mingling among their friends, being house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce J. Allan at Beverly Cove. Mrs. Longworth came the latter part of last week and Mr. Longworth came the middle of this week. Several informal luncheon and dinner parties have been given in their honor this week, including a dinner of fourteen covers at Mrs. Allan's Wednesday evening. Mrs. Guy Norman is having a few friends over to her summer residence at Beverly Cove tonight for dinner, included among the guests being Cong. and Mrs. Longworth.

—x—

The M. C. McGills have been entertaining at the cottage which they are occupying off Masconomo street, Manchester, Mr. McGill's brother of New York.

—x—

Mrs. W. Scott Fitz opened her beautiful gardens off Masconomo street, Manchester, Wednesday afternoon and served tea to sixty or more of her friends who were bidden to the affair.

SOCIETY NOTES

Fair weather this afternoon is all that is desired to make the annual water sports of the Manchester Yacht club a success, for the young people—children of members and their friends—have been evincing much interest in the event, and a large number will be on hand this afternoon at three o'clock if the weather conditions are favorable. To add to the brilliancy of the occasion, the color and gayety surrounding the clubhouse and the floats, a number of the yachts will be "dressed" and anchored near the clubhouse. The usual sports will be indulged in, such as canoe races, walking the pole, canoe polo, tub race, swimming races, diving contest, canoe tilting, etc. Tea will be served after the sports. The judges will be William A. Tucker, H. K. Caner and Herbert W. Mason. The sports will be run off under the direction of W. L. Putnam, J. H. Storer, Norton Wigglesworth and Charles E. Hodges, the committee of arrangements.

The next event of interest at the Manchester Yacht club will be the Children's Entertainment. The committee, of which C. E. Hodges is the chairman, has arranged to have John Colby Abbott for Saturday, August 27, at 3 o'clock. Mr. Abbott's causeries have attracted attention at home and abroad and his "La Grande Pandore" cannot but prove of interest to all who attend. There will also be a Punch and Judy show.

—x—

George Hellen of Washington has been a house guest of the Col. Henry Mays at Manchester this week. Mr. Hellen is not a stranger to Manchester, as he formerly summered at the Masconomo House, being a friend of George Eustis who summered there also for a number of years. The Misses May are expecting a visit from Miss Fargo of Tuxedo Park shortly.

—x—

"The Oaks," the Beverly Farms estate of Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot, was the scene of a pleasant luncheon and bridge party Wednesday, there being sixteen covers at lunch. Some of the ladies present were Mrs. C. A. Porter, Mrs. James Marsh Jackson, Mrs. Edwin A. Boardman and Mrs. Percy Musgrave.

—x—

The handsome coach and four of Frank Thompson of Philadelphia, son of the late railroad magnate, has been exciting much admiration on the North Shore drives. Mr. Thompson has been the house guest of the Edward Rantouls of Beverly Farms and is a great lover of horses, and during his two weeks' visit here had some seven horses at his disposal, which he brought up for his use, and the entertainment of his host and hostess and their friends. Previous to the arrival of Mr. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Rantoul were in Vermont for a week with friends. Mr. Thompson concluded his visit today.

—x—

Mrs. Henry S. Grew has carried out her original plans to sail for Europe to be the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, jr., at London, and she took her departure from Manchester the latter part of last week, sailing from New York on Saturday.

Garden Seats

BY MARY H. NORTHEND

It is a noteworthy fact that with our keen sense of the beautiful, we Americans have shown less appreciation of the value of garden furnishings and accessories than is everywhere evident in foreign countries. There, the art of embellishing with bridges, fountains, statues, seats and urns is understood to perfection, but on this side it is only within recent date that we have been fully cognizant of the touch of completeness and distinction that these ornaments lend. Perhaps our recognition of their worth has grown out of the adoption of the formal Italian type of garden; but however this may be, their significance has at least been demonstrated to us, and today nearly every garden of any pretense whatever claims one or more of these little artificial attractions. For no matter whether small or extensive, the beauty and satisfaction of every flower plot are enormously enhanced by these charming devices, since, as a house is cozy or barren according to the style of its decorations, so a garden is beautiful or unpleasing in proportion to the type and quality of ornaments employed in its furnishing.

Of all these garden accessories, seats are probably the most important. Supplying a resting place, and thus a vantage point from which the garden may be best enjoyed, they also give an artistic touch that is quite distinct from their usefulness in defining axes, ending the walks, or relieving barren places. Indeed, the atmosphere of restfulness and habitation that they contribute to the scene of nature's lavishness constitute their chief charm.

In general there are two types of garden seats, each with almost innumerable modifications, from which you may make your selection, according to the style of garden you have adopted. These are the rustic bench, designed for a more or less wild or old-fashioned effect, and the more formal seat, usually constructed of stone and planned to adorn gardens in which there is an attempt at a somewhat set plan. Between these two, there are, of course, almost limitless adaptations of the one or the other, the chief point to be borne in mind being the perfect suitability of your garden seat to its setting and environment.

For example, the charming seat built of wood and having a picturesque shingled roof slanting over it would be out of place in anything but a tanglewood of shrubs and trees. With tall vine-like plants on either side and a background of masses of trees, this artistic nook invites one to rest and enjoy the quaintly planned garden that spreads out before it. The borders formed of a single row of stones and the oddly carved standards that support the potted plants are objects of interest that catch the eye from this point of comfort and are in keeping with the unusual and old-fashioned effect. Or, wishing to linger, the cushioned seat suggests reading beneath the shelter of roof and vines. In every way this rustic seat fits into the pleasing composition of the scene most successfully, for there is a lack of formality and an air of freedom and seclusion about it that are delightful. Could these be attained if such a seat were placed at the edge of a lawn, amid flower beds of set and regular design?

Of contrasting character, and unique in its setting purpose, is the stone seat without a back, supported by carved heads and placed within an arch-like construction of similar type of architecture. This seat is not suggestive of comfort, as there is no support, and its position, without a background, is not restful. But, as a part of the formal garden, seen in the picture, it is perfectly harmonious. The vines behind the pillars are also pleasing while they conceal from the opposite side, the purpose of this garden ornament—a line of demarcation between the formal garden and the old-time one. For this reason, it was designed without regard to lingering rests but more particularly for a place whence one may gain an extensive view of either garden, enjoying it with the comfort of being seated, and also adding a touch that gives completeness and cuts the long distance. It is curiously suggestive of both the old Italian gardens and the Japanese temple entrances—an interesting as well as decorative feature of a most picturesque landscape.

Even more formal than the above is the ornately carved stone seat which is sometimes employed in extremely stately gardens, where there is a desire to relieve the monotony of the surrounding green. There is, however, some objection to the elaborately finished back and side pieces, since they suggest almost too plainly the chair form, a model that is rarely attractive in stone.

But, if a simpler design is preferred, the two plain curved slabs of stone, supported by carved standards, may find favor in your garden. Like the other, it is placed against a tree trunk, the simplicity of the absence of a back fitting into the open front of the garden and appealing to the eye.

Or a plain, straight slab may be used, its simple supports covered by shrubs. Placed against a hedge at the end of a walk, it affords a delightfully secluded resting nook upon which one comes unexpectedly. It is best suited to a more or less formal garden, where trees and plants show careful trimming and where gravel walks are scrupulously kept.

And now we come to the placing of your garden seat, which is quite as important to the final outcome as the selection of the type. For there are many points to be considered in this connection. First, have you decided upon the most artistic place? That is, does the seat fit into its setting with relation to the composition of the picture? Is its position justified by comfort? Have you provided for a good view as you rest in your garden? The answers to these questions supply the salient facts to be uppermost in your mind when you are weighing this subject. Of course you will find that there are really no hard and fast rules to be followed. All depends upon your taste, your knowledge of art, your aim. You will discover, however, there is much less chance of wrong placing in a garden where positions are fixed by the formality than in a picturesque scheme of unmarked distinctiveness of type. In the latter case, seats must be so placed as to give the impression of inevitableness, but in both instances, care and thought are necessary to attain just the right position and effect. A happy blending of view and harmony is illustrated in the twin seats having circular outlines and the pergola top. Filling a space that would otherwise be barren,

Two voices send a welcome cry,
Two voices through the mists and rain;
With matted locks and sunken eye
Ho! ancient fisher back again!
For thee, for thee, we welcomes roll.
Whoo! Whoo! Toll-Toll.

Ho! gray gulls, tired, sweeping on,
Not long the fogs shall blind thy way,
Red mussels shalt thou feed upon,
Mid creamy lace that hems the bay,
But patient wait, to cheer they roll,
Whoo! Whoo! Toll-Toll.

Ho! Brave young hearts that toil unseen,
We hear the creek of kelp-draped oar,
When o'er the cobble frail you lean

And pull the glistening net to shore,
Beware the reef, beware the shoal,
Whoo! Whoo! Toll-Toll.

Oh! weary hearts, why wail and weep?
Why eager watch with faces wan,
A stern-kept tryst from them we keep
To louder cry, to sharper clang,
When cold white fogs would fierce control.
Whoo! Whoo! Toll-Toll.

By day, by night, in the red light's glare,
Each voice is heard, each form is seen,
One alone by the tower fair,
One in the sea enrobed in green,
While ever brave they welcomes roll.
Whoo! Whoo! Toll-Toll. —Clarence Manning Felt.

HENRY COULTER, The Oceanside, Magnolia, Mass.

AT THE HOTELS.

All Magnolia and the North Shore is looking forward with keen anticipation to the annual horse show on the beach next Saturday, August 20th. The big number of entries from all along the North Shore, as well as from people living in the cottages and the hotels of Magnolia would indicate an unusual interest in this event this year. The sale of the 150 boxes and hundreds of other seats in the pavilion and along the beach in front of the bath house bespeaks the active interest society in general is taking in the event. J. Henry Coulter is in charge of the show this year. There are to be nine classes, including the children's saddle class, runabout horse, ladies' driving competition (post entries), saddle class, harness horses, jumping class open to all weight, race for gallo-ways, flat race, ($\frac{1}{4}$ mile), hurdle race.

The tennis tournament on the Oceanside courts, at Magnolia, has been in progress all the week, but not with such vim as marked the first week of the tournament last week. The August ball at the Oceanside, always the biggest function of the summer at Magnolia, will be held on Saturday evening, August 27th.

The Magnolia hotels are having their busiest days. Everything is filled to overflowing. The Oceanside has been turning away guests all the week. From all sections of the country,—from the south, the west, the Pacific coast, central states, New York and all over New England,—people of prominence have come to spend their vacations, to enjoy the cool sea breezes, the delightful bathing, the driving, motoring,—in short to be in the social whirl which centres on the North Shore.

Mrs. A. F. MacArthur, wife of the engineer in charge of the construction of the big aqueduct from the Adirondacks to New York City, was among the arrivals of the early week. She came with her maid Monday, and is stopping at the Villa, one of the Oceanside connections. In the party also are Mrs. D. B. Barnum and Miss Dickson, of New York.

Judge and Mrs. D. D. Woodmansee of Cincinnati, who came on to Magnolia last week, registering at the Hesperus, have now taken apartments at the Oceanside, where they will spend the balance of the month. With them are their daughter, Miss Florence Woodmansee and Ralph E. Clark. Judge Woodmansee is one of the best known jurors in the country. It was he who succeeded President Taft, when he left the supreme bench, and he in turn was succeeded by John Hays Hammond as a member of the national republican committee. The Justice dropped everything last week after sitting on an important case for weeks, and came to Magnolia for a rest and he is now enjoying the charms of this locality to the fullest.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Livingston of New York city are spending August at the Oceanside. The Livingstons are prominent in the social circles of the metropolis and have many friends along the North Shore, whom they entertain and are being entertained by. Mr. Livingston is connected with the Metropolitan Gas Co. His daughter, Mrs. Prescott Rowe and family of Boston are also at the Oceanside. Mr. Rowe's father lives on Commonwealth avenue. He has made a fad of collecting old plates, and his collection is probably one of the finest and largest private collections in the world.

Mrs. Philip Sousa, jr., daughter and maid, joined the other members of the Sousa family at the Oceanside Wednesday for several weeks' stay.

Mrs. Wingrove Bathon of Washington arrived at the Oceanside Wednesday for a few weeks' stay.

One of the many motor parties stopping at the Oceanside this week was that composed of Misses Harriet and Louis Howe, Miss Alice Richards of Nahant, and Miss Mary E. Bradlee of Swampscott. A Los Angeles family composed of Homer Laughlin, Miss G. V. Laughlin and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Laughlin, jr., stopped at the Oceanside Monday for lunch. They were touring the North Shore resorts.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Wightman of Brookline and Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Seegener of Southboro motored down the shore Sunday and were guests at the Oceanside for lunch of F. E. DeLong of Philadelphia. On the same day Andre C. Reggio and William Reggio of Boston were guests of E. Atherton at luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne of Kansas City arrived at the Oceanside Sunday for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Rowe of Lawrence registered at the Oceanside Tuesday for a short stay.

Mrs. C. M. Bushnell of Buffalo joined the other members of her family at the Oceanside Tuesday for the balance of August. With her was Mrs. E. W. Eames of Buffalo.

Mrs. William Wallace and Mrs. Albert W. Wallace of Pittsburg came to Magnolia Tuesday for a short visit at the Oceanside with the J. B. Beals of St. Paul, who are in the same party with the D. C. Shepards, also of St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Swift, child and maid, of Boston, arrived at the Oceanside, Monday, for an indefinite stay. They have apartments in Island View, one of the Oceanside's newest cottages.

Mrs. Joseph Allison Janney of Philadelphia was a guest of Mrs. Lee McMillan of New Orleans at the Oceanside Monday.

The Misses M. F. and F. G. Willis of New York arrived at the Oceanside Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Wood and two daughters, the Misses Ruth Gilpen Wood and Eleanor Wood of Bryn Mawr, Pa., are among recent arrivals at the Oceanside. Miss Margaret Garretson of Cleveland, O., is their guest for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley T. Cozzens of New York City were guests at the Oceanside over the last week-end.

Mrs. Reginald Gray and son Reginald Gray, jr., have taken apartments at the Oceanside for the balance of the season. The Grays come from Brookline. Mrs. Gray is a sister of Mrs. S. H. Fessenden, of Coolidge's Point, being one of the Brookline Lees. James Greenough of Cambridge was a guest over the week-end of Mr. Gray, jr.

Russell White of Boston was a guest at the Oceanside over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Sawyer Wilson, jr., of Baltimore, who have a summer estate "Wilton Wood," at Stevenson, Md., came to Magnolia the latter part of last week for a short sojourn, and are at the Oceanside. Mrs. Wilson was Miss Stella P. Middleton before marriage.

SOCIETY NOTES

Next Friday night the second dinner-dance at the Essex County club will bring together another brilliant gathering of the North Shore cottagers and guests. All of the tables have been engaged and it is apparent that the next party will out-do that of July 29th.

Villa Crest, the beautiful summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Denegre at West Manchester will be the scene of a brilliant dinner-dance this evening, one of the largest functions of this nature this season. Thirty or forty young people will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Denegre at dinner and many more have been bidden to the dance.

A merry party of people went over to Marblehead for the races Wednesday in the President's yacht, the Sylph.

John Hays Hammond has been appointed by President Taft to attend the American Mining Congress as a delegate. The convention will be held at Los Angeles, Sept. 26 to Oct 1.

Mrs. J. Warren Merrill was among the dinner hostesses of the week. Wednesday evening she gave a party of sixteen covers, members of the diplomatic corps at Manchester being among the guests.

Amory A. Lawrence of Boston and Beverly Cove sailed from New York Tuesday of this week for Europe.

The latest bit of news in connection with the coming marriage of Mrs. Katherine B. Armour of Kansas City and Lieut. Littlefield, paymaster at the Charlestown Navy Yard, is the announcement that Captain Littlefield has tendered his resignation to take effect as soon as it can be properly acted upon. Mrs. Armour lives at Magnolia.

Mrs. Allen Curtis gave a small luncheon of six covers at her Beverly Farms cottage Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Francis L. Higginson was hostess for an informal dinner party at her Pride's Crossing residence last night.

Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Porter arrived in Beverly Farms last Saturday after a pleasant ocean trip from Hamburg to Quebec, which concluded their brief European trip. Dr. and Mrs. William Carter Quimby, who have been at the Porter cottage during the latter's absence, have returned to Boston.

Friends of Samuel A. Culbertson of Louisville, Ky., and Beverly Farms were pleased to see him out again at Singing Beach, Manchester, this week where he has been taking sun baths to assist recuperation from his recent illness. His son, Craig Culbertson, has returned from a short sojourn at Rye, N. H.

Edward L. Wood of Brookline and Manchester has purchased a Packard car and his family will do much motoring during the remainder of the season.

North Shore friends of Miss Fannie Mason and sister of Boston and Newport were interested to learn that she opened her summer home in Newport, August 4, for a sale and demonstration of the Handicraft Shop for the Blind. Miss Cummings, who is now in charge of the Manchester shop, supervised the Newport sale, assisted by two young women from the Cambridge shop. The sale proved very successful despite the adverse weather conditions, otherwise it would have been given on the lawn of the Mason estate, as last season, instead of indoors.

Mrs. Sidney Fairlee of Kennilworth, Ill., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. S. Spaulding at Pride's Crossing. Mrs. Spaulding gave a small luncheon yesterday in honor of her mother, there being covers for ten.

Postmaster General Hitchcock paid a flying visit to the North Shore this week, arriving Tuesday. He was a house guest while here of Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter at Beverly Cove, stopping until Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter have gone to Newport on their yacht "Chanticleer," for the yacht races. Mrs. Leiter's little grandson is a fine boy. Needless to say, he is the pet of the Leiter household, and he is under his grandmother's special care while Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter are away. The Leiters are planning to remain on the shore later than usual this year, as their new house at Beverly Farms will probably be ready for occupancy in late September.

More tennis at the Essex County club! Now that the young folk have finished their tournaments the older ones want a show, so a tournament will be on beginning next Monday for those who are "thirty years of age or over." The tournament will be a mixed doubles, open to members and invited guests and members of the Nahant, Myopia and Montserrat clubs. A special cup is being offered for this tournament by Walter D. Denegre of Villa Crest, West Manchester. The entries close Friday with the tennis committee. Partners are to be drawn by lots. Beginning Monday, August 22, there will be two tournaments,—men's singles scratch, open to members and junior members for a cup to be played for yearly, and to become the possession of anybody winning it three times; and a men's doubles scratch, open to members and junior members, too, teams of two to be entered. Entries for both events close Thursday, August 18, with the tennis committee of the club.

A. F. Southerland of Coolidge's Point has offered a beautiful cup to be competed for in golf at the Essex County club on Saturday, August 27. The conditions under which the competition shall be held are: Each player to play two rounds of the course medal play, the score of best ball at each hole of either round to count as players score, less special handicap. The score card for the first round must be turned in to the golf committee by the contestant before procuring card for the second round. The competition will be open to members and to members of the Myopia, Montserrat and Salem Golf clubs.

Miss Gertrude Gerdes of Pittsburgh is the guest of her sister, Mrs. D. Herbert Hostetter at her summer home in North Beverly. President Taft will lay the cornerstone of the new Beverly Y. M. C. A., Wednesday afternoon, August 31, this being the date decided upon this week.

Secretary of State Knox has been spending the week on the North Shore, a guest of the Henry C. Fricks at Pride's Crossing. Several dinners and luncheons have been given at Eagle Rock during the week in honor of their distinguished guest. Most important among the social events of the week, however, at Pride's Crossing will be the dinner given by Mr and Mrs. Frick tomorrow night. There will be covers for between 20 and 30 people. The President and Mrs. Taft will be among the guests.

Many North Shore people are planning to attend the Gloucester Day celebration at Stage Fort Park, Gloucester, next Monday, August 15.

The large medallion portrait of Ernest Perabo, the noted Boston pianist, is to be seen at the studio of the sculptor, Roger Noble Burnham, Magnolia. The portrait, a commission from one of Perabo's pupils, shows the pianist seated at the instrument, his hands on the keys, and was studied thus from life as he sat playing. It has all the living qualities and expression which distinguish Burnham's portraits. The bust of Edward Perry Warren, the archeologist and art connoisseur, and brother of the late S. D. Warren, is also finished. This last portrait is considered by his friends and family a remarkably life-like and exact likeness, clearly showing and yet subtly blending, the humorous, scholarly, and artistic sides of his nature with that of the man of affairs. At the International Exhibition of Medallion art held last spring by the American Numismatic society in New York (of which Mr. Burnham is a member), especial praise was bestowed upon his medallions of Dr. J. D. Griffiths of Kansas City, and Mrs. John Brown of Utica, both well known guests of the Oceanside, Magnolia.

Mrs. M. A. O'Donnell of M. Davey & Co., importers of gowns, etc., left Magnolia today and is sailing from New York Saturday on the New York for Paris. She will return the middle of next month with a large display of fall importations, and will give her fall opening at the summer branch of the firm in the Donchian Building, Magnolia, on Thursday, September 15th.

Mr. Hinds was the subject of one of the special articles in the "Who's Who and Why" section of the Saturday evening Post of August 6. The article is a most complimentary one to Mr. Hinds' parliamentary knowledge and the extremely powerful position he holds in Congress through his power of precedent in congressional matters. His book, "Hinds' Precedents," is monumental and will always be a standard work. His official capacity in Washington is "clerk at the speaker's table," in the House of Representatives.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Sir John and Lady Harrington are planning to come over from England the last of this month to spend a few weeks with Lady Harrington's mother, Mrs. James McMillan at Eaglehead, Manchester. Lady Harrington's niece, Mrs. Preston Gibson, and Mrs. Gibson are undecided whether to return to England with the Harringtons for a short vacation trip or to go to Canada in September. Mr. Gibson is devoting his time this summer to his plays. He is to have one of them finished by the middle of this month.

Francis Colton and two daughters of Washington, who are spending the summer at Magnolia, are to remain on the North Shore through the early autumn. They have engaged apartments at the Brownland cottages, Manchester, for the last three weeks of September.

The Rev. James G. Roberts, D.D., Dean of Congregationalism in Brooklyn, N. Y., an eminent authority on the wonderful growth of Congregationalism in the "city of churches," is spending several weeks at his daughter's seashore home, the beautiful Heard estate, opposite the Norman's Woe, at Magnolia. Dr. Roberts was entertained at dinner by the Rev. L. H. Ruge, minister of the Congregational church of Manchester on Thursday evening. Dr. Roberts also enjoyed the fine program of the Salem Cadet Band that evening and was received by some of the townspeople. Manchester was glad to have the eminent divine and bespeaks for him further cordiality in any future returns.

Miss S. S. Perkins of Brookline and Beverly Farms has returned from a week's visit at Northwood, N. H., and during this week entertained Miss Beaumont of Boston.

MR. PERINE,
Resident Partner

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kerr of New York, guests at the Oceanside, Magnolia, gave a luncheon party at the Essex County club Wednesday afternoon. Among their guests were Misses Katherine Lyon, Isabella Wadsworth, Dorothy DeLong, Helen Kerr and Helen Johnston, and George Kittredge, George C. Milles, A. Hatfield, Russel White and Roger Armstrong.

Mrs. C. L. Holt of Boston, wife of the president of the National Biscuit Co., is one of the most charming women at Magnolia this summer. She is stopping at the Oceanside, where her husband joins her over the week-ends. We stated wrongly last week that Mrs. Holt, who is a beautiful singer, had become the regular soprano at King's Chapel, Boston. We should have said she was a substitute for the month of July for Mrs. Alice Bates-Rice.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen A. Ryan and three young children, Miriam Ryan and Masters Allen A., jr., and Theodore S., came from New York last Friday to spend a few weeks on the North Shore. They have taken apartments at Miss Stearn's villa, Magnolia. Mr. Ryan is the son of Thomas A. Ryan of railroad fame.

Rev. and Mrs. William H. Dewart, who have rented their cottage at Manchester Cove for the summer, are spending part of the month of August at the Equinox House, Manchester, Vermont.

Mrs. Oliver Ames gave a young people's dinner party of twelve covers Tuesday evening at her Pride's Crossing residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bonner of the Grovenor, Fifth avenue, New York, have taken apartments at Miss Stearn's villa, Magnolia.

Mrs. Charles M. Cabot of the Beverly Farms colony spent a portion of this week with friends on Cape Cod.

EAST GLOUCESTER.

Mrs. Edward Loftus, wife of the English secretary to the Siamese ambassador, and two little sons, sailed this week on the Cymric for London to remain with Mrs. Loftus' relatives until December, when they will join the legation in Washington. Mr. Loftus and His Excellency the ambassador, bade them bon voyage at the pier and a party of Eastern Point friends and the Siamese secretaries sped them on their way from the Gloucester depot with best wishes for a safe and pleasant voyage.

Mrs. Loftus is very popular in East Gloucester and Washington and is very favorably known to the diplomatic contingent on the North Shore. She is a gifted vocalist and has been heard many times in Washington and in East Gloucester at social gatherings.

The soloist at the Hawthorne Inn casino Sunday night concert was Miss Rebecca Andrews of Gloucester, a student at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, and a talented vocalist who was heard to much advantage in her selections. There was a delightful orchestral concert also, this same organization being heard each afternoon at the Inn's Tea house, "The Willowfield."

The bridge whist party at the Harbor View was an early August event enjoyed by the house guests and their friends from Merrill Hall, the toilettes of the ladies being particularly tasteful and handsome. There were nine tables and six prizes which were won as follows:—Miss Miller, Washington, first; Mr. Dwight, New York, second; Miss Moses of New York, a guest at Merrill hall, third; Miss Gray, Philadelphia, fourth; Mrs. Kingsley, Philadelphia, fifth; Mr. Rhodes, New York, sixth.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome C. Cook, who motored up from New York to East Gloucester, are making the Harbor View their headquarters. New Jersey arrivals to enlarge that contingent at this hotel are Theodore C. English and wife of Elizabeth. Baltimoreans to register were Mrs. U. B. P. Penniman, Miss Rebecca Penniman and Miss Elizabeth Stirling. From Washington are Mrs. John A. Millburn and Miss Anna Millburn. The regular Wednesday evening hop was held this week in the casino.

CAPE ANN RESORTS

Annisquam will be a social centre for much of the August gaiety on Cape Ann. The "Matinee of Song" at the Adele Lingard estate, "The Pines," Monday afternoon of this week brought 300 or more North Shore summer residents there to hear Wilfred Russell, English baritone, in a varied program. Mrs. Russell was accompanist. Tea was served on the lawn by Mrs. Jessie Henderson Brewer of Brookline and Pigeon Cove, Miss Lingard and Mrs. Tudor of Boston, the table appointments being very dainty and artistic. The spacious estate lent itself admirably for the occasion. Rev. Judson Marvin, Eric Lingard and Miss Lingard superintended the ushering of the guests. The proceeds will be for the parsonage fund of the Annisquam Universalist church, Rev. Judson Marvin, pastor.

The Annisquam Yacht club on Saturday evening was the scene of a very enjoyable dancing party and on Wednesday evening "The Chorus Boy," with a cast of 80 summer residents, was presented. It was repeated last evening, and it will be repeated again on the 13th and 16th. The operetta is the production of Chamberlain Brown of Cambridge and Annisquam.

Some arrivals at the Annisquam hotels include at the Grand View, R. H. Stubbs and family, St. Louis; Mrs. J. C. Lester, son and daughter, Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Fred N. Rickwell, Philadelphia; Mrs. A. J. Tansigg, St. Louis; George McLane, jr., and family, Lawrence. At the Overlook:—Mrs. B. R. Ross, Miss Ross, Washington; J. L. Blaisdell and family, West Newton; C. E. Stockder and family, Meriden, Conn.; John M. Meyer, Chicago; C. P. Smith and family, Boston. At the Brynmere:—Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Gleason, Scranton, Pa.; Mrs. John H. Williams, Miss Williams Richmond, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Timpkins, Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. B. K. Field, Miss E. Field, Berlin, Ct.; Mrs. Alfred R. Pratt, Miss Pratt, Weston.

Lieut. Edward S. Kellogg of the Minnesota and wife, and Capt. William S. Sims of the same ship and wife, stopped at the Ocean View hotel, Pigeon Cove, and Navigator Watson of the U. S. S. Vermont and Mrs. Watson, and Ensign G. W. Dallas of the same ship and wife from New York were at Turk's Head Inn.

SOCIETY NOTES

North Shore people who have seen the sample of Miss Murdock's direct color work, proclaim it among the finest things in this line they have yet seen. Her work may be seen at the Burnham studio, Library Building, Magnolia. Miss Murdock is spending the summer in Magnolia and has done some very nice work for many of the North Shore families in taking pictures of children in black and white. She will make appointments to take photographs at the home or in the garden, or in the garden at her studio in Magnolia. The above is a sample of her work, as far as it can be shown in a rough newspaper print.

—X—

Tuesday afternoon at her estate at Beverly Farms, Mrs. John Caswell gave a children's party at which were fifty or more of the North Shore boys and girls, most of whom had not yet reached their "teens." The young folk had a most glorious time, playing games, frolicking about, etc.

News has come from "Gus" Loring and his party—T. Jefferson Newbold and Stanton Burnham—on board his yacht, the "Spitfire," off Bar Harbor. They will continue slowly to Canada, after stopping at Rogue Island where Mr. Loring's grandfather, Mr. Gardner, is now staying. The "Spitfire" made 14 knots inside of Mt. Desert, and averages about 12.

Miss Josephine Baker of New York, is the guest of Mrs. F. K. Stearns on the Shore Road, Magnolia. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson, who have been with the Stearns, have gone back to New York.

SOCIETY NOTES

The accompanying picture of the Bird and the Beast gives some suggestion of that harmony of design, the simplicity and grace of which, though purely Japanese in its origin, is so universal in its appeal. But only those who have seen the original can appreciate the potency with which its rich golden-bronze color emphasizes the green of the foliage-background and yet grades into it with subtle blendings. To the passer-by, with an inner vision, it already haunts the border of a reedy pond in some half-informal garden. The bird, however, is not a stork as was humorously mentioned in these pages, but a crane, the sacred bird of the Japanese, and in this form mounted on a tortoise it is their favorite wedding present. This example of art which is ten feet high, and of which much of the detail is chiseled in the bronze, can now be seen standing at the corner of Lexington and Norman avenues, Magnolia, where it is shown for sale by Roger Noble Burnham, the sculptor, who has his studio just above on the second floor of the Library building.

—X—

The North Shore was well represented at "The Pines," Annisquam, on Monday afternoon when Mrs. Adele Lingard graciously threw open her home for the benefit of the Leonard Guild fund, at Annisquam. The subscribers were of the fashionable set. Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. John Hayes Hammond were among them.

Miss Bertha Perry of Washington, the water-color artist, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William B.

tion strikes them, passing the week-ends or warm days wherever the desire leads.

The mummy of an Indian Cliff dweller is not a common, but very interesting object. One is on exhibition at the Indian Store, opposite the Colonnade, Magnolia. And there are many other interesting things there—the uncommon things one does not find in the ordinary city shops.

Ipswich History to be Portrayed in Pageantry.

Historical Society Will Reproduce Notable Incidents in Town's Life From Coming of Puritans. Special Emphasis on Colonists' Relations With Indians.

Notable incidents in the life of the Puritans will be exemplified by more than 250 persons at an open air pageant to be given on the grounds of Mrs. Anna R. Peabody and Henry Brown, County road, Ipswich, Aug. 25, 26 and 27, under the auspices of the Historical society of that town.

The place chosen for the exhibition is ideal, the spacious lawn where the pageant will be held being environed with hills and meadows, which are dotted quite thickly with shrubbery and trees. Upon the green will be located two log cabins typical of the early taverns of this town. In these structures Puritan maidens will have charge of booths and sales will be made to staid Puritans and Indians in much the same manner as during the early days of the settlement.

Everything possible to make the pageant historically correct will be done by the executive committee, consisting of Rev. T. Frank Waters, Henry Brown, Mrs. Cordelia Damon and Miss Harriet Condon. The director, Miss Margaret MacLaren Eager, has had wide experience in conducting pageants in different places, notably the successful exhibition recently held at Deerfield.

The pageant will open with scenes in "Gippeswic," or Ipswich, Eng., in 1630, in which will be portrayed by 50 characters festivities of village folk, including Maypole and Morris dances, supplemented by the appearance of a party of Puritans who hold a serious conference with the votaries of Terpsichore. Mrs. Isabelle Arthur and Mrs. Howard Dawson conduct the varied features.

An interesting feature will be the leave-taking of the Puritans from their English home just previous to embarkation for Massachusetts bay colony.

The second scene will portray the method of life of the Agawam Indians, who owned and occupied what is now Ipswich territory. Scenes within wigwams, hunt dance, etc., will be given.

Scene three will shift to Puritans in America and include the coming of John Winthrop, jr., and his company to Ipswich in 1633, and purchase of land from Masconomet, sagamore of Agawam tribe of Indians.

An interesting feature denominated "The Thursday Lecture" will be exemplified by several characters under the direction of Mrs. Cordelia Damon and Miss Elizabeth Lakeman. In the early days of the colony "The Thursday Lecture" was a session held weekly in the church to hear complaints against evil-doers, and to mete out punishment. This scene will show the Puritans going to church, assembled in the edifice, and while the meeting is in progress, the unexpected sounding of alarm that Indians are approaching. The meeting is adjourned without formality, and each one grabs a musket and rushes forward to meet the foe. No conflict ensues, as the Indians are several miles away.

A stirring scene will be the call for help at the outbreak of "The King Philip War" in 1665, and the departure of Capt. Samuel Appleton's company and Maj. John Whipple's troop for service. Capt. Randolph M. Appleton will direct this scene. There will be a large number of characters.

A scene exemplifying action of the settlers in 1687 in resisting unjust taxation is certain to arouse the spirit of all spectators. This town is widely known as the birthplace of American independence. Rev. T. Frank Waters and Henry Brown will be the leading characters in this scene.

The next feature will be a colonial wedding—"Dr. John Manning and Lucy Bolles." The ceremony will be followed with a reception, minuet dance, etc. Mrs. T. F. Waters, Mrs. C. H. Noyes, Mrs. George Humphrey and 20 others will take part.

Another scene of interest will be "The Call to Arms in 1775." A company of soldiers leaving for war will add much animation to the scene.

The pageant is in commemoration of the 20th anniversary of the Ipswich Historical society, and the proceeds will be donated to the fund of the organization. Summer as well as permanent residents are interested in the venture, and with concert of action it is anticipated the exhibition will prove one of the most interesting open-air shows in the history of New England. No place is more richly endowed with colonial history than Ipswich, or with more valuable relics of that period, and as a result there is widespread interest in the coming event.

No place of its size in New England is more richly endowed with dwellings erected during the colonial period than Ipswich. A considerable number were erected during the 17th century. As a whole they retain architecturally their Puritan plainness and in numerous instances are devoid of paint. Modest front doors, great chimneys and small windows are conspicuous in many of these dwellings, which have been owned by the same families for several generations. The exact age of most of the oldtime houses is not known and cannot be determined, notwithstanding that deeds recorded show definitely when the land upon which the houses stand was purchased.

The house on High street, commonly known as the Caldwell homestead, is said to have been erected in 1652. In that year, records say, Richard Bett sold to Cornelius S. Waldo the house which two years later became the property of John Caldwell. As the estate was sold 40 years later at greatly increased value it appears that Caldwell must either have greatly enlarged the house or else erected a new one on the site of the original structure.

The Reginald Foster house on Water street, said to have been erected in 1655, is a splendid example of colonial architecture. The property has been in the possession of the Burnham family for many years.

The Norton-Corbett house on East street is another fine exhibit of architecture in vogue in the early history of the town. Tradition says the house was built in 1635.

The Whipple house, now the headquarters of the Historical society, was erected in 1669. The interior has been restored to its original plan and the rooms filled with innumerable treasures of the colonial period.

The Howard-Emerson house on Turkey shore road is said to have been built in 1648. This is not attested by records. It is admitted, however, that the house is a landmark of old Ipswich and is greatly admired by antiquarians and others.

Following is an epitome of the more important events in the colonial history of this town not embodied in the pageant program:

In 1614 Prince Charles ordered that the place be called Southampton. In 1617 a plague killed most of the Indians in this section of Massachusetts. In 1628 settlers began to appear, and three years later each settler was given 50 acres of land.

In 1630 warrants were sent to Ipswich, then Agawam, for those who settled here to leave. Four years later, 100 settlers arrived and the first meetinghouse was erected.

In 1635 dwellings were ordered built within onehalf mile of the meetinghouse.

In 1636 court was established in town. In 1642 the town voted to establish a free school and every householder ordered to own a ladder for use at fire. In 1649 smoking was forbidden when on the street, and three years later the second prison in Massachusetts bay colony was established here.

In 1678 a law was enacted requiring all persons to have some visible employment. In 1700 the population of the town was 1500. In 1718 tea came into use among the rich people and flour was baked and eaten occasionally by people who had considerable wealth. In 1762 first stage once a week, between Ipswich and Boston. In 1764 town and county bridge built, first arched bridge in America. In 1779 coffee first began to be used. —(From Boston Sunday Globe.)

IPSWICH

The engagement of John Appleton Tuckerman of Boston and Ipswich, who is a member of Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman's household at "Applefield," the Tuckerman estate on Waldingfield Road, Ipswich, has been formally announced, the bride-elect being Miss Katherine Atterbury, fourth daughter of John Turner Atterbury, of New York and Isleboro, Maine, "Draumorar," being the name of their summer estate there. Mr. Tuckerman is a Harvard man, class of 1905.

Among the recent auto parties to make the Agawam House their headquarters, was that of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Andrew of La Porte, Indiana, and Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Patch of the East Gloucester colony. The Andrews are the parents of Asst. U. S. Treas. A. Piatt Andrew, and Mrs. Patch is a sister. Their guests on this auto trip were Miss Frances Jennings of Chicago and J. B. Romer, Boston. Other parties included the family party of W. P. Crather of New Britain, Ct.; T. D. Hyde and wife, Boston; Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Hequimborg, Mrs. A. P. Bigelow, Miss Bigelow, William Johnson, Chicago; J. L. Cummings and wife, Rochester, N. Y.; J. B. Moss and family party, St. Joseph, Mo., with Mr. and Mrs. Osborn Leach, Danvers; J. A. Fowlyce and family party, New York; Rev. Arthur George, returned missionary from Asia, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Merriam, Miss E. Merriam, Falconer, N. Y.

Rehearsals are in operation for the Ipswich pageant the last of the month, leading summer residents of the town taking an active part.

Arrivals at the Willcomb House include A. P. Poore, Orange, N. J.; Anna A. Fisher, Rochester, N. Y.; E. L. Byrd, Malden; Georgiana H. Parsons, Stamford, Conn.; Elizabeth Chase Sherman, South Boston.

The summer contingent finds great pleasure in the Ipswich River trip of two hours duration and along its banks are some one hundred summer cottages and camps housing some 500 residents of Greater Boston and nearby towns. The trip in the Steamer Carlotta is a pleasure trip now quite traditional. Motor-boating on the river is popular also with the summer residents.

Weather conditions being favorable Mr. Hubbard, the aeronaut, is expecting to make a flight at Candlewood in his new aeroplane very soon. His experimental flights here this month are in preparation for Boston's great aeroplane meet to be held in September.

Bass Rocks

Dr. and Mrs. Silas Ayer of Boston and Bass Rocks have been on a pleasure trip to Atlantic City and New York.

An event of much social and practical interest for North Shore Episcopalians, particularly on Cape Ann, was the lawn party held at "Felsensprung," the Arthur Maxwell Parker estate, Souther Road, Tuesday afternoon. It was largely attended. Music by an Hungarian orchestra was one of the features. The proceeds will be donated toward the building fund of St. John's Episcopal church, Gloucester.

Mrs. Henry Souther and a party of lady friends from the Bass Rocks colony will have a booth at the Gloucester Day celebration at Stage Fort Park on Monday, August 15.

The Tuesday evening hop at the Thorwald is a popular diversion at this hostelry. The near proximity to the bathing beach makes surf bathing a regular daily pleasure of many of the hotel guests. Golf, too, is available just in the rear of the hotel. Sailing parties and excursions to East Gloucester and Eastern Point are made frequently, while many of the guests have autos with them and take numerous trips to all points of interest. New arrivals being introduced to the charms and pleasures of Bass Rocks are Mrs. L. N. Leslie, Miss Kate Leslie, Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Chisholm, Lima, Ohio; C. E. Graham, family party and friends, East Orange, N. J.; Mrs. W. P. Mifflin, Mrs. Rollin Norris, Master Norris, Philadelphia; L. H. Freer, family party, Mrs. James Walsh, Miss Dorothy Walsh, Chicago; Mrs. D. J. B. Reeve, Henderson, Ky.; Emery W. Clark and family, Detroit; Mrs. A. H. Robert Timms of New York City, who is Vice Commodore of the Atlantic Division of the American Canoe Club of which Col. Roosevelt is a member, is a brother of Mrs. Henry C. Carter of New York, who has a handsome estate at Bass Rocks, corner of Beach and Atlantic avenues. Mr. Timms, who has been prominent in the social doings of the club in the Thousand Islands, is now actively identified with its interests on the Delaware this season. His sister, Miss Timms, is now the house guest of Mrs. Carter, having spent the early season at the New Jersey and Long Island resorts. Miss Carter of New York, sister-in-law of Mrs. Carter, who is usually one of their family party at Bass Rocks, is in the Berkshires this season, having spent the autumn and winter in Europe.

VOLUME 8. Aug. 12, 1910 NUMBER 32

According to the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission, which has made its final report to Mayor Gaynor, the health of Manhattan and surrounding territory is menaced by the continued use of New York harbor as a sewerage outlet for that city and other communities along the Jersey shore. The commission's studies cover a territory embracing about twenty miles around City hall, and include some 100 municipalities with an aggregate population of 5,000,000. A warning is sounded to the effect that it is possible to so saturate the volume of the incoming tide with filth that it will be unable to purify itself, and become a source of corruption. Some startling facts are given in support of this view, as well as some remarkable statements regarding the willingness, and even persistent efforts of certain communities, to make conditions worse. The report of the commission enforces the importance of watching carefully the impurities in the Boston harbor, and adopting wise prevention instead of costly cure.

We reprint the above from the current issue of "New Boston," because it throws some light on the situation at Manchester and along the North Shore, in the present agitation for better sewerage conditions.

Our old familiar friend, "tons of water," got back in yesterday morning's papers from a long vacation. The cub reporter's intimate, "holocaust," was mysteriously missing; there is a theory that it was the guest at a copy reader's lynching party.—Boston Globe (Thursday).

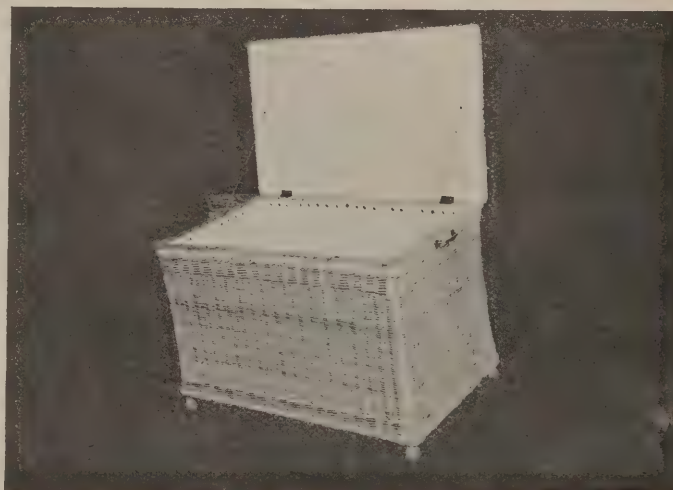

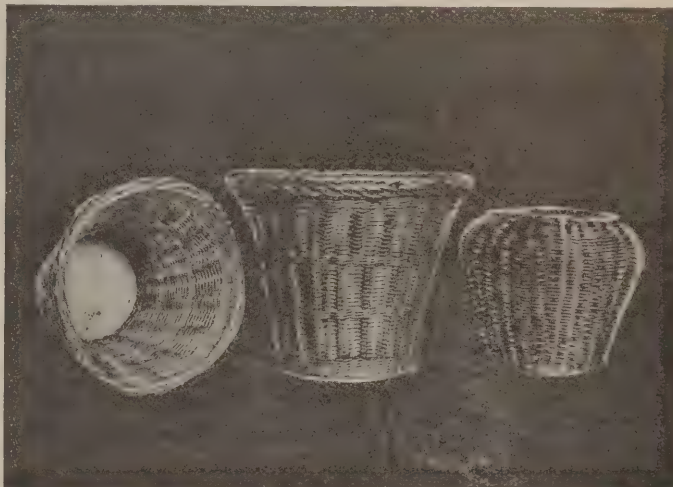

How about "the lurid flames shot upward into the vaults of heaven?"

✱ Manchester ✱

A little daughter arrived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Matheson on Rosedale avenue, Tuesday, August 9.

Charles B. Ayer and members of his family are expected on from Chicago the latter part of this week for a visit with Mr. Ayer's brothers in Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Knoerr and daughter, Doris, enjoyed a trip to Providence, R. I., and surrounding points of interest in their auto, over the last week-end.

Arthur D. Smith Leaves Manchester. Wife Says It Is An Elopement.

An elopement is a comparatively rare occurrence in Manchester's criminal calendar and consequently when the report was spread this week that Arthur D. Smith had left town and that a Mrs. Mary A. Bonia of Gloucester had also left her home, there was considerable excitement. Mrs. Smith claims her husband has eloped with the Bonia woman.

Smith is a stranger in Manchester. He came here the early part of the summer from Boston as chauffeur for W. S. Kuhn of Pittsburg. The family lives in a house on Forest street, owned by Mr. Mitchell. The Bonia woman has spent much of her time with friends in the same house. It was a pitiful sight that met the reporter's eyes when he called at the humble home of the bereaved wife and listened to her story which she told while the tears coursed down her cheeks.

"If he had been a drinking man or one who abused his wife and children or had any other reason for leaving his family, I shouldn't have thought so much of it," said Mrs. Smith. "But he was a loving husband always treating me kindly and providing me well with money until recently. And he loved the children dearly. The baby was sick in bed and had a high fever when he went away, and he certainly must have been out of his mind to leave his family the way he did.

"I had not the least suspicion that anything was wrong until he failed to come home from Boston where he went Tuesday, saying he would return Wednesday noon. Thursday morning when he did not come I thought it very strange, and then the neighbors told me the reason. They knew he had been with this woman for two or three weeks, but they hated to say anything to me about it.

"He drove Mr. Kuhn to the depot to take the train Tuesday morning, and then took a later train at 1:30, for Boston himself. I asked him what time he would return and he said he should stop up that night to attend a meeting of the Operators' association club, of which he is a member, and return the next day at noon and bring a pair of shoes for the baby. I thought nothing of this, of course, and that was the last I saw of him.

"They tell me Mrs. Bonia left Gloucester on the same train, taking her trunk on which she had the name changed to her maiden name, M. E. Meuse. She has been here in the house a month visiting her cousin, and she and my husband, the neighbors tell me, have been going around together evenings. He has always told me he was busy washing the autos during the evening, and I supposed it was all right.

"I understand he has given her authority to buy fruit and soda, etc., at the stores in the village and have it charged to him.

"I haven't the least idea where they have gone, excepting that the woman told someone in Gloucester that she was leaving for good and that she would be so far from Boston that no one would know where she was.

"I know my husband couldn't have had much money and did not have any in the bank, and I don't think she could have had any. So I do not believe they could get very far away; they couldn't have had enough to go to Europe anyway. He only gave me $5 during the last two weeks he was at home and left me without a dollar. He has always been a good husband, but seems to have been completely infatuated with this woman.

"I really don't know what I am going to do," and the poor woman broke into tears again.

Warren Crombie, in company with two Beverly young men, has gone to Philadelphia for a vacation trip, making the journey by motor-cycle.

Claude Temple, who now lives at Hillsboro, N. H., was in town the last week renewing acquaintances.

Thomas P. Lohan, a member of Engine 26, one of the busiest companies of the Boston Fire department, is stopping with his wife at the Silver cottage on Summer street, for two weeks. He has already inspected the local fire station and says the new auto truck will be a great improvement to the town department. The rapid response to an alarm and catching a fire in its infancy are the most important features of an auto fire truck, says Mr. Lohan.

Weather permitting the Manchester Launch club will start tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock on a short cruise around Cape Ann to Annisquam. The flotilla of motor boats will be headed by the Mahdeen IV, Commodore Needham's large yacht. A number of members of the club, other than boat owners, are planning to take the outing.

A movement is soon to be started in Manchester looking toward the establishment in the town of a Y. M. C. A. organization, with a home of its own.

As many are doubtless aware a good work among the boys has been carried on for several years under the direction of the county organization of the Y. M. C. A. Those who have been in charge of this work feel that its future success warrants the placing of it upon a broad and permanent foundation. A regular organization of the young men, with a well-equipped Y.M.C.A. building would be a very valuable acquisition to the town.

Several men, having at heart the welfare of the young men, have considered it a good time to move toward this end. They are desirous of soliciting funds for the purchase of a piece of land, centrally located, and adaptable to the purpose, on which an option has already been secured.

The local board of management, Essex County Y. M. C. A., is composed of Richard L. Cheever (treasurer), George S. Sinnicks, Dr. W. H.

This block offers one of the best chances either for business or investment that has been offered in Manchester for several years. For further particulars apply to

MANCHESTER

Mrs. Donald Cameron of Cambridge is visiting the Harlen Prestons, Brook street.

Misses Eleanor Morgan and Nellie Jackson have been spending the week vacationizing in the vicinity of Portland, Me.

Mrs. Abbie Gray has been having a visit this week from her son and daughter-in-law, who made the trip from Farmington, Me., their home, by auto.

The school committee has not yet appointed an English teacher to take the place of Miss Mazie Whiting who will not return this year to the High school.

Postmaster Samuel L. Wheaton was in the party of Gloucester business men that made the trip to Provincetown last Friday in a fishing schooner to witness the dedication of the Pilgrim monument.

The prize dance in the Town hall last Friday evening under the direction of Peter A. Sheahan and several other young men, was largely attended and as usual was the most successful party of its nature this summer. Scores of young people came from all the surrounding towns.

The committee of the G. A. R. Fair to be held in the Manchester Town hall the week of August 29th, are soliciting fancy and useful articles for the various booths and tables. Such articles should be sent to Mrs. Hannah Tappan of the committee. The W. R. C. is to hold an all day session at G. A. R. hall next Thursday, quilting, and doing work in connection with the fair.

A pretty feature of the services at the Congregational church last Sunday morning was the christening of Henry Francis, the little nine-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robbins of Mrs. W. Scott Fitz's estate, Masconomo street. Mrs. Fitz stood up with the parents, as God Mother. The brief services, conducted by the pastor, Rev. L. H. Ruge, were very impressive and interesting.

Everyone pronounced last night's concert by the Salem Cadet Band the finest of the season. A splendid program was presented. Despite the inclement tendencies of the weather hundreds of people were in the square all the evening. As usual a large crowd came from Beverly Farms and places in that direction as well as from Magnolia and Gloucester. The next concert will be given on August 25.

Ethel Palmer (Jones) Peart.

Ethel Palmer Jones, wife of Waldo F. H. Peart, passed away early Thursday morning at her home on Washington street, Manchester, at the age of 20 years, 3 months, 6 days. She died of diabetes. Mrs. Peart had been ailing for a long time, but her last illness came suddenly, as she was not taken to her bed until Wednesday, and she passed away a little after midnight, Thursday morning. She was born in Manchester in the house in which she died on May 4, 1890, the daughter of D. Crowell and Abbie Ann (Dole) Jones, the latter a native of Hampton, N. H. She lost her mother when quite a young girl. She attended the Manchester public schools, graduating from the Story High school in 1907, and the Salem Commercial School in 1908. She was a member of the Congregational church and High school alumni association. Her death is especially sad, as she was an only daughter. She was married only two months ago to Mr. Peart. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the house, the Rev. L. H. Ruge, officiating.

The North Shore coachman held their annual ball in the Town hall Wednesday evening. Despite the inclement weather the affair was largely attended and a most enjoyable evening spent.

Mrs. Thomas Carey and P. Carey of Malden, Mrs. Thomas Moylen of Newburyport and William Kennealy of Charlestown were guests over the week-end of Mrs. Mary Walsh and family, Pine street.

William Riggs and family have moved into one of M. E. Gorman's cottages in Pine street.

The athletic exhibition at the Men's club-house was an unqualified success. The participants were pupils of Professor Martin Flaherty and kept things lively from start to finish. About 150 members and and their guests were present and now the question asked is "how soon can we have another such entertainment?"

The annual tournaments in bowling, pool and checkers in full swing now at the Men's club are creating great interest. The usual dance was held at the club on Wednesday evening. Blythe's orchestra furnished the music. The dance next Wednesday evening is to be a joint reception for members of the Men's and Women's clubs. No admission will be charged, but only members of the two clubs will be admitted.

The subject of the sermon at the Village church next Sunday morning will be from John 12. "The Sympathizing Jesus." The subject in the evening will be "Riches and Poverty."

A delightful recital by Professor Krumpeln at the Village church last Monday evening was slimly attended, doubtless owing to the number of events taking place this week. The recital was exceptionally fine and Professor Krumpeln was warmly congratulated and thanked. The third and last free recital will occur in about two weeks. An afternoon recital at the Village church will be given next Tuesday by Professor Krumpeln. This recital is given by request of those unable to attend in the evening. Tickets will cost $1 and it is hoped the proceeds will be large, as Professor Krumpeln on leaving Magnolia last summer was shipwrecked on the coast of Newfoundland, losing all his effects, a disaster from which he has not fully recovered. The recital will be at five o'clock.

The annual Sunday school picnic to Salem Willows occurred on Wednesday and was the usual success. Seventy-three participants spent the day merrily eating popcorn, riding on the flying horses and in various other pastimes.

The proceeds of the Ladies Aid Fair held at the Oceanside last week are announced as being $536, the entire sum that was needed to clear the debt on the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. James Essen and son of Chicago, Ill., are visiting at the Williams cottage this week.

Miss Clara Butler was the guest of friends at Andover, Sunday.

The masquerade ball at the Women's club last Friday evening proved to be the event of the season, a large number being present in costume. The prizes for the best costumes were awarded to Mrs. Clancy and Josephine Lambert, who impersonated "Silas and Miranda" in "The Old Gray Bonnet." Honorable mention was given to the following: "The Yama Yama Men," Katherine and Mary Austin; "The Little Irish Colleen," Bridget Doyle; "The Little School Girl," Mary Watson.

The fairy entertainment on Tuesday evening was well attended and proved very entertaining as well as successful financially.

The ladies will have for sale a fine assortment of fancy and useful articles, refreshments and home made candies. Commencing at 8 in the evening there will be an entertainment.

An assault case created considerable excitement at the Farms last Sunday night. Miss Margaret Matheson, employed at the Quincy A. Shaw, 2nd., estate, Preston Place, who was walking along near Hart street, near Greenwood avenue, about 8 o'clock when a man jumped out of the darkness and grabbed her by the throat and wrist. She managed to scream sufficiently to attract the attention of a passing auto which evidently frightened the man, who darted away. The police were immediately notified and commenced a systematic search, which resulted in the arrest of an Italian by name of Antone Sebrigio, who was employed upon the Shaw estate and positively recognized by Miss Matheson as her assailant. In court at Salem on Wednesday the man was held in $300 bonds to await the action of the grand jury.

The Baptist Sunday School picnic was held at Tuck's Point, West Manchester, on Wednesday and was well attended. The day was pleasant and the occasion was an enjoyable one.

Draper, has written an open letter announcing his candidacy for the House of Representatives and asks the consideration of the Republican voter at the coming caucuses in September. Mr. Macdonald's position, which he has held at the State house several years, makes him particularly fitted for the berth.

Next week on Wednesday the 17th, John West colony, Pilgrim Fathers, will entertain the Pilgrim Wanderers and friends at Tuck's Point, West Manchester. The affair will be a sort of basket picnic. A program of sports and amusements has been arranged.

A number of family gatherings for a day's outing have taken place this week at the Beach. The water has been warm and crowds daily have been in bathing. West Beach these days is certainly the popular spot for recreation and pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Borden are leaving today for a vacation trip to be spent at various places of interest in Maine.

No entertainment of any kind has taken place in Neighbor's hall this week and as yet no bookings have been made for next week, an unusual occurrence at this season of the year.

Last Monday morning James Girullo, a barber employed in a Farms barber shop, went into the laundry of Wong Fook the chinaman in Neighbor's hall block. Because some laundry was not ready trouble started, resulting in Girullo making an assault upon Wong Fook, who later had a warrant served for assault. In court at Salem yesterday, Girullo was found guilty and was asked to pay a fine of $25 or spend three months in jail. He paid.

The Misses Edna and Lois May of Hart street returned home Wednesday, after a pleasant four weeks' vacation at Ashville, N. H.

James E. McDonnell of Haskell street has been seriously ill this week. At this writing he is reported to be improving.

A serious automobile accident occurred at the Farms Tuesday afternoon on West street, near the beach, Miss Carrie Davis, a popular Farms young lady and assistant at the Farms postoffice, was returning on her bicycle after being in bathing and was riding practically in the gutter, when an automobile driven by Charles Driscoll of Brookline in turning out to pass another auto evidently did not see Miss Davis, and consequently ran into her. She was knocked down, being hit by the radiator of the machine. Mr. Driscoll quickly stopped the machine and a number of spectators lifted her into it. She was hurried to the office of Dr. James M. Jackson, who after a preliminary examination ordered her to the Beverly Hospital, where it was found she has three ribs fractured. There was also a bad cut on her leg and she was badly bruised and shaken up. Reports from the hospital today say that while she is suffering considerably and has much pain, nothing of a more serious result is looked for. During the period from being struck until Miss Davis reached the hospital she showed extraordinary courage and grit.

Among this week's visitors at the Farms have been Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Cutler of North Adams.

this charming seat forms a harmonious part of the attractive whole. It is surrounded by beautiful, low-growing trees and it commands an expansive view of the fascinating outlay of garden, with a distant glimpse of sloping hills that flank the nearby valley. Sitting beneath the trailing vines, one enjoys these scenes to the full, feels the sense of delight and satisfaction that only a perfectly harmonious scene may inspire.

Among the materials chosen for garden seats, stone is considered the best. It permits of carving—simple or elaborate, to suit your taste—and in durability is preferable to cast cement. Even a rough stone that the ax has never touched appeals to many art lovers as a suitable substance out of which to construct a seat, and the desire is far above the evenly finished cement. But the usual kinds of stone comprise pink granites, black, red and green slates, limestones and marbles. The last two are often of less pleasing color and texture, while the Quincy granite should be generally avoided, as they are cold and uninteresting in effect, and the weather, instead of softening their colors, seems to render them more dismal. But your selection of stone as well as design must be governed largely by the other ornaments in the garden, since your aim must be conformity and harmony. A seat of elaborate finish is incongruous when placed in a garden with a fountain, sun-dial or other accessory of markedly simple design. Another point to be remembered in the adoption of stone is that it needs cushions in summer, and in winter it should be covered with narrow slats arranged close together.

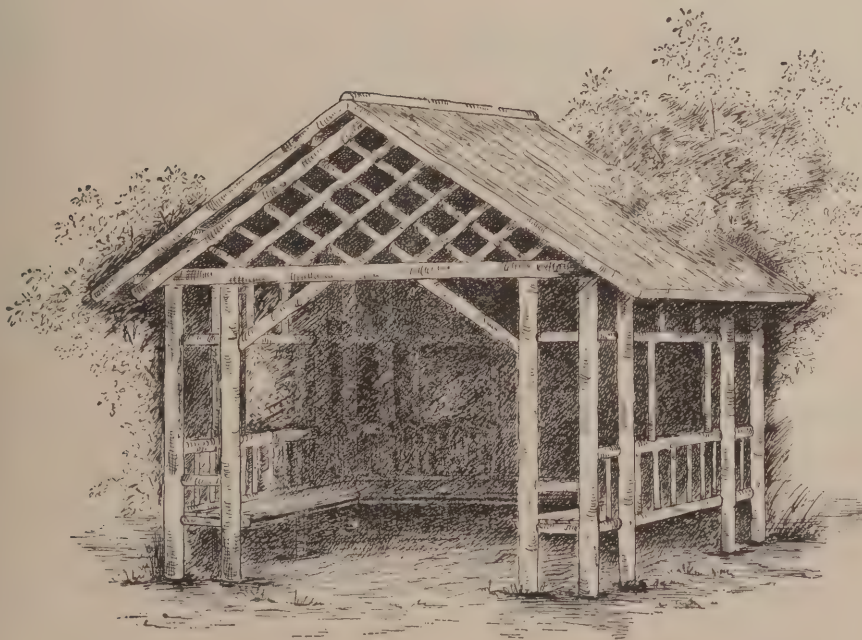

When one must consider the expense of the garden seat, wood may be used, but if properly treated the effect is quite as good, as that of stone, if not sometimes better. Be sure, however, to use it as wood and do not attempt to imitate stone. Remember also that wood is probably most effective when a rustic treatment is desired. For this purpose cedar and locust with the bark unremoved, may be used to excellent advantage. Cypress also makes a satisfactory garden seat, and if painted and well cared for each season, will do service for many years. When roofed over, further protection is provided, while a shelter is afforded from the summer's sun and the annoyance of the insects that usually drop from the leafy tangle of an arbor.

North Beverly—Hamilton.

Mrs. Walcott Tuckerman of Washington and Hamilton is among the art students of Mr. Noyes of the Eric Pape Art School, Boston, who is located this season at Ipswich, having the small cottage connected with the Willcomb House. For nine summers Mr. Noyes was at Annisquam, Gloucester. He finds Ipswich and her environs very interesting.

The Myopia Hunt club, Hamilton, is the centre of much exclusive social life since President Taft elects to play golf there each morning when on the North Shore and the polo and hunting sets, make it their rendezvous. Polo just now is limited to individual practice as the polo teams are absent and are not due home for several days. The tournaments will start again about August 25.

Mrs. Jonathan Brown, jr., of Boston and Salem has returned to Red Top Farm, Hamilton, after a visit to her former home, Oil City, Penn. Two of her children accompanied her.

WHITE PINE SEED.A Chance to Help in the Forestration of the State.

The Massachusetts State Forester, F. W. Rane, requests the newspapers to call the attention of the public to the numerous green cones to be seen on the white pine trees in many sections of the state at the present time. These cones will mature about the latter part of August or the first part of September and it is possible that many people, particularly those interested in nature study or forestry may care to collect some and extract the seed. This will give some active boys or others who like to climb trees an opportunity to have a reason for so doing. A pamphlet entitled "How and When to Collect White Pine Seed," can be had free of charge by dropping a postal card to the State Forester, 6 Beacon street, Boston. This pamphlet goes into detail but the main points at present are to locate the trees containing the green cones and then plan to collect them before they drop their seeds. When they ripen the scales on the cones open up and two seeds each having wing attachments drop out and fly over the surrounding country. To secure the seed, therefore, the cones must be collected before this happens. Mr. Rane reports the squirrels already tearing the pine cones apart and eating the seeds which goes to show that even at this date the seeds are fairly well formed. If collected before they begin to turn brown, however, the cones are pitchy and disagreeable to handle and too it is a question whether the seed would be good. A bushel of cones will yield about a pound of seed when they are extracted.

If any one desires further instruction about planting and growing the young trees after they have harvested the seed, the State Forester's office will gladly assist them with still further information and directions.

Senator Lodge Will Attend.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge has written his acceptance of an invitation to attend the coming outing of the newspaper men of Essex County, which will be held at Salem Willows on Saturday afternoon and evening, August 20, at which time the organization of a county press club will be made.

Among others who have signified their acceptance of an invitation to be present are Lieutenant Governor

Our Weekly Letter From
Washington

(Special to the North Shore Breeze.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—Since the Department of Agriculture first took up the question of farming in Alaska there has been a great deal of interest manifested in that subject, and it must be confessed, some scepticism. However, the Department is now in a position to give out some definite information regarding this subject in the Annual Report of the Alaska Agricultural Experiment Stations for 1909, which is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office.

"Would you care to run a truck farm with strawberries selling at $1.25 to $2.00 a quart," asks the Department in a bulletin announcing the publication of the report, "cucumbers $2 to $5 a dozen, celery 50 cents each, tomatoes 50 cents to $1 a pound, and other products at proportionate prices? Or would you prefer general farming with a few pigs and chickens as a side line, with hay selling at $60 to $100 a ton, hogs 30 cents a pound, young pigs 75 cents a pound, and eggs $2 a dozen? These prices are received in Alaska under favorable market conditions.

"There are several successful farmers at Fairbanks. The climate shows a wide variation. The coast towns are mild for that region, neither Sitka nor Kodiak reaching zero during 1909 while Juneau only reached 5 degrees below in January with a daily mean for the month of 14.15".

The International Union for Co-operation in Solar Research will convene in its fourth session, August 29, at Mount Wilson, California. Forty astronomers and physicists from Europe have signified their intention of being present. There will also be a large number of American astronomers there. The forty from abroad will leave Boston, August 20, under the direction of the Astronomical and Astrophysical society of America, and will go to Chicago via Niagara Falls to see the Yerkes observatory. Thence they will go to Flagstaff, Ariz., to see the famous Lowell observatory, and from there they will proceed to Pasadena, which is at the foot of the mountain where they are to hold their sessions. It is stated that this promises to be one of the most notable gatherings of scientists that has been held in this country in the past quarter of a century. From a scientific standpoint it is unquestionably of great significance, and the public will await results with more or less anxiety.

Everyone who has ever used lumber, even in a limited way, knows it always comes in even lengths,— that is twelve feet, fourteen feet, sixteen feet long, and so forth. It has never been possible to go to a lumber yard and buy a thirteen-foot board, or one 11 feet long. If you wanted one 11 feet long, you had to buy a 12-foot board and saw off the extra foot which was then of no use to you. The National Lumber Manufacturers' Association finally discovered that there was no good reason for this system, and in 1909 it adopted resolutions favoring the manufacture of odd-length flooring, ceiling, drop and bevel siding, finish, partition and moulding. Then the manufacturers on the Pacific coast began to make the odd lengths and finally the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture has taken up the subject and has issued a bulletin showing that this practice saves 2.07 per cent of material which heretofore was wasted. This is a practical sort conservation which everyone can appreciate.

To those who, in all parts of the country, have been wondering when the new Postal Savings Banks would be opened for business, it may be good news that it is expected to have the system in operation by October 15, or perhaps by Nov. 1 at the latest. And it will not be the big cities which will have the first banks either. They are to be introduced in the postoffices of the second and third classes first. Probably one city in each state will be designated, at the beginning, as the location for a postal savings bank. The economy of administration will be an essential consideration, and the cities which promise to be the cheapest in which to operate the banks will be the ones chosen. Later, as soon as Congress makes a more liberal appropriation for conducting the new banking business, the system will be extended. Meantime the public is showing considerable interest in the proposed new banks, and many letters are being received, some containing money, some stamps for deposit. One letter recently received contained a five cent nickel with which to start a deposit. Of course deposits are not received in Washington. It looks, however, as if the new banks would be popular with persons who are not solicitous about the amount of interest they will receive.

Keith's Theatre.

Rose Pitonof, the fifteen-year-old girl who accomplished the hitherto impossible feat of swimming from Charlestown bridge to Boston light, last Sunday afternoon, will be the principal feature at Keith's Theatre next week. Little Miss Pitonof is a typical water sprite, she can do every kind of dive that ever was shown, and besides that will demonstrate for the first time in public the famous "Pitonof Kick," by which she was enabled to make the record swim. Miss Pitonof does not swim like anybody else. She has learned to use only certain parts of the body, so that she swims with less exertion and therefore has a greater endurance, just how she does this will be shown so that all swimmers can take advantage of the "Pitonof Kick."

There will be two other women on the bill who have been very much in the public eye in the past year or so. Mrs. Ginnett, who started the investigation which resulted in the arrest of Dr. Crippen for the murder of his wife, will appear in "The Horse Dealer," of which her husband, Fred Ginnett, is the owner, and on the same program will be Mrs. W. E. Annis, the killing of whose husband by Capt. Peter C. Hains was the sensation of the year. Mrs. Annis is an accomplished musician.

NORTH SHORE BREEZE

MANCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, AUGUST 19, 1910.

SOCIETY NOTES

The elite of the North Shore will be over to the Essex County club in Manchester tonight for the second dinner-dance of the season. As the dinner-dance in July was the leading social event of the month, it is expected that tonight's affair will be the biggest event of the month of August. So much demand was made for tables that a few extra will be "squeezed in" tonight so as to permit a score or so more to attend the dinner than last time, when the number was 181. Among those who have secured tables are Mrs. Gordon Abbott, who expects to have twenty-two guests; Miss Mabel Boardman, who expects eighteen or twenty; Miss Adele G. Thayer, who will have a dozen; Mrs. R. F. Greeley, Mrs. J. C. Kerr, G. F. Willett, Amory Eliot, Mrs. Fitch, H. E. Russell, Philip Dexter, Mrs. W. S. Kennard, Mrs. A. M. Parker, Samuel Carr, Mrs. F. B. Bemis, Mrs. R. F. Tucker, Mrs. Leland, Mrs. T. M. McKee, Mrs. J. J. Weil, and members of the various embassies

President and Mrs. Taft motored to Hopedale yesterday and were guests over night of Governor and Mrs. Draper at their beautiful home. In the party also were Captain Butt and Secretary Norton.

—x—

Miss Torrey, President Taft's now famed "Aunt Delia," was one of the guests at the summer "white house" during the week. With Miss Helen and Robert Taft, she rode over from her home in Millbury—seventy-five miles—to Burgess Point, in one of the President's motor cars. She was greatly pleased when she stepped out of the car and was enthusiastic over the modern method of travel which her nephew so enjoys. She was constantly entertained while in Beverly.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kuhn have with them for a visit at Manchester, the latter's brother, Fentis Hill of San Francisco.

—x—

The family party at Avalon, the Pride's Crossing summer home of Frederick Ayer, was enlarged last week by the arrival of Mrs. Ayer's sister Mrs. Banning, who went on to the Hot Springs, Va., after the conclusion of her visit last Friday.

—x—

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tainter returned to Manchester this morning from a week's visit with friends at North East Harbor.

—x—

The attractive Miss Marjorie Colton, sister of Col. George Colton, Governor of Porto Rico, arrived on the North Shore Wednesday and will spend a month at the Oceanside, Magnolia. Her father, Francis Colton, is with her. The Coltons have spent many seasons at Magnolia and have a host of friends here, especially among the Washington folk. Miss Colton is an especially close friend of Mrs. Taft. Her father is one of the oldest residents of Washington, and incidentally a colonel. They will spend the early autumn at Brownland cottages, Manchester.

SOCIETY NOTES

There have been some interesting tennis matches at the Essex County club the last week for the special cups offered by W. D. Denegre for the winners of the mixed doubles tournament. The essential qualification for one entering the tournament was that he or she must have reached the age of thirty years, but it was not at all surprising that the large number of sixteen ladies and gentlemen admitted their ages to the extent that they entered the tournament. Those drawn to play as partners and in the matches of the first round were as follows: Mrs. N. Horton and E. K. Arnold v. Mrs. G. F. Willett and Mr. Willett; Mrs. S. Parker Bremer and H. S. Grew v. M. di Montagliari and Philip Stockton; Miss Harriet Rantoul and R. M. Winthrop v. Mrs. F. J. Cooldige, jr., and R. S. Codman; Mrs. Lester Leland and Russell Tyson v. Mrs. E. K. Arnold and Lester Leland.

Clay A. Pierce of the Pride's Crossing colony is at Lake Namekagon, Wisconsin. Mrs. Pierce, who was Irene Tewsbury of Chicago, was a belle at Hawthorne Inn, East Gloucester, in the early days of her North Shore sojourns, making that hostelry her summer home and her friendship and romance with Mr. Pierce had its culmination there. As a North Shore matron, she still retains the beauty and charm of her young womanhood.

Childs Frick is on a hunting trip in the regions beyond Vancouver, B. C. George Westinghouse of Pittsburg and Lenox spent a few days last week at Pride's Crossing as the guest of the Fricks.

—x—

William Culbertson has returned to business at Louisville, Ky., after a visit of several weeks at Beverly Farms, with his parents. He was entertained at many of the social functions during his visit to the shore, and it was while here that Mr. and Mrs. Bagnell announced the engagement of Miss Effie Bagnell of St. Louis, their daughter, to Mr. Culbertson.

—x—

Mrs. J. M. Glidden of Boston came from her summer home "Gladisfen," at Newcastle, and has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. George Scott Winslow, at Beverly Farms. Mrs. Winslow gave an afternoon tea in her honor. Miss Anna W. Glidden paid her sister a visit also and while on the North Shore was entertained by Mrs. George Whitney of Boston and Nahant. Little Miss Anna Winslow observed her eleventh birthday Wednesday of this week by a picnic party on Mystery Island in the afternoon, luncheon being served to a number of her playmates.

—x—

The engagement has been announced in Boston and New York of Miss Joan Tuckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman of 118 East Thirty-seventh street, New York, to Evans R. Garden Embellishments.

BY MARY H. NORTHEND

Just as a house, however perfect it may be in style and construction, must have furniture to make it cosy and comfortable, so a garden, beautiful in its wealth of flowers and shrubs though it may be, requires certain accessories to give it that pleasant, homelike air which is so essential for its success. The early garden makers among the Greeks and Romans realized the truth of this fact and consequently made their belief manifest through the wonderful fountains, vases, and statuary with which they embellished their grounds. Many beautiful gardens of more modern origin bear traces of the same artistic spirit displayed by the ancients, but of late years there has apparently been a decline in this respect. Too little attention has been paid to the proper furnishing of the garden and as a result it has lost much of its fascinating charm.

This has been especially true of our American gardens, for it is only within comparatively few years that we have commenced to appreciate the great possibilities for enjoyment and comfort which they offer. It may be that the prevailing fashion of copying old English and Italian gardens, as well as the delightful old-fashioned ones of colonial days, has brought about this change. At all events, people are certainly arranging their gardens after a more sensible plan than formerly; not that they are less beautiful, but rather more attractive, since their furnishings render them most charming outdoor living-rooms for summer use.

Among the more useful types of accessories now in favor are garden seats, which are to be found in a countless variety of styles. Even the tiniest plot is not too small to contain a simple bench attractively placed in some shady corner, while the stately, formal garden, which graces the rich man's vast estate, cannot be called complete without its dignified seats of stone or concrete. For the informal home garden there are suitable seats in many attractive designs. Where a rustic effect is desired, cedar and locust with the bark left on may be used with excellent results. Cypress also makes satisfactory furniture for garden use and, if well painted and cared for each season, it will do service for a number of summers.

For those who prefer a more durable material, but cannot afford expensive stone seats for their gardens, concrete makes an excellent substitute. Simple benches of good design may be purchased at reasonable prices and their soft natural coloring contrasts well with the varied hues of flowers and shrubs. Elaborately ornamented seats of marble are occasionally seen, but rarely outside of the most strictly formal garden. Even there they must be in perfect accord with the other decorative details, for otherwise they are in bad taste.

A frequent companion piece of the garden seat is a table of some sort. This convenient bit of furniture usually corresponds in style to the seat near which it is placed, although contrasting designs and materials appeal to some people as being more desirable. Stone or concrete is far more satisfactory than wood for this purpose, since a table top of the latter material soon becomes warped unless carefully protected from the weather.

The effectiveness of the most attractive furniture may be entirely spoiled by the wrong placing, however.

The essential point in selecting its location is that spot chosen shall be the one best adapted for that purpose. There should be a sort of inevitable fitness between these accessories and their surroundings; otherwise the beauty and comfort of the garden are in no way enhanced and the very object for which the work was planned is defeated. The ideal location for a seat and table is a cool, shady spot, where one can find welcome shelter from the sun on a hot, sultry day and spend a comfortable hour with a book, or chat with a friend over a refreshing glass of one's favorite summer beverage.

The influence of far away Japan may be seen in the pretty little tea-houses which are springing up in so many gardens at the present day. These picturesque affairs, invitingly situated at the end of some flower-bordered path, or seen through a vine-clad pergola, are delightfully suggestive of small, informal gatherings. So also are the little summer-houses which one so frequently comes upon, nestling in some quiet corner half hidden by masses of bloom and graceful foliage, or perched, perhaps, after the fashion of an old English gazebo, upon some elevation commanding an extensive view of the garden and surrounding country.

In style of architecture these garden-houses vary infinitely from quaint, rustic shelters, thatched with straw or fragrant pine needles, to miniature temples of classic design. In furnishing and equipment they also differ widely, for while some contain only a few simple benches, many of the more pretentious ones are so conveniently arranged and fitted up that it is an easy matter to serve a dainty chafing-dish supper, or entertain one's friends at an afternoon tea even on a rainy day. Indeed, one occasionally finds a garden-house so well constructed that it may be used with comfort on sunny days all through the winter months.

Not a few gardens owe their attractiveness in part to the beautiful arbors and pergolas which embellish them. The arbor is by no means a new-fangled accessory, nor is the pergola, for that matter, but the introduction of the latter into this country is of more recent date. This arrangement of pillars, crossbeams and rafters, which we have borrowed from the vineyards of sunny Italy, often constitutes one of the loveliest features of the garden, when, draped with delicate wistaria or hardy climbing roses, it arches a well-kept path. Placed against a high wall or the side of a house, such a structure is also effective. It should be remembered, however, that a pergola, like every other garden ornament, must have a reasonably good excuse for existing, else it becomes superfluous and serves to mar rather than augment the beauty of the scene.

Among the more purely ornamental accessories fountains claim an important position. To lovers of water gardens they make a distinct appeal, since their basins make an admirable setting for aquatic plants of all sorts. Gold-fish, too, will thrive in their shallow pools and amply repay one for the trouble of obtaining them by keeping the fountain free from that tantalizing summer pest, the mosquito. Fountains and basins can be purchased in a number of different materials, but concrete, the happy medium between inartistic iron and ex-

The Philosophy of the Pleasures of Life

Minister of Orthodox Congregational Church Charitable in His Views of the World

[EXTRACTS FROM SERMON BY L. H. RUGE, SUNDAY, AUG. 14, 1910]

TEXT: "There is nothing better for a man than that he should eat and drink, and that he should make his soul enjoy good in his labor. This also I saw, that it was from the hand of God."—Ecclesiastes 2: 24.

Commentators have strained both language and logic to show that the ancient philosopher did not mean the plain inference of these words. But some modern critics are bold enough to say that he recognized the wisdom of what is termed worldly pleasure.

Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "don't be afraid of the truth." But we are. If, however, there is a wisdom in the pleasures of life let us not be afraid of the truth.

The sin of worldly pleasure was once canonical. The church put taboo tags upon every worldly pleasure, a ban upon even the sweet, wholesome frolics of God's grown up children, for that is all we are. The church held to its professions, confessions, and one-sided dogmatic, ecclesiastical processional, and on the other side went the world with its business, ambitions and pleasures. Each went its own way. The church and the world never mingled.

The church and the world blends today. This is a fact apparent and recognized. The line between the two is obliterated and none but an ecclesiastical egotist now draws the line. In fact the world rather than the church insists on drawing the line.

In the larger unfolding of humanity and the universe there is a conviction growing that other things than simply religion are good, and things once considered sinful are recognized as beneficial and good.

We are beginning to see that we cannot reform or regenerate the world by emasculation. All reforms somehow fall into the fatal process of mere emasculation. At first the church started in to leave the world severely alone. It was so easy to draw a line and come out from among the sinners. The process of reform goes a step further and wages a bitter war of emasculation. It fights the saloon. That is not so hard. We see an evil and hack away at it, an easy process. But it is hard to get men to resist the evil and replace it with a pure pleasure.

Let us consider a few of what has been termed the grosser pleasures, leaving the higher pleasures for a future consideration.

There is the pleasure of the dance. It is easy enough to denounce that. But to dance is instinctive. All children dance. The feet of the young move instinctively, the body is rhythmic with vibrant life and music touches the electric button.

Dancing is said to excite the passion. Well, what of it? Something is going to excite the passion. Why not cut out everything that will excite the passion? Why not cut the jugular vein? That will effectually cool everything. It is an easy thing to emasculate passions, just kill them. Sex-attraction is natural, universal, ineradicable, legitimate, divine; inherently and intrinsically good or God would not have created it. We presume to take issue with the Creator on moral good and evil. As far as young and unmarried people are concerned I see no reason why refined dancing should be evil. The energy and exhilaration of youth craves expression in pleasurable movement, in the free play of limbs, the display of graces, the expenditure of nerve currents. All this is certainly a need that can be beautifully and safely expressed in dancing and instead of putting all forms of dancing in the catalog of damnable sins let us see if refined grace of movement may not be a legitimate pleasure.

There is the pleasure of the drama. The dramatic instinct cannot be crushed. The drama is life with the mask off. We read the story of the human heart on the stage in a continuous movement. We see ourselves as others see us and we are moved and fascinated to see our very soul there. The church today is wisely tolerant of the drama, in fact it pathetically tries to imitate it in its entertainments. Praise what is good and denounce what is bad as in everything else.

There is the ever-growing pleasure of club life of all sorts. The woman's club movement has been severely criticised, but as it has become a permanent institution to be recognized let us see what can be done to make this institution one of the great pleasures of the world, as it is already productive of real good.

A men's club is a feature in every community. In some instances it is supplanting the saloon. In England it is actually transforming towns of drunkenness and licentiousness into safe and decent communities. Men go there to read, write a letter, chat, smoke, play cards and enjoy it. In these clubs all forms of dissipation and indecency are never tolerated. This is better than mere emasculation.

As all enjoyment of life depends upon physical health, outdoor sports and recreations to develop this are essential, and have in themselves become the greatest pleasures of all.

The pleasure of pure idleness in moderation is no evil. Every one with any sense makes a break for all outdoors. It is said, "the devil never takes a vacation." So much the worse for the devil, poor devil. And why should we follow the devil's example?

Let us get away to the pleasure haunts of nature. Let the medicinal tonic of all outdoors penetrate the pores of the body. The greatest discovery of the nineteenth century was the discovery of the sunshine and storm, the wind and the sea. Let the ardent sun kiss you and the storm buffet you and the wind and the sea caress you. Ruddy, sunburned cheeks and arms are a badge of health. Take off more clothes. Civilized clothing is almost a crime; overcoats, especially fur-lined ones, are assassins. The pallor of death and disease is under the bundle of deadly stuff that ensnares us. I see bodies that come down for the first time to dip in the sea as ghastly looking as a cellar-grown plant.

A traditional giant wrestler is said to have reinforced his youth and strength every time he was thrown to the earth. So we renew, reinforce our youth and strength every time we rest on the bosom of our old mother earth. She soothes, rests and refreshes all her tired children that come to her.

I should like to elaborate the pleasures of travel, but this is worthy of individual attention. There is a great charm in going from place to place, in seeing the wonders of the world God-created and man-made over. Even a

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Gibson gave a dinner Sunday evening, at the Seabury cottage, which they are occupying at Beverly Farms, for Miss Helen Taft. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Culbertson, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Wilkins, and Robert Potter. Mr. and Mrs. Gibson left Monday for New York where Mr. Gibson is to superintend the selection of the cast for his new play "Drifting." This play Mr. Gibson has just finished and it is most unusual in that it contains only three characters. The last act is said to be one of the most realistic and unusual that has ever been seen in New York. The question revolves in an absolutely new channel and the play ends with a never-to-be-forgotten punch. The young dramatist places the woman in the most original and at the same time embarrassing position. The question arises: "If you were the woman, what would you do?" Mr. and Mrs. Gibson go to Newport the end of this week to visit Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Vanderbilt and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Haggin, the latter being a cousin of Mr. Gibson.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, 2d, are leaving Manchester next Monday for Raquette Lake, Hamilton Co., New York, for a month or so at the camp of Mr. Carnegie's mother.

Master Robert Treat Paine, 3rd, has been absent from Pride's Crossing some six weeks, being a member of a boys' camp in Maine. His grandfather, Mr. Mattingly of Washington, is a house guest at Pride's of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Paine, jr.

familiar figure on the country roads in her carriage and was a noted whip at Newport when she elected to make that famous resort the scene of her social operations. The unhappy termination of her marriage to Aurel Batonyi has caused her to seek the seclusion of such a place this summer. She brought to Essex a number of her blue ribbon horses and fine carriages. The lease of the farm was made through the Meagher real estate agency, Gloucester. Mrs. Roche was in Newport last week for the tennis tournament.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Raymond have come on from Readville and are occupying the Cunningham cottage at West Manchester for the balance of the summer. They are to have a residence built on their property, recently purchased, off Beach street, Manchester, opposite the park.

Mrs. J. J. Weil took a few friends on a coach drive along the North Shore, from Magnolia, Wednesday afternoon, in the party being Mrs. Fred Bonner, Mrs. Allan Ryan, Mrs. E. A. Powers (Margaret Gummy) and Miss Irene Rossiter. The Rossiters, by the way, are the family whose large home at Flushing, L. I., was destroyed by fire a few days ago.

North Shore ladies who have patronized the Chanticleer Inn at Montserrat are very much pleased with the quality of its service and its general attractiveness. Mrs. C. W. Clark was over from Marblehead recently and gave a luncheon. Mrs. H. W. Peabody gave a tea at the Inn last Friday to have some Montserrat ladies meet her house guests, Mrs. Hoyt and daughter.

Hon. George Von L. Meyer and wife spent the last week-end at Newport, leaving Hamilton Saturday afternoon. Wednesday evening of this week they gave a dinner at Hamilton for President Taft.

SOCIETY NOTES

The Essex County club was the scene of another brilliant gathering of North Shore people Wednesday afternoon, for the weekly band concert. The verandas and lawn were alive with people, and scores of little afternoon teas were given at the tables set on the verandas, on the lawn and under the tent in front of the clubhouse. The club is very much the center of social life along the North Shore this year, which bespeaks the wisdom of the members who were so zealous in enlarging the house last year, and who have since enlarged the activities of the place by running it on a broader and more democratic basis. Walter D. Denegre, Amory Eliot and Samuel Carr were among those who were so anxious to see the club's activities enlarged.

Several hundred people were at the club Wednesday afternoon. Among those noticed were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Maxwell Parker, who motored over from Bass Rocks, and had with them Mr. Whitmore and Miss Morgan; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Ferguson, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Cook, from the Oceanside; Mrs. J. A. Janney of Philadelphia and Mrs. Lee McMillan of New Orleans; Hon. and Mrs. George W. Baxter and daughters; Mrs. A. M. Lewis of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Denegre; R. M. Winthrop and sister, Mrs. Grant Forbes and Mr. Forbes; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Devins; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Burnham; Miss Mabel Boardman; Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Frazier and guests; Mrs. John Allen and William Zeller of Chicago; Mrs. Alexander Britton and Miss Catherine Britton; Mrs. B. A. Beal; Mrs. Thomas Scott; Mrs. Charles L. Storer; Mrs. W. Farrington and Miss Pauline Farrington who motored up from Rye Beach; Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Hood and Miss J. Wilder; Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Bemis and Mrs. Bemis' mother, Mrs. Cummings, who is at the Oceanside; Mrs. George Lee; Mrs. Francis P. Lefavour and friends; Mrs. W. C. Winters; Mrs. R. F. Greeley, Miss Marion Greeley and Mrs. C. B. Taylor; Miss Meycea Newell; Miss Minna Lyman; Miss Amy Curtis; Mrs. E. C. Swift and Mrs. Denning; Mrs. Clarence Moore; Mrs. D. H. Hostetter; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Munn; Mr and Mrs. S. P. Bremer; Miss Amie Clark; Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Merrill; Dr. and Mrs. Lancashire; Mrs. Wallace Goodrich.

Francis J. Cotting of Pride's Crossing was host for a small dinner party at the Essex County club Wednesday evening. There were covers for eight.

Several luncheon parties were given at the Essex County club Wednesday afternoon, previous to the band concert. T. B. Gannett was host for a party of ten. Mrs. McMillan gave a luncheon for eight.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley of Nyack, N. Y., who have the Perkins cottage on Sea street, Manchester, are entertaining Mr. Bradley's sister, Miss Bradley from Nyack, who will remain with them until the family conclude their stay here about the middle of September.

Quincy A. Shaw of Pride's has returned from a combined business and pleasure trip to Michigan. Mrs. Shaw is still absent from Pride's.

Contractors are figuring on a storage building, which Henry Clay Frick plans to add to his Pride's estate.

"Willow Bank," Beverly Cove, the W. A. Slater residence, was the scene of a pretty luncheon of 16 covers on Monday of this week.

FIVE HUNDRED LIVES LOST !

From the Orient, that place of fanaticism, mystery, wealth and poverty comes that most beautiful of nature's product—the pearl. In its natural state without cutting or polishing, with the tints of the opal, the blush of the rose, the deep of the cavern and the light of the sun, the irritated mollusk gives us this, the most rare and costly of all gems.

In their search each year at least five hundred persons perish, owing to the hazards of diving, and the lives of all men following this calling are comparatively short as the pressure of the water affects the heart action.

There is no commodity so universally marketable as pearls and precious stones, their value being recognized in all parts of the globe and each year pearls are becoming more rare.

The fisheries have this year produced scarcely more than half the usual number and the demand is greater than ever. In Europe, this season, not one new pearl of importance has been shown.

There are now in this country many collections of such size and quality as to excite the envy of the crowned heads of Europe. The writer has personal knowledge of six necklaces with centre pearls weighing more than seventy-five grains and whose total weight is between one and two thousand grains, thus making the value of each string from $500,000 to more than a million dollars.

The difficulty of collectors is in finding those pearls to add to their strings whose color and lustre, and perfection and size will accord, and owing to the scarcity of gems, the question is not where shall I go to buy pearls, but where can I go that I may find what I want?

Within the past year the world's most famous pearl was bought and sold by Messrs. Dreicer & Company after having rested for nearly half a century in the collection of the Earl of Dudley, previous to which time it had been in the family of one of the Spanish Princes. This is called the Dudley Pearl; it weighs over two hundred grains and its value is about two hundred thousand dollars. Such color and lustre and perfection and size, the Orient has never produced except in this one instance. This pearl is now in the possession of one of America's greatest men.

What is the life of the pearl? Such a question is asked so often it might be interesting to note that the term "dead" as applied to pearls generally means lack of lustre and the age, if they may be said to have any, to which they may live has never been exactly determined. It has been the good fortune of the writer to have seen pearls said to be more than two hundred years old possessing all the virtues of a newly found one. Two pearls from the collection of Catherine the Great of Russia, are now owned by a New York dealer and are of splendid color and lustre.

One point which is not generally thought of by purchasers is the enrichment of this country through the importation of jewels here. Every year there are brought in upwards of $50,000,000 in gems which remain here and increase the assets of the people of America to an extent hardly believable. An interesting exhibition of fine pearls is to be seen in the studios of Dreicer & Company at the Colonnade in Magnolia and the mounted pieces are in designs seldom seen outside a museum.

During the absence in Europe of Amory A. Lawrence, John Lawrence and family have removed from Topsfield and will occupy the former's estate at Beverly Cove for the remainder of the season.

The operetta of the "Chorus Boy" given in Village hall, Annisquam, so successfully on several evenings under the direction of Chamberlain Brown, its author, drew on the summer colonists for much of its amateur talent for the production of the operetta. At Turk's Head Inn, Land's End, have arrived the family party of George W. Perry, St. Louis; Mrs. Newell and daughter, Winchester; E. Spencer Blight, Philadelphia; Mrs. John T. Perry, Albany; The Misses Barr, Oak Lane, Pa.; and the auto party of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Howe, Brooklyn.

She made her business arrangements for the lease of the farm while at the hotel where her financial mail came addressed Mrs. Frances Roche and some of her valuables in the hotel safe were marked Batonyi

Miss Helen Dobler, an annual guest at the Delphine, from New York, is back for an August and September sojourn and is being cordially greeted by her many friends.

Rocky Neck came forward this week as a centre of entertainment for lovers of yachts and as the mecca of Massachusetts yachtsmen. The Gloucester Yacht club, which has a handsome clubhouse on Wiley street, next to Hotel Rockaway, was host for the Massachusetts Yacht Racing association on Thursday, an annual custom, and there was a big fleet of yachts on hand. The annual open races of the Annisquam Yacht club will follow tomorrow, Saturday, August 20, and many of the yachts participate also in those races. The club gave an entertainment and social smoker for the visitors and their friends. A. Wilder Pollard of Boston and Eastern Point was a member of the committee of arrangements. AT THE HOTELS.

The hotels are turning away guests at Magnolia—the busiest days of the entire season makes Magnolia the busiest spot on the North Shore. Never has there been so much demand for accommodations at the hotels and never has there been so much life. The tennis has been finished and now the horse show holds the center of the social stage. Tomorrow the whole North Shore will turn toward Magnolia beach. Then—next Wednesday evening—comes the smartest event of the summer at Magnolia—the mid-summer ball at the Oceanside. A change has been made in the customary arrangements for this big function, the principal change being in the date, from Saturday to Wednesday. Dancing will be from nine to one in the large dining room, which will be in gala dress of color for the occasion. Admissions will be by card only. Guests of the hotels, and any of the North Shore cottagers and their guests, may obtain cards by applying at the hotel office.

The Oceanside management has decided to keep the hotel open this year until Friday, Sept. 30.

Magnolia now has its board-walk all along the beach, and a grand improvement it is. The walk was built as one result of the lecture given at the Oceanside last week by Parkinson, the photographer, inasmuch as the lecture was given to raise money for new walks at Magnolia. The walk starts at the far end of the beach and extends to the bathing pavilion. It is three feet wide.

C. M. Knox, a nephew of ex-Governor Baxter of Tennessee, is visiting the Baxters at the Oceanside.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Ferguson of New York have returned to the Oceanside for the balance of August. Mrs. Ferguson, it will be remembered, was Miss Donna Beach, one of the belles at Magnolia for several seasons past. She was the center of a group of young people at the Essex County club Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. King of Cleveland arrived at the Oceanside last Friday for the balance of the season. They are friends of the Millers of Buffalo.

Negotiations have been closed whereby the stock of the Oceanside Hotel Company, owned by Daniel Low of Salem and Frank R. Green of Boston, has passed into the hands of W. S. Warren and interests represented by him. Mr. Warren was a partner of the late C. A. Lindsay at Hampton Terrace, Augusta, Ga. Charles E. Phenix will continue as president of the Oceanside Hotel Company, Mr. Warren taking Mr. Low's place as treasurer, and the hotel will be managed by Mr. Phenix and Mr. Warren. Plans are already under way for a number of improvements to be made for next season, one of the most important being the erection of a building on the site now occupied by Underbrush cottage. The first floors will be taken up by the power plant and laundry and the four upper floors will be used as a dormitory for employees. Much new furniture will be bought and the whole equipment made as modern and complete as any resort hotel in New England.

The Mexican Ambassador and two boys, who have been spending the summer at the Oceanside, Magnolia, left Wednesday for Washington, having concluded their visit on the North Shore.

Mrs. M. Edgar Roberts and son S. Edgar Roberts of New York, are old time patrons of the Oceanside to return this week for the remaining weeks of the season.

A motor party making the Aborn their headquarters the first of this week was composed of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Stearns and R. H. Stearns, jr., the latter registering from New York.

The international races at Marblehead have been recognized in a social way by North Shore cottagers. On Monday afternoon of this week Herbert M. Sears of Pride's Crossing entertained in honor of the Spanish visitors with an al fresco luncheon on the grounds of Wood Rock, his Pride's estate, a company of 75 being present. Music was provided by the Boston Cadet Band, 22 musicians, during the reception and luncheon. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas gave a luncheon at "Netherfield," their Pride's estate in honor of the yachtsmen from Spain.

Tuesday night President and Mrs. Taft dined with Col. and Mrs. William D. Sohier at Beverly Cove, Col. Sohier and family being neighbors of the presidential family.

Miss Helen Taft and Master Charles Taft were in Marblehead Wednesday to witness the international races.

Dr. and Mrs. Percival Lombard of Boston and Beverly Cove entertained for a few days this week Mr. and Mrs. Thomas of Buzzard's Bay.

The beautiful gardens of W. S. Spaulding connected with his Pride's Crossing estate are the mecca of many friends of the family and those privileged to view them and much information is sought about them daily by lovers of floriculture.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell (Barbara Higginson) are back from their wedding trip, a portion of which was spent in Canada, and are now in Pride's as the guests of Mrs. Wendell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Higginson, and they will be welcome additions to the younger smart set on the shore.

Mrs. Henry P. King and Henry P. King, jr., of Pride's are registered at Mt. Kineo House, Mt. Kineo, Maine. Mr. King, sr., has departed on a yachting cruise.

Judge and Mrs. W. C. Loring, who have spent the summer in British Columbia and the neighboring territory, are due at Pride's about September 1, and their summer tenant the Frazier's of Chicago, will then take their departure. Mr. Frazier expected a visit this week from Theodore P. Shonts of New York, but a sudden change in his plans will delay it this week.

Mrs. Robert S. Bradley of Boston and Pride's Crossing has as her house guest, Miss Newell, her sister, from Boston.

Fulton Cutting of New York and Beverly Farms had a close call from serious injuries Monday when his auto came to grief as he was passing through Fall River on his way to Newport, where he went for the tennis tournament. Miss Julia Hoyt of New York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Hoyt, who summer at Staatsburg, N. Y., was with him at the time, and she, too, fortunately escaped injury. The accident was caused by the steering wheel breaking. It was only because the car was going slow at the time that the results were not more serious.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Jones of Magnolia returned last evening from a motor trip into New Hampshire. They went as far as Walpole, Fitzwilliam and Jeffrey.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gaff motored over from Oysterville, Cape Cod, the first of the week and were guests for a few days of Mrs. Oliver Cromwell at Magnolia. Miss Louise Cromwell, by the way, is one of the most popular Washington young ladies who are spending the summer at Magnolia. Miss Cromwell was to have come out last winter in Washington, but owing to the death of her father she did not make her debut. She is one of the prettiest girls at Magnolia this year and is always surrounded by a host of admirers. She is being entertained much by the North Shore colony, in a quiet way, and is always invited to the most exclusive functions.

Miss Dorothy Hancock has returned to Hamilton, after being at Newport for tennis week.

Mrs. John L. Thorndike entertained more than 200 guests at a garden party at her West Manchester estate last Saturday afternoon. The party was held on the lawn fronting the cottage, from 4.30 to 6.30 o'clock and during this time a concert was given by the Salem Cadet Band.

The Macdonald cottage at Magnolia has been rented through the agency of Jonathan May to H. H. Adams of Dalas, Tex., for the balance of the season.

A. C. Horstmann of the German embassy entertained a few friends at dinner at the North Shore Grill, Magnolia, Wednesday evening.

Count d'Adhemar of Washington is one of the young bachelors of leisure who is spending the summer at the Oceanside in Magnolia. The Count has a beautiful country place in Virginia, where he spends much of his time.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hatch and chauffeur and Miss Kauffmann and Miss Cogswell, friends of the McAdoos of New York, arrived at the Oceanside, Magnolia, Thursday for a short visit. They came here from Portsmouth.

Fraulein Wolters' presentation of Miss Ida Mulle at the Manchester Town hall last Saturday afternoon brought together a large number of the summer colony, who were delighted with Miss Mulle's songs and impersonations. The success of the affair, however, was not what it would have been had not Frau. Wolters been disappointed in making her final arrangements, the delay being caused by Miss Mulle not reaching this country until shortly before her appearance here last Saturday.

Mrs. Bradley's home is admirably located for an affair of this kind and it is expected that one of the largest gatherings of North Shore people this summer will be in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Frick gave a large dinner at their Pride's Crossing residence last Saturday evening. The President and Mrs. Taft were among their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore (Miss Hanna) were presented with a daughter, Wednesday morning at their summer cottage in Beverly Farms.

In the death of Robert Treat Paine, Boston's distinguished philanthropist, at his home in Waltham last week, the North Shore loses one of its oldest and best known residents. For many years Mr. Paine was a summer resident of Pride's Crossing. He once owned and developed that part of Pride's Crossing now known as Paine Place and on which are located some of the best known estates on the shore, including that of Frederick Ayer, F. L. Higginson and where Mrs. L. M. Sargent is now building a magnificent residence. He leaves five children, Mrs. John H. Storer, Robert Treat Paine, jr., Ethel L., George L., and Lydia C. Paine. Mr. Paine held a position in the country as one of its leading figures in the work of organized charities.

MANCHESTER YACHT CLUB WATER SPORTS BIG SUCCESS.

The good graces favored the Manchester Yacht club last Friday afternoon for their annual water sports, for the threatening weather of the morning gave way to a bright sunshiny afternoon. There was a large crowd on hand for the sports and much interest was shown by the young people, there being plenty of contestants in each of the events. Many of the well-known cottagers were on the club-house veranda with their children and friends. Several large yachts gaily decorated with flags lay in the stream surrounded by a number of smaller crafts of all descriptions. Among the larger boats were Commodore S. Parker Bremer's "Velthra," S. Reed Anthony's "Ruth," "The Weow" under charter of Sidney Hutchinson of Beverly Farms, and the "Mahdeen IV.," owned by A. C. Needham.

Norton Wigglesworth had charge of the events and proved a most efficient man for the place, as everything was run off with snap and vim.

One of the most interesting events was the walking the pole contest. Charlie Taft, the President's son, came off victorious in this event, snatching the flag from its place on the tip end of the pole each of the three times he attempted.

The first event was a canoe race of a quarter mile, in which first prize was secured by Robert T. P. Storer and Robert Vickery, and second by George Bartlett and Oliver Church. The third contestants were George E. Washburn and Robert T. Gannett.

In the junior canoe race there were five starters, which was for the same distance. In this event James Kuhn and John Merrill captured first prize, Charles Taft and Thomas E. P. Rice second. Others who contested and and finished in order were: Everett W. Fabyan and William Otis. Theodore S. Tozer and Jack Caner, John Caswell and Charles Hodges, jr.

Walking the pole was one of the most interesting and amusing events. In this three prizes were offered, two for best fancy costumes and one to him who secured the flag at the end of the pole. There was but one contestant for fancy costume, Charles Hodges, jr., who made quite a hit as Perseus. Each contestant was given three trials, the following being entered: John Caswell, Everett W. Fabyan, C. E. Hodges, jr., E. P. Rice, James Keelen, Jerome Kuhn, Charles P. Taft 2d, Theodore Storer and John Merrill.

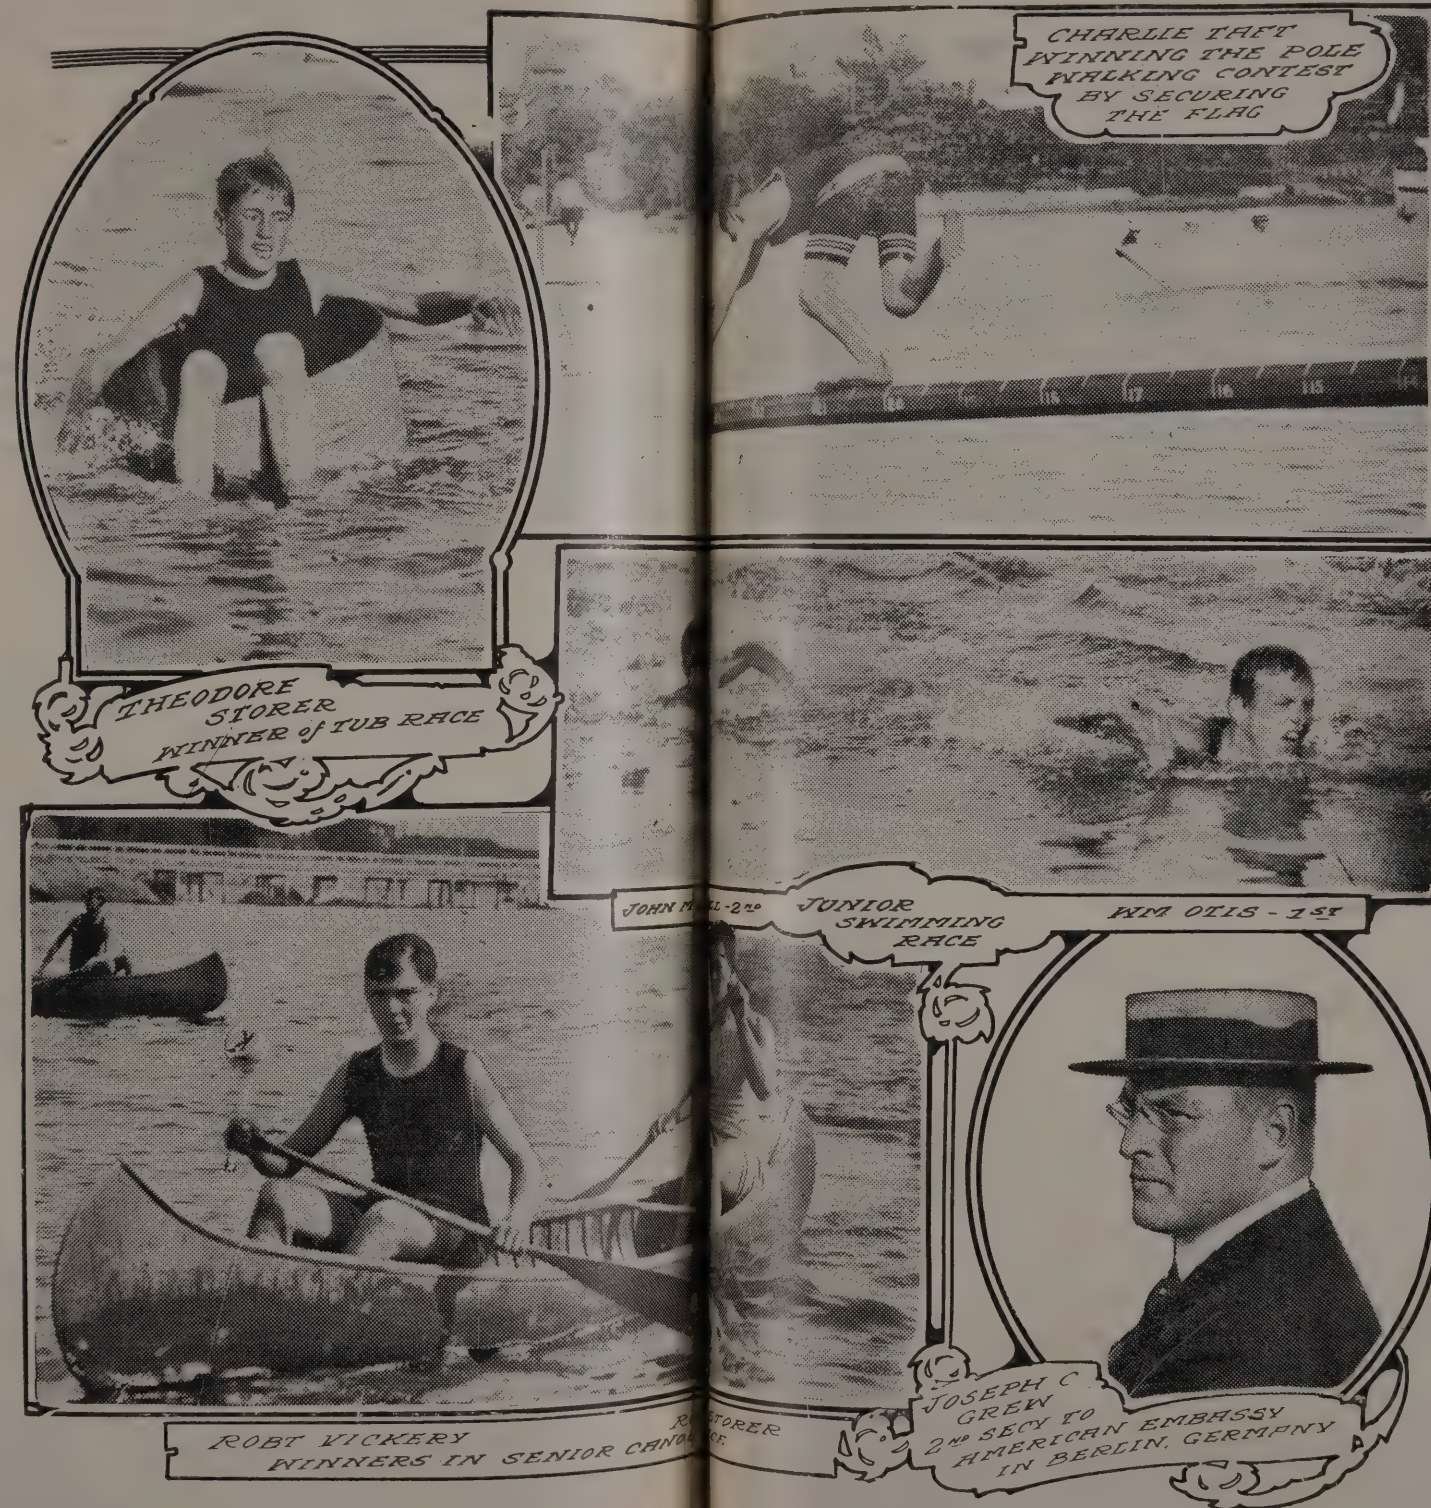

Charlie Taft proved the steadiest in this most nerve-trying test and made 19 feet at the first trial, 17 at the second and 21 the third, getting the flag twice and breaking it down once and was awarded first prize, amid the plaudits of the spectators. C. E. Hodges, jr. made 13½, 21 and 17 feet, respectively and secured the flag once for second prize.

For the canoe polo there were three teams and two halves of the five minutes each were played. In the first heat R. T. P. Storer, Robert Vickery and Walter Paine were opposed to R. Gannett, Oliver Church and George Bartlett. Storer's team winning after a spirited bout by a score of 2 to 0. Storer's team then matched Gordon Grant, Philip Wharton and Charles Curtis, some good playing resulting, but Storer's crew had the advantage from the start and won out, 3 to 0.

The canoe tilting was another event which contributed considerable amusement, several of the contestants being overturned one or more times. The first heat was won by George Bartlett and Oliver Church, who were matched against Robert Vickery and Robert Storer.

For the second heat Philip Wharton and D. R. Sigourney were their opponents and this heat they also won handily.

In the junior swimming contest of 25 yards, for boys under 16, W. A. Otis was the winner of the first prize and Jack Merrill second. Others competing were T. E. P. Rice, John Caswell, Theo Storer, James Kuhn, Jerome Kuhn, Jack Caner and C. P. Taft, 2d.

In the senior swimming race of 50 yards the first prize was won by D. R. Sigourney and second by Oliver Church, other contestants being Philip Wharton, Robert Gannett, George Bartlett, Robert Storer and G. Grant.

For the tub races there were only five contestants, all boys under 16 years. These were Theodore Storer, Thomas D. Cabot, Charles E. Hodges, jr., and Jerome Kuhn, Storer taking first honors and Cabot second.

the contestant sitting in the bow of the canoe and propelling it from that point only. The first heat between the seniors, Robert Vickery and R. T. P. Storer vs Kennard Howard and Walter Paine was won by the former, and in the juniors Theodore Storer and C. E. Hodges, jr., defeated Thomas Cabot and H. P. King, jr. In the second heat Theodore Storer was declared the winner of first prize and Robert Vickery second.

Prof. J. B. Green of the Brookline swimming school was present and gave an exhibition of numerous fancy strokes and novel stunts.

The prizes in all events were cups suitably marked. At the close of the sports tea was served in the clubhouse. Mrs. S. Parker Bremer and Mrs. S. Reed Anthony poured. Messrs. William L. Putnam, Norton Wigglesworth, John H. Storer and Charles E. Hodges were the committee for arrangements, and William A. Tucker, Harrison K. Caner and Herbert W. Mason were the judges.

In the accompanying views of the sports, taken by the Globe photographer, and very kindly loaned us by the Globe, is a very good picture of Joseph Grew, who is now in this country on a visit. Mr. Grew was an interested spectator. He was "snapped" by the camera man while sitting on the float watching the canoe polo.

East Gloucester

Ex-Congressman J. Davis Brodhead and family are enjoying their annual sojourn at Hawthorne Inn where they are very popular, Mrs. Brodhead being a member of many tea parties at the Willowfield, the most recent being that of Mrs. C. C. Overton of New York.

Two hundred and fifty dollars was realized for Hawthorne Inn's free bed at the Addison Gilbert Hospital by the recent vaudeville performance given at the casino.

Dr. Edward Squibb's wife and daughter from Brooklyn, who were at Hawthorne Inn in June, have returned for the remainder of the season.

Col. Edward M. Vickery and Miss Vickery of Baltimore and Hawthorne Inn, who take an active part in the social and golfing interests here, have been joined by the Colonel's son, R. Vickery.

Mrs. Frances Wayland and Miss Cicely Wayland of Philadelphia are taking an active part as usual in the social doings of Hawthorne Inn.

Baseball has been resurrected to its former popularity as a summer event between the teams of local hotels here, and Hawthorne Inn and the Harbor View teams, as of yore, organized and crossed bats last Friday afternoon at Webster's field and the summer fans and fair rooters to the number of several hundred went by auto and electrics to witness the contest. It seemed indeed like East Gloucester's "good old summer time" again to see the enthusiasm and hear the hotel yells. Harbor View came out victorious the score being 19-6. The guests of the Harbor View wore Yale blue and Princeton yellow. This evening the Harbor View management tenders the members of the ball team, their friends and guests a grand ball in the casino from 9 to 1 a. m.

Recent arrivals at the Harbor View include Miss Alice Willoughby, Washington; Mrs. Endemann and daughters, Miss Peacock, Brooklyn; A. L. Gardner and wife, Baltimore; William Fuller Curtis, the New York artist.

Bass Rocks

Dr. and Mrs. William Jarvie had as week-end guests at "Craigmore," their Bass Rocks summer home, their son-in-law, Mr. Fletcher, and their little granddaughter, most welcome visitors always. They came to Gloucester in the fine steam yacht of Mr. Fletcher.

Philip Wharton, Oliver Church, John Caswell, E. O'Hara and E. R. Sigourney participated in the diving contests, for which a spring board was used, the judges awarding first prize to Philip Wharton and second to Oliver Church.

The one-end canoe race was something of a novelty,

MARBLEHEAD

This is the week this famous yachting town took the centre of the stage as a North Shore town of special importance, for the international races between the Spaniards and Americans have been in progress here. The fine array of craft were enlarged early in the week by the arrival of the U. S. Revenue cutters, Gresham, Ascushnet and Androscoggin, which added a naval touch to this notable marine picture. The yacht clubs, hotels, clubs and private boarding houses have been doing more than capacity business this week, particularly Thursday, when the harbor illumination was in order; and at all the yacht clubs Thursday was ladies' day and at the Eastern every table was engaged for informal dining. There was music all day at this clubhouse. The ladies, too, were guests of honor at the Corinthian and there were two settings at both the five and 7 o'clock dinners and special music. It was indeed a gala day and the demand for miniature Spanish and American flags created a lively business. There were band concerts at Crocker Park also on Thursday evening where the Spanish flag was hoisted with a salute of 21 guns as was the American flag with the same salute. The fireworks float was located off the Eastern Yacht club and the magnificent illumination was from Point Neck to Fort Sewall. The Spanish visitors are being entertained at the Eastern Yacht club.

Mrs. William G. Barker of Salem, opened her Marblehead Neck estate Tuesday afternoon for a bridge whist party in aid of the work of the Children's Island Hospital, Marblehead. Miss Barker was the prime mover in the affair and there was a large number of handsomely gowned women in attendance, many coming from other resorts by auto.

Swampscott

Ulysses S. Grant, jr., of California has been registered at the Lincoln House. Dr. A. B. Kinney, city physician of Syracuse, concluded a long stay at this hotel on Tuesday of this week and before his departure made one of a party who went to Provincetown by steamer to see the Pilgrim monument. Other members of the party were Mr. and Mrs. Devlin, Detroit, and H. W. Blaney, Swampscott. Annual guests from Syracuse, who have returned to the Lincoln are Mrs. C. Henry Hubbard and daughter. The H. H. Nickersons of Winchester are entertaining at the hotel Capt. and Mrs. P. A. Nickerson of the same city. Auto parties registering at The Lincoln included Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Passmore, Germantown; G. L. Beecher and family party, Detroit; George McCann, wife and son, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Tidd, Elmira, N. Y. Mrs. Carl Barth has had as guests at the hotel Miss Fay Cord and Miss Jessie Davis of Boston, accomplished vocalist and pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Daniel, Cleveland; Mrs. H. H. Searles, Des Moines; Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Hall, Grand Rapids, are western guests of The Lincoln.

At The Elms last Friday evening, the complimentary ball to the Swampscott cottagers brought forty couples to a very delightful occasion. There was an orchestra in attendance from Lynn and light refreshments were served. A party of 20 young people, guests at The Oceanside, Marblehead Neck, were also present.

Hotel Fairfax, Beverly.

Leonardo O. Y. Reyes, of Cavite, P. I., governor of Cavite and special commissioner from the Philippine Islands, who came to see President Taft, registered at The Fairfax, and proved to be a very interesting guest. Commissioner Reyes was much impressed with the North Shore. Mrs. McClintock of Washington, another guest at the hotel is an intimate friend of Mrs. Taft and prominent in the social life of the capital. Gist Blair of Silver Springs, Maryland, A. A. "The Pilgrim's Progress" is old and yet ever new. The world never tires of following Christian from the "City of Destruction" to the "Heavenly City." During the next four Friday evenings, beginning tonight a series of stereoptican lectures illustrating this story will be given at the Village church. The musical service will begin as usual at 7:45 o'clock and the lights will be turned out for the lecture at 8:30 o'clock. All are invited.

The reception to the members of the Men's and Women's clubs held last Wednesday evening was a decided success. The hall was beautifully decorated with streamers of green and yellow, oak leaves and yellow flowers. Long's Orchestra furnished the music and a delightful evening was enjoyed by about 200 members of the two clubs.

Henry K. Kimball, secretary of the Massachusetts fish and game protective association, notes in a circular just issued, that the principal changes in fish and game laws made by the last legislature are as follows: Upland plover, close season extended to July 15, 1915; shooting from motor boats, permitted when at anchor; deer, one may be killed with a shotgun in the five western counties from sunrise of third Monday in November to sunset of following Saturday; torching for fish in waters at Cohasset, Scituate, Duxbury and Plymouth, allowed only by "permit" from selectmen; pollution of streams by waste or refuse of any kind, prohibited; trout fishing season from April 1 to August 1; gray squirrels open season October 15 to November 16; season, limit 15.

The House-Fly.

The average person scarcely realizes the danger there is in harboring the well-known house-fly—if they did, they would do more to destroy the pest. The government is doing its best to educate the people of the necessity to keep the house clear of them and although the movement is young it has already borne good results. There are a number of good remedies: that of "Fly-Go" seems to eradicate them the quickest of any and it can be bought very cheaply.

Special Town Meeting.

The business of the Special Town Meeting at Manchester, Monday evening, to hear the report of the selectmen relative to the construction of the sea wall at West Manchester was disposed of in record time. The meeting was called to order at two minutes past eight and at 8:09 it was dissolved, $2000 having been appropriated in the meanwhile.

The articles of the special warrant were read by Town clerk Jewett, there being at the time about 12 voters present. R. C. Allen was elected moderator. Chairman Swett of the Board of Selectmen presented a report in which the board recommended the construction of a concrete wall on top of the present granite wall, the same to be in conformity to that already built along the beach at West Manchester station by Lester Leland and other property owners. An appropriation of $2000 was recommended, also that the wall be built by contract.

W. C. Rust thought this move was in the right direction and was for the best interests of the town. He moved that the report of the board be accepted and its recommendations adopted. It was so voted. The wall to be built by the town will be some 300 feet in length. It will start in the centre of the beach and will encircle the roadway to the property of C. E. Cotting. An en-

Mrs. Frank A. Rowe is having a few friends at her home on School street this afternoon to meet her sister, Miss Evelyn Eldridge, who recently came to Manchester from Panama.

The Drug clerks dance next Friday night, August 26th! It is to be one of the largest as well as one of the most select dancing parties of the summer. Long's orchestra of twelve pieces will furnish the music and between 8 and 9 will give a concert. Dancing will keep up until one o'clock.

Joseph Saunier established a new record for a single string of candle pins at the Seaside alleys Wednesday night beating the record held by Daniel Reardon since last winter by one pin. He rolled 144, the previous record for the alleys was 143. He got his high score by bunching a spare and three strikes.

The Manchester Launch club had splendid weather over the last weekend for their cruise along the shore, through Gloucester harbor and Annisquam river to Annisquam. There were eight boats in the party, which left Manchester at 2.30 Saturday afternoon, the trip to Annisquam being made in a little short of two hours. Commodore Alfred C. Needham's Mahdeen IV. headed the fleet, Mr. Needham having as guests Fred J. Merrill and J. A. Lodge. Vice-Commodore T. C. Rowe, in the Mardy, had as guest W. W. Soulis. The rest of the party was made up of Captain David Fenton in the Peacherina, with Martin Olsen as guest; Capt. E. P. Stanley in Antoinette, with Thomas Baker; L. O. Latons in Marion, with Fred Mosher as guest; R. J. Baker in Edna, with E. S. Bradley as guest; Wade Brooks in Josephine, with W. F. Roberts and Mr. Taylor as guests; Hollis L. Roberts in "Mrs. Wiggs," with Wm. Hawkesworth as guest, joined the party Sunday morning. The boats anchored off the Annisquam Yacht club over night, and after supper, cooked on board, most of the "yachtsmen" went ashore for a while. Annisquam is a most delightful place, and there are always scores of yachts in the little harbor, and hundreds of motor and sail boats are passing up and down the river at all hours of night and day, many of them carrying parties of young folk singing and having a jolly time. Sunday morning breakfast was cooked on the various boats. One has to partake of a meal in this way in order to appreciate it. Mr. Needham's boat is equipped with cabin, mess room, and all the comforts for life on a yacht. Sunday forenoon was consumed in intermingling visits aboard the various boats, and some of the party went bathing on the beach.

The return trip was made in the afternoon, some of the boats circuiting the shore, going into Magnolia harbor and along Singing Beach, and making a turn around the Mayflower and other large yachts in Manchester outer harbor. The outing proved a most delightful occasion and it is likely that another trip will be made in the near future.

There was a bicycle mix-up in the center of the town Monday noon, but fortunately the participants in the affair escaped serious injury. Ernest Andrews turned Lee's corner on his bicycle and as he did so another man on a wheel coming from the opposite direction ran into him. Both wheels were fairly well damaged. Tuesday David Betts riding a bicycle came in collision with an employee of the German Embassy near the Postoffice and the front wheel of the former's bicycle was smashed by the collision.

The firemen are thinking of holding a picnic at Tuck's Point on Labor Day.

A special meeting of Col. H. P. Woodbury camp, 149, S. of V., will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. All brothers are requested to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fisher of Ward Hill have been visiting the former's uncle, John Elliott and Mrs. Elliott on Vine street, the last week. Miss Jennie Jewett from New Hampshire has also been with Mr. and Mrs. Elliott.

Chester L. Crafts took a party of boys, friends of his young sons, Gordon and Donald, to Lakeman's Beach, Ipswich, last Saturday for a picnic and outing and a most delightful time they had. There were twelve boys in the party. Mr. Crafts cooked one of his nicest chowders, and the boys dug clams and had steamed clams for supper before returning.

J. S. Reed is maintaining his reputation of former years in the excellence and attractiveness of his private garden, off Beach street, and adjoining his café, near the railroad station. Scores of people have been attracted by it and have stopped in the carriages and automobiles to look at it. Coming in from the street one passes between rows of variegated hollyhocks, profuse blooms of dahlias, peonies, bleeding hearts, blue and white verbenas and pink and white lavetra. On either side of the yard are golden glows by the dozens with red salvia, dahlias and nasturtiums intermingling amid a vine of clematis which trails itself about the piazza of the house. At the rear of the yard are seen rambler roses of pink and white colors with more hollyhocks and golden glows as a background. Peonies, fox glove, canterbury bells, phlox, pink and white zinnias and cultivated daisies mingled with lobelias and sweet alyssum make up the right side of the garden. In the very centre of the yard is a Maltese cross, formed with dwarf marigolds of yellow bloom. One section of the cross is made up of verbenas of blue color, the other two sections are sweet alyssum of white color and English phlox of red. The centre is of dwarf nasturtiums. A small water garden is another feature of the display.

Wade Brooks and family connections held a reunion at Tuck's Point last Friday afternoon. There were about 60 in the party.

Luke Morgan recently bought the building on Summer street, owned by Paul Schmidt. He will have it moved to Allen Court and remodelled.

Warren Crombie returned Tuesday evening from a motor cycle trip to Philadelphia, in company with two Beverly young men, where they were attending the motor cycle meet. One rode a twin Yale and the other two Indian machines. They covered 900 miles and the machines worked splendidly, one or two punctures being the only trouble experienced. They came home by way of Coney Island.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE PLEASURES OF LIFE.

touring car thus becomes a benediction. Bring on the airship, for it will magnify the revelation of earth's glories. God bless the automobile and aeroplane, if they carry a man away from his burdens for a while and lift him above his clouds of doubt and despair.

Do you see a new luster in a hitherto lack-luster eye? Some pleasure put it there. Do you see an elastic spring in a man's walk? Pleasure put it there. Do you see a hopeful look in anxious, careworn faces? A pleasure put it there.

Pleasure holds the secret of chemical changes in the blood. Pleasure is a magician, a wonder worker. Pale, care-worn, excitable women are transformed in the hour of pleasure. Nervous, excitable, emaciated men are transformed in exchanging cares for pleasure.

Invest in pleasure, not in houses and lands and business if they distress you. A pleasure trip is the best kind of an investment at times.

There is a mental worth in pleasure. Get into the crowd that laughs, among the people that indulge in fun, and see.

There is a moral worth in pleasure. The moral weakling may at times be shocked at a pure and legitimate pleasure. So is a physical weakling shocked by a plunge into the surf at fifty degrees, but it is a pleasurable, thrilling embrace to the physically strong.

Half the brutality of humanity comes from a lack of pleasure in life. The merry glad soul is rarely a criminal.

Pleasure is an integral part of man's need. It is as healthy an appetite as the appetite for bread. It is no more a luxury than bread is a luxury. It is not the caprice of some abnormal craving, it is a healthy appetite of the soul.

There are those that indulge in pleasure until it is a dissipation; but there are those also that indulge in eating until it is a dissipation. There is a difference between pleasure and dissipation. Pleasure is jam in moderation, dissipation is jam eaten with a ladle.

A Christian has as much moral right to enjoy his life as anyone. If the worldling has a right to dance, to enjoy the theatre, to go automobile riding on Sunday the Christian has the same right, and if it is wrong for the Christian it is wrong for every one. It does not matter whether you make a profession of religion or not, every one is held responsible to God for doing what is right or wrong.

To make the world and its pleasures our chief aim in life is where the fatal mistake occurs. "Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you"—theatres, pleasure trips, fine clothes, big houses, clubs, yachts, automobiles, airships—all added unto you; for are they not all just playthings for the children of the great Father—playthings soon broken, soon thrown away? And then we all get tired and sleepy as the night creeps gently over the nursery and playground and all is still.

COMMON DRINKING CUP TO GO.

After October 1 Its Use Is Prohibited in This State.

The common drinking cup, which has held its position in all public places in this state for many years, will be prohibited in Massachusetts, beginning October 1, this year, in accordance with an act passed by the last state legislature. The state board of health authorized this action following the passing of the act of the legislature.

This action was taken in an attempt to prevent the spread of communicable diseases, which it is said the common drinking cup has done. No cups will be allowed in public parks, streets, public buildings or institutions, hotels, theatres, railroad cars, stations or steam or ferry boats. Any violation of the act recently passed will make the person or persons guilty liable to a fine not exceeding $25 for each offence.

Manchester, like other places, is falling in line. The school committee is having sanitary fountains installed at the three schools, two in each school and also at the public playground. The other fountains about town must also be attended to.

The present schedule puts the day man on duty from the first train in the morning until about 6.15 p. m., when the night man goes on until after the theatre train or about 12.15 a. m.

At present Beverly Farms is the vacation place for many people. Among those who at present are visiting here are the following: Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Callahan of New York city, Miss Mary Davidson, Northampton, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. George F. Emerson, Nashua, N. H.; Mr. and Mrs. John D. Martin, Providence, R. I.; Mr. Andrew F. Emons, Ellsworth, Me., and Miss Ethel Evans of Boston.

Miss Helen Lufkin of Gloucester, and Miss Nellie Fay of Roxbury are spending their vacation at the Farms and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Morgan of West street.

All this week there have been record crowds of bathers at West Beach, the number being increased by many sailors from the U. S. Mayflower. The water has been quite warm.

Of interest to the Farms scholar and parent is this week's announcement of the resignation of Adelbert L. Safford for '17 years superintendent of Beverly schools. Superintendent Safford has been elected Superintendent of the Chelsea Schools, which position carried with it an increased salary.

George E. Roberts of Portsmouth, N. H., is the new gardener at the Charles H. Tweed estate. He commenced his duties there last Monday and has moved his family into one of the cottages on the estate.

At the annual meeting of the West Beach Corporation last February it was voted that the board of directors look into the matter of building a public pavilion at West Beach, which means practically the clearing away of the present bath houses there. The board has had a plan made of a pavilion upon which they are now getting estimates as to cost. It is expected that the corporation members will be called upon to act on the matter as soon as the board of directors have made ready their report.

GARDEN EMBELLISHMENTS

pensive stone, is perhaps the most satisfactory. Rough stone laid in cement is sometimes used where a rustic effect is desired and makes an attractive appearance. The method of treating the edge of the pool depends upon the owner's personal taste, of course, but except in the most formal gardens the stone curb may usually be omitted and a single edging of sod or a border of bog plants take its place with good effect.

Should there chance to be an old well in the garden, it can be transformed into "a thing of beauty," and incidentally be made "a joy forever," by the addition of an artistic and appropriate well-head. The grotesque stone lanterns, which were shipped to this country from Japan in large numbers during the late war with Russia, likewise make unique embellishments, and, when lighted at night by means of a lamp or by electricity, they lend a fascinating air of mystery to an otherwise unlighted garden. Vases, both of concrete and stone, are always welcome additions, but they should be simple in design and must be carefully distributed.

Sun-dials and gazing-globes possess a charm that is peculiarly their own and, if properly placed, they add much to a garden's effectiveness. In company with such old-fashioned ornaments one might quite naturally expect to find a picturesque bee skepe or a cosy little bird-house, and it often happens that one is not disappointed. So, although the day of the crockery dog and iron deer is past, the use of garden embellishments has in no way decreased and we may safely believe that its end is still many years distant.

Fungus that Is Deadly to the Brown-tail.

The Massachusetts forestry department is devising means of ridding this section of the country of the brown-tail moth and reports from places where the latest scheme has been tried show that it is meeting with great success. The means employed is a fungus growth, called empusa, which the department proposes to plant in those cities and towns where large swarms of moths have been noticed.

The caterpillars feed upon this fungus and are soon seized with a disease, which they rapidly communicate to others of their kind. The disease proves fatal to the insects in a very short time.

Experiments along the lines indicated have been made by State Forester F. W. Rane and assistants recently in the botanical gardens at Cambridge, with encouraging results. It had been observed that the great swarms of the moths which appeared in Massachusetts, especially in the eastern part, came over the line from New Hampshire and among the places most affected were Andover and North Andover. The state forester made use of the fungus in those towns and the effect upon the caterpillars was as mentioned above, thousands perishing in short order.

In its work of ridding the state of the moth pests the forestry department needs the assistance of the public and more especially that of the owners of woodlands who may have noticed large flights of the insects in their neighborhood. During the present week the fungus will be planted in various parts of the state from which such flights are reported and the department is anxious to get to work as early as possible in such localities as may furnish the best field for operations.

It is doubtful whether Miss Pitonof's feat will be duplicated, as since she has tried many others have attempted to make the swim and failed. At Keith's in the handsomest stage setting that fam-

Another feature of the bill next week will be Charles Miller, one of

THE BOSTON AERO MEET.

Greatest Event of the Kind Ever Held in This Country, From Sept. 3 to Sept. 13.

The Harvard-Boston aero meet, which will be held at Atlantic from Sept. 3 to 13, will be the biggest event of the kind ever held in this country and in some respects will outrival the great meets that have been held abroad. For at this meet will be seen not only the very latest aeroplanes, including monoplanes, biplanes and triplanes, but the largest number as well as the largest sized balloons ever assembled on one field in the United States. Besides the spherical balloons there will be a division of dirigible balloons, and man-bearing kites will also contest.

The greatest interest will probably centre in the aeroplane contests, which will be between biplanes and monoplanes, although Roe, the English aviator, will fly a triplane.

The most exciting of these contests at the Harvard-Boston meet will be for the Boston Globe $10,000 cash prize for the fastest continuous flight from the Harvard aviation field at Atlantic to Soldiers field, Brighton, where, after a turn round the Stadium, the machines must head for Boston light, 16 miles away, and return to the Harvard aviation field without making any stops on the way. The prize will go to the aviator who can make the circuit between these points in the fastest time. The distance around the course is approximately 28 statute miles. The fight for this prize will be between Glenn H. Curtiss, who won the $10,000 prize for a flight from Albany to New York; the Wright brothers of Dayton, O., and some of the Frenchmen who will come over. Grahame-White, the English aviator, may enter this contest.

Besides this there will be a $5000 bomb-dropping contest from various altitudes on the deck of an improvised battleship that will be located on the field. There will be an altitude contest for aeroplanes, with three prizes—one of $3000, one of $2000 and one of $1000. There will be a speed contest each day for aeroplanes. In this contest there are also three prizes of the same amounts. Whoever breaks a world's record will get $1000 extra. Then there are getaway and alighting contests for aeroplanes, with prizes, and altitude and distance contests for spherical balloons and time and distance contests for dirigible balloons.

Wonder Why Titus' Contains So Much This Season's So New?

Why so many novelties abound in their store? Well, they've looked ahead toward the summer at what the North Shore season will be.

Just think, Our President is making his summer home here—a guest of us folks here on the North Shore. Guess that's going to make things pretty lively. Who won't be invited to entertain?
Friends and Relatives we've scarcely ever seen will be taken with a wonderful liking toward us all. Of course, that's going to mean you must put your very best foot front, everything in the home must necessarily look just so. Well, knowing all this, we just went picking galore, and the prettiest things, ever, are here now on show.
For a good illustration of something new and unique, just look at a Chamber Suit in "Kyonix"

Now displayed in our North window. The design very unusual, the wood extremely pretty, and the price, instead of prohibitive, will almost entice you to buy on first sight.

Bed—A 4-Poster, only $17.00.

Dresser, just matches it, only $20.00.

Chiffonier, to complete the set, only $17.50.

Someone snap it up quick, 'twill make the prettiest room in your house, and just see the price—half what you expected to pay.

The Atlantic Seashore Development

Boston's North Shore.

If our old ancestor, Adam, was gifted with descriptive powers in the art of word painting we should feel justified in plagiarizing his description of Paradise in describing this North Shore.

If we have been over-indulgent in any description of other favored sections of the Atlantic coast and rose to heights of eulogy of old Neptune's strands the climax still remains in the speechless and wordless raptures nature unfolds here. When it is possible to translate the music of the stars into human language and melody we shall be able to translate nature's revelations here into words.

Boston's North Shore may perhaps claim the introduction of the movement of permanent seashore development. Among the earliest settled colonies of our nation this section leads in the settlement of great ancestral estates to be noted posterior holdings for perhaps centuries to come when Boston's North Shore will become historically famed as the ancient gardens and palaces of the Euphrates. The movement is introduced, the tale may become the fabled wonder of the world. It is no boastful prophecy to say that this section of New England may indeed become the world's center of art, architecture, gardens, and aristocracy, as it is already the center of thought and culture, to which the crumbling empires of the world must at last yield pre-eminence and obeisance.

The North Shore has been unusually free from the tawdry development of so called popular resorts. Even Revere Beach can hardly be said to come into this class under the metropolitan supervision with which it is favored.

Old Marblehead is a quaint painting vitalized, whose colors never fade, an art gem, an antique to lure the soul of the seeker after rare things and places set in the frame of its far-famed shores and harbor the rendezvous of every imaginable craft that floats. Magnolia, immortalized by Longfellow in the "Reef of Norman's Woe" is a brilliant gem among seashore resorts, a beauty spot in the garden of the North Shore. But "Manchester-by-the-Sea" is the queen of them all around which the other beauties are ladies in waiting.

To this famed stretch of coast, honored as the country seat of President Taft, come the seashore devotees of the whole country. All roads lead to this Mecca. There are other shrines and devout devotees, but in the soul of every loyal American there is a hope that some day it may be permitted them to wend their way to old Boston and its North Shore.

Here vast wealth vaunts itself. Here come the favored of the fates, belles of American society and European court beauties; diplomats from the nations and empires of the world find it an ideal resort; leaders in every realm of human interest come ever to return; tourists of the world seek these shores. In ever-increasing numbers they come to its golden beaches, rugged rocks and hills, and historic cities to be suntanned and sea-toughened, with tousled hair to make the round of golf links or with head thrown back drinking the draught only the yachtsmen know as they—"Lay their bulwarks on the brine," thus storing up vitality to be, only too often, squandered in winter in the gay capitals of the world.

The phrase, "to tire of the sea," as soft muscles tone up to a proud firmness, is laughable. The new life infused here in the breezes at sundown, when all the world is stifling and strangling elsewhere in heated areas, is the gift of favorable fates. To tire of this?—a devotee once a devotee forever.

Few lands or coast lines offer as great a charm, none excel it. Here are rocky heads, forest-crowned to the turquoise waters that glitter and gleam by day and night with lights storied and sung for centuries. Today Neptune fawns at the feet of "Eagle's Head" as a courtier at his lady's feet, tomorrow, infuriated, he beats impotently the granite sea walls where gardens smile and send their perfumed breath into his heated face.

These bold projecting promontories are unsurpassed for building sites and have been bought up by the moneyed men of America at fabulous prices, and yet, as one man said, "the birth of one day here is worth it all."

The beauty of landscape, so varied in woodland scenes, valleys, lakes, villages, resorts, vie in beauty with the sea for preference. Into these forests and among these hills wind the famous roadways of this North Shore, smooth and hard and clean and kept in an ideal condition for the pretty pageant of liveried carriages, tally-hos, and automobiles, a ceaseless procession of interest and envy every day.

To reach this pre-eminence and maintain it the wealth and talent of the world is contributing. And that this development is permanent is seen by the substantial nature of the homes and estates continually building. Where before, a few brief years ago, the cottages of the fishermen stood, princely villas now stand. The days of those hardy old seamen, now known no more in the ports of the world, are drawing to a close as they "hold the turn" for the final order to "slack off" when the order comes to sail straight for the offing, out into the mists "from whence no mariner ever returns."

Where the old fishing boats beat out to sea floating palaces now cut the green billows in their flight from place to place. Yacht racing events and aquatic sports mark the advent and departure of the seasons, a continual source of enjoyment, making the marine panorama of Massachusetts Bay a scene unsurpassed. Harbor illuminations make the nights memorable returning in dreams unique and suggestive of the fabled stories of youth.

Nothing is here lacking in physical comfort and enjoyment, in schools and churches and libraries, and means for the highest culture.

No mistake can be made in selecting a home on the North Shore; it is only a detail as to the particular spot. Eden has returned to earth.

On The Road To Old Broadway

(With Kipling many miles away dreaming of his Mandalay.)

On a wave-washed cliff of sandstone looking eastward out to sea
There's a summer girl a-sitting and I know she thinks of me.

As I sit here in my office

I can hear my check-book say:

"Come you back, you summer girlie; come you back to old Broadway."

Come you back to old Broadway

Where the men are making hay

While the summer sun is shining so you girls can stay away.

Come you back to old Broadway

Where us hobbies have to stay

While the bills run up like thunder in the "yacht club" 'cross the way.

I took her to the seashore—to a right swell summer place—

Just to bring the red of roses blushing back into her face.

And I left her there a-smokin'

Of a perfumed cigarette

With a ribbon counter dandy fetchin' ices to my pet.

Name was Percy; tie was red;

College hat on back of head.

Plaguey lot she cared for Percy when she needed cash from Fred.

Darling Fred back on Broadway

Earning coin with which to pay

Girlie's hotel bills that added to the "yacht club's" 'cross the way.

While the crowds are surging homeward and the sun is sinking low Down behind the sparkling sign lights on the Jersey side, I go

To the telephone to answer

Call from girlie at the shore:

"Honeybunch, I'm out of money; please, dear, send a hundred more."

All I hear above the roar

Of the clanging street-cars—MORE!—

From the girl I left with Percy of the big department store,

When I came back to Broadway

So my wife could stay away

While I spend my indoor outing in the "yacht club" 'cross the way.

I'm sick of clubs and show-girls and of taxi-cabs and such;

And when "wife's gone to the country" hoorays don't amount to much.

I have lobstered chorus ladies

From every foreign land.

And we've talked a lot of lovin', but what do they understand?

Winning face and touching hand—

Lor' what do they understand?

I've a more expensive lady in a more expensive land;

Far away from old Broadway

Running up more bills to pay,

While I try to drown my sorrows in the "yacht club" 'cross the way.

Take me to our flat in Harlem where the best is like the worst—

Where a man can rush the growler when he wants to kill a thirst.

For the autumn leaves are falling

And it's time to come away

From the seashores and the Percys back to lonely old Broadway.

Back to wintertime Broadway—

Back to hubby and the play,

And the taxi and the theatre and the table d'hôte cafe.

Come you back to old Broadway

And the flat up Harlem way,

So your hubby'll shake the girlies and the "yacht club" 'cross the way.

To Accompany Gift of Ice Cream Set.

Dear Friend, the token that we give

Of our affection warm,

May possibly to you appear

Of most peculiar form,

Suggesting that 'twixt us and you,

In time a coldness may ensue.

But love like ours can never cool

Nor change its present tense

Through slander's breath or icy touch

Of cold indifference.

So please accept the trifling boon

And Heaven will send the cream and spoon.

THE REFORMED WITCH

Response to Gift of Witch Spoon.

Thanks for the Spoon!

A precious boon,

Of olden days a dear reminder,

When witches old

And Satan-sold

Each with a broomstick trailed behind her,

Did strangely fare

Through midnight air

On errands wicked or mischievous

Who made afraid

Both man and maid

And plagued with pains and pinches grievous.

No more astride

Of sticks they ride,

They have abandoned the broom handle;

In grander state

But a slower rate

They're mounted on a fine spoon handle.

With nose and chin

As sharp and thin,

But through the air less lofty whirring,

They're active still

But not for ill—

Their mission to be always stirring.

North Shore's Annual Flower Show.

Remarkable Fine Showing at North Shore Horticultural Society's Annual Summer Flower Show Wednesday and Thursday.—The Prize Winners.

The annual exhibition of flowers, fruit and vegetables, under the auspices of the North Shore Horticultural society was held Wednesday and Thursday of this week in a large tent pitched on the "polo field" at the Essex County club. While the display was not larger than usual the exhibit as a whole was one of the finest the society has ever held. Besides the exhibits in the regular classes there were numerous specials.

Mrs. Lester Leland was one of the most successful exhibitors. She was awarded a silver cup for the best collection of gladioli, named varieties, the exhibit filling two tables. She also took first prizes for best six pots of sword ferns and best collection hollyhocks. A magnificent group of foliage and flowering plants arranged in a high mound won for her the gold medal offered. She was also given numerous other prizes in the regular classes.

Miss Helen Hooper won many prizes, too. No other exhibit attracted more attention than a table of fruit, probably the finest ever shown here, which included three varieties of hothouse grapes, some of the bunches weighing 5½ pounds each, and seven varieties of greenhouse-grown musk melons of English varieties, besides nectarines, plums and other fruit. She also took first prize for the best six vases of gladioli and numerous other prizes in the smaller exhibits.

Mrs. James McMillan won a silver cup offered by George P. White for the best collection of annuals. This collection embraced over 100 varieties and was declared the finest ever shown here.

There was considerable competition for dinner table decorations and several very handsome exhibits were noted. The silver cup for best decoration of eight covers was secured by Magnuson and Hylen, second prize going to Mrs. James McMillan. Mrs. B. Hammond Tracey took third prize.

Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane made a remarkably fine exhibit of dahlias, taking first prize for best display in all classes, the exhibit including some 40 varieties. The display of hardy perennials called out considerable favorable comment. Miss A. G. Thayer taking first prize for best and largest collection, and Miss Helen Hooper second.

In the zinnia classes Mrs. James McMillan had a particularly good display, taking a first in the regular classes, and Mrs. H. W. Mason second.

EAST GLOUCESTER

The Eastern Point golf course presents an animated scene these August days as there are many interesting tournaments in progress and the clubhouse continues such a popular centre for tea and luncheon parties. The trophies for the recent tournament, which the Siamese ambassador offered, were by F. Bailie of Toronto, who secured the cup, and the silver and cut glass perfumery bottles were by Mrs. Rachetsky of Boston and Hawthorne Inn. The English secretary to the ambassador, Edward Loftus, offered two silver candlesticks of old hammered English pattern for the winner in the ladies' tournament, and Mrs. Morrill of Boston, who is occupying the Lewis cottage next the Beachcroft for August, won the prizes. On Monday afternoon the ladies had much fun running off a "Kickers" handicap tournament and for Tuesday's tournament Mrs. Mann of New York and Hawthorne Inn offered the cup. Today (Friday) the closing contest for the cup offered by Mrs. F. M. Harrison of Montclair, N. J., will be contested by Mrs. St. Johns Butler of New York and Miss Olive Hughes of New York and Hawthorne Inn, who have kept ahead in the Friday handicap tournaments for ladies during August. Recent tea party hostesses at the clubhouse were Mrs. Hammond of Kansas City, who entertained nine; Miss Smucker, Philadelphia, five; Mrs. Tyler, New York, had one of the largest parties numbering twenty-six, and Mrs. Russell of Rosemont, Pa., entertained thirty-five friends.

It is whispered that the society suffragettes at their recent meeting at the Hawthorne Inn casino were so exceedingly enthusiastic as to lose their tempers, and that the meeting proved decidedly exciting and interesting and a memorable occasion in that respect when the debate was on.

The next event of the waning season which will make Hawthorne Inn the centre of interest will be the annual water carnival which takes place Saturday afternoon at 3 p. m. and as usual is open to all residents of the North Shore who care to enter the swimming, diving, obstacle, tub and canoe tilting contests. The entries can be made to R. D. Allen, swimming master at the Inn, T. R. Cox and G. S. Squibb, "Inn" guests in charge of carnival.

CAPE ANN RESORTS

"Annisquam Day" last Saturday brought Cape Ann summer residents to this resort in large numbers to witness the annual races, participate in the dance at the club-house in the evening and enjoy the life and excitement of a real yachting festival with the M. Y. R. A. as guests. The association was generously represented despite the international races at Marblehead. Among the many new arrivals in 'Squam for the festivities were:

Grand View: Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Derby, Columbus, Mrs. Henry Davis and daughter, Thompsonville, Ct.; Overlook: A. C. LaMonte and family, Scranton Pa.; Mrs. Austin Collins and daughter, Brookline; Mrs. S. Henry Hooper and family, Hingham; Brynmere: Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Taylor, Worcester; Arthur L. Spring and family, Boston; Mrs. George W. Linscott and daughter, Roxbury.

Mrs. Paul Tappan of Brookline, who is a tenant this season of one of the Mellen cottages, entertained a party of 15 recently at the Willowfield tea house, East Gloucester.

Land End's Day, Rockport, is scheduled for tomorrow (August 27) and the day and evening will be devoted to a gathering of that colony for sports and sociability to speed the waning summer.

Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee and Mrs. W. P. Hamilton of New York, daughters of J. Pierpont Morgan, are in Newport, having concluded a long sojourn at Turk's Head Inn, Rockport, where many auto parties from all parts of the country are making this hotel their headquarters.

Dr. Grenning of New York, who is building a fine new summer home at Land's End, is a frequent week-end visitor to note its progress.

Rev. Walter Jordan and family of Philadelphia are at Straitsmouth Inn.

Arrivals in the hotel section of Pigeon Cove include Miss Haywood of Berkeley, Cal.; Miss H. B. Ayers, Colorado Springs; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stafford, New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Reynolds, Malden; Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Hoffman, Providence.

SOCIETY NOTES

North Shore society will be out in force tomorrow afternoon for the exhibition of Judge W. H. Moore's horses at his private driving park at Pride's Crossing. The affair is getting to be looked upon as one of the select social events of the summer. Judge Moore has one of the finest if not the finest collection of show horses in the country and his driving park is one of the finest in New England. The seats will be arranged on the little slope overlooking the track, and also beneath a canvas canopy on the track. Mrs. Bryce J. Allan will drive the coach and Miss Eleanora Sears will drive some of the pairs and Miss Faith Simpkins others. Miss Eleaine Denegre will drive in the pony class. President Taft and family have accepted Mr. and Mrs. Moore's invitation to attend and will probably be on hand. The first class will be called at 3 o'clock.

Richard M. Bradley and daughter, Miss Amy Bradley, who have been on a trip of several weeks over the Canadian-Pacific road into the far western country, as far as Seattle, are expected back to Manchester the first of September.

Mrs. Henry C. Hackney of Chicago is a house-guest of Mr and Mrs. W. H. Moore at Pride's Crossing. She will remain over the horse show Saturday and several other house guests will be here over the week-end.

Mrs. Clarence Moore is entertaining at her Pride's Crossing residence Mr. and Mrs. de Sibour of Washington, who will remain over for Judge Moore's horse show Saturday. Clarence Moore has been at Bar Harbor this week, being one of the judges in the horse show there.

One of the largest gatherings of North Shore people this summer will be that at Mrs. Robert S. Bradley's this afternoon, when her beautiful large residence at Pride's Crossing will be thrown open for a meeting in the interest of Hampton Institute. President Taft will be present and will speak on Negro Education. The meeting will be at 4:30. Dr. H. B. Frissell will also speak and Major Henry L. Higginson will preside.

Col. and Mrs. Cranmore H. Wallace have been absent from their beautiful estate on Neptune street, Beverly Cove, the past two weeks and have been enjoying an auto trip in the Berkshires. As president of the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates, Col. Wallace combined business and pleasure while away, by a visit to Ludlow. They were due to return to the North Shore today.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Prince are planning to return to Princemere, their Hamilton estate, the early part of September, after a summer spent at Newport. Newport regrets the departure of the family as the Princes have been instrumental in aiding to make for Newport the most interesting season of indoor and outdoor pleasures in years.

Mrs. Walter Alexander of New York, who has the Wheaton cottage at Old Neck, Manchester, during her period of mourning, is giving much time to her equestrienne art, and is seen daily horseback riding on her thoroughbred.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Porter, jr., who are abroad for a short trip are now in France. Their little daughter, Sarah W. Porter, who remained at their Manchester cottage, goes to Jackson, N. H., to join her grandmother, next week.

Judge W. H. Moore and his fine coach and four enroute to the Myopia Hunt club is a daily sight which creates much admiration for the lovers of thoroughbreds and equestrienne art. Judge Moore's bugler sends some beautiful notes to the breeze, which are received by very willing listeners. In his all-day coaching trips with reins in hand, Judge Moore is considered to show up some particularly fine driving endurance.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moore of Washington and Pride's is improving after his recent illness.

One of the coming season's debutantes, of whom the number this year will be unusually large, will be Miss Hilda Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice of Ipswich and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. George Mandell of Beverly Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Wentz have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Reeder, who left Pride's Crossing yesterday for their home in Virginia. Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Churchman of Philadelphia are also house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wentz.

Sears gives a dinner party this evening, too, in honor of his daughters, Lilly and Phillis, and the young people will go on to the Allan dance afterward.

Warren Wick of Cleveland, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Charles T. Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Lewis, accompanied by their daughter Gertrude and son William were visiting friends in Manchester last week, having motored from their home in Toledo. SOCIETY NOTES.

Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Falkner of Boston, who have a summer home at York, Me., spent a few days recently with Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Porter of Boston, at Beverly Farms. Mrs. Porter on Tuesday evening of this week turned over the barn of her summer estate to her household employees for a whist party, to which they were privileged to invite their friends. Thirty were present. Mrs. Porter helped arrange the decorations and accorded many privileges which made the occasion a most pleasant one for the participants.

The children of the North Shore are being feted since vacation time is drawing to a close and the time for study and lessons is approaching. On Monday afternoon of this week, Mrs. Herbert Hostetter gave a children's picnic in the grove of her North Beverly estate and today, Mrs. Bryce Allen of Boston and Beverly Cove will entertain fifty children. On Sept. 3, Mrs. C. A. Porter of Boston and Beverly Farms will give a hay-rack party and picnic for the little friends of her children.

A. G. Lockwood won the Essex Cup in the invitation golf meet held the last three days of last week at the Essex County club, Manchester, defeating Wolcott Tuckerman in the semi-final by 3 and 2 and Karl E. Mosser in the final by 2 and 1. C. M. Hall was the winner of the second sixteen, defeating G. F. Willett 3 and 2. The third sixteen was won by J. E. Kedian, defeating Prescott Bigelow, jr., 5 and 3. The tournament as a whole was very successful.

An attractive formal garden is one of the beauties of Rock Maple Farm, the summer home of Secretary of the Navy George von L. Meyer, at Hamilton. It is at the right of the house and is approached by a flight of marble steps. In the centre of the garden is a marble well curb, flanked by terra cotta vases resting on marble pedestals. Wrought iron arches are covered with vines and rambling roses, and the flower beds of different geometrical designs are at all times masses of bloom. These beds are defined by small cypress trees carefully cut, which were brought from the woods on the estate. Between the beds are gravel walks or grass plots edged with borders of lobelia or sweet alyssum. At one end of the garden is a handsomely carved fountain of Italian marble with three lions at the base.

Herbert M. Sears will give a ball at the Hotel Somerset, Boston, early in September, to introduce his daughter, Miss Lillian Sears.

Alexander Steinert of Boston and Beverly Cove and his son, Robert Alexander Shuman Steinert, were expected to return to the North Shore today after an auto trip to Lake George and vicinity. Russell Lee Steinert, Dartmouth, '12, is in Hanover.

Some wise folk make it one of their summer's duties as well as pleasures to pick-up such articles as they may chance to find during their leisurely shopping tours with a view to avoiding the stress of "Christmas Shopping." The Magnolia branch of "The Indian Store," opposite the Colonnade, Magnolia, is a good place for such fore-handed people, as the goods are of the un-common sort and prices exactly the same as at "The Indian Store," 186 Boylston street, Boston.

A. H. Pembroke of South Hamilton has one of the finest collections of pet dogs in this section. He has sold a number this summer to North Shore people but he still has a few Pomeranians left, including two very fine puppies, a black and a blue. Mr. Pembroke's place may be found on Dodge Road, Wenham.

The District Nursing Fund.

The committee for the establishment of this fund wish to remind the friends of the cause, who have not yet responded to its appeal, that their contributions will help to complete the required amount.

The fund is now so well along, thanks to the generosity and promptness of many kind friends, that the establishment of the District Nurse in Manchester this autumn seems a certainty.

It is the desire of the committee, as in the beginning, that every public spirited resident's name appear on the list of contributors, regardless of the amount given, so that it may be the good work of the many rather than the few. No publication of the amounts given it to be made, only the list of givers. Give any amount with your good will and interest and, if possible, give it soon.

Magnolia Horse Show Proves a Great Success From Every Standpoint.

North Shore Society Out in Large Numbers to Witness the Gala of the Season at this Well-known Fashionable Summer Resort.

Magnolia has had her Horse Show and the Good Graces favored the occasion by giving one of the finest afternoons of the summer. A splendid success in every detail was the show. Manager Harry Coulter and Mr. Phenix of the Oceanside pushed everything off in apple pie order and not a hitch occurred.

Magnolia Beach never contained such a crowd. It is estimated that between 2500 and 3000 people were there. Society from all parts of the North Shore augmented the hundreds of hotel guests, and nearly everybody had friends with them, so that, taken all in all, it was a very brilliant occasion.

Just one thing marred the day's sport and that was the very last class on the program. Just as the people were beginning to leave the grand stand, as the horses were dashing up the beach for the hurdle race, the horse ridden by Richard Humble, a stable boy employed at Mr. Moore's stable in Pride's Crossing, was injured. His horse had taken the first two hurdles and as he neared the last one he was a little crowded and refused to take the hurdle, plunging into the high fence instead. He crashed through it, breaking it into kindling wood. The animal toppled over head foremost onto the sand, with Humble underneath. Everyone thought the boy was killed. He was stunned and lay on the beach, as the horse galloped away. Doctors rushed from the grand stand and gave immediate assistance and a piece of the fence which had been smashed was procured and the body wrapped in blankets and was taken to the pavilion. It was found that no bones were broken, but the collar bone was fractured. He was later taken to Pride's Crossing little the worse for his terrible fall.

To tell who of the North Shore people were there would be to give a list of the whole North Shore colony. Everybody was there.

The children's saddle class was the first one up. This was judged in two divisions. In the first division Master Jack Weil was awarded the blue ribbon, Miss Kate Tweed, the red; Miss Alice Thorndike's Jack Rabbit, driven by Miss Phyllis Sears, 3d; and Master Jerome Kubn, fourth. In the second division James Hever's Vanity took the blue; Miss Frances Bradley's Bendouin the red; Miss M. Scudder's Punch, 3d; and Miss Mary Walker's Beauty, the fourth.

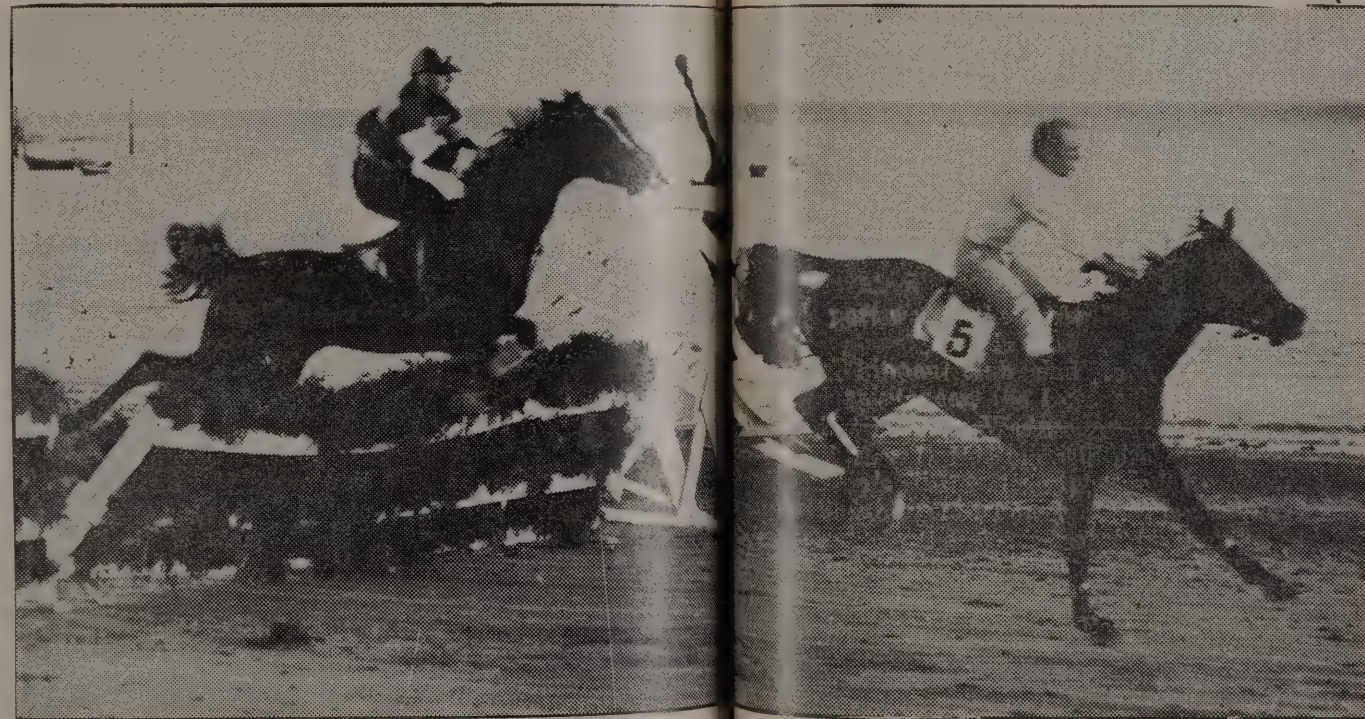

The runabout horse was the next class. Mrs. J. J. Weil was picked by the judges as winner of the blue. She drove Yes Sir. Miss Eleanora Sears, driving S. H. Fessenden's Lady Love took the red; Miss Alice Thorndike, driving Susan Thayer's Plato, third, and Miss C. Curtis' Croydon, 4th.

The thoroughbred saddle class was won by George Chipchase's Glenham, owner up. Mr. Chipchase's Sapolia took the red; Miss Kate Tweed's Tixley, the yellow; and Miss Eleanora Sears on D. M. Waller's Bad Enough, the white.

One of the prettiest classes was the ladies' driving in which the horse was furnished by the committee. The hitch was to be driven through obstacles placed at different positions in the ring. The ladies entering this were Misses Leslie Bradley, Elizabeth Bigelow, Margaret Roosevelt, Mary Curtis, Eleanora Sears, Marie Dallet and Mrs. J. J. Weil. Miss Mary Curtis captured the cup, going through the obstacles in 27 seconds, knocking down one, and hitting one other. Miss Eleanora Sears went through the obstacles with more speed, but she knocked down two of the obstacles.

In the saddle class Dr. A. H. Fitch's Betsey B., with Arthur Mason up, took the cup after a very close decision over The Duke, owned by Miss E. F. Kelley of Cohasset and ridden by Miss Margaret Manning. The horses were called out two or three times for comparison. Miss Leslie Bradley on Cingolee took the yellow and Mrs. J. J. Weil on Mr. Kilpatrick's Dewey 2d, took fourth.

TAKING THE LAST HURDLE IN THE HURDLE RACE. GLORIOUS SOMERSAULT AFTER CRASHING INTO FENCE

The harness horses, such as are used by North Shore families, was another pretty class. Miss Eleanora Sears took the cup in this class and Mrs. J. J. Weil second. Miss Evelyn Curtis won the third place in a very attractive hitch, and Miss Mary Curtis fourth.

The jumping as usual was a very exciting and spectacular class. Miss Mary Curtis and George Chipchase were called back by the judges for a try-off for first and on the first time over the bars both horses ticked. The second time over Miss Curtis took the bars very easily without touching, Chipchase on Sapolia ticking the last jump. D. B. Wentz's High Flyer took the third and D. M. Waller's Bad Enough, ridden by Mr. Tuckerman, fourth.

The race for galloways was a pretty one. George Chipchase entered a chestnut pony and a bay mare, riding the latter himself. Dudley Davenport mounted the other. The horses came up the beach neck and neck Davenport pushing his mount ahead a winner. S. H. Fessenden's Darkey finished third.

The flat race was won by William Henry on High Order, and George Chipchase on his bay mare took second money. D. H. Hostetter took third again.

The hurdle race was the last number on the program. This is the race in which the accident occurred. William Henry on High Order took first money, and Robert Whigham on George Hicks' Della Plains took the red, while D. B. Wentz came in third.

The committee in charge of the show was composed of Frederick Bonner, Horace R. Morehead and Charles Heights casino. The Floating hospital of Boston was the beneficiary of the theatricals and the prime movers of the affair were Walter Pratt and N. H. North of Boston.

Col. Benton of Boston and Belmont, a member of the Metropolitan Park commission, who with his family are spending August at the Preston, carried a party of 50 in Tug Juno from Bass Point to the Nantasket reservation Tuesday of this week. There was a dinner and special music provided for Col. Benton's guests and the occasion was very pleasurable for all the participants. Saturday, August 27, Col. Benton will take a party of twelve guests to the Ipswich Pageant and dine his guests at Bald Pate Inn, Georgetown.

Tomorrow afternoon there will be a children's party at the hotel from 1 to 5.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Aspey of Brattle street, Cambridge, and Hotel Preston entertained a party of 10 at Point Shirley club, Winthrop.

J. F. Berringham, comptroller of New York city, wife and daughter are at The Elms where also are registered Dr. and Mrs. P. H. McCarthy, Chelsea, Mass.; Arthur E. Cook and wife, Meriden, Ct.; Mrs. Samuel Work, daughter and son and J. E. S. Adams, Boston.

The Bellevue, owing to the demand for accommodations, will extend its season to October first and the late arrivals include Miss Minns, Miss Thomas, Miss Anna Raymond, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, N. Y.

At the New Ocean House the waning season has been made delightful by the tennis tournament, the prize bridge whist tournament, the daily musicales and the weekly dancing parties, and owing to the demand for early autumn accommodations this popular hostelry will continue its season until September 15. Among the Westerners enjoying Swampscott as guests of the New Ocean House are Mrs. James, A. Jones, Hannibal, Mo.; R. S. Warner and family, Columbus, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Barber, Claire, Wis.; Mrs. Walter W. Avery, Kansas City.

Marblehead

Albert Higgins has been entertaining at the Rockmere, his father, S. Higgins, general manager of the New York, New Haven and Hartford R. R. The regular Saturday evening hops and the Schubert concerts, three times a week with a sacred program Sunday evenings are social features at this hostelry, which was admirably located for the festivities of international yachting week.

Gustave B. Keander, the well-known Boston wood carver, is in Marblehead at the Polycraft studio and his exquisite work from the standpoint of designing, carving, finishing and harmonizing is creating much admiration and interest for this craft in the hands of Mr. Keander, who is turning out at his bench fine specimens of picture frames and mirror frames which he does not duplicate. Mr. Keander comes from a family of wood carvers and possesses the regard and high recommendation of Baron Karl Von Rydingsvard, the eminent connoisseur of artistic wood carving, a particularly fine endorsement. His studio, work and designs are well worth a special trip to Marblehead to see.

E. Phenix. Samuel Shaw and Howard Brown were the judges of harness classes and Herbert L. Camp of the saddle and hunter classes. Joseph H. Collins was starter, J. J. White did the announcing and Harry Coulter was master of ceremonies.

SWAMPSCOTT

The interest in base ball is not waning at the Preston, Beach Bluff, and much summer pleasure is derived through the friendly contests. At last Saturday's game between the Preston and the New Ocean House teams it was a tie game, 2-2. The dramatics, which were so successfully presented at the hotel casino last Friday evening included three playlets: "Miss Oliver's Dollars," "Mutt and Jeff" and "My Turn Next." This Friday evening the ladies and gentlemen appearing in "Mutt and Jeff" will repeat their play at the Clifton

MARBLEHEAD

The Spaniards have left Marblehead defeated from the yachting standpoint but enthusiastic over their reception, their generous entertainment and social recognition. Last Saturday night, seventy-five guests were present at the Eastern Yacht club at the dinner in honor of the Spanish visitors and Sunday evening they turned hosts for the ladies of the members, a very elaborate affair, when the superintendent loaned his private and valuable silver and china, gold chairs and candelabra for the spread of forty-six covers in behalf of the Spanish entertainers. Monday evening of this week another dinner for sixty-four was tendered by Commodore Lewis F. Clark of the Eastern to the Spaniards, Lieut. Governor Frothingham representing Governor Draper on this occasion. Commodore Clark has also done much entertaining on his fine schooner yacht, "The Emerald" during the international races, being particularly hospitable to the Spanish yachtsmen, to whose crews he presented individual gold match boxes as souvenirs. On Monday evening a feature of that gathering at the Eastern was the presentation of the cups for winners in the individual races.

Wednesday of this week the President Taft and Draper cups were presented on board the Mayflower.

The last band concert of the Eastern Yacht club's season was given this Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Granniss of Kansas City are spending their honeymoon at the Oceanside, Marblehead Neck, which will keep open until October 1. Among the auto parties to register here were: L. B. Power and family, Bridgeport, Conn.; F. Rogers of Boston; C. E. Green and wife, Manchester, N. H.. Other guests there include, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hawley, Dr. William D. Porter, wife and daughter, Cincinnati. From the West are Mr. and Mrs. George Whitehouse, Detroit; and from Washington are F. W. Graham, wife and daughter. By auto from Holyoke were C. M. Phelps, Miss Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Phelps; James W. Hart and Susan Folger Hart, Auburn, N. Y.

R. H. White's handsome steam yacht, "Peregrine" has been in port this week.

Ipswich.

Recent arrivals at the Willecomb House are Anna S. Pratt, Malden; Sadie H. Allen, Forest Hills; Mrs. Robert H. Waters, Newburyport; Wainwright Merrill, Cambridge.

Among the recent arrivals to visit Ipswich and who registered at the Agawam House was William Beach Olmstead, who conducts the fashionable boys' school at Pomfret, Conn., and who has a fine summer home at Eastern Point, East Gloucester. He brought to Ipswich by auto last week Mrs. Olmstead, his two sons, and his house guest, R. C. Whittier. The past week's registration at the Agawam represented many cities. They were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. William Stamford Stevens and chauffeur, St. Albans, Vt.; Mrs. E. K. Butts, A. W. Butts, Troy, N. Y.; Fred O. West and family, Fall River; Rev. E. H. Thompson, Freehold, N. J.; Mrs. H. J. Hinds, Glenside, Pa.; Mary S. Rhodes, Philadelphia; Sarah L. Swan, Orelan, Pa.; L. A. Jamison, Baltimore; Howard Watkin and family, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Hyde Appleton of Philadelphia with E. B. Boden and wife of Danville, N. Y., as guests; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pearson, of Greenwich, Ct., with Mrs. C. C. Pearson and Miss Pearson of Virginia as guests. From Kansas City were Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Anderson and two children; B. H. Pendry and wife, Brooklyn, N. Y.

JEWELS OF THE PRESENT DAY.

In speaking of Jewels today, one thinks not of a diamond, or a ruby, or an emerald, set in a chunk of gold with heavy arms to hold it, but rather of a piece whose work shows, besides the quality of the stones, the conception of an artist whose life has been devoted to the study of such designing.

"What an original idea," exclaimed one recently on looking at a jewel just finished, not realizing that the lines of such a stomacher may have appeared in the gates of one of the old Chateaux of France or the Churches of Italy. The best in art followed the Italian Renaissance to the time of Francois Premier and then on, as one facetiously remarked, to that Louis family, meaning Louis XIV., XV. and XVI., and the examples shown in architecture, furniture and embroideries, gives us the basis for our present day perfection in jewel designing which has created such beautiful effects.

It is not enough that one has a stone of quality or size to wear, for to have it shown to the best advantage, it must be set in its proper place and amidst proper surroundings and how to do it becomes the work of an artist. He rarely creates, for the beauty of the past generations gives him ideas to copy, if not exactly, at any rate, the foundation, and from that is evolved the lace-like jewels of today which in all ages will be considered objects of the highest art.

Each branch of the work, however, is as important as the other, as unless the stones used are brilliant and fine color, the finished piece will look dull; if the lines used to surround the centre are too strong or too light, then its importance is diminished or magnified, and if the workman who moulds the piece cannot interpret the feeling of the artist while making it, then the happiness has left and the result is pitiful.

The standards necessary for a Jewel Merchant are higher perhaps than any other line of business, for it is one where confidence plays so great a part; and it is not always the care of his own goods which is so important, but the care of others' which may be entrusted to his safe keeping.

The purchase of a Jewel is perhaps the least extravagant one that can be made, for when does a diamond wear out, or an emerald go out of style, or a pearl cease to be desirable? Since the time of Cleopatra, that Sourceress of the Nile, pearls were valuable and rare and desired by women and to the end of the world will be, and what other thing can we buy that will have such a lasting value? Silks or satins, laces or tapestries, furniture or automobiles, all wear out and like the tiny brook, Jewels wear on forever.

The house of Dreicer & Co., of New York, with a branch at the Colonnade in Magnolia, typifies the highest standard of excellence in all branches of the art of Jewels. With a corps of six French designers, a shop of their own, cutting works where most of their largest diamonds are cut in this country and all under the constant supervision of the firm, they are, without doubt, the leaders in the Jewel business, and their dealings in Pearls are equalled by none in the world.

The $500,000 Pearl necklace exhibited in their studios last week, was the work of perhaps five years of assembling and embraced pearls from some of the famous collections sold during that time. Its equal has never been offered intact and an artist in words could scarce describe the lights and shadows, the color and tone and the air of importance it possesses. Each pearl seems to speak and it is with a feeling of awe that one views this remarkable creation of nature.

A Serious Problem.

As a disease disseminator the house-fly causes the family of the average household more trouble and annoyance than any other insect. Since the discovery that the mosquito is responsible for the spread of yellow fever, medical experts have given a great deal of attention to the work of the house-fly and have come to the conclusion that it is one of the most active agents in the spread of tuberculosis, typhoid fever and diarrhoeal diseases.

It is mainly to young children however that the flies are a menace in hot weather and especially during the months of August and September, when the dog-days are with us. They swarm around the baby's crib, unless kept off by netting; they alight upon the nursing bottle and seek to share the baby's food. In this way diarrhoeal disorders are often started, ending in death from cholera infantum to the little one. In the state of Maine several large cities are taking up the work and President Murphy of Augusta's Board of Health says in his report:

"The chief breeding place of the common housefly is stable manure which has been stacked up in piles and is undergoing a process of decomposition. Last autumn your board passed an ordinance regulating proper control of manure piles throughout our city limits, and this ordinance we are now commencing to put into execution, requiring that every householder who keeps horses shall either set out his manure daily, as required for other garbage, or shall keep his manure, if he desires to do so, in a bin, barrel or pit covered with wire gauze of sufficiently small mesh to prevent the flies passing through and depositing their eggs in the manure pile beneath it. This measure, if persistently enforced, will mean a great diminution in the number of flies and consequently a diminution in their possibility to transmit typhoid. In fact, with a clean water and milk supply and with the surface closets and manure piles eliminated or under proper control, typhoid would become almost a curiosity in any community."

"Death to the house-fly" should be the war cry at all times, and especial emphasis should be laid on this phrase. Your and the whole family's health demands it. It should mean keeping continually at it all the time and the result will be amply rewarded for the effort expended.

We advocate the liberal use of "Fly-Go" for the work of extermination, which is recommended by the government and all who have used it, to be the right thing in the right place.

Well-Known Manchester Citizen Passes Away.

On Thursday morning, the 25th, Mr. George A. Kitfield fell into that sleep which knows no waking. For several months he has suffered from a stricture which made it impossible for any nourishment to reach his stomach. Since his return from the hospital, some three weeks since, his friends have felt no reasonable hope of his recovery, although every means known to medical science were used, and his personal courage and manful fight for life was extraordinary.

Mr. Kitfield was born in Manchester, May, 1856, and, with the exception of three years spent in Dorchester, has always lived here. He was the youngest son of Henry and Lucy Ann Kitfield and the last surviving member of his family. After leaving the Manchester High School he prepared for college and entered Harvard with the class of 1878. His father's death caused him to leave during his senior year, and soon after he commenced a business career in Boston. In 1882 he married Miss Hattie B. Carter of Manchester who, with two daughters, Misses Marian and Edna, survive him. His cherry greeting and pleasant smile made him very popular. A man of kindly sympathy and ready help, his loss will be felt, not only in his family circle where he was a most tender husband and devoted father, but also as a neighbor and a friend. The sincere sympathy of the community is extended to his afflicted family.

Funeral services will be held at his late residence, Ashland avenue, on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be private.

Sale at Manchester.

Joseph L. Simon of Salem, who bought the Postoffice building at Manchester last week for $30,000, sold it Wednesday to Michael Callahan, formerly proprietor of the Manchester house, on private terms.

For Representative.

Ex-Alderman H. Bert Knowles of Gloucester will be a candidate for the legislature this fall from the 21st district, wards four, five and eight of Gloucester and the town of Manchester.

Daniel F. McCormick, Esq., a member of the Gloucester bar, is a candidate for Republican nomination for representative to the General Court from the 21st Essex district. Mr. McCormick states he has received promises of strong support from party leaders in the different wards of the city and Manchester, which compose the district.

G.A.R. Fair Next Week.

The coming week will be G.A.R. Fair week at Manchester. Beginning Monday the Fair will continue throughout the week with a grand ball on Friday night and on Saturday what is left of the articles in the various booths will be auctioned off. An especially good entertainment will be provided every night and there will be a chance to dance. A sunlight party will be held Wednesday afternoon when the entertainment feature will be the well-known Pixies. Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock will be especially interesting to the summer residents and it is urged that they attend the Fair on this afternoon.

✕ Manchester ✕

Wednesday afternoon an automobile owned by Mrs. J. J. Dean of Pigeon Cove left the highway rather unceremoniously, opposite Mrs. R. C. Winthrop's estate, West Manchester, and smashed the lamp-post into a dozen or more pieces, pushed a heavy stone wall over and after a little help from some men it continued on its course through the field, into Mrs. Winthrop's avenue and back onto the highway again. It was decided by the chauffeur to take this round-about course, and rather uncommon one, rather than be a party to a mix-up of two wagons and another automobile, which mixup seemed imminent so fast was the Dean car going. The car has been convalescing at the Regent garage since the accident. Nobody was hurt—except the stone wall and the lamp-post.

Yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock at the junction of Tappan and Beach streets a car from one of the garages, with another car in tow, ran into a new Packard car, owned by George N. Black, and in which Mr. Black was riding at the time. Both cars were only slightly injured. Mr. Black was coming along Beach street toward the station. The other car was turning into Beach from Tappan street, and was headed in the direction of Smith's Point.

Prizes are to be awarded for character costumes, etc., and altogether it is to be quite an affair. Dancing will be in the dining-room from 9 until 12

Ipswich Holds Gala Event.

One of the most interesting and instructing events that has occurred this season on the North Shore took place yesterday, and concluding today, at Ipswich, in the form of a pageant given by the Historical society.

History of different periods in the town's existence being exemplified by characters in costume by residents, all of whom are well known to society folk on the North Shore. The early history of the Puritans in England and of their arrival in Massachusetts Bay Colony by a series of scenes never before witnessed in this country.

An old fashioned town meeting presided over by Hon. Charles A. Sayward, justice of the district court, who has served as moderator at town meetings for many years, is well worth witnessing. It has proved to be a great attraction and drawn a large number of our summer visitors to view scenes that will remain in their memory for a long time.

Several notables were noticed in the gathering, from all parts of the North Shore—too many to mention at this time. Ipswich is to be congratulated.

Hotel Fairfax.

Visitors to Beverly this week who stopped at the Fairfax included Prof. Stephen W. Gilman of the University of Wisconsin, from Madison, Wis.; R. G. Valentine and Bascom Johnson of Washington and the Indian Commission on a second visit; Lewis N. Gatch, Terrace Park, Ohio. Fred Starek, noted Washington journalist, who did special newspaper work for President Taft; the Messrs. Conroy of St. Louis, Cincinnati and Boston were also here to see President Taft. The families of E. L. Kizer and C. H. Jennings of Towanda, Pa., were two auto parties touring this section as were Drs. Osborn and Rodman of New Haven and Waterbury, Ct., respectively. The Guilds of Attleboro were also an auto party.

A man giving his name as Harvey C. Merrill, about 22 years old, and his residence at Pierre, S. D., gave himself up to Chief of Police Sullivan Wednesday and confessed to stealing $70 from his employer, Louis Kehr of Pierre. The man had no money and surrendered to keep from starving. He left South Dakota 10 days ago, he says, and bore evidence of hard experiences. He has been jumping freights the latter part of his journey, he says. Chief Sullivan telegraphed to Pierre and an officer has started east to take him back.

Caretaker Arthur U. McCormick of Singing Beach has made out the following report of the doings of Singing Beach the past three months: During the month of May there were 143 bathers per week; in June, 197; in July, 211; and August to date, 120, with a half month yet to hear from. August will be the banner month if the weather and water continues good. The average temperature of the water has been as follows: May, 58 degrees; June, 63 degrees; July, 65 degrees; August, 66 degrees. There have been two days with water at 53 degrees, and one day with the water at 69 degrees. There are 38 bath rooms this year, including the Masconomo bath house for public use and each room has been over-taxed every day with only a few exceptions. Each room has averaged five persons week days and on Sundays six persons.

Henry Ogenthal, the young son of Mrs. Margaret Ogenthal can thank his lucky stars that he is alive today. Last Monday afternoon he was riding along Summer street on his bicycle, behind a large cart. Behind him Thomas O'Brien was driving a light runabout. Mr. O'Brien was just about to pass the large cart, when suddenly the young lad turned out to pass the cart also, not looking behind him to see that the road was clear. In the mixup that followed the horse and runabout passed completely over the boy and his bicycle. Mr. O'Brien was driving slowly and carefully at the time, but so suddenly did the accident occur he didn't have time to stop or to swerve to one side. He expected to see the boy lying in the road trampled to death, but to his great surprise the lad picked himself up and sat upon the curbing whimpering about having to pay for the bicycle. He was not injured in the last, and the bicycle, too, was not seriously damaged. Those who saw the accident say it is miraculous the boy was not injured as the horse and wagon passed completely over him.

:: Beverly Farms ::

Councilman John L. Saltonstall of Ward 4 (Beverly Cove) has announced his candidacy for one of the seats in the Legislature to which Beverly is entitled. Mr. Saltonstall has been at the Farms talking over the situation with some of the prominent Republicans. His entry into the field makes the situation more interesting, as Herman MacDonald, a Farms young man, who is assistant secretary to Gov. Draper, is also a candidate.

The school committee as yet have made no choice for the vacancy for the Supt. of Schools caused by the resignation of A. L. Safford. There are between 35 and 40 candidates for the position.

Miss Helen Leahy is home from a pleasant vacation spent at Lake Sunapee, N. H.

Mrs. Samuel F. Cahoon of Needham, a former resident here, has been at the Farms a portion of this week renewing acquaintances.

Forester H. Pierce has accepted a position at his trade as plumber at the U. S. Machinery Company's plant in Beverly.

Day Officer Calvin L. Williams of the Farms beat expects to start on his annual vacation the first of next week which will continue over Labor Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Manning of Springfield returned home yesterday, after spending the past two weeks at the Farms.

George H. Burchsted will probably break ground at Montserrat for his new house next week. Gregory Connolly, the mason, who is also to build there has his cellar about completed.

Crowds of people, many from out of town, are daily spending their time at West Beach. This popular spot is the mecca for enjoyment and pleasure. Not alone are the large party of bathers having a good time these days in the warm water, but they often furnish plenty of amusement for large parties of lookers-on.

Julia Kelly has gone to York Beach, Me., for a few weeks.

The dance of the Surfside club given in Neighbor's hall last evening was well attended. A large party, good music and a cool evening helped to make it an enjoyable affair.

Next Thursday evening, Sept. 1, the Swimming club will give a dance in Neighbor's hall.

The outing and picnic of the Farms firemen held on the Wyatt and Trowt field off Hart street, last Saturday, was an enjoyable affair and was attended by the members of the companies and invited guests. Besides an excellent dinner there was a fine program of sports, in which all took an active part, making competition very keen. The baseball game was decidedly interesting and was won by the Hook & Ladder Co., by a close score. The pitching of former Alderman R. E. Hodgkins, the fielding of Howard P. Williams and also the fielding and base running of George H. Bennett were particularly "classy" features of the contest.

Farms people are always interested in the Beverly hospital, who's annual report just issued shows that the institution had during the past year 411 patients of which 296 came from Beverly, 13 from Beverly Farms and 6 from Pride's Crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Chase of Denver, Col., who are on a vacation trip East, have spent a portion of this week at the Farms visiting friends.

The Sarah W. Whitman club's annual fair was held yesterday in the vestry of the Baptist church and was a decided success, as it should have been, for the ladies have worked hard to make the affair an attractive one. Commencing at 11 a. m. it continued until after 10 p. m. The sales tables were well filled with an excellent assortment of fancy and useful articles. The refreshment tables were decidedly attractive and had on them about everything that could be wished for. In the evening a splendid entertainment was given.

Harry Howell has returned to the Farms, after a three weeks' absence. He has been sick at his parents' home in Gloucester.

William Daley and his aunt, Mrs. Collins, who have been living in the Lovering cottage on Hale street, on Wednesday, moved into the Shaw cottage, formerly Mrs. Riordan's, at Preston Place. Mr. Daley is an employee on the Shaw estate.

There will be another lawn party in aid of St. Margaret's church Wednesday evening, September 7. Moving pictures, which met with so much favor at the other party, is to be a part of the entertainment. Besides dancing, new features for amusement will be introduced.

Eugene Connolly and Thos. D. Connolly, 2d, have spent this week at Rockland, Me., visiting friends. The trip was made in an automobile.

Miss Carrie Davis, who was severely injured in an auto accident recently, was brought home from the Beverly hospital, this week. She is much improved, but as yet she is far from fully recovered.

One day this week Miss Beatrice Allen was at West Beach and near her were some young girls digging in the sand. The girls found something which they tried to read, but being unable to do so they came to Miss Allen for assistance. Much to her astonishment the article proved to be an initial class ring which Miss Allen had lost a year ago and which she prized highly.

The U. S. S. Mayflower has remained off West Beach all this week with the exception of a few hours on Wednesday, and has attracted much attention from the visitors at the beach. The members of the crew who have had shore leave have been spending much of their time at the Farms, particularly on West Beach and their good deportment has been favorably commented upon. The daily concerts given on the Mayflower by the band have been plainly heard and much enjoyed by those on shore. The boat is reported to stay at her present anchorage for the rest of the season.

Miss Nellie Donovan of High street, is enjoying a vacation and is spending it at Lake Sunapee, N. H.

Beverly Farms is the vacation place for a number of out-of-town visitors. Among those who have spent the past week here are the following: Mr. and Mrs. Roland F. Adams of Exeter, N. H.; Mrs. Charles F. Rollins, New York city; Mrs. Wm. Corregan and two children from Westfield, Mass.; Thomas M. Gammon, Syracuse, N. Y.; Miss Alice Hewitt and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Payson from Hartford, Conn.

A large fleet of yachts have been anchored off West Beach, this week, the most noticeable of which, besides the Mayflower, has been the large steam yacht, "Josephine," owned by Philadelphia parties. These yachts, besides other users of the West Beach pier has made that place during the past week a very busy one.

Geo. W. O'Dea is to build a house at Montserrat on the lot where he has had his paint shop, which has been moved to the rear. The cellar for the house is about completed.

Mrs. Peter Ward of Hart street, was called to New York city the first of this week by the illness of her mother.

NATIONAL FOREST AS NATIONAL PLAYGROUNDS.

Washington, D. C., August 27.—Before the year's outing season is over nearly half a million persons will have sought recreation and health in the National Forests of the United States. According to the record of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the total last year was, in close figures, 406,775. With the finest mountain scenery and much of the best fishing and big-game hunting in the United States, the National Forests, made more and more accessible each year through protection and development by the Government, are fast becoming great National playgrounds for the people.

The use of the Forests for recreation is as yet in its beginning, but is growing steadily and rapidly—in some of the Forests at the rate of a hundred per cent. per annum. The day seems not far distant when a million persons will annually visit them.

The records show that the seasonal use of the Forests runs from two months in a Colorado Forest, such as the Routt, to twelve months in an Alaskan, such as the Tongass. But the uses differ. In Colorado, the 2000 visitors entered the Forest to fish, to camp, to climb, and to drink the medicinal waters; in Alaska the 1000 almost solely to hunt and fish. The 21,000 persons who went into the Coconino Forest, Arizona, during nine months, went to camp or to enjoy the scenery. During four months 50,000 persons visited the Angeles, California. The most popular of the Forests is the Pike, containing the famous peak of that name. The various attractions within its limits, including the scenic railway, drew 100,000 tourists and others. By principal states the National Forest visitors numbered 23,000 in Arizona, 103,000 in California, 140,000 in Colorado, 19,000 in Montana, 10,000 in New Mexico, 33,000 in Oregon, 22,000 in Idaho, 16,000 in Utah, and 12,000 in Washington.

Of the natural wonders and landmarks of interest in the National Forests several have been set apart as National Monuments among them Cinder Cone, a great lava basin in California; the Gila Cliff Dwellings, extensive remains of a prehistoric race in New Mexico; the unsurpassed Grand Canyon of the Colorado, in Arizona; Jewel Cave, South Dakota; Lassen Peak, the terminus of a long line of extinct volcanoes in the Cascades; the Pinnacles, a collection of remarkable jagged peaks in California; and the Tonto, a group of prehistoric ruins in the Tonto Forest in Arizona. The Big Trees, Glacier Park, the Petrified Forest, the Oregon Caves, and numerous other phenomena serve to attract other hosts of visitors.

The sportsman finds his paradise in the National Forests. In many of them big game abounds. The rangers and the guards, besides the service they perform against the spread of fire, often point out the best site for the camper and the easiest route. A record of 9,218 miles of trail cut, 1236 miles of road laid out, and 4851 miles of telephone line strung tells what the Government has done in the way of pushing the conveniences of civilization into the primeval forest. The day of the wilderness of the savage and the pioneer is swiftly passing; the day of the National Forests as productive resources and as National parks approaches. The report of last year's administration by the U. S. Department of Agriculture evidences the rapidity of the transformation.

THE STORE OF HONEST MERCHANDISE—YOUR STORE

To Celebrate "Columbus Day."

That the parade of Catholic organizations to be held in Boston, on Oct. 12, Columbus Day, which is to be celebrated as a legal holiday this year for the first time in this state, has already assumed such proportions as to warrant the statement that it will without question be one of the largest ever held in the city. That there will be 50,000 men in line is already assured strong hope of even a much larger number.

The fact that His Grace, Archbishop William H. O'Connell, has taken an unusual interest in the success of the undertaking and has urged upon the different societies that it is his wish that the observance should be as memorable and impressive as possible from a Catholic point of view, has given a decided impetus to the movement.

The program includes a Pontifical mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in the morning and the monster parade which it is expected will start about noon. Participating in this big public demonstration will be the Knights of Columbus, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, the various Italian organizations, the French, German, Polish and Portuguese Catholic societies, together with the temperance societies and a very large turnout from the Holy Name society.

The parade is to be in no sense a civic one, as many of the organizations taking part are uniformed and the various councils of the Knights of Columbus are developing special features to be introduced, including a large number of floats depicting various incidents in the life of Columbus and epochs in the history of America. United States Senators Lodge and Crane have also assured the committee that there will be several warships here for the celebration and that the men from these vessels, together with those from forts in the harbor will march. It is also quite probable that several of the militia regiments will participate.

One of the most unique features of the celebration is a beautiful souvenir medal that has been designed to commemorate the event. This medal is of oxidized metal, one inch in diameter and is suspended from a red, white and blue ribbon. It is to be ready for distribution Sept. 1.

On the obverse of the medal is a relief of Columbus planting the cross at San Salvador, surrounded by the members of his crew while his caravels are to be seen in the distance. On the reverse side is the seal of Massachusetts, with the inscription "Columbus Day, Boston, Massachusetts, Oct. 12, 1910." The medal was designed by District Deputy J. Philip O'Connell of West Roxbury and authorized by the executive committee as the official medal of the day and to be worn by all participants in the parade.

J. Philip O'Connell is the chairman of the committee which has charge of the distribution of these medals. It is the aim of the committee to have them reach all sections of the state and that they be distributed particularly among the school children.

Daniel Low & Co.—FINE PEARL JEWELRY—Salem, Mass.GENUINE PEARL JEWELRY.

In our Year Book for 1910 we illustrated for the first time several brooches and pendants of this real pearl jewelry, a revival of a style in vogue many years ago. These pieces met with such favor among our customers both retail and by mail that we have gathered together here the largest assortment ever shown of this class of work. The solid front of pearls without any gold showing gives this jewelry an elegance not obtained in any other pearl jewelry. One of these articles makes a very appropriate gift for the bride. Pins are 14k gold. Illustrations actual size.
